I cannot say enough for its merits.'

Electric Bitters

Electric Bitters is a medicine suited or any season, but perhaps more generally needed when the languid, exhausted feeling prevails, when the liver is torpid and sluggish and the need of a tonic and alterative is felt. A prompt use of this medicine has often averted long and perhaps fatal bilious fevers. No medicine will act more surely in counteracting and freeing the system from the malarial poison. Headache, Indigestion, Constipation, Dizziness yield to Electric Bitters. 50c. and $1.00 per bottle at L. W. Randolph's drug store.

ST. PAUL IN PORT.

The American Line Steamer Had a Most Tempestuous Voyage.

Southampton, Feb. 13.—Capt. Jamison of the American line steamship St. Paul, which reached her dock late last night, having been out ten days on her voyage from New York, her non-arrival on time having caused a great deal of anxiety, said to a press representative that for the first five days of the voyage the weather was the severest he had ever known. Throughout the first five days there was a succession of terrific northeast gales, accompanied by a very heavy sea. During the last thirty-six hours there was an extremely dense fog. From longitude 31 west the weather conditions were such that it was impossible to take an observation and the steamer was therefore navigated by dead reckoning. The St. Paul arrived in the channel at 6 o'clock Thursday night, and was fog-bound until late last evening. She was compelled to run at half speed for almost the entire passage. Her best daily run was 452 miles and her worst 270. She behaved in a splendid manner throughout, and did not sustain any damage. There was no anxiety aboard of her, everybody having perfect confidence in the seamanship of her officers. She will probably sail on her return to New York on Sunday.

THE PEACE TREATY

Senate Foreign Relations Committee To Frame an Amendment.

ONLY THING THAT CAN SAVE IT

The Convention Not Viewed from the Same Standpoint by Five Senators—Turpie Alone Believes It Is Perfect.

Washington, Feb. 13.—The senate committee on foreign relations will today endeavor to frame an amendment that will meet the objections that have been advanced in debate against the general treaty of arbitration with Great Britain that has been under discussion in secret session for the past week. Unless this amendment can be satisfactorily framed, it is probable that the consideration of the treaty may not be pushed until after March 4. The debate so far has shown that not five men in the senate look at this treaty from identically the same standpoint. It is charged with being ambiguous, but this defect is found by different men in different portions of the instrument. That it will be amended before being ratified is admitted by its best friends. The amendments are, in fact, the only things that will save it, for few, if any, agree with Senator Turpie that the treaty is perfect as it stands. Mr. Turpie's position is based upon his own construction of the terms of the convention, and if the senate was able to bring itself to think as Mr. Turpie does, the treaty would be ratified without a moment's delay. The Indiana senator's speech has, however, made a strong impression and his ideas have suggested to the committee an amendment which will be patterned after that which Mr. Morgan gave notice that he would offer at the proper time. This will change article 1, so that it will provide for that submission under this treaty for arbitration of all subjects subject to the limitations of this treaty "and in the manner and form provided by either of the contracting parties for the negotiation and ramification of treaties." This, it is claimed, will make the intent of the senate clear, and provide that every subject to be submitted to this tribunal must be first submitted to the president and by him to the senate as now provided for in the case of original treaties.

Easter was put in an insane asylum here, but the asylum authorities declared he was not insane. He said he had no sinister intentions towards ex-Governor Campbell and on his promise to leave the state, Governor Bushnell gave him his liberty. He seems to have gone directly to Hamilton where the ex-governor lives.

AN IDEA FOR THE POSTMASTER.

Though Postmaster Hetfield is always striving to give Plainfield the best service that is possible in the delivery and collection of mail, there is still one thing that business men feel the need of, and that is that the post-office should be open for a short time late in the afternoon of each holiday for the delivery of mail to those who call. Under the present system the office closes at 10 o'clock in the morning of each holiday and does not open again until 7 o'clock the following morning. Of course, we all appreciate the fact that the employes of the office are hard-workers, who have but little time for recreation, and to put in force a new order for an evening opening on holidays would deprive them still more of what little time they have left to themselves—that is, if a thorough mail distribution was made. If the postmaster cannot see his way clear to have a window delivery in the afternoon of a holiday, then, at least, the front doors should be left open and access afforded to the lock boxes by those who rent them. It might be arranged for two or three of the clerks or carriers to distribute the letters into the boxes, the attaches taking turns each holiday in the performance of this work and thus making the duty as light as possible on the whole. Certainly, important letters arrive on holidays the same as other days and there should be some plan whereby they will not remain undelivered over night.

A POPULAR VOTE.

By the vote it is seen that, as pointed out in an editorial in this paper, when the question of a city hall site was first brought up, there is a manifest sentiment that the city hall should be nearer the centre of the city than the Park avenue and East Fifth street property. While all the other proposed sites are more central, the lot at the corner of Watchung avenue and East Second street seemed to be considered the most desirable. The fact that it is lower in price, near to the railroad station, on the line of the street railway and as near the centre of the business district as any of the other available properties, is undoubtedly what commended its selection to most people. The vote as conducted by The Press was an entirely fair one. No effort was made to make a sensational canvass of the city to obtain expressions, and the volunteer voting was from representative citizens in all walks of life.

A Lincoln Social.

A Lincoln social was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Wilson, of Grandview avenue, last evening, when a most excellent programme was presented. It consisted of piano solos by Bert Simpson, selections by an instrumental trio, Messrs. Stewart, Spier and Simpson, recitations by Miss Coddington, and readings by Mrs. Taft. Ever number was well received and hearty applause accorded. After the rendition of the programme a collection was taken for the work of the Woman's Home Missionary Society, of Grace M. E. church, under whose auspices it was held. The committee in charge of the social consisted of Mrs. Taft, Mrs. Wilson, Mrs. Smith, Mrs. Powell and Mrs. Stevens.

CHANGE IN THE STUDIES.

OLD ONES ENDED AND NEW ONES TO BE STARTED AT HIGH SCHOOL.

Plans Being Arranged to Increase the Efficiency of the Cirriculum of Studies.—A Business Course Proposed for the School.

With the beginning of the new term at the Plainfield High School there have been several changes in the cirriculum. Several studies have been ended and a number of new ones started with the beginning of the new term. In the scientific course, the seniors have completed astronomy after a term of work, and geology has been taken up in its place. The Seniors have also completed English literature and begun constitutional history. The latter subject is taken up for the first time in the High School this year. It will be taught by Prof. Travell and promises to be a great addition to the course.

The Juniors in the classical course have dropped beginning physics and taken up the subject of higher arithmetic, under the instruction of Miss Niles. The Juniors in the scientific course have finished their term of chemistry and are now studying English literature under Miss Caldwell. Book-keeping has taken the place of civil government in the Fourth class.

There are a few pupils who, on account of absence or a low average, will have to take their semi-annual examinations again. The date for taking these examinations has been set for March 15th.

Plans are being made by the faculty to increase the efficiency of the different courses in the High School and several additions are being planned for the cirriculum, to take place next year. It is then expected to add German to the list of studies and introduce stenography and typewriting in the general course. In another year it is hoped to have a regular business course in the school which will prepare the young men in the school for business as well as college.

The interest of the members of the glee club has not decreased although it has been impossible to hold rehearsals for the last few week. It is now planned to have the members of the club come together once a week for practice.

The time for the entertainment of the Athletic association, which is designed to repair the empty condition of the treasury of that organization at the present time, is now approaching and the friends of the members are beginning to be called upon to purchase tickets. The committee has set the date of the entertainment for March 6th, and it will be held in the Y. M. C. A. hall. It will consist of vocal and instrumental music to be given by professional talent. The price of admission will probably be fifty cents. The entertainment will be first-class in every respect.

There was no meeting of the Kappa Delta Phi, yesterday, on account of the holiday but the members are now busy preparing for the next meeting which will consist of short talks on various modern inventions. The subjects were assigned by President Fisher. There are several more applications waiting to be handed in at the next meeting and the interest in the society shows no signs of decreasing.

The Plainfield High School Press Association has been re-organized for the season. The following officers were elected for the new year: President, Charles Noble; vice-president, Sydney R. Titsworth; secretary-treasurer, Henry W. Brower.

Recitations were given at the morning exercises in the High School Thursday morning by Lewis Squires, Miss Adeline Manning and Miss Helen Osgood. There was some singing by the school.

At the drill of the cadet company, Thursday afternoon, several new movements were tried and they did very well with them.

Smashed Two Fingers.

Timothy O'Brien, of Somerville, a brakeman on a coal train, met with an accident about two o'clock yesterday morning at the Greenbrook Tanks, while coupling cars, which resulted in the crushing of two fingers. The man was brought to Plainfield by a fellow brakeman and taken to Dr. Simpson's office, where the latter dressed the wounds. The doctor is in hopes that he will be able to save the fingers but it may be necessary for O'Brien to lose them.

Both Parents Consented.

In justice to Mr. and Mrs. E. P. T. Smith, who were recently married, it is stated that the consent of the parents on both sides was given to their marriage. It was Mr. and Mrs. Baglin that arrived too late to witness the ceremony, and not the bride's parents, as stated.

THINGS THAT INTEREST SCOTCH PLAINS AND DUNELLEN.

Brief and Terse Observations Gathered by Alert Press Reporters to be Perused at the Supper Table at Your Leisure

DUNELLEN AND NEW MARKET.

A delightful dance was held on Thursday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. F. Sampson, when they entertained about thirty of their most intimate friends. The party broke up soon after midnight, and a very pleasant evening.

Miss Sadie Barrett, of Jefferson avenue, is spending a few days with relatives in Brooklyn.

The condition of Rev. S. F. Custard was reported last night as somewhat improved, but he still lingers along in an uncertain state.

Real Estate Broker Eugene Runyon reports that he is daily in receipt of many communications asking for information concerning this vicinity, its advantages, location, tax rates and numerous other inquiries. To all of which he can only reply that the location is superb, the tax rate moderate and the accommodations better than those usually found in first-class boroughs. Mr. Runyon predicts an early spring opening in the real estate market, and judging from the number of applications already received, most of which are from New York and Brooklyn parties, this place is likely to have a boom in the real estate line this spring.

The Christian Endeavor Society of the Seventh-day Baptist church at New Market will hold a regular monthly meeting in the church this evening. In connection with the meeting there will be an informal programme of singing, recitations and an address by the pastor.

Plainfield's noted divine, Rev. Dr. A. H. Lewis, preached in the Seventh-day Baptist church at New Market this morning. Dr. Lewis is always a welcome guest among the New Market people.

Quite a large quantity of ice has been gathered from the New Market pond during the past week, but when the snow came Thursday night ice gathering was suspended.

The track walkers have had an unusually hard time of it since the storm. It is with much difficulty that they can make two trips a day, whereas in good weather they can make four.

"Sam" Merrill is looked upon as a good Samaritan. Yesterday morning he hitched up his horse to a snow plough and drove about the borough cleaning the snow from the sidewalks. But last night he had to go over the same route again.

The members of the Dunellen Checker Club met at their headquarters yesterday and passed most of the stormy day in playing this, their favorite game. Some of the members are becoming quite proficient at checker-playing, and it is said that a match with Plainfield players is soon to be arranged.

The postoffice was closed yesterday from 10 a. m. until 5 p. m., and the clerks were given a day off for recreation.

Except by the closing of the public schools and postoffice there was no other evidence of a holiday in Dunellen yesterday. All the stores and other places of business were open, but there was little or no business.

While the residents here have no particular voice in the matter a quiet canvass of some of the leading merchants in regards to their opinion concerning the location of Plainfield's propesed city hall, eight out of every ten persons interviewed favored the property adjoining the Friends' meeting house on Watchung avenue, providing, of course, if its purchase could be made. They say that many out-of-town people would necessarily be drawn here to transact business in the municipal building, and this particular location would be easy of access to both the passengers on the steam and trolley cars.

AVON PARK.

A live pigeon shoot will be held at Campbell's Club House on Washington's Birthday. There will be 200 birds ready for the shoot.

A few months ago, Mr. Byron Every, of Woodstock, Mich., was badly afflicted with rheumatism. His right leg was swollen the full length, causing him great suffering. He was advised to try Chamberlain's Pain Balm. The first bottle of it helped him considerably and the second bottle effected a cure. The 25 and 50 cent sizes are for sale by T. S. Armstrong, Apothecary, corner Park and North avenues.

But few of the mountain residents left their fire-sides yesterday. The snow averaged six inches in depth on the level and some of the roads leading into town were not traversed at all during the forenoon.

The late fall of snow, it is said, will cost the township many dollars. The roads must be opened for traffic, and the township must bear the expense through the taxpayers.

The carting of stone from the mountain crushers has been abandoned while the snow is so deep.

Snow, wind, rain, heat or scarcely anything else but sickness will keep John R. Marsh in the house, because he's always on the alert for business, and he's a man of wonderful will power.

Lincoln's Birthday was quietly observed here, and there was nothing going on outside of the ordinary routine of affairs.

A party of fishermen had planned to go to the Passaic, yesterday, but the prevailing storm put a damper on their arrangements.

BRAVED STORM FOR PLEASURE.

Ladies Aid Society of Hope Chapel Know How to Entertain.

Notwithstanding the storm and the general bad walking, Hope chapel was comfortably filled with members and friends, last evening, on the occasion of the musical and literary entertainment given under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid Society for the benefit of the chapel fund. Rev. Mr. Newell, the pastor, presided and announced the several numbers on the programme, beginning with a well-executed piano solo by Mrs. S. R. Struthers and a recitation by Miss Gerholk. Miss Howarth sang a beautiful soprano solo and her encores were so prolonged that she was obliged to respond several times. Miss Addie Parker Jackson recited "The prize violin," and Miss Howarth sang sweetly "If they'd only write and ask me to come home," and of course she had to respond to a flattering encore, as did also Miss Jackson after reciting "The Usual Way." On the whole the entertainment was a pronounced success and at its completion ice cream was offered for sale by the ladies "with cake thrown in."

HIS SIXTIETH BIRTHDAY.

A pleasant social event took place last evening at the home of John Bushnell, of Central avenue, when the latter celebrated the sixtieth anniversary of his birthday. An informal gathering of a few friends including Mr. and Mrs. Frank Bushnell, Mr. and Mrs. S. L. Schoonmaker, Miss Gertrude Andrews, F. H. Andrews, of this city, and Miss Holland, of Pittsburg, was an occasion of genuine pleasure. The host was the recipient of many happy returns of the day, and judging from his hale and hearty appearance he will live to see them.

as mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is ten fold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., contains no mercury, and is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. In buying Hall's Catarrh Cure be sure you get the genuine. It is taken internally, and made in Toledo, Ohio, by F. J. Cheney & Co. Testimonials free. Sold by druggists, price 75c. per bottle. PASSING COMMENT.

The college boy today has often been criticized for spending so much of his time at the practice of the football and other kindred games but the usefulness of that training appeared in an unexpected manner in an incident which occurred on Broadway, New York, several days ago. A young woman was walking down that thoroughfare with her purse in her hand when a man, passing by, grabbed the pocketbook and started down the street. Now there happened to be two college fellows among the passersby at the time and they started in pursuit of the thief. One of them tackled the running man after the fashion of the football field, but he tackled too high and the thief managed to shake him off. At last the other college fellow jumped and threw the man in most correct manner. A passing cit citizen assisted by sitting on the head of the thief until a policeman arrived and the purse snatcher was locked up in jail.

Much has been written concerning "Greater New York," but few have any conception how great a city it will be. Only London will exceed it in population, wealth and business. Its area will be 306 square miles, or 195,840 acres. It will have an estimated population of 3,430,000. Its bonded debt will be $216,471,593. Its annual tax budget will exceed $55,000,000. The assessed value of its real estate (New York, Brooklyn and Staten Island) will amount to $2,307,091,000. Its parks and park lands will comprise 7,336 acres, not counting several noted roadways, such as the Harlem Speedway and the Coney Island Boulevard, which are under park control.

Each session of the year brings out its fresh supply of cranks. At present, the souvenir crank is in the ascendant and he is parading about the streets of all the cities in this part of the country with the front of his coat covered with all sorts of souvenirs of the cycle show. His vest is also utilized in the carrying of all his trophies while his hat is sometimes called upon to assist. He tells you just how many different kinds he has and is willing to trade some of his duplicates for some of yours.

For Your Protection.

Catarrh "cures" in liquid form to be taken internally, usually contain Mercury or Iodide of Pottassa, or both, which are injurious if too long taken. Catarrh is a local, not a blood disease, caused by cold and damp weather. It starts in the nasal passages. Cold in the head, if repeatedly neglected, results in catarrh. Ely's Cream Balm is the acknowledged cure for these troubles and contains no mercury nor any injurious drug.

A GOOD LETTER.

From the Clerk of the Circuit Court.

Fernandina, Fla., Feb. 28, 1896.
Mr. J. George Suhrer, Druggist, City.

Dear George:—Please send a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. I would not feel easy if I knew there was none of this valuable Remedy in the house. I have given it a fair test and consider it one of the very best remedies for croup that I have ever foumd. One dose has always been sufficient, although I use it freely. Any cold my children contract yields very readily to this medicine. I can conscientiously recommend it for croup and colds in children. Yours respectfully, Geo. E. Wolff. Sold by T. S. Armstrong, apothecary, Park & North avenues.

SKETCHES BY M. QUAD

Fun In the West.

The man who asked me for a match for his pipe seemed inclined to enter into conversation as he smoked, and knowing the free handed ways of the west, I had little hesitancy in observing, after a bit:

"As you took off your cap I noticed that you had been scalped."

"Yes, I was skulped by Injuns a few years ago," he replied.

"Any story connected with it?"

"Oh, no. I met a dozen Injuns one day who wanted some fun, and so they throwed me down and skulped me."

"You are carrying some bad scars on your face?"

"Yes, purty bad. A grizzly b'ar made 'em with his claws. I was out huntin one day and met a grizzly who wanted some fun, and he turned to and clawed me."

"He didn't lame you in the left leg at the same time?" I asked.

"Noap. He didn't hev nuthin to do with my leg. I was down to Golden City one day and met Joe Lee. Joe wanted some fun, and so he pulled down on me and shot me in the hip."

"I see you have a finger off the left hand. Was that lost while somebody was having fun with you?"

"Wa-al, yes. I was takin a drink at a bar in Big Bend and forgot to invite the crowd to walk up. The boys thought they'd have some fun with me, and so one of 'em swiped off that finger to make me lose my drink."

"Did a bullet split your right ear?"

"Yes, that was a bullet. A feller named Tom White did that. Met him one day when he was lookin for fun, and he split that ear with hot lead."

"This western country is a great place for fun, I take it?" I said after a period of silence.

"You bet!" he heartily replied.

"And you must have had your share?"

"I calkerlate! Count 'em!"

And he handed me a gun, and I

"I MET A GRIZZLY WHO WANTED SOME FUN."

counted 13 tally marks on the stock. They don't tally for anything less than human beings out west.

Doing a Man a Favor.

He had been tried for murder and sentenced to be hanged and the day named, and as I happened to be in town on that day the sheriff invited me to witness the execution. Half a dozen of us accompanied him to the cell of the condemned at the proper hour, and he said to the man:

"Well, Jim, it's about time to be movin."

"Folks all ready outside?" asked Jim.

"Yes, all ready. Thar's a big crowd to see yo' go, and I hope yo' won't make no fuss."

"Say, Bill," said the condemned after a moment's thought, "I've concluded not to be hung."

"Shoo! Why, yo' was reg'larly sentenced."

"Yes, I know, but I'm goin to kick ag'in it. I didn't hev no fa'r show."

"It was fa'r as could be, Jim, and only yisterday yo' agreed not to make any fussin. 'Pears like yo' don't want to do the right thing by me."

"Yes, I do, but this yere hangin don't do a man no good. Mebbe I'll hang next week, but durn my hide if I do it today. Jest go and tell the folks that it's put off."

"Shoo! Shoo!" grumbled the sheriff. "The law says yo' ar' to be hung between the hours of 10 and 12 o'clock. Don't be ornery, Jim. Jest git ready and cum out and be hung like a man. Hain't I used yo' all right?"

"Yes, reckon so."

"Gin yo' plenty to eat and a good bed?"

"Yes."

"Then why go back on me? If I don't hang yo', what's the governor gwine to say 'bout it? What's the judge gwine to do? I ain't askin yo' to hang 'cause yo' killed yo'r ole woman, but to obleege me."

"Is that it? Would it be a favor to yo', Bill?"

"It would, Jim, a big favor. Yo' couldn't do nuthin to obleege me mo'."

"And yo'll remember it of me?"

"I will, and if I kin ever do yo' a good turn yo' kin count on me."

"Waal, then," said Jim as he rose up, "I reckon yo' kin go ahead with the hangin. I don't keer fur the governor nor the judge, but when a feller has used me white I'm willin to do him a favor and won't go back on him. Git along to the gallus and hev it over with."

Fare $1.

The ticket agent at Big Bend was not the man for the place, and he realized it as well as many others. He was a nice man and knew his business, but he lacked sand. The fare from Big Bend to Black Hill was $1, but when any of the crowd wanted to go down they handed in two or three quarters, as the case might be, poked five or six inches of a revolver through the window and called out:

"Ticket fur Black Hill, and don't waste too much time over it."

The agent always handed out a ticket and pretended that things were all right, and the boys played it on him till he had to throw up his job. One day the old man went and the new one took his place, and four or five of the gang went down to the depot to size the latter up. When they returned to camp, there was a majority and a minority report. Bill Thompson was spokesman for the majority, and he said:

"He's the softest thing in these yere parts. I'm not goin to buy any more tickets, but I'll scare 'em outer him. The sight of a gun will make his ha'r curl."

Bob Williams was spokesman for the minority and was also the minority as well. He looked very serious as he said:

"He's a pale faced, humble lookin critter, but don't make no mistake on him. He carries his forefinger kinder curled up, as if pullin trigger, and the first man who shoves a gun in on him is goin to git hot lead in return."

The camp was divided on the question, and after much talk Bill Thompson offered to make the test and settle the problem. In a day or two a score of us went down to witness the performance. We were lounging about the waiting room when in walked Bill with a whoop, and advancing to the ticket window he gruffly inquired the fare to Big Hill.

"One dollar," was the reply.

"A dollar fur me—Bill Thompson?"

"Yes, sir, for you or anybody else."

"And you won't take a half?"

"No, sir."

"You won't take it with this thing behind it?" continued Bill as he shoved the coin along with the muzzle of his gun.

"No, sir, and"— And there was a pop, pop, pop, and six bullets were chasing each other into William's anatomy. He lost a finger, had an ear split, an eyebrow shot off, got a rake across the chin and another across the scalp, and he didn't have time to fall until all was over. Then the agent opened the door of his office and looked us over and said:

"I didn't shoot to kill, and he isn't hurt much. The fare to Black Hill is $1, exactly $1. Any one else want to get to Black Hill for a quarter?"

Without a word in reply we picked Bill up and lugged him off. He was also a very silent man. We had got him all bandaged up and put to bed before he was ready to talk, and then he simply inquired:

"Boys, who did all that shootin?"

"Why, the feller you said you could bluff," answered one of the boys.

"——! but I thought I did," he growled as he turned his face to the wall and shed tears.

Lucky Women.

"I do so envy Mary Jasmyn," said the hostess in that rather high key of voice acquired by one who battles daily with the shrieking of the breeze from Lake Michigan.

"Mary does seem rather lucky in her marriages," assented the visitor.

"Yes, this is her sixth. But the remarkable thing is that she has kept the same hired girl through all of them."
—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Barriers to Education.

"You know Margaret wanted to get a man to instruct her in politics?"

"Yes. How did she come out?"

"Well, she got one, and after she had listened to him five hours seven other men came along and told her that he was on the wrong side of the question."

QUEEN WILHELMINA.

STORIES OF HOLLAND'S YOUNG AND POPULAR SOVEREIGN.

She Says that She Will Choose Her Own Husband, and that No State Matchmakers Need Apply—She is Intensely Loyal to Her Race.

When Queen Victoria inherited the British throne she was scarcely more popular than is the young Queen of Holland at the present moment. The Dutch simply adore their young sovereign, and take the most intense interest in her coming of age (which will take place next August), and in her possible marriage. Queen Wilhelmina is credited by her people with much force of character. It is thought that she will attempt to rule as well as reign, and her choice of a husband is therefore a matter of utmost importance to the Dutch. The "Wochen Zeitung," Amsterdam, says on this subject:

"The many rumors of the Queen's approaching marriage are premature. More than once she has declared that she would prefer to remain single as long as possible. At any rate, it is certain that the Queen will choose for herself. She will not be railroaded into marriage. Only recently she said: 'I love my loyal subjects, and hope to please them in every way. But if they believe that they have a voice in the choice of my husband, they are decidedly mistaken. If extreme measures should be resorted to against me, I shall be more energetic than ever. I will not be married at all if I am not allowed to have a voice in the matter.'"

So far the Dutch people are rather pleased with these expressions of independence. They are, however, anxious to have certain legal formalities settled before the Queen comes of age. The "Courant," Rotterdam, writes as follows:

"It will be necessary to define the position of the Queen before the law, to remove the conflict between the Queen's position as head of the state and his wife, and it is best that this should be done before she has chosen a husband. According to the civil code the wife is bound to obey her husband, and the latter has a right to demand that his children should be called by his name. More. The husband can compel his wife to reside in whatever place he thinks fit to choose as his abode. The Queen is not above the law; she must obey it as well as her subjects. The rights of the Prince Consort would therefore clash with the constitution, for the seat of government may not constitutionally be transferred to a foreign country. The Queen's exceptional position should be defined by special legislation while she is yet free."

Although there are many points of similarity between the position of the Queen of England and that of the Queen of Holland, there has sprung up between the two countries an estrangement since Wilhelmina inherited the throne of Holland. For some unaccountable reason the young Queen has a violent aversion of everything English. The British press returns this dislike with interest. "Her figure is ungainly, her lips are bloodless," etc., are things we read of her in "Life" and other English society papers. These descriptions are reported to her and do not assist her in overcoming her dislike of Englishmen. The "Vaderland" relates the following incident:

"During a recent tour abroad the Queen expressed a wish to the Dutch Ambassador accredited to a foreign court to meet his daughters. 'I do so wish to meet some Dutch girls,' she said. 'I am just dying for some one to speak to in my own language. Do send your daughters to me.' 'But my daughters do not speak Hollandish,' replied the unfortunate nobleman. 'My girls were not born in Holland; they only speak English.' 'Then, for heaven's sake, do not send them to me,' replied Queen Wilhelmina, wrathfully. 'I will have nothing to do with Dutch girls who do not understand their own language!'"

Wanted Spices of Variety in Life.

The expression of his face showed that he was easily irritated, and the contractor into whose office he walked braced himself for trouble.

"I wish," said the irritable man, "that you would do me a favor in connection with the work on my house."

"Anything that we can do will be cheerfully attended to."

"Thank you. I wish you'd send a new man to do the painting."

"But the one we have there is an excellent workman."

"I don't doubt that. But he's been there three days and he hasn't whistled anything but 'Tell Them that You Saw Me.' I'm pretty slow at catching a tune, but I've learned that with all the variations, and if it's just the same to you I'd like to start in on a new one."

A Wise Precaution.

Mr. Williams: "Wha' yo' doin' dat fo', Mr. Jo'son—puttin' mosquito nets up dis time in de year?"

Mr. Johnson: "Waal, yo' see de doctor tole me de air war full of dese yer micro bees; so I's takin' precotions agin gittin' 'em into de house."

A Soft Language.

The Turkish language is said by scholars to be the softest and most musical language of modern times, being better adapted to the purpose of musical notation and recitation than even the Italian.

"A WONDER OF WONDERS!"

Indorsement Extraordinary—Senator Sanford—Dr. Greene's Nervura.

Dr. Greene's Nervura Unequaled and Unrivaled—The Best Medicine in the World—Use it Now as a Spring Remedy for the Blood and Nerves.

SENATOR JUSTIN O. SANFORD, MEMBER STATE BOARD OF AGRICULTURE.

Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy is called "The wonder of wonders," for it is acknowledged by physicians and the people as unrivaled in all the world, unequaled by any other remedy on earth.

In effecting wonderful cures and by its marvelous powers to restore health, Dr. Greene's Nervura stands far above all other remedies. It is, in fact, the King of Medicines, for it always cures, it always makes the people well.

Senator Justin O. Sanford of Stamford, Vt., member of the State Board of Agriculture and President of the State Dairyman's Association, who is known throughout the length and breadth of our country, says:—

"I have been made acquainted with the results of the use of Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy upon many of my friends, and in all cases which have come under my observation, the results have been most happy, and I can but say that I look upon it with favor as a very desirable family remedy. My permission is given to publish this letter for others' good."

No remedy in the world's history ever had such an overwhelming number of testimonials of cure. These testimonials of the wonderful curative powers of Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy come from persons highest in the honor and esteem of their fellowmen, whom everybody knows and in whose word all have absolute confidence. Statesmen in exalted official positions, lawyers, ministers, doctors, merchants, all add the weight of their words of praise and thanks for this truly grand medicine, while a perfect avalanche of testimonials pour in from the common people everywhere, from the great rank and file of humanity who thus express their profound gratitude for the remarkable remedy which has cured them, by recommending others to use it also and be restored to health as they have been. If you are wise, if you desire to regain your health and to be well and strong again, you will heed the advice of thousands upon thousands who have been cured by this veritable giant among medicines, and use Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy. It will surely cure you—it will surely make you well.

Dr. Greene's Cathartic Pills are the perfect pills for biliousness and constipation. Dr. Greene, 35 West 14th St., New York City, the most successful physician in curing diseases, can be consulted free, personally or by letter.

TAX ON CIGARETTES.

The Proposition To Increase It from 50 Cents to $50 a Thousand.

Washington, Feb. 13.—Speaking of the proposition before the ways and means committee to raise the tax on cigarettes from fifty cents to fifty dollars per thousand, Mr. Woodman, said "It is possible the proposition, without some explanation, may seem an unwise and unnecessary measure. But, properly considered, there can be no reasonable question of its excellence. As a revenue measure it means an enormous increase. It is probable that the consumption of cigarettes will be materially decreased, perhaps one-half but in that case the revenue from their manufacture and sale will be five times what it is now, and thus play its part in the redemption of an impoverished treasury. Adult smokers of cigarettes will have them even at the enhanced price made mandatory by this measure, but where the great element of virtue will obtain will be in so contracting the sale that the school children, the rising generation, will be protected from its evils. Protection is the watchword of the age. Protection to American workingmen. Protection to American industries. Protection, as by the immigration bill recently passed, to American citizenship. Protection, as in the case of the lottery law of a few years ago of the people against themselves. Is there, then, any reason why the same protection should not be extended to our boys, especially when such protection involves a matter of much needed revenue to the government."

REDUCED TO SLAVERY.

Terrible State of Affairs Said To Prevail in Nicaragua Labor Market.

New York, Feb. 13.—Correspondence from Panama, under date of February 3, contains the following: Nicaraguan advices are to the effect that a terrible state of affairs prevails there in the labor market and the system of selling labor has resulted in reducing very large numbers of men, women and children to a state of slavery. Owners of coffee estates recently held a meeting with the object of influencing the government of Nicaragua to establish in Cuba a laborer establishment to induce Cuban laborers to migrate to Nicaragua. Men and women are endeavoring by every possible means, except an armed revolution, to escape from the sale of their labor authorized by the constitution of Nicaragua and enforced as vigorously as possible by military power until the money for goods advanced to them thereon and heavy fines for delinquency have been paid in full by labor at low rates.

Gift to Pension Commissioner Murphy.

Washington, Feb. 13.—Representative C. W. Stone of Pennsylvania, accompanied by James B. Atwell and W. H. Lockhart of Pittsburg, called at the pension office yesterday, and in the names of Patterson Post and O. H. Rippey Post, G. A. R., of Pittsburg, presented to Pension Commissioner Murphy a beautifully illuminated set of resolutions of those two posts commendatory of Commissioner Murphy's administration of the pension office. Mr. Stone made a brief address of presentation and the commissioner replied.

The Snow Storm in Pennsylvania.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., Feb. 13.—The fierce snow storm which raged here all day yesterday has done considerable damage throughuot the country districts. The fall was fully ten inches on the level, and trains on all the railroads are more or less late. At Nesopeck, on the Lehigh Valley railroad, engine 76, attached to a train of empty freight cars, ran into another train. A number of cars were smashed and derailed, but fortunately no one was hurt.

Fierce Storm on New England Coast.

Highland Light, Mass., Feb. 13.—The light easterly winds of yesterday morning increased to a terrible gale last night. It snowed hard all night and drifted badly, and it was one of the worst nights of the winter on the coast. Patrolmen along the beaches found it difficult to make their rounds. Ten sail of fishing vessels were between Nauset and Race point when the gale began. It will be fortunate if marine disasters are not reported to-day.

CAN'T TRUST TURKEY

Great Excitement in Greece To-day Over a Report from Smyrna.

TROOPS LEAVING THERE FOR CRETE

Franco-Russian Scheme for the Powers To Blockade Crete—An Announcement in the British Parliament That Christians Are the Aggressors.

Athens, Feb. 13.—The greatest excitement prevails here this morning. The newspapers have issued extra editions containing a report that the vali of Smyrna has chartered a steamer for the purpose of transporting troops to Crete, and this in face of the assurances given to the powers by the porte that Turkey would not send reinforcements to the island. The newspapers and the crowds in the streets declare that the action of the vali is taken with the full cognizance of the porte, which has again proved, if proof is necessary, that not the slightest confidence can be placed in its assurances or promises. Hearty denunciation of the Turkish government is heard on every hand. The city was awake all last night and the principal streets are filled with Greeks, who demand that the Grecian warships shall prevent the landing of further troops in Crete. It is believed here that orders to that effect have already been given to Prince George, and there is no doubt that he will carry out his instructions, in which case war with Turkey would probably result unless diplomacy or superior force should be employed to divert Greece from her determination to protect the Cretan Christians, and also, perhaps, to bring about the long sought for annexation of the island.

Franco-Russian Scheme.

London, Feb. 13.—M. Hanotaux, the French foreign minister, has initiated proposals that the powers blockade Crete, and that they also occupy Canea, Retimo and other centres of disorder pending a settlement of the dispute that will be satisfactory to the Cretans. Active negotiations on these proposals are now proceeding. A high authority at the foreign office told a representative of the United Associated Presses that he believed the proposals of M. Hanotaux was a Franco-Russian scheme to permit Greece to occupy the island, with Prince George, the second son of the king of the Hellenes, as governor general, the island continuing to pay tribute to Turkey.

Insurgents Preparing To Attack Canea.

London, Feb. 13.—A dispatch from Constantinople says that 4,000 Cretan insurgents are known to be concentrated in the vicinity of Canea, awaiting the arrival of arms, ammunition and equipments from Sphagin, on the south coast near the western extremity of the island of Crete, where they have been landed by expedition from Greece. When these supplies are received, the dispatch says, it is the intention of the insurgents to make an attack upon Canea. The dispatch adds that the Turkish authorities are now convinced that the pacification of the island can only be effected by European occupation.

Christians the Aggressors.

London, Feb. 13.—In the house of commons George N. Curzon, parliamentary secretary to the foreign office, announced that the latest news received by the government showing the situation in Crete was that the Christians were the aggessors and were attacking the Moslems in many localities. A large numer of Moslems, Mr. Curzon said, had been killed and thirteen villages had been burned. The stock exchange is characterized by a feeling of nervousness, though there is less excitement than yesterday. Dispatches from various continental capitals show that the continental bourses are similarly affected and are flat and featureless.

Italy Will Not Interfere.

Rome, Feb. 13.—A semi-official note has been issued here stating that Italy will not oppose Greece in any action the latter country may take on the Cretan question. It is added that Italy does not wish to serve Turkey in any manner.

Naval Force in Cretan Waters.

Canea, Crete, Feb. 13.—The naval force in Cretan waters is now made up as follows: Great Britain, 26,230 tons, 1,482 men; France, 6,588 tons, 616 men; Russia, 9,982 tons, 724 men.

War Almost Inevitable.

Berlin, Feb. 13.—The Post of this city publishes an article in which it says that war between Greece and Turkey is almost inevitable. The paper adds that Turkey is entitled to allow her troops to cross the Thessalian frontier in view of the action of Greece.

Turkey's Promise.

Constantinople, Feb. 13.—The report is confirmed that the porte has given assurance to the powers that Turkey will not send reinforcements to Crete.

Fatally Stabbed by Her Brother.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., Feb. 13.—Two brothers, John and Michael Groblic, had a quarrel in Pittston yesterday. John being intoxicated drew a knife and stabbed his brother, the blade penetrating the lung near the heart. The wounded man, who is a saloon keeper in Pittston, will die.

STRIKES AND SPARES.

Hugh Higgins made quite a record for himself at the alleys in the Ulrich club house, Wednesday evening. In the first frame he only downed one pin but he bowled so well in the rest of the game that his score at the end was 214.

VARIOUS SPORTS.

An indoor contest was held in the gymnasium of the University of New York, several days ago. Ralph Campbell, of Netherwood avenue, was entered in the fence vault and cleared the bar at the height of 6 feet, 5 inches, breaking his own and the college record. George F. Rose, formerly of the borough, was entered in the contest on the horizontal bars and did some very pretty work.

BASKET BALL.

A basket ball game is scheduled between the team from the business men's class in the Plainfield Association and the team from the Elizabeth Athletic Club for the afternoon of Washington's Birthday. It will be played in Elizabeth. The E. A. C. boys have been practicing considerably since they defeated the Elizabeth Y. M. C. A. team by a score of 5 to 1, and they now hope to down the Plainfield players. Elizabeth has always considered herself superior to Plainfield in all athletic lines and the basket ball players of that city think that they can hold up their end of their city's reputation. The easy defeat of the Y. M. C. A. team of that city by the Plainfield business men was a sorrowful surprise, but the E. A. C. players think that they can turn the tables on Washington's Birthday.

If the basket ball team of the Cranford Athletic Club expected to defeat the team from the business men's class of the Plainfield Y. M. C. A., yesterday afternoon, they were greatly mistaken. They did not even make as good a showing as they did in the first contest between the two teams. The game was played in the gymnasium of the Plainfield Association, and the home team had no difficulty in defeating the visitors from Cranford by a score of 37 to 10.

Two of the regular team of the business men's class were unable to play and their places were taken by members of the regular team of the association.

The Plainfield players put up a good game, while the Cranford boys showed their weakness in failing to guard their opponents. The result of the game was assured after the first few minutes of play.

In the second half, Marclay was put centre of the Plainfield team in place of Smith, and the latter was placed at centre instead of Morraller.

The teams lined up as follows:

PLAINFIELD.		CRANFORD.
Moraller, Smith, G.	right forward	Nix
Smith, Marcley,	centre	Cox, S

Received a Splendid Offer.

J. Linn Edsall, retiring proprietor of the Commercial Palace, has received an excellent offer from one of the largest department stores in Helena, Montana, for the position of superintendent. Mr. Edsall is considering the offer and will probably accept it in a few days.

Edsall says his great retiring sale may close any day now, as the amount agreed upon to sell has already been reached, and Messrs. Woodhull & Martin, the new proprietors, desire to take possession of the Commercial Palace just as soon as possible.

Anniversary of Rector's Service.

Tomorrow will be an eventful day at Holy Cross church, for the anniversary of the completion of Rev. T. Logan Murphy's twentieth year as rector of the church will be observed. The services will be 11 a. m. and 4:30 p. m.

Miss Clara King, of Chatham street, who has been seriously ill with scarlet fever is now convalescent, and her speedy recovery is looked for.

The Rev. and Mrs Garrett Conover have returned to their home at Hawthone, after spending Lincoln's Birthday at Mrs. J. K. Van Arsdale's, on Grove street.

SAW THE NURSES' HOME.

Hugh Hastings and Mrs. Carl Pfeiffer, and those who assisted in receiving were the following members of the Woman's Auxiliary Board: President, Mrs. VanBuren; vice presidents, Miss Cock and Miss Schipper; Miss Haviland, and the others who assisted in waiting were the Misses Reinhart, Mrs. Saunders, Miss VanBoskerck, Miss Pfeiffer, Mrs. E. M. VanBuren, Miss Brunson; and Miss Graff, of Brooklyn.

The Managing Board of the hospital was present as follows: Messrs. Goddard, Cock, Huntington, Reynolds, Saunders and Clark. There were also present nearly all of the Plainfield physicians and their wifes.

The superintendent, Miss Moss, and the nurses of the hospital attended the opening and they were very courteous and kind in extending to their guests genuine hospitality.

The opening of this home marks an era of progress in the most important work, which has so deeply interested the people of the city, and all that remains for the people of Plainfield to do is to see that the necessary running expenses of these two important institutions are met by a generous and ready response.

SPEAKER DIDN'T COME.

Principal Attraction at Vincent Chapel Was a Disappointment.

There was something of a disappointment in store for those who attended the Lincoln sociable of the Ladies' Aid Society of the First M. E. church, held in Vincent chapel last evening. The feature of the evening had been expected to be an address of Cyrus G. Shepard, of Newark, who was one of the party that accompanied Boston Corbin at the time when he shot Wilkes Booth, the murderer of President Lincoln. Owing to the storm, however, Mr. Shepard's visit to this city was postponed and the address was given up for the evening

The rest of the programme was a short one but the evening was passed in social chat while the refreshments were in readiness to pass at the close of the programme.

After the singing of "America," which opened the programme, J. W. Jackson, who was the master of ceremonies, led in a short prayer. Clarence Mills rendered a violin solo in an artistic manner, accompanied by Miss May Whitney.

"The Burglar" was the title of a recitation by Miss Lehleiter. Then should have come the address but, as it didn't, a solo, "The Battle Hymn of the Republic," was sung by Elmer E. Runyon while all the audience joined in the chorus.

Coffee and crullers were passed by the members of the society, assisted by some of the young men and a social hour followed.

The committee which had charge of the sociable consisted of Mrs. Winter, chairman; Mrs. Whitney, Mrs. Sheppard, Mrs. Thorn, Mrs. Smith, Mrs. Sutphen, Mrs. Tingley, Mrs. Riker, Miss Roberts, and Miss Van Middlesworth.

Zinc Wall Paper.

"Zinc wall paper" is the latest oddity and several residences of the highest class new building will be equipped with it. The zinc is prepared by a new process, so as to exactly resemble marble. The most beautiful varieties of marble are imitated in such a manner that the imposture is only to be detected after a close examination.

The zinc is attached to the wall by a cement invented for the purpose. The surface of the zinc is enamelled so as to render it permanent and washable. Tiles or any other form of mural covering can be imitated as readily as marble and the material is made in a great variety of patterns.

It is claimed for this new departure in decorative material that while it is as permanent as tiles or marble, it is much cheaper, and can be as easily put on as ordinary wall paper. It can be applied, too, to any surface, whether flat, broken or sound, and any beading, etc., can be embossed on the metal to complete a design or panel.—New York Journal.

A Parson's Blessing.

In one of the rural districts a Georgia minister was invited to dine with a citizen who, though wealthy, furnished his table poorly. When they were seated the host said:

"Times air mighty tight, parson, an' we ain't got nothing much ter set before you, but, sich as it is, you air welcome. Will you ask a blessin' on what you see?"

The parson, observing the scant repast, lifted up his voice and said:

"Lord, make us thankful for what we see, and may we be able to find it when we reach for it. Let it not escape us and prove a snare and a delusion. Amen. Thank you for the greens."—Atlanta Constitution.

WILL SHARE ITS PROFITS.

The Illinois Central Road Inaugurates a Co-operative Scheme.

For the first time in the history of railroading railroad employes have been offered an opportunity to try profit sharing with the road for which they work. The Illinois Central, one of the greatest railway corporations in the world, has decided to adopt the system, though in a somewhat curious fashion.

In an announcement to its employes it offers to permit any one in its employ to purchase shares of stock of the company at a figure far below the regular market rate. Quotations will change with each month, and these changes will be made known to the heads of the Central's departments. The price made at the beginning of each month will stand until the first of the month succeeding.

An employe purchasing stock or a share can pay down if he chooses, or in installments of $5 per month, or any multiple of $5. When the share of stock—for only one share can be taken at a time—is paid for the subscribing employe receives from the company a certificate of the share, which is registered in his name on the corporation's books. Just as soon as this is done the purchaser of another share may begin in the same way, and so on, without limit. The certificates of stock thus purchased are transferable on the company's books, and entitle the owner to such dividends as the Board of Directors may declare, and also give him the privilege of a vote in the election of these same directors who vote the dividend.

The marked advantage to the employe who takes this offer is evidenced by the fact that all during the time he is paying by installments for a single share he will receive interest on the deposits he makes at the rate of four per cent per annum, provided he does not allow twelve consecutive months to elapse without making any payment. Should he do this—that is, allow the lapse referred to—the payment of interest will cease to accrue, and he will be given whatever sum he has deposited whenever he makes application for the same.—New York Herald.

A SHAWL STRAP FOR PET DOGS.

Swell Girls No Longer Carry Their Darlings Like Babies in Arms.

The swell girl who is thoroughly up to date no longer carries her pet dog as if it were a tender infant. It is not at all uncommon to see a fashionably dressed woman walking along carrying the curly object of her adoration wrapped up in a contrivance that resembles a shawl strap. It is a sort of harness with a strap fastened over the dog's hips and another over his breast, after the fashion of the hame and the breeching that form so important a feature of the harness of a horse.

At first thought it might seem as if the canine swell would object to being suspended in midair in this way. Quite the contrary, however. Experience shows that it is much more comfortable than being squeezed and smothered in the arms of his mistress or her maid, no matter how carefully they try to move him about.

Moreover, since the harness is no impediment to the dog moving about on his feet, a chain can be attached to the handle and the little animal led along as easily as if he had no harness on at all.—New York Herld.

Great,
GREATER, GREATEST
The sale up to date has been a great and marvelous success, the amount of sales being just double of what we calculated on when we started in.
There is scarcely any abatement of interest or crowds yet, as the sale has become so widely and popularly known, not only in Plainfield and vicinity, but all around in this part of the State.
The $80,000 stock begins to show some thinning out of course; but there are hundreds and hundreds of good things yet that every household needs that you can save money on by buying now at this sale.
Now if you have not bought all you want at the sale you had better come in at once, as it may run only a few days longer, as far as we can tell at this writing.
Hundreds of people are buying now for future use. They say that in all of their experience, even in New York and other large cities, they have never seen such marvelously low prices marked on fine seasonable goods.
Everybody knows that we have never dealt in second-hand goods or cheap auction stuff, and that when we advertise FIRST-CLASS seasonable goods they can rely on getting just what is advertised.
And so the great mass of people who have been to this sale regard our announcements at this time.
As the writer sits at his desk writing these notes Thursday afternoon, Feb. 11th, both floors of the popular Commercial Palace are literally packed with eager buyers, who go away pleased and delighted with their great bargains.

CHRISTIAN TYPE OF MAN

EULOGY OF FRED S. DUNN BY REV. CORNELIUS SCHENCK.

Final Obsequies Over the Remains of a Young Man Whose Life, Though Burdened With Ills, Was Exemplary.

The obsequies of the late Fred S. Dunn were held from the home of E. T. Dunn, 210 West Fourth street, Saturday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock. The large attendance of friends that gathered with the relatives evidenced the esteem and love which they held for the departed. Rev. Cornelius Schenck, Ph. D., pastor of the Trinity Reformed church, conducted the services. His remarks were full of consolation to the bereaved ones, and those who were friends. A portion of Mr. Schenck's remarks were as follows:

"On such an occasion as this it is customary for a clergyman to deliver some homily or speak on some kindred theme, but today it is not in my heart to speak such words. Ever since our brother returned my mind has been in a reminescent mood, and has wandered back through the years to the time when he took his first stand for Christ, and I have thought of his peculiar checkered career within such a comparatively short time.

"With some people nothing exceptional happens to mar the even tenor of their ways, but with our brother it was vastly different. Soon after his confession of Christ and his marriage his life journey began.

"It was in June, 1881, one year after I came to Plainfield, that he decided for Christ. I remember that Sunday well when he assumed and made his confession. Since that time he has lived in the fear of God. A few months afterward he was married, not far from where we are assembled today. He and his bride started out in life with a bright future full of promise. In 1890 they left Plainfield in search of health. A little later they joined the Presbyterian church at Fairhaven, Wash. The fact that they wanted a church home was an evidence that they were walking close to God. They did not tarry long at the latter place, but they sought a different clime farther west and south. Finally they returned to Plainfield so that Mrs. Dunn might spend her last days with her loved ones. On October 2d, 1892, they were again received into the church of their first choice, and two weeks later that beautiful personality returned to the God who gave it.

"It then became the husband's turn, and he sought health in the west, but he came back to pass his remaining days with his friends. This is a brief story of life from the church records. In this life there are one or two things which should be empasized; not to eulogize, for that would be distasteful to our brother.

"In the first place, when he accepted Christ he came out bright and took a bold stand. Since then he had not, to my knowledge, ever retraced his steps. He lived a good Christian life, and occupies a front seat in the Kingdom of God. I remember that soon after he was married he and his bride occupied a front seat in church. They attended regular the services of the church and the Christian Endeavor meetings.

"Secondly, our brother always carried his Bible to church and Sunday-school. That always pleased me, for it is not very often that we see a person carry that book to the services, and I think it is worthy of emulation. There was a singular regularity about his attendance at all church services. It was his pleasure to hold the honorable position of president of the Christian Endeavor society, and I noticed as he lay in his coffin today that he wears the badge of the society.

"His desire to spend his last days at home reminds us of the story of Jacob of old, who had the same desire. He was not content to lay in foreign lands, and he was granted more than that desire, for he was allowed to be surrounded with his friends and kindred. We should be grateful that it was granted and that God gave him the strength to travel three thousand miles to the city that he loved. He found the religion of Christ his portion in health, and a source of strength in sickness. When he was asked whether it was his strength, he replied that it was, and that there was no cloud or anything between him and Jesus. He was awaiting the summons from his Maker.

"Years ago he committed his soul to God who was his support and comfort. We shall ever think of him tenderly and kindly, as a true disciple of Christ. Our sorrow today is tempered with the fact that he is with Christ. His departure teaches a lesson to the young especially, and it teaches that

DIED IN A TRAGIC WAY.

JOHN PEARSON, AGED 17 YEARS, KILLED ON THE RAILROAD TRACK.

Was Attempting to Cross the Tracks and Did Not Notice the Approach of a Passenger Train—Was Instantly Killed.

In the death of John Pearson, aged 17 years, which occurred Saturday afternoon about 5 o'clock at the Grant avenue station on the Central railroad, a young life was suddenly taken away in a most tragic manner. Only a short time before he had stopped work at the Pond Tool Works, where he was employed as an apprentice, and as was his usual costom, he attempted to cross the railroad tracks, a short cut to his home on Wilson avenue in the borough. When he reached the tracks a coal train was passing, and after waiting until the train had passed the point where he was standing, he slipped behind it just in time to be struck by a passenger train which was going west. He evidently did not see the train coming and he was unable to get out of the way. The engine struck him in the head, breaking his neck and inflicting several wounds about the head. It is not supposed that he knew what struck him, so quickly was the tragedy committed. His body was quickly picked up and placed on a passenger train which was coming to Plainfield. It was placed in the baggage-room at the North avenue station and Undertaker Casey was notified to take charge of it. The body was then removed to the morgue where Dr. Westcott, the county physician, viewed it and gave a burial permit. Afterward Undertaker DeMott took charge of the body and removed it to the home of the parents on Wilson avenue. When the parents learned of the accident they were grief stricken.

Young Pearson was well thought of by all who knew him and his quiet manner won for him many friends. About a month ago he joined Somerset Council, J. O. U. A. M., and his parents will receive from that order a death benefit. The boy had worked about two years at his trade and was considered an excellent workman.

The funeral services will be neld Tuesday afternoon from the house at 2 o'clock, and the lodge of which he was a member will take charge.

MORE CITY HALL SITES.

DURLACH PROPERTY MENTIONED AS A DESIRABLE PLACE.

It is Said That it Can be Bought in Conjunction With the Neighbor Property Adjoining.—Another Proposition.

Every day there is some new proposition made with reference to a site for the proposed municipal building, and one of the latest is that the Durlach property at the corner of Watchung avenue and East Front street can be purchased and used in conjunction with the Neighbor property adjoining, giving 150 feet on Front street and 250 feet on Watchung avenue. It is argued that if this property was bought all trouble with the Durlachs concerning the opening of Watchung avenue, through to the borough, would be obviated, because the city could then do with the property as they saw fit.

It is also understood Charles P. Sebring, who owns the property adjoining the lot at the corner of Watchung and East Front street, opposite the Hand property, is willing to sell twenty-five feet off Second street and thus give, if the city should purchase the lot controlled by George Kyte, a depth of 115 feet. He says he will sell his portion of the land at the same rate paid for the Kyte property.

A Thrilling Talk.

Reform Hall was crowded to its utmost capacity Saturday evening when Miss Pokey Barnes, of Richmond, Va., an ex-Luenberg prisoner, related her thrilling experiences while in the hands of the law and sentenced to be hung. It was but a very short time before the time of execution that she received her paper of release from the Governor of Prince Edward county, Virginia. Miss Barnes is under the management of G. L. Brown, of 536 West Third street, who has interested himself in these lectures.

Forty Hours Devotion.

The beautiful devotion of the forty hours opened at St. Joseph's church yesterday at high mass. This service is held in memory of the forty hours during which the body of the Lord remained in the sepulchre. It was begun at Milan in 1534, and was introduced into Rome by St. Phillip Neri in 1584, and sanctioned by the Pope Clement VIII, who issued a solemn bull respecting it on November 25th, 1592.

—The Men's Mutual Aid Society of Hope chapel will give an entertainment at the chapel this week.

A RECTOR IN ONE PULPIT FOR JUST TWO DECADES

TWENTIETH ANNIVERSARY OF REV. T. LOGAN MURPHY'S CONNECTION WITH THE CHURCH OF THE HOLY CROSS.

Celebrated With Special Services in the Church Yesterday Morning and Afternoon—Episcopal Clergymen in Attendance and Spoke Words of Congratulation—Rev. Mr. Murphy Delivered a Sermon in Retrospection of His Work.

For almost a quarter of a century Rev. T. Logan Murphy has been the rector of Holy Cross church, North Plainfield, and in recognition the members of his church very pleasantly remembered the valuable services which Mr. Murphy has rendered to the church during the past twenty years he has been their pastor, and the event was celebrated yesterday at both services. In the morning there was special music by the choir under the direction of Mr. Hoskins, the organist, and Mr. Murphy delivered an anniversary sermon which took the form of a retrospection. In substance Mr. Murphy spoke as follows:

"The memory of joy reaches far back in the annals of every person's life. Indeed, there are many who persuade themselves that they never experienced true pleasure except in the earliest stages of their career, who complain that when the hours of childhood flew away they bore off the best joys of life upon their wings, leaving passion to be the minister of youth, and care to be the portion of manhood and unrest and pain to be appropriated to old age. We cannot pass through the world without the experience of sorrow, and of this as well as of joy, memory becomes the monitor. Here also she has a tale to tell of the days of old. For even innocent childhood is not exempt from grief and many a cloud will rise to interrupt the brightness of its morning. So it is with every succeeding period of our brief day.

"Let us not complain that the shadows of sorrow return to haunt us after the term of its actual existence is over. Why should they not be permitted the same license as the phantoms of delight? The laws of memory are impartial and do us no more injustice than the laws by which the realities of our condition are dispensed to us. If our own sufferings as well as our own enjoyments are rightly ordered, why not the remembrance of both? Whether we are led back more frequently to the bright or the gloomy passages of life depends very much upon the structure and tone of our minds and the character of our present circumstances.

"Memory is given for a good purpose. But in memory is not where men should live. They should not take their stand there. A man's place should be just between the present and the future, with some roots running back and some roots penetrating in the other way. Living forever toward the future with his illumined face in that direction and never turning his back upon the future to look into the past. Many men live almost exclusively by reflection and memory. And yet the Christian type of wisdom is hope. 'He that has kept me hitherto shall keep me yet.' When we are brought into occasions of despondency, remember the occasions of old in which, when we were dependent, the Angel met us on the way, and all our fears fled in the greatness of His salutation and in the power of His comfort. Men's courage sometimes goes down as the courage of overspent warriors. But they remember having been bidden to stand, and they that stood found victory not afar off. Never remember the past to renew your grief, but only to renew your courage.

"In times of excitement, of delusion, of trial, when the enemies of our constancy are out upon with their forces, and we waver in the conflict, may we be stimulated to victory. May a review of the past always stimulate us to renewed energy in the future.

"As we have now dwelt at considerable length upon the days of old mentioned in the text, I take this opportunity of mentioning that this is the twentieth anniversary of my rectorship of this parish. Two decades have passed. In that time the children have grown to adult years, have married and settled in life. Time has been hastening on. Church festival after church festival has appeared and vanished. Children have been brought to the font, prepared for confirmation and have partaken of the Holy Communion. Marriages and funerals have been solemnized here in this house of God. Joy and sorrow have been witnessed within these walls.

"This church was opened for the first time for divine service June 13th, 1869, being in existence seven years and eight months when I took charge. I entered upon my rectorship Feb. 14th, 1877. The parish building was completed and furnished during the summer of 1877. In the fall of 1879 a large and sweet toned bell was placed in the tower of the church. The rectory was built in the spring and summer of 1881. The interior of the church was decorated and painted in August, 1886. In the spring of 1888 a vested choir of men and boys was first organized.

"This necessitated a building for choir accommodation connecting the parish building with the church edifice, which was erected and furnished during that summer. In 1890 the large organ was built, with reverse action, giving the organist and choirmaster full oversight of his choir. In 1891 the parish building was enlarged to double its original size. Last summer the church was newly carpeted and other necessary improvements made Various memorials from time to time have been given for the decoration and adornment of the interior of our beautiful church. We are free from debt save a few hundred dollars on the rectory.

"We have a most efficient and flourishing Ladies' Auxiliary Society. Its members are most zealous and active in parochial affairs, as well as missionary enterprise. Every year valuable boxes are sent by them to the various missionary fields. We have a society of King's Daughters, a Willing Circle and altar and vestment committee, which are very efficient. Holy Cross Brotherhood, a society of the men of the parish, have added materially to the working force of the church. The east room of the parish building is fitted and furnished for their use. We have an excellent Sunday-school, which is prospering under our efficient superintendent and faithful corps of teachers and officers. Our church music is rendered by a vested choir of men and boys, under the able management of our organist and choirmaster. During my rectorship there have been 384 baptized, 38 adults; 271 have been confirmed. There have been 92 marriages and 221 funerals. It is not well for any of us to linger too long over the past in reviewing the days that are gone. We miss too many who have finished their course and have entered within the veil. They in imagination stand before us, and this cannot fail to bring sadness to the heart. Let us look to the future and work and strive in its interests."

The anniversary service of the day was held in the afternoon at 4:30, when addresses were made by Rev. Dr. Glazebrook, of Elizabeth, Rev. E. M. Rodman and Rev. S. P. Simpson, of this city. The church was prettily decorated around the chancel with potted plants and choice roses, with here and there a beautiful lily. The choir gave several special selections in the usual faultless manner. After the opening part of the service, Mr. Murphy with a few appropriate words

MAN FOR STREET WORK.

A. J. GAVETT LIKELY TO BE APPOINTED STREET COMMISSIONER

Mayor Fisk and Councilman Frost Come to an Understanding by Telephone Between Plainfield and Lakewood.

Mayor Fisk and Councilman Frost, chairman of the street committee, had a conference by telephone yesterday, the former at Lakewood and the latter in this city, concerning the appointment of a street commissioner, over which there has been so much gossip since the Council failed to confirm the nomination of Councilman Randolph at the last meeting.

The Mayor suggested that the name of Andrew J. Gavett be settled on for the place and it is understood that the proposition met with the approval of Councilman Frost.

After considering all the available candidates the Mayor seemed inclined to favor Mr. Gavett, and yesterday he conveyed to Mr. Frost his views on the matter. With the approval of Mr. Frost, and the consent of Mr. Gavett, the appointment will probably be made this evening.

Mr. Gavett is a thoroughly competent man for the position, being an engineer of recognized ability and a practical workman whom Mr. Frost believes would work in sympathy with his ideas of street improvement. Mr. Gavett was the constructing engineer of the system of sewers put in last year. It is not certain as yet that Mr. Gavett will accept the offer.

The name of John Meeker, who has been associated with the street work with his brother, the present street commissioner, is also mentioned as a possible appointee if Mr. Gavett's name is not sent in.

SLAIN BY A COUNTRYMAN

ITALIAN MURDERER NOT CAUGHT TILL TWO WEEKS AFTER.

County Physician Investigated the Death and All the Italians Claimed That it Was Accidental—Proved to be a Lie.

Two weeks ago County Physician Henry G. Wagoner, of Somerset county, received information that Govannie Placci, an Italian laborer, had met with an accident near Mine Mount in the northern part of the county. On investigation the county physician found Pilacci's dead body lying in a shanty occupied by a gang of Italian laborers at Mine Mount. His skull was fractured near the temple. A number of Italians who were watching over the dead body testified that Pilacci received his injury by striking against the corner of a step in attempting to ascend the ice-covered stairs outside of the shanty. The county physician could receive no information to the contrary, and granted a burial certificate that death was accidental. A few days latter Francisco Fortunatti, a wealthy Italian contractor of Madison, accompanied by three Italian laborers appeared before County Prosecutor Nelson Y. Duncan, of Somerset county, and testified that Pilacci had been murdered by Francisco Dilucci, who struck him a fatal blow on the temple with a club. Deputized as a special officer, Fortunatti followed Dilucci for a week and captured him Saturday afternoon in Brooklyn as he was about to sail for Italy. Dilucci will be transferred to the county jail at Somerville. Pilacci's body was exhumed this morning, when the county officials will hold an inquest.

NEW HEALTH INSPECTOR.

William Addis, Sr., Received the Appointment Last Saturday.

Wm. Addis, Sr., the veteran plumber, was appointed, Saturday, plumbing and health inspector by the Board of Health, and will enter upon his duties at once. Mr. Addis came to Plainfield twenty-six years ago, and that time there were only two plumbing shops in this city, which were Berry & Thorn and P. J. Regans. In consequence of the above, the term of Mr. Weaver as health inspector has expired.

Mr. Addis performed his first duty yesterday by placing a yellow card on the house occupied by Patrick Bergen, No. 617 South Second street, where the latter's one-year-old son is confined with the diphtheria.

Pleasantly Surprised.

A pleasant surprise was tendered to Mr. and Mrs. Wm. A. Norrie, of 1031 Arlington avenue, on Saturday evening. The time was passed in singing familiar songs and listening to instrumental selections. Those present were Mrs. Sperling, Miss Lou Norrie, Mr. and Mrs. V. W. Nash, Mrs. Geo. Leland, Miss Ada Nash, Mr. and Mrs. C. I. Young, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. J. Klein, J. H. Carney, Eli M. Odam, Mrs. Pennington, Alton Wilson, Mr. and Mrs. E. T. Bowman, Mrs. John Rittenhouse, Mrs. Tunison, Thomas Osment and Charles F. Stephens.

NECK IN A ROPE NOOSE

EXCITING EXPERIENCE OF A POLANDER WITH TWO ASSAILANTS.

Dragged Out of the House With a Lasso and Unmercifully Beaten by Two Men—Had Trouble Early in the Afternoon.

There were exciting times in Netherwood Saturday afternoon and evening, and one Polish resident of that neighborhood was frightened half out of his wits besides being the victim of a serious assault.

George Becker, who is a native of Poland, came to this country some time ago, and recently secured a license to cart ashes. He and his wife have been caring for the house on the Fiske property on Woodland avenue. On Saturday afternoon Becker drove his horse with his ash wagon attached to the residence of F. S. Martin, of Hillside avenue, and on his way he passed the residence of William F. Hobbie, corner of Hillside and Watchung avenues. One of Mr. Hobbie's young sons was standing in front of the house, and Becker alleges called to Becker and told him that if he passed that way again, that he, young Hobbie, would shoot his horse.

"You try," called back Becker. Becker went after the ashes and as he was coming back saw young Hobbie standing there as before. Then, Becker alleges, Hobbie raised his Flobert rifle, which he had hitherto kept behind him, and fired. Becker claims that the bullet passed through the horse's mane. Then Becker jumped out of the wagon and took the gun from the lad and drove to Plainfield and left the rifle with Chief Grant.

Later in the afternoon a crowd of boys visited the Becker home and threw snow at the house and into the kitchen. They also kicked the dog, which attacked one of the boys and inflicted a slight wound in the calf of the leg.

In the evening at about 8 o'clock Mrs. Becker looked out of doors and saw two forms. Becker opened the front door.

"We have a warrant for your arrest," said someone outside, "and we want you to come along."

"All right," replied Becker. "Let me get my coat and hat."

Becker was in his shirt sleeves at the time. He made a movement backward and then a rope noose settled around his neck and he was dragged out on the piazza. He was thrown down before he could make any effort to resist and the assaulters sprang on him, kicking and beating him. The larger of the two drew some shining weapon from his vest pocket and hit Becker in the chest. The weapon pierced Becker's vest and shirt and inflicted a small flesh wound. Similar wounds were also made in Becker's wrists and hands while he was trying to hold fast to the piazza railing.

The rope was thrown by the smaller of the two men and Becker claims that an attempt was made to choke him with it. He bit the stranger in the hand, however, and the latter gave up the attempt. Becker's clothes were torn to shreds and his body was covered with bruises. The assailants departed and Becker had just strength to crawl into the house. Meanwhile his wife had gone to the residence of S. A. Cruikshank, on Belvidere avenue, for assistance.

Becker is very positive as to who his assailants were. The smaller of the two, he says, is Willie Hobbie, the older brother of the boy who e rifle was the cause of the trouble. The other he is equally positive was Geo. Simon, of Lake street, who was formerly in the employ of Mr. Hobbie.

The noise of the disturbance was heard for some distance by a number of people who were in the vicinity at the time. There were several who also saw the assault.

Becker appeared before City Judge DeMeza this morning but the case was out of his jurisdiction and Becker afterwards went to Justice Newcorn and swore out a warrant for the arrest of both of his alleged assailants.

Slipped and Fractured His Arm.

Charles P. Bull, of East Ninth street, sustained a fracture of the radius of his arm last evening, about 8 o'clock, while he was calling on a neighbor. He was walking up the steps, which were covered with ice and his feet slipped allowing him to fall very heavily. He was assisted by his friends to the house, and later he was taken to the hospital for treatment. The fact that Mr. Bull's family is away led him to persue this course so that he might have the best of care. It is not thought that he will be confined very long.

Informal Dinner.

An informal dinner was given by Mr. and Mrs. Henry A. McGee at their residence on Orchard place, Washington Park, Saturday night, in hanor of their son, Heary L. McGee. Covers were laid for twelve. The table decorations were very handsome.

SHERMAN LOSES HOPE

Convinced That the Peace Treaty Cannot Be Passed at Present.

WILL BE DORMANT UNTIL MARCH 4

Other Important Matters Before the Senate This Week---Vote on Immigration Bill Wednesday---Bankruptcy Measure Not Likely To Be Voted Upon.

Washington, Feb. 15.—The impression is held by many senators that Mr. Sherman has become convinced that there is little, if any, chance of getting any action during this session of congress on the general arbitration treaty. The belief appears to be that he will make one or two more efforts to press a vote after devoting an afternoon to discussion, and then, without formally announcing his determination, he will permit the treaty to remain on the calendar without pressing it for consideration. The friends of the treaty believe it would be ratified if a vote could be had, but this is denied by others, who, however, appear to be better satisfied to have action postponed than to permit the vote to be taken now. It is evident that a determined effort is being made by a few senators to prevent ratification. For this reason, it is thought, the treaty will go over until after March 4, when there will be abundant time for the senate to discuss it thoroughly while considering the nominations the new president may send in. This afternoon Mr. Chandler will address the senate on the resolution introduced by him declaring that it is the sense of the senate that the United States should not permanently acquiesce in the single gold standard. The immigration bill, which has come back from conference the second time, will not take up much of the time of the senate, an agreement having been reached to vote on it on Wednesday at 4 o'clock. The bill as it now stands removes the objections raised to the first report and has already been agreed to in the house. It will doubtless pass the senate without opposition. The bankruptcy bill is the unfinished business, but no one believes there will be any serious effort to pass this measure. The friends of the voluntary bankruptcy bill are afraid that the advocates of the involuntary plan have a majority of votes, and so will talk against time if any attempt is made to get a vote. The western senators argue that their bill, which provides for involuntary bankruptcy in case of fraud only, gives all the protection to both creditor and debtor that either class should ask. The Hawaiian cable bill is clamoring for recognition, but not with any prospect of passing at this session.

House of Representatives.

The house will to-day resume consideration of the sundry civil appropriation bill. It will be in order to move that the rules be suspended and the bill passed without further reading or amendment. Mr. Cannon in charge of the bill gave notice Saturday afternoon that he would test the sense of the house upon his proposition. Should this motion not prevail, the bill is likely to remain the unfinished business before the house for the rest of the week. The naval appropriation bill will be reported Wednesday or Thursday, Chairman Boutelle believes, and it will be taken up as soon as possible.

Lord Salisbury May Be Made a Duke.

London, Feb. 15.—Lord Salisbury can have a dukedom if he wishes it this year. The queen offered him a dukedom in 1887, but he refused to accept the honor. Probably he will not care to refuse twice. Moreover, during the past ten years his record and esteem in public life would now make promotion natural. As Lady Salisbury has no social ambition there will be no domestic pressure for him to accept a dukedom. She is not in strong health and has always been somewhat of a recluse. Moreover, she has a positive dislike for some of the present leaders of society.

The Design of Arbor Lodge.

Washington, Feb. 15.—Secretary of Agriculture Morton asserts that the design of Arbor lodge, which was recently the subject of some caustic comment by Senator Vest, was not the result of any outlay of government money, and, further referring to the matter, Mr. Morton applauds the beneficence of Arbor day, which, he says, is now celebrated in every state of the American union. The condemned illustration of Arbor lodge, he says, was borrowed from a newspaper office.

$40,000 Short in His Accounts.

Binghamton, N. Y., Feb. 15.—Virgil P. McMasters of the town of Colesville, this county, has disappeared, and there is said to be a shortage of $40,000 in his accounts as executor of the estate of Riley Bush of Nineveh. Unfortunate speculation in Wall street is said to have led to the defalcation. A warrant for McMasters' arrest has been sworn out by his co-executor, supervisor Milo Ruggles of Nineveh.

Death of Samuel Herendon.

Geneva, N. Y., Feb. 15.—The death of Samuel Herendon creates profound sorrow in Genava, as he was highly esteemed and very popular. He was president of the village and was re-elected at the last election by a large majority. He was a prominent business man, widely known throughout western New York.

Sir Hercules Robinson's Successor.

London, Feb. 15.—It is officially announced that Sir Alfred Milner, chairman of the board of inland revenue, will succeed Lord Rosmead as governor of Cape Colony.

M'KINLEY'S CALLERS

The Majority of Them To-day Are Office-seekers.

THIRTY-FIVE ARRIVED UP TO NOON

Friends of Col. J. A. Weidersheim of Pennsylvania Urging Him for Pension Commissioner---Another Rumor About Ohio Senatorship.

Canton, O., Feb. 15.—Sunday was literally a day of rest at the McKinley home. In the morning Major McKinley attended services at the First Presbyterian church, accompanied by Hon. Charles A. Chickering of Copenhagen, N. Y., and congressman D. K. Watson of Columbus. In the afternoon Mr. and Mrs. McKinley drove about the city for an hour and a half. They also made their regular Sunday visit with Mother McKinley. Mrs. McKinley, who has been indisposed, has recovered sufficiently to receive her intimate friends. Jerome Carty, a leading patent attorney of Philadelphia, called upon Major McKinley this morning and presented the indorsements of Col. John A. Wiedersheim, a candidate for the position of commissioner of patents. Col. Wiedersheim is endorsed by Senators Quay and Cameron and Senator-elect Penrose, by the Philadelphia delegation to congress and many other prominent republicans of the Keystone state. Mr. Carty is of the opinion that Mr. Weidersheim will receive the appointment if Pennsylvania does not secure a representative in the cabinet, which at present does not appear probable. Carty has conferred with Chairman Hanna regarding the chances of his candidate. It is probable that Major McKinley will go to Cleveland during the present week, but the exact time of departure has not yet been decided upon. He will be in Cleveland only a few days. Up to noon to-day the president-elect shook hands with thirty-five visitors, the majority of the callers making personal application for office. The call of Hon. D. K. Watson upon Major McKinley has given rise to the rumor that he aspires to fill the senatorial seat vacated by Mr. Sherman. The friends of Mr. Watson consider him an excellent compromise candidate. The Columbus congressman declined to talk regarding the report, and the rumor is evidently unfounded.

American Lumber in China.

Washington, Feb. 15.—An important article of import at Shanghai is American lumber, according to a report from Consul-General Jernigan at that port just received at the state department. This has principally consisted of pine from Oregon and Washington, though considerable red wood from California also finds an appreciative market there. The eastern part of China is almost denuded of trees, causing its native lumber supply to be very limited. Between 20,000,000 and 30,000,000 square feet of lumber were imported at Shanghai in 1896, of which 14,000,000 came from the United States, against about 9,000,000 for 1895.

Death of Mrs. George W. Savage.

New York, Feb. 15.—The remains of Mrs. George W. Savage, mother of John M. Savage, consul at Dundee, who is dead in that city, will be brought to the United States in charge of her son on the American line steamer sailing from Liverpool next Wednesday. Mrs. Savage was the widow of George W. Savage, consul at Belfast during President Cleveland's first term and who was appointed consul at Dundee when Mr. Cleveland resumed office for his second term. George W. Savage died at Dundee, and his son succeeded him.

Hammond Murder Trial.

Toronto, Feb. 15.—The trial of William Hammond upon the charge of murdering his girl wife, Katie Tough Hammond, last March, began to-day at Gravenhurst, and the prosecution is said to have the strongest combination of circumstantial evidence that has been put before a jury in this country. It is shown that Hammond had in all an insurance of $15,000 upon his wife. The case bears some resemblance to the Benham case at Batavia, inasmuch as the poison used was prussic acid.

Death of the Inventor of Street Cars.

Burlington, Ia., Feb. 15.—Hiram Purdy died here Saturday night at the age of 83 years. During his residence in New York he conceived the idea of a horse car street railway, and in 1854 the Bowery and Third avenue line, the first in the world, was built and equipped in accordance with his views. He continued in business in New York until 1857, the year of his removal to this city.

Lasker Talks of Steinitz's Illness.

Berlin, Feb. 15.—Lasker, the chess master, who is now in Berlin, has informed a representative of the United Associated Presses that he is convinced that Steinitz is mentally depressed. It was during the recent match with him, Lasker said, that he felt that the change was taking place. He is of the opinion, however, that a good rest will restore Steinitz to his old health and force.

Ordered To Watch the Bermuda.

Philadelphia, Feb. 15.—The collector of the port has been instructed by the treasury department at Washington to keep a sharp and vigilant watch on the steamer Bermuda, which, according to reports received by the Spanish legation, is about to embark upon another filibustering expedition.

South Dakota Senatorial Deadlock.

Pierre, S. D., Feb. 15.—The latest vote for senator in the joint session of the legislature stood; Pickler, 47; Kyle, 21; Goodykoontz, 21; Plowman, 9; Hinkley, 9; scattering, 4. There is no change in sight.

ROYALTY LABORS.

PRINCESS LOUISE ADDS TO HER INCOME BY HER CHISEL.

People Desirous of Obtaining Favorable Notice from Queen Victoria Will Understand the Secret to Gaining Her Approbation.

Sculpture is a favorite art among those royal and imperial ladies of the Old World who are most distinguished for the exuberance of their temperament, the independence of their character and the strength of their mind.

The young Princess of Naples has already distinguished herself as a sculptor. One of her works is a statue of her ancestor, the Vladilla Danilo of Montenegro.

Princess Louise, fourth daughter of Queen Victoria, adds to her annual income by her chisel. She is far from rich, her husband, the Marquis of Lorne, being actually compelled to work as one of the junior partners in a third-class firm of house decorators in Chelsea, London. The Princess always has her hands full of orders for statues and busts of her mother, the Queen, from people desirous of social and titular distinction.

It has been found by persons of this class that the best way to attract the favorable notice of the sovereign is to present a statue of Her Majesty to some town or city, and when in addition to this the statue thus presented has been executed at a more than ordinarily large cost by her daughter Louise, of course the Queen is especially appreciative of the compliment paid. Thus some time ago Proprietor Borthwick, of the London Morning Post, who was member of Parliament for the Kensington district of the metropolis, announced his decision to present to his constituency a statue of the Queen to be erected in the chief square of the district. He placed the order for the statue with Princess Louise, and gave her a check for $20,000 for the work. The result was that the Queen herself presided at the unveiling of the statue, and before a year had elapsed the sagacious proprietor of the Morning Post had been elevated to a peerage under the name and title of Lord Glenesk.

One of the Queen's grandnieces, Countess Gleichen, whose father was Prince Victor Hohenlohe, earns her living by her chisel, which renders her independent of the relatively small allowance which the Queen has placed at her mother's disposal.

Another royal lady who is renowned from one end of Europe to the other for her skill with mallet and chisel is the widowed Empress Frederick of Germany, eldest daughter of Queen Victoria. Some of the best busts and medallions of her lamented husband have come from her studio.

An imperial lady who runs her very close in this respect is the widowed Archduchess Marie Therese of Austria.

HOW WORTH WORKED.

And the Long Waiting Women Would Endure to be Well Gowned.

On days on which there were to be Court dinners or other functions Parisian ladies who had ordered gowns for them came to Worth, the well-known dressmaker, to be dressed. First come, first served; but there was a waiting room with choice refreshments—a very necessary arrangement—for a fair customer might have to wait seven or eight hours. When her turn came she entered the consulting-room. Worth stood there, armed with a pair of scissors. Two women stood beside him. They undressed the lady behind a screen—for her petticoats were to the skirt of the gown what the skeleton is to the flesh. When her toilet so far was complete the new gown was donned, and she emerged from behind the screen to be passed in review by Worth. He was particular about the cut and plastic points. He criticised aloud, worked here and there with the scissors and pins. The women acting under his orders also pinned and plied their needles. Glasses of wine were administered when nerves had run down from long waiting.

A Considerate Dog.

A neat dog story, which was related by a gentleman the other day, can be verified. He was riding upon the rear of a trolley car when the car passed over a nice, light, soft hat, which had blown between the tracks. The hat was not injured, but the wind gave it a little flirt after the car had passed and dropped it fairly upon one of the rails. A big New York car was coming and ahead of it a big mongrel pointer dog was trotting along.

The dog glanced at the hat, looked at the car, and then picking up the hat in his teeth ran over to the curb and deposited it upon the sidewalk near a group of pavers who were working alongside of the court house. After putting the hat in a safe place the dog loped after the big car and took his place in front of it.—Newark Call.

Turned Black and Died.

A peculiar case from a medical standpoint was that of Luther W. Thrasher.

The strange part of the case and the feature which proved so interesting to the physicians consulted was that about three months before he died the boy began to turn black. The nigrescence continued, and at the time of his death he was as dark as, or darker than most negroes.—Hartford Courant.

What One Girl Can Do.

A Kansas girl of seventeen won a prize in an unusual contest. She was matched against two most expert blacksmiths in the city, and, to their dismay, turned out a perfect horseshoe in less than four minutes.—Tid-Bits.

EUGENE FIELD'S DONKEY.

Don Cæsar de Bazan Was a Great Favorite With His Master.

The most famous donkey that ever resided in the city of Chicago is Don Caesar de Bazan of the tribe of Jerusalem.

The little quadruped soon learned to love Mr. Field, and, in turn, shared the great-hearted poet's favors with the other pets around the place.

Don was not allowed to enjoy himself all day, however, for no sooner had Mr. Field's familiar figure disappeared in the direction of Clark street than the boys began to prod sharp sticks at him for the sheer pleasure of seeing him squirm and kick.

Don was obliged to grin and bear all these abuses until Mr. Field returned at night. He did it with a very qualified grace, but in absolute silence, for he never brayed except in the presence of his master. Don had good ears and a keen perception, and as soon as he heard the deep-toned voice so familiar to all who knew Mr. Field he would commence to urge his complaints in the most vigorous, rasping brays.

When Mr. Field moved to Buena Park, Don became a trouble to his master. Don would get into mischief among the flower beds or stray into some neighbor's lot. At last Mr. Field was driven to despair as to how to dispose of Don Caesar de Bazan to the advantage of that estimable animal.

Just at this time Mr. George Yenowine, a warm friend of the family, visited Chicago, and when he heard of the donkey dilemma quickly bethought himself of carting Don to the farm in Kentucky.

So Don Caesar de Bazan, with his bag and baggage, in the care of Mr. Yenowine, departed for Kentucky.

Two years later Mr. Field visited Yenowine Farm, immediately repaired to the pasture and called upon Don. The latter marched up to the fence, flopped his ears back and forth in a knowing fashion, looked at his late master with a cunning leer, then promptly and silently retired to the far corner of the meadow. The next morning, however, he marched deliberately to the house and began to bray.

It was ever after Mr. Field's opinion that animals think more than they are given credit for.—Chicago Inter-Ocean.

Patriotic Trees.

Mrs. Anna M. Holstein, of Merion, Regent of the Valley Forge Memorial Association, and also a member of the Valley Forge Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, in behalf of the societies she represents, sent a small cedar tree from Valley Forge to California, to be transplanted in Golden Gate Park, San Francisco.

The tree was growing on the entrenchment thrown up by the American Army of the Revolution, and was sent to Mr. McLaren, Superintendent of the Golden Gate Park, and will be transplanted by him there on Arbor Day, which occurs this month, says the Philadelphia Ledger. The Valley Forge cedar will represent Pennsylvania on Arbor day in California. Trees from Bunker Hill, Yorktown and other spots made memorable have been requested by Mr. McLaren in order that a tree from some historic spot in every state might be represented in California.

He Didn't Skeer.

When the bucolic gentleman with goatesque whiskers and a hat of the accordion pattern stepped briskly into the elevator and announced a desire just to make a couple of trips while he was taking a "noonin'," the youthful conductor of the lift was tickled to the soles of his feet. The people of the building were out for lunch and he had a clear field for sport.

"Are you all ready?" shouted the boy, as though the slightest neglect in being ready meant serious disaster.

Let 'er go sonny," responded the man from the country, while he chewed slippery elm bark with the same industry that a rabbit chews cabbage.

That "sonny" touched Young America in a sensitive spot, and they went to the roof with a whiff that sent dust and papers whirling through the corridors. The boy turned to see his passenger with one leg hanging loosely over the other, his jaws working without a change in time, and his appearance as calm as though he were sitting on a stake-and-rider fence, watching things grow.

Down they went with a bang, and the old man only asked if there wasn't some way in which 'th' mersheen could be made to hump along a leetle faster." Then the desperate lad pulled the throttle wide open, and before he could check the terrific speed the upper end of the course was reached, the cables snapped, the car dropped like a bullet to the air cushions below, bounded half a story and finally settled, with the boy screaming from fright.

"Can't we make another trip or two?" asked the unmoved granger. "Thar's suthin' in that kind of motion. And, sonny, you kin jest tell your people thar was one farmer in here that th' newspapers can't make no fun of. He don't skeer worth a durn."—Detroit

Starving children

There are children without food. They cry for it, and are not answered. The pity of it! But often nature cries out in other ways that her children need nourishment. Is your child thin; actually poor in flesh? Does it get no benefit from its food? Then give something which produces flesh and makes rich blood.

of Cod-liver Oil, with Hypophosphites does more than this. It changes the unhealthy action to one of health, thus removing the cause. It acts on the nervous system, which controls all the processes of the body, toning it up into sound and vigorous activity. It is food for growing bone and brain. It makes the thin plump; the pale, ruddy; the weak, strong; it feeds and cures.

SCOTT'S EMULSION has been indorsed by the medical profession for twenty years. (Ask your doctor.) This is because it is always palatable—always uniform—always contains the purest Norwegian Cod-liver Oil and Hypophosphites.

Delicate Dress Goods.

Some gowns are so dainty in the weave, so delicate in tint, that they seem to soil by being looked at—one or two wearings making them unpresentable, NOT USELESS. We make a specialty of cleaning fine fabrics, the more delicate the material, the better the results. Sometimes an accident will ruin a gown, without injuring the texture. We dye them then, sometimes we get a prettier effect than the original color. Fine goods stand redyeing. The finer the material the better the new color. We charge so little for cleaning or dyeing, that even if you are in doubt as to the result, it's worth while to experiment. Want a new evening gown for a dollar or two? NEW YORK LEGISLATURE.

The Important Questions of This Session To Come Up After March 1.

Albany, Feb. 15.—The important questions upon which legislation is to be enacted this year have not yet been provided for through the introduction of bills. Measures intended to carry out the principal policies of the republican majority touching the Greater New York, excise, civil service, Adirondack park and trusts are yet to come. It is not thought they will make their appearance much before March 1. Senator Raines expects to introduce this week a bill favored by the commercial travelers proposing an amendment to the registration laws. The report of the special committee which investigated the operations of the Raines law has not yet been completed. Senator Raines expects to be able to submit the report and the needed amendments to the Raines law to the senate next week. The committee, before the report is submitted, will give a hearing to the druggists throughout the state who desire to have a material reduction in the liquor tax for drug stores as now provided by the Raines law. One of the most interesting hearings of the week will be before the assembly cities committee to-morrow afternoon on the bills introduced to restrict the height of buildings in New York city. On Wednesday the assembly railroads committee will give hearings on these bills: Mr. Green's, providing for the partition of street car seats into spaces of nineteen inches, and that street railroad companies shall issue transfer tickets to passengers of cars that are blockaded; Mr. Schmid's, compelling Kings county railroads to provide shelter for passengers at transfer stations; Mr. Forrester's, compelling the adoption of fenders by all surface railroads; Mr. Dudley's, compelling the removal of snow and ice by surface railroads, requiring railroads operating outside of city and village limits to put vestibules on their cars from Nov. 1 to April 1, and compelling street railroads to adopt fenders after Sept. 1, 1897; and Mr. Bondy's vestibule bill.

New York State Board of Health.

Albany, Feb. 15.—The state board of health has submitted its report for the year 1896 to Gov. Black. The board recommends that the terms of office of the members of the board should be so arranged that the term of one member should expire each year, thus ensuring a continuous board. The physician members should have at least ten years actual experience and practice in sanitary matters. The members of the board now serve without compensation and the report says that the members should personally attend to many matters now devolving upon subordinates and for such services should be sufficiently compensated to insure the most valuable service available. During the year 124,600 deaths have been reported.

Pittsburg Post Burned Out.

Pittsburg, Feb. 15.—The Pittsburg Post, which was burned out yesterday, will be issued from the office of the Leader until quarters can be secured. The printing presses, one valued at $25,000 and the other at $10,000, were badly damaged by the fire. The type-setting machines, valued at $30,000, were ruined. The Post's loss will probably reach $70,000, covered by insurance. The building is owned by the J. N. McCullough estate, and the loss on it will reach $20,000, covered by insurance. The fire is supposed to have started from the crossing of electric light wires.

Safe Deposit President Arrested.

Westchester, Pa., Feb. 15.—Ex-congressman Smedley Darlington, president of the Chester County Guarantee Trust and Safe Deposit company, who was arrested here Saturday at the instance of Mrs. Mary A. Burnett, a depositor of the institution, will be given a hearing next Saturday. He was held in his own recognizance. Mr. Darlington is charged with embezzlement, in that he permitted $1,300 of Mr. Burnett's money to be received on Dec. 1 last, knowing that the trust company was in a state of insolvency at the time.

South Carolina Electoral Vote.

Washington, Feb. 15.—Representative Murray, the colored member of congress from South Carolina, is still desirous for an investigation into the regularity of the electoral vote of his state and has introduced a resolution in the house declaring that said vote was not regular and authorizing the appointment of a committee of five members of the present house who will serve also in the next house to investigate the alleged irregularities.

Gifts to Queen Victoria.

London, Feb. 15.—The special gifts to the queen by all sorts of potentates and magnates throughout the world in recognition of her reign of sixty years will be officially delivered either on her birthday, May 24, or on coronation day, June 28. Sunday, June 20, is the actual anniversary of the queen's succession to the throne, but it is also the anniversary of the death of her uncle William IV.

Bank Watchman Found Dead.

Washington, Feb. 15.—Joseph C. Cline, aged 64, a night watchman at the Citizen's National bank here, was found dead Sunday morning. The doors of the bank were locked and barred. A small terrior dog, his constant companion in his lonely vigil, was beside the body of his master. Heart disease is supposed to have caused his death.

Two Young Girls Drowned While Skating.

Youngstown, O., Feb. 15.—Mary Evans, aged 17, and Bessie Morgan, aged 16, were drowned Saturday evening in the old canal at Sharon. They were with a skating party of eight when the ice gave way. The others were saved.

TO OCCUPY CRETE

Greece Sends Troops To Take Possession of the Disturbed Island.

WAR NOW IS ALMOST CERTAIN

Greek Consul at Canea Goes Aboard a Warship with His Family and the Turkish Consul Removes to the Military Post.

Athens, Feb. 15.—The army reserves of 1893 and 1894 have been called out and ordered to hold themselves in readiness to join their colors at forty-eight hours' notice. A number of detachments of infantry, artillery and engineers have embarked at Piraeus for Crete. Their departure was attended with great enthusiasm. It is understood that the orders of the troops are to protect the Christian families in Crete and to restore order. This is looked upon as tantamount to the occupation of the island. Greece has notified the powers that she will willingly hold herself answerable for the steps she has taken.

Turkish Transport Headed Off.

Athens, Feb. 15.—Advices have been received here giving details of the detention at Candia of a Turkish vessel by a Greek warship. The vessel which was stopped and compelled to return to her anchorage was the Turkish transport Fuad, bound for Canea with munitions for the beseiged garrison at that place. As the Fuad moved from her anchorage and started to leave the harbor the Greek warship headed in such a direction as to intercept her, and ordered her to stop. No attention being paid to this order the Greek vessels fired two shots across the Fuad's bows, and the transport being unarmed, put about and returned to her moorings. It is reported that the commander of the British fleet protested against the action of the Greeks, and ordered the vessels of that nation to make no further attacks upon the Turks.

Prince George's Movements.

Canea, Crete, Feb. 15.—Prince George of Greece, who arrived here on February 12 in command of the Greek flotilla, after receiving visits from the commanders of the foreign warships, returned to Milo. It is reported that the boys of Canea have requested the commanders of the foreign warships here to land men from their vessels to occupy the city. The intense excitement which has prevailed here recently has not at all abated.

Greek Consul Leaves Canea.

Canea, Crete, Feb. 15.—The Christian governor of Crete, who, having been menaced by the Moslems, recently took refuge at the Greek consulate, and the Greek consul embarked last evening on different warships. They were accompanied by their families. The consuls and the commander of the Turkish forces have removed to the military post. The insurgents continue their bombardment from the landward side of the fortress and the Turks are returning their fire with sanguinary results.

Greco-Turkish War Imminent.

London, Feb. 15.—The London papers this morning concur in the opinion that a Greco-Turkish war is imminent.

CRETAN COMPLICATIONS.

Berlin Advices Indicate Interference by the Powers.

Berlin, Feb. 15.—The latest communications between the powers concerning the new complications which have ariesn in regard to Crete point to an immediate resort to concerted action to restore order in Crete and to restrain Geeece from further pursuing the course she has taken, which, if persisted in, must inevitably result in hostilities between the kingdom of the Hellenes and the Turkish empire, which, it is believed, without the ultimate interference of the powers could have but one outcome, the defeat and humiliation of the former. As the situation appears now it is probable that foreign occupation of Crete will be decided upon, which will likely be limited to a considerable increase of the gendarmerie on the island with the co-operation of the foreign fleets controlling the Cretan ports. Among the numerous communications bearing directly upon the Cretan situation is a letter from the king of Greece to the emperor of Russia in which the king explains to the czar that the action of Greece in sending a flotilla to Crete was a demonstration necessary to the safety of his own government and to the preservation of internal order. The king adds that he is perfectly willing to trust to the powers to do justice in respect of the demands of Greece in Crete. Though the situation has created a feeling of alarm in some quarters, the hopes entertained in official circles throughout the continent that European peace will be maintained are becoming stronger through the belief that whatever fighting may occur will be localized and finally die out as the result of its confinement to small limits.

Gen. Alger Wins a Big Suit.

Chattanooga, Tenn., Feb. 15.—The suit of Gen. Russell A. Alger against the heirs of John F. Anderson in the United States circuit court for recision of contract and recovery of $103,000 paid for certain supposed mineral lands in Franklin county, Tenn., resulted in a victory for the plaintiff.

British Money for St. Louis Breweries.

Boston, Feb. 15.—The statement that a British syndicate is desirous of investing $10,000,000 in St. Louis property through a Boston legal firm is confirmed here. It is also said that the property which the Englishmen have in view consists of breweries.

WILL HAVE ITS EFFECT.

Frequent enquiries are made as to whether or not the Common Council will recognize the vote as conducted by this paper to determine the popular mind on the city hall site. Of course, in an official way the result of the balloting will have no standing, but since official action, arrived at through merely formal methods, is actually determined by minds made up by freedom of thought and observation while coming in contact with the passing everyday world, it is reasonable to suppose that the balloting will have some effect on the Councilmanic action in settling the question of where the proposed city hall shall be situated. It is certain beyond any question of doubt that the majority of people want the building put up at some point central to the business section of the city.

MAY LET IT STAND.

The more the resignation of Councilman Randolph is considered by the other members of the Council, the greater is the disposition to let it stand. The name of V. L. Frazee, once the lone star of Democracy, continues to bob up serenely as a successor to Mr. Randolph.

TIME TO LIVEN UP.

This evening the sixth week of the legislative session will begin at Trenton, and it is anticipated that things will commence to liven up with the solons. In the five weeks already accredited to the session very little has been accomplished.

MAYOR FISK STILL ILL.

Mayor Fisk is still at Lakewood and he will remain there for some time as his health will not permit him to return. He will not be in attendance at the meeting of the City Council this evening.

A bill has been introduced in the Legislature providing for the pensioning of firemen and the widows and minor children of firemen who shall be disabled or disqualified from duty while in the service of a paid fire department.

The presentation speech was made by Rev. G. Kennedy Newell, pastor of the chapel. Mr. Warton replied in a suitable manner.

Among those present were the following: Mr. and Mrs. Fred Warton, Mr. and Mrs. T. Hendry, Mr. and Mrs. P. W. Mundy, Mr. and Mrs. George Leighs, Mr. and Mrs. D. McInnes, Mr. and Mrs. S. Smith, Mr. E. Beware of Ointments for Catarrh that Contain Mercury.

as mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completly derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is ten fold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., contains no mercury, and is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. In buying Hall's Catarrh Cure be sure you get the genuine. It is taken internally, and made in Toledo, Ohio, by F. J. Cheney & Co. Testimonials free. Sold by druggists, price 75c. per bottle. Hall's Family Pills are the best.

A Singular Accident.

A singular accident occurred Saturday afternoon while the mail train, which is due in this city at 5 o'clock, was passing Garwood station. The mail pouch from that place is picked up while the train is going through, but this time the arrangement failed to work and the pouch was dropped as was supposed. Such was not the case, however, for when the train reached this city it was found under the trucks of the last coach on the train. It was found by Mail Messenger Frisbie, of this city, and he gave it to the clerk on the train, as it was not a Plainfield mail. The pouch was damaged very little and no mail escaped.

we should all be ready, having used the talent He gave us for His glory."

Mr. Schenck's remarks were brought to a close with a spiritually-uplifting petition to the Throne of Grace, after which those present were given an opportunity of looking for the last time on the form of one whom they all loved and admired.

The floral tributes were beautiful tokens of love from relatives and friends. They consisted of a large Christian Endeavor monogram of choice roses, blended in delicate harmony, also a number of beautiful lillies, and several other choice tributes arranged in the shape of wreathes, pillows and otherwise. A bunch of violets, breathing their sweet perfume, rested on the bosom of the departed as a silent testimony of the love of one who was very near and dear to him.

The love and tender hands that bore the departed to his last resting place were John L. Force, Theodore H. Hardy, Alfred K. Willett and James A. Love. Interment was in Hillside cemetery.

THINGS THAT INTEREST SCOTCH PLAINS AND DUNELLEN.

Brief and Terse Observations Gathered by Alert Press Reporters to be Perused at the Supper Table at Your Leisure

DUNELLEN AND NEW MARKET.

J. B. Conover has been ailing the past week from asthma and pleurisy.

Chas. Wynhusky is ill at his home. Dr. Brakeley is the attending physician.

Sleighing has been fair about here since Friday, and many cutters have been seen on the streets.

F. H. Gise has been awarded the contract for the mason work on a new house to be erected by G. F. Trimmer on Walnut street.

The handsome new house of R. L. Fisher, just erected on Prospect avenue, will be occupied by Mr. Fisher early in the spring.

W. H. Cole received another consignment of coal from the mines Saturday and there is now no danger of Dunellenites going cold this winter.

Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Khuns have been visiting among relatives and friends in Junction, and they also attended the funeral of Mrs. Khuns' father during their absence.

Acting Street Commissioner S. B. Merrill was out with snow plow again Saturday afternoon, but on some of the main thoroughfares the snow had been trodden down and the snow plow had but little effect on the walks.

If some of the lunatics who waste their energy and lung power blowing horns, while passing through here on their sleighride parties each evening, would desist, they would gain the everlasting gratitude of a much hampered community.

Dunellen's wants are few and far between, but just what the town wants and actually needs is a hook and ladder. The fire engine is a most valuable acquisition to the borough's belongings, but even this is practically worthless without a supply of water, and this Dunellen hasn't got.

The Dunellen Building and Loan Association will hold a meeting in the W. C. T. U. rooms this evening for the payment of dues, principally. The coming Thursday evening a regular meeting of the association will be held in the office of Alvah Gray, when a few more shares will be offered for sale.

Some of Dunellen's chronic kickers say the brighter the night, the brighter the street lights. But the lights about town are now giving good satisfaction and there is no plausible reason to complain. True it is that the street lamps have heretofore burned with absolute uncertainty, but under the present regime they are now giving good satisfaction.

Rev. S. F. Custard, pastor of the M. E. church, whose serious illness has been the cause for much alarm among his parishioners and immediate friends, is still very ill, but it is thought to be only a matter of a very short time before he will be restored to his congregation again. The pulpit in Rev. Mr. Custard's church was occupied yesterday by Rev. Augustus Todd, who preached both morning and evening.

NEW MARKET.

Fred C. Ward, of New Market, will start on Wednesday for New Orleans.

Mr. Meade, who has been stopping at the Nelson House, has gone to Morristown.

W. J. Davis has recovered from his recent illness and is able to attend to business again.

Mr. and Mrs. James Day, of Elizabeth, spent yesterday with relatives in New Market.

Mrs. Hanah E. Nelson, who has been visiting her grandchildren at Orange, has returned home.

Miss Adel Herlich has returned to New Market after making her home in New York for the past two years.

J. R. Dunham, who has been confined to his home for the past two days by illness, is able to be out again.

Mr. and Mrs. Caspar Waglow, of Plainfield, who have been visiting Mr. Waglow's parents, have returned home.

Miss Lizzie Day, of New Market, has returned from Hopewell, where she has been visiting the Misses Phillips.

SCOTCH PLAINS.

William Balen, of Haverstraw, was in town visiting friends over Sunday.

Fred Clark has gone over to New Brunswick today, to purchase a wagon-load of pigs and chickens.

Mr. and Mrs. Herman Bucher, of Garwood, and their children, spent yesterday with Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Blimm.

The sleighing is not the best in the Plains, but several Plainfield parties drove up to Blimm's on Saturday night and enjoyed a supper and some dancing.

The snow is yet quite deep on the mountain roads and the sleighing is fairly good. It is conjectured that in the Valley there is at least three days sleighing yet, even if the roads are badly cut up.

The sale of the late James A Baker's grocery stock has been completed, but it will probably take several months before some of the old claims can be gathered in, as some of them are rather antiquated.

A runaway horse was speeding through the main street toward the depot, yesterday afternoon, when William McNair ran out and captured the horse. Nothing was broke and the runaway horse seemed glad of the opportunity to stop.

Seeley's paper mills expect to close down within a few days, it is said, to prepare some of the machinery. The "shut down" will only be temporarily, but it will lay off some twenty employees. Work has been slack there for some months, but there is now every indication of a good spring trade.

A sleighing party went out from Emory's Hotel, Saturday evening. The party was driven to Dunellen, where refreshments were served and afterward they took a spin around the country, arriving home in the extremely small hours of the morning. The sleighriders included Mr. and Mrs. Dixson, son and daughter, of Summit; Mr. and Mrs. Edward Willis, of North Plainfield; James Guttridge, Thomas Emory, Mrs. E. Emory and Miss W. Emory.

Bishop Scarborough visited All Saints church yesterday in the afternoon, and administered the rite of confirmation to three persons presented by the rector of the parish. At the request of the family he also christened the son of Mr. and Mrs. William R. Stanberg, as he had officiated at the marriage of the parents some seven years ago. The congregation filled the church, and quite a large number of the attendants were from the other churches of the village, as there is the best of feeling among all the good people here, and all are interested in the welfare, moral and social, of its citizens.

READY TO TAKE LAW EXAMINATION.

Walter Williams Will Soon be Able to Hang Out a Shingle.

According to the present State laws a law student is eligible to take his examinations for the bar after four years study or on securing a certificate from five counsellors that he is proficient in the principles of law after they have examined him. Walter Gordon Williams, of East Front street, senior clerk in the law offices of S. S. Swackhamer, has taken advantage of the last part of the law and is preparing to take his examinations at the term of the Supreme Court at Trenton on February 19th and 23d. On Saturday he appeared before Judge John D. Bartine and Counsellor William B. Steele, of Somerville, and was found after a long examination, to be proficient in the subject. Today, he went to Flemington to appear before Judge O. P. Chamberlain, Judge H. Burdette Herr and ex-Senator Richard H. Kuhl, to secure the other necessary three signatures to the certificate.

A few months ago, Mr. Byron Every, of Woodstock, Mich., was badly afflicted with rheumatism. His right leg was swollen the full length, causing him great suffering. He was advised to try Chamberlain's Pain Balm. The first bottle of it helped him considerably and the seeond bottle effected a cure. The 25 and 50 cent sizes are for sale by T. S. Armstrong, Apothecary, corner Park and North avenues.

A GOOD LETTER.

From the Clerk of the Circuit Court.

Fernandina, Fla., Feb. 28, 1896.
Mr. J. George Suhrer, Druggist, City.

Dear George:—Please send a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. I would not feel easy if I knew there was none of this valuable Remedy in the house. I have given it a fair test and consider it one of the very best remedies for croup that I have ever foumd. One dose has always been sufficient, although I use it freely. Any cold my children contract yields very readily to this medicine. I can conscientiously recommend it for croup and colds in children. Yours respectfully, Geo. E. Wolff. Sold by T. S. Armstrong, apothecary, Park & North avenues.

TO DO JUST AS MEN DO.

MRS. OSGOOD FINDS APT PUPILS IN PARLIAMENTARY LAW.

The Women's Club of Jersey City Now Knows All About Motions and Amendments to Motions and Amendments to Amendments.

Mrs. E. S. Oswood gave what she designated as a "parliamentary law lecture and drill" to the Women's Club in Hasbrouck Hall, Jersey City, on Thursday afternoon. The lecture was given under direction of the Educational Committee of the club. The hall was well filled with club members. Mrs. Osgood comes from Maine. She has a very commanding presence. She said she did not intend giving a lecture, but an object lesson, and then proceeded to explain the meaning and uses of motions dependent on subsidiary motions. A presiding officer, she said, is the servant of the club. She should preside, call the assembly to order, present the business, protect the minority, be impartial, have tact, "and Mr. Thomas B. Reed says," she added, "have a good presence." The gist of club constitutions, Mrs. Osgood said, was contained in the rules which her 7-year-old niece told her governed her club. The members were enjoined to mind their own business, and the bosses were directed not to boss around too much.

"When you take the floor," Mrs. Osgood continued, "you must not 'think,' or, at least, you must not say so. If you want to make a motion don't say, 'I think.' Of course, you think, or you wouldn't have taken the floor. And don't say, 'It seems to me.' Of course, it does, or you wouldn't talk about it. Don't say, 'I make a move,' or 'I make a motion,' or 'I move you.' You don't do either of these things. You might find it hard sometimes to move the President. What you should say is, 'I move.'"

Mrs. Osgood then requested the ladies to imagine that they were there in response to a call for a meeting in the interest of correct dress. Carrying out that theory, she said they would suppose that Mrs. Brett had signed the call for the meeting. That made it Mrs. Brett's duty to call the meeting to order. Mrs. Brett, who is the wife of the Rev. Dr. Brett, seemed a little embarrassed. She walked over to Mrs. Osgood and asked her in a whisper, "What shall I say?" Mrs. Osgood whispered something in return, and then Mrs. Brett braced up. Tapping her fan on the back of a chair, she said in a firm voice:

"The time having arrived for which the meeting has been called, you will please come to order and nominate a temporary chairman."

Mrs. Keating, Mrs. Harrison, Mrs. Cushing, and Mrs. Osgood were placed in nomination. A vote was taken and Mrs. Osgood was elected. Mrs. Brett whispered to Mrs. Osgood again and then said: "I appoint Mrs. Rohrback to escort Mrs. Osgood to the platform."

Mrs. Creveling was elected secretary.

Mrs. Osgood made a brief speech explaining the object of the meeting and impressing on her hearers the importance of correct dress.

"Now let somebody make a motion of some kind," she said, "so that we can have a drill on motions."

Mrs. Keating stood up and said, "Mrs. President."

"Mrs. Chairman, if you please," interrupted Mrs. Osgood. "I am not President."

"Mrs. Chairman, then," said Mrs. Keating. "I would like to move whether—"

"Please say, 'I move,'" said Mrs. Osgood.

"I move, then," said Mrs. Keating, "whether it is advisable to shorten the skirts four inches from the ground for rainy weather, or whether we should do it all the time?"

"Such a statement of a motion is impracticable," said Mrs. Osgood. "Never state a motion negatively, and always put it as concisely as possible."

Mrs. Keating got it right the next time. "I move," she said, "that we wear walking skirts four inches from the ground."

"I second it," said Mrs. Newbury.

"Please rise and address the Chair, Mrs. Newbury," said the chairman.

"Mrs. Chairman, I second the motion," said Mrs. Newbury, rising.

Mrs. John A. Walker, the wife of a former President of the Board of Education, tried to offer an amendment to the motion, but Mrs. Osgood informed her that it could not be entertained until after the motion had been stated. The Chairman stated the motion, and then Mrs. Walker offered an amendment to make it three inches, instead of four.

Mrs. Horsley moved to amend the amendment by inserting the words, "in rainy weather."

"I am glad you said that," said Mrs. Osgood: "What you offer is not an amendment to the amendment, but an amendment to the original motion, and cannot be entertained until the amendment is disposed of." Mrs. Walker asked if it would be an amendment to the amendment to substitute two inches for three, and she was told that it would. By this time the ladies were very much interested. Mrs. Walker's amendment was lost, and then Mrs. Horsley got in her amendment about rainy weather. Mrs. E. V. R. Brinckerhoff offered an amendment to include muddy weather. She said she thought muddy weather was just as bad as rainy weather. The amendment to the amendment was carried, and without any further discussion the original motion as amended was adopted. The ladies left the meeting thoroughly convinced that they are as well informed on parliamentary law as some Congressmen.

THOSE WHO BELIEVE IN FATALITY.

Men Who Brave Danger and Demonstrate Their Idea to the Letter.

Soldiers are often heard to say, "If I'm going to be shot, I shall be shot." Mr. R. G. Wiberforce, who was an ensign of the 52nd during the Indian Mutiny, says he never met but three men who carried into practice the adage. One of these men was a friend, who, on Wilberforce's arrival in front of Delhi, proposed a ride to show him the pickets, assuring him that the journey was safe. As they rode along, Wilberforce suddenly heard the ping of a bullet, quickly followed by a second and a third. "Hallo—what does this mean?" he exclaimed. "Oh, it is only the rifle-pits; we are just on their line of fire!" answered the friend. Instantly Wilberforce put spurs to his steed and galloped into a safe place. Turning round, Wilberforce saw that his friend had dismounted, and was picking up the whip that he had dropped. Having done that, he slowly remounted and walked his horse to where Wilberforce was awaiting him. On another occasion a live shell came inside a siege battery, and began burying itself in the ground. Everybody went down except this fatalist. "Lie down, you fool!" they called out. Removing his cigar from his lips, he said, "I am not going to put myself out for ——" The sentence was interrupted by the explosion of a shell. A fragment cut off a piece of the standing man's trousers. He pointed to the torn portion as an illustration of the truth of the adage. The other man who lived up to this fatalist doctrine was seen by Wilberforce standing still to light a cigar in the middle of a street down which a heavy fire was pouring. Wilberforce, who was under shelter, called to him to come under cover. He looked up and said, "How often have I told you that, if I am to be shot, I shall be shot, whether I am where I am or under cover? Then, taking out another match, he finished the lighting process which his friend had interrupted. The third instance occurred at the Delhi bank on the day of the assault. Seated on the steps of the bank between two men was Wilberforce's most intimate friend. The houses opposite were thickly lined with Sepoy rebels, who kept up a harassing fire, to which the three men were directly exposed. Wilberforce called to them to join him under the shelter of a wall. The friend answered, "If I am to be shot, I shall be, no matter where I am." Scarcely had he spoken when his companions were killed. He himself was not touched, though seven bullets struck one companion and two the other. He called attention to the fact as a proof of the truth of his theory.

LI AND THE LOCOMOTIVE.

The Wily Diplomat Knew How to Manage the Mandarins.

There is a story concerning the first locomotive ever seen in China. Li Hung Chang was given permission to construct a railway from the sea to his mines upon the condition that steam power should not be used, and for several months the cars were hauled by mules. Then Mr. Kinder and some of the foreign machinists secretly constructed a locomotive out of such materials as they could find in China. It was a rude affair, and it was never able to make more than five or six miles an hour, but it was a great advantage over the mule teams, for it could haul seven or eight cars of coal at that speed, where it took four mules to haul one. But when the mandarins at Peking learned that foreign devils were using a fire-eating monster on the railway they immediately made a tremendous fuss about it, and called Li Hung Chang to account for violating his concession. The old gentleman took it very coolly, and pretended not to know anything about it, but he afterward restored himself in favor by issuing an order rebuking Mr. Kinder and his associates for their presumption and forbidding them to introduce any more new-fangled foreign notions into China. Shortly after he secretly patted them on the back and raised their pay. The excitement quieted down and was soon forgotten. Then Mr. Kinder got up steam in his clumsy old engine again, and was allowed to run it without interference. Later a couple of regularly made locomotives were imported from Europe, and have since been hauling coal trains on that road.—Chicago Record.

The Cat Wears Glasses.

Max, the handsome Maltese pet of Miss Thompson, of San Francisco, is perhaps the only cat on record that wears spectacles.

Miss Thompson says she has owned Max since her early youth, and has found him a most invaluable possession besides being a loving little companion in her loneliness. A few months ago, much to her distress, Miss Thompson discovered that Max was losing his eyesight, so she carried him to a well known oculist to be treated. At first the man of science refused to make the experiment, scarcely knowing how to begin, but at Miss Thompson's suggestion, he secured a line and the picture of a mouse, and by holding these alternately and at varying distances before Max was finally enabled to test his eyes quite thoroughly. After the necessary treatment, the doctor fitted Max with a pair of glasses, the gold frames having to be made to order, of course, and now the big cat looks as wise as the proverbial owl with his double eyes, and Miss Thompson declares it is as good as new again. —Philadelphia Times.

"No, Willie dear," said Willie's mamma—"no more cakes to-night. Don't you know you cannot sleep on a full stomach?" "Well," replied Willie, "I can sleep on my back."

THE GREELEY VOTE.

GEN. GRANT HAD A MAJORITY OF 234 OVER THE TRIBUNE EDITOR.

Mr. Greeley Had the Nomination of Two Parties, but He Carried Only Six States—Maryland, Kentucky, Tennessee, Missouri, Texas and Georgia.

In many of its details there is a singular resemblance between the last political campaign and the Presidential contest of 1872 between Horace Greeley, the editor, and Gen. Grant, the soldier. Mr. Greeley, with many other leading Republicans, argued that the only method by which Grant could be defeated for a second term, which he sought, and perhaps a third term afterward, was to nominate an independent Republican ticket and ask the Democracy to endorse it. As a result of this movement a Liberal Republican National Convention met at Cincinnati on May 1, 1872, and adopted a platform of glittering generalities, on which anybody could conscientiously stand. At the outset there had been a general disposition to nominate Charles Francis Adams as the most available Presidential candidate to hold together the heterogeneous elements opposed to Grantism. But, through some unseen causes, Horace Greeley was chosen on the sixth ballot by a vote of 482 to 187 for Adams. Then B. Gratz Brown of Missouri was nominated for Vice-President.

The nomination of Greeley twenty-four years ago was greeted with a furor of general approval. In some of its aspects it was dramatically proper. It carried consternation into the ranks of the regulars. Greeley had a great personal following, and through his newspaper wielded a powerful influence throughout the North. It was feared that he would stampede the Republican party. Many very intelligent Republicans believed that if he was endorsed by the Democracy, Greeley's election was assured. The country awaited with breathless anxiety the action of the National Democratic Convention, which met at Baltimore on the 9th of July. A strong undertone of hostility was manifested toward Greeley, but the hope of success finally overcame all objections. The convention adopted the Liberal Republican platform in its entirety, and nominated Greeley on the first ballot by a vote of 686 to 46. This proceeding seemed to settle every doubt as to the result. It was received with acclaim all over the land.

Horace Greeley was now the nominee of two parties for the Presidency. He possessed many elements of strength. He was an old politician of ability and experience, and read the people like a book. He immediately entered upon an energetic personal canvass, speaking everywhere and drawing great throngs. For a time the Liberal Republican-Democratic canvass was marked by the greatest enthusiasm and confidence.

As was inevitable from the first, Grant had been renominated, and was violently assailed both in and out of his party. He remained at home and maintained a dignified silence. On the surface it seemed as if the Republican party was on the verge of dissolution. But little black clouds no bigger than a man's hand began to overspread the horizon of the Tribune philosopher's hopes. His strength had been overestimated. He failed to draw away the expected Republican vote.

The North Carolina election, which occurred in August, gave the first important indication of public opinion. The Liberal candidate for Governor was defeated by a small majority by the regular Republican candidate, a result totally unexpected. It was a deadly blow. Then followed the more important elections in Maine and Vermont, both of which went Republican by heavy majorities. West Virginia also elected a Republican Governor. These disastrous results showed that the bottom had entirely dropped out of Greeley's canvass. But Mr. Greeley continued his personal appeals for support with unflagging zeal. The October elections in Ohio, Indiana, and Pennsylvania confirmed the verdict of the September States, although Thomas A. Hendricks, the Democratic idol, was elected Governor of Indiana by less than 1,200 plurality. The result in November was inevitable; Mr. Greeley's doom was sealed. He was simply nowhere, carrying but six States in the whole Union, viz., Maryland, Kentucky, Tennessee, Missouri, Texas, and Georgia, with 66 electoral votes. Grant carried all the others, securing 300 electoral votes, a majority of 234. His popular majorities were overwhelming: in Pennsylvania 137,000, in Massachusetts 75,000, in Illinois 56,000, in New York 53,000, in Iowa 50,000, in Michigan 43,000, and so on. Grant's majorities were greatest in the very states where Greeley had drawn the largest crowds and apparently made the strongest impression.

The cause of this tremendous defeat did not lie in Mr. Geeley himself. His personality was satisfactory enough; many thousands who voted dead against him would have been glad to see the old man President under other circumstances. His candidacy at that time represented principles and elements extremely repugnant to the masses of the North.

She Knew the Ropes.

"I always hate to hear about a man's being henpecked," the small woman with the firm-set lips remarked.

"I don't see why."

"Because I don't believe that any such thing as being henpecked exists. When a man complains of it, it generally means that he's too indolent to do his own thinking."—Washington Star.

CALMNESS WAS A FAILURE.

It Was Very Well in Theory, but It Did Not Work in Practice.

"never 'ell me about that Hindoo preacher again," she said impatiently, "and don't you dare to say a word in favor."

"I haven't," responded the girl in the bolero, meekly, "and I'm not going to. But what has he done to you."

"Everything. Everything which a man can do. He's upset all my plans and made me miserable for life."

"You remember that lecture on calmness? It sounded lovely, but it was all bosh. I thought I'd try how the theory worked out, I was so tired of hurrying anyway. I've tried faithfully for a week or more, and everything unpleasant which could possibly happen has come to pass in that time.

"It began just the minute I got home from the lecture. Papa was in a hurry to get to bed that night, and the boys were just nervous with weariness. I can see that now, but at the time I couldn't see anything but my resolve to be calm. So I wouldn't hurry a bit and we lost the train. They've been cross ever since, and I've been miserable.

"It was the same thing next morning; mamma wanted me to go down town with her, and I wouldn't, because I know how she hurries, and I just knew I shouldn't be calm one minute after we started. So she felt bad and our family life has been perfectly horrid for a week.

"Then last night even Charlie went back on me. We were going to the theatre, and he was waiting down in the parlor. He sent word up by one of the boys for me to hurry, but I wasn't going to break my calm after all that horrid week of trying to keep it. So I dressed just as slowly as I could, and when he remonstrated with me on my way to the car I told him that he was hindering my spiritual progress. And what do you think he said? Why, 'Darn your spiritual progress. Why can't you be nice as you used to be?'

"Of course I wouldn't speak to him all evening unless he apologized, and when he apologized he was so unpleasant about it that he only made me madder. So we had a miserable evening. I wouldn't have gone down town with him at all, only I didn't want the folks to know we'd quarreled. And he bade me the barest good night you ever saw when we got home again. I cried most all night.

"This morning I rode down in the same car with him, and I smiled just as sweetly as I could, but he never came near me. When we got off at Dearborn street I hurried just a little bit and got next to him, and I said, 'Why don't you speak to me, Charlie?' and he said, 'Because I don't want to hinder your spiritual progress.'

"Well, that made me madder than ever, and I told him he need never speak to me again, or come to see me, and just now, as I came over from the office, I saw him walking into the Saratoga with Maud Strong. And all just because I followed that blessed Hindoo's instructions and 'kept calm at all hazzards.' Charlie will never get over it, I know, and we would have been so happy together, and I wish I was dead, I certainly do." And she flopped disconsolately down on the sofa and hid her face in the pillow again.—Chicago Times-Herald.

MUSIC WILL MAKE THEM WORK.

A Man Must Whistle Lively Tunes to Obtain Work With One Employer.

The cheering effect of brisk music is well known in the military service, where the fife and drum, playing lively airs, have often kept men on the march after they had grown too much exhausted to go on without it. Acting upon the same idea a large employer of labor in one of our great cities has lately engaged a band of musicians to play almost constantly in his establishment, and keeps them performing nothing but lively music.

In the same way a builder had one question which he always asked of journeymen who applied to be taken into his employ. If the applicant were found to possess all the other necessary qualifications, the "boss" would ask him:—

"What are your favorite tunes?"

"Why, what do want to know that for?"

"You whistle and sing some at your work, don't you?"

"Oh, yes."

"Well, what tunes do you generally whistle or sing?"

"Oh, there's 'Old Hundred,' and 'Auld Lang Syne,' and 'Down by the Weeping Willows,' and——"

"That's enough!" the boss would exclaim. "You won't do for me. Too slow, them tunes be. Good-day."

On the contrary, if the applicant answered, "Oh, I generally whistle 'Yankee Doodle,' or 'The British Grenadiers,' or something of that sort," the builder would say at once:—

"I think you'll do! Take off your coat if you want to, and go to work." —Tid-Bits.

Bad Time for Pat.

There was once an Irishman who had a face on him that, as one of his friends once remarked, was "an offince to the landscape." Next to his homeliness his poverty was the most conspicuous thing about him. Hence the unsympathetic comment of a neighbor, "How are ye, Pat?" he asked. "Mighty bad!" was the reply. "Sure 'tis starvation that's starin' me in the face!" "Is that so?" rejoined his friend, adding, "Sure it can't be viry pleasant for nyther of yez!"

Not Epidemic.

Professor James, of Harvard, denies that genius is a disease. Probably those who hold otherwise would be willing to admit that the disease is not yet epidemic.—Chicago Times-Herald.

Red Cross Society Returns a Contribution Intended for the Cubans Alone.

Washington, Feb. 15.—Referring to the contemplated expedition of the Red Cross society to Cuba, a morning paper mentions the circumstance of a sum of money received by the officials of that society being returned to the sender on account of the fact that its tender was made with the injunction that no portion of it should be used for the relief of Spaniards. Such a contribution is in no wise consistent with the meanings and rules of the Red Cross society, which in its ministrations to the suffering makes no distinction whatever as to any creed or nationality, and donations tendered to the society coupled with requests that they be only used in one direction cannot meet the philanthropic purposes of the organization. It will require about $25,000 to start the society's expedition into Cuba, and, as it seems, but a small part of that amount has yet been subscribed. As early as possible, however, despite all difficulties of travel and stress of other circumstances, the society will begin its new mission of succoring the distressed of whatever side in the island of Cuba. It is probable that twenty-five or thirty of the staff can, owing to the nearness of the locality, be sent to Cuba, and subscriptions that are received can be sent to them while they are on the field of duty.

Southern State Senator Secretly Weds.

Lexington, Ky., Feb. 15.—It has just leaked out that state senator Charles J. Bronson was married Saturday in St. Louis to Miss Wisdom of Paducah, Ky. Their wedding was announced for a year ago, but the bride's father objected. Since then the father died, leaving an estate worth over $1,000,000. There were still objections in the family, but the couple stole away secretly. Mr. Bronson led the fight for Senator Blackburn's re-election in the legislature last year and was prominently mentioned for W. C. P. Breckinridge's seat in congress.

Insane Stranger Detained at Newport, Vt.

Newport, Vt., Feb. 15.—An insane man is being detained here, pending identification. He has a railroad ticket for Quebec, which was issued at Northampton, Mass., Feb. 11. He came to H. H. Day's, in East Coventry, Friday afternoon and remained over night. He was then taken to the overseer of the poor at Coventry, and Saturday night he was brought here for safe-keeping. He has given various names as his. Any information should be sent to L. D. Miles, sheriff, Newport, Vt.

Latter Day Saints of New England.

Dennisport, Mass., Feb. 15.—The Latter Day Saints of New England are holding their annual conference in this place. The following are the new officers elected: Vice-President, F. M. Sheehy, Boston; secretary, M. C. Fisher, Boston; assistant secretary, Mr Gates, Providence. Reports from ten churchs showed large increases in membership and finances. The meetings will be continued at the chapel during the week.

China's Naval Adviser.

London, Feb. 15.—An application from the Chinese government to the admiralty to recommend a British naval adviser has resulted in the appointment of Capt. Dundds, head of the marine on the Niger coast. He will leave England at the end of February to take up the post of chief of the Tien-Tsin Naval academy and head naval adviser to the Chinese government. He is still allowed to remain on the active list of the British navy.

Sunday on Bunce's Squadron.

Charleston, S. C., Feb. 15.—Admiral Bunce's squadron suspended their warlike work and observed Sunday in regulation fashion. Episcopal services was held on the flagship New York. Catholic services on the Maine and general services including other denominations were celebrated on the Columbia. A number of excursion steamers ran out to the fleet during the day carrying thousands of visitors.

Labor Trouble Settled.

EXTEND THEIR TRADE

American Iron and Steel Makers Invade British Home Markets.

LARGE EXPORTATIONS ARE REPORTED

English Manufacturers Alarmed Over the Success of the Americans' Efforts—Labor-Saving Machinery Gives Yankees the Advantage.

Pittsburg, Feb. 15.—British makers of iron and steel products are alarmed by the invasion of their home markets by American manufacturers. It is stated that tin plate bars have been exported to the Welsh tin plate mills for several months and some of the tinned plates imported recently were made out of Amrican steel. Bessemer steel billets nave been exported, and one Pittsburg firm is reported to have been recently shipping on an order for 20,000 tons of billets, which have been landed on the west coast of England at a price of twelve shillings below the local price. Other forms of iron and steel exported extensively are hardware, mechanical tools and various forms of machinery. Wages in American mills are more than double the wages paid in English mills for similar work. It is claimed that the higher cost of labor in the United States has given to employers a greater incentive to introduce labor saving machinery and that the labor cost per ton in American mills is so low, as compared with the cost in England, by reason of the larger output per day, that the cost per ton is actually below what it is at the most favored mills in Great Britain and almost as low as in Germany.

Business Revival in Rhode Island.

Providence, R. I., Feb. 15.—There are indications of a revival of activity in the worsted mills in this section. This morning the Weybosset mills in Olneyville, which have been running only forty hours a week for several months past, started the preparatory departments on full time, to be in readiness for a general resumption of full time in the weaving and all other departments. The Lippitt woolen mills at Woonsocket have issued orders for a general resumption of activity on full time and have orders enough to run on full time for a number of months.

Corbett Gives Two Sunday Exhibitions.

San Francisco, Feb. 15.—Several thousand admirers of James J. Corbett packed the Haight street grounds yesterday afternoon to see him spar a few rounds with his trainer, Jim McVey. It was Corbett's first appearance in public since his contest with Tom Sharkey. Last evening the performance was repeated before a much larger crowd. After the exhibition Corbett addressed the spectators briefly, saying that his friends need have no hesitation in placing their money on him. He was prepared to put up the best battle of his career.

Rhine Wine Vintage of 1896.

Washington, Feb. 15.—"Quantity large, quality poor," is the description of the Rhine wine vintage of 1896, sent to the state department by Consul Bartholow an Mayence. In many districts the growers had great difficulty in getting casks enough to hold the product, and the desirable characteristics of the wine are decidedly inferior to that of other years. The 1896 wine, it is predicted, will be very light and very cheap and a great deal of sugar will have to be used to make it palatable.

Venezuela Will Ratify the Treaty.

Washington, Feb. 15.—Satisfactory assurances have just been received from Caracas that the Venezuelan boundary treats will be promptly ratified. The government is in a position to assert this confidently after the careful canvas that has been made among its supporters. The opposition is declared to be confined to an insignificant minority, which has weakened instead of gained strength as a result of its efforts to upset the work of the negotiators.

Maher and Smith Will Fight To-Night.

Buffalo Feb. 15.—Peter Maher will box six roungs with C. C. Smith, the "Thunderbolt," before the Empire Athletic club to-night. Maher says he never felt better in his life. Brightly Dayton, Maher's manager, stated that Peter will go after the winner of the big fight at Carson and will have $10,000 to $15,000 for a side stake. Maher will also fight Sharkey at Carson if Stuart can arrange it.

Death of an Old Minstrel.

Kansas City, Mo., Feb. 15.—Charles Christy, the last of the famous Christy minstrels, died at the city hospital Saturday night of cirrhosis of the liver, aged 68 years. Christy was one of the original Christy minstrels, founded by his uncle, Edwin P. Christy. When the palmy days were over, "Uncle Charlie" went to Texas, where he managed vaudeville shows for many years.

Dan Stuart Attends Church.

Carson, Nev., Feb. 15.—There was a lull yesterday in prize-ring gossip in Carson. Most of the population went to church, and Dan Stuart occupied a pew in the Episcopal church. The kodac fiends complain of the deceptive fight they encounter in Carson. They say all the pictures need more exposure to the light.

Skipped Out with His Clients' Money.

Newark, N. J., Feb. 15.—William M. Rysdyk, a young lawyer with a good standing and good practice, has gone with $1,700 belonging to Cramer & King, silk printers, who were his clients. The money was the amount of a judgment against the firm.

RIDICULED BACON THEORY.

SHAKESPEARE DESERVING OF CREDIT.

Prof. Fiske Lectured in His Happiest Vein Saturday Night.

"The Bacon Shakespeare Folly" w s the subject of an unusually bright and entertaining lecture delivered by Prof. John Fiske in the Casino, Saturday night, before a cultured and appreciative audience. The lecture was in Prof. Fiske's happiest vein—clear, persuasive and witty. He seemed rather to hold the Baconian theory up to ridicule, in a good-humored way, apparently thinking it too foolish to deserve serious consideration. However, he was careful to give an answer to every point brought up by those who hold the theory that the plays we know as William Shakespeare's were really written by Francis Bacon. In reply to the argument that the plays show a greater amount of book-learning than would be likely to be found in a man of Shakespeare's position, he said that Shakespeare's works show far fewer evidences of the scholar than Ben Jonson's. Though Shakespeare takes his materials from whatever strikes his fancy, they are woven together with little regard for classical models. His works show genius, but of the sort that our universities cannot give; that sort of man is as likely to be born in the peasant's hut as in the palace. A scholar like Bacon would have avoided the mistakes Shakespeare makes in his historical allusions; he would never have introduced such an acronism as the use of cannon in the reign of King John. Bacon is one of the most interesting characters of modern times, but also one of the most over-rated. His work shows him to have lacked the creative quality which enables a writer to lead men into new fields, and he is entirely without the exuberent fun which we find in Shakespeare's plays.

LECTURE ON HEREDITY.

A Speaker Tells Chiefly of the Inherited Tendency of Evil Habits.

Heredity was the subject of a lecture at the Seventh Day Baptist church, Saturday evening, by Miss Anna Langworthy, state lecturer of the New York W. C. T. U. Miss Langworthy was very convincing in her remarks. She spoke chiefly of the inherited effects of the alcohol and tobacco habits and told many incidents to show how the children of confirmed drinkers and smokers were of a lower mental power than their parents. If the parent had a strong will and was able to control his appetite for drink his children would have the same appetite but not the will power to resist it. The general tendency of the children of victims of the two habits was downward toward crime. She gave statistics to prove her assertion and told how weak minds, insanity, and the other evil effects were also the result.

Her words were listened to with great interest by the audience which half filled the Sunday-school room of the church. A collection followed the lecture. The opening exercises were conducted by Miss Earnestine Smith, president of the Christian Endeavor Society under whose anspices the lecture was given.

Death of Miss Vandenberg.

The death of Miss Gertrude Vandenberg occurred this morning at her home, 225 East Fifth street, after an illness lasting about three months. She was seventy-seven years, two months and ten days old. She came to this city about twenty-five years ago. She was a faithful member of the Trinity Reformed church and always evidenced great interest in Christian work. The funeral services will be held Wednesday morning from the house at 11 o,clock. Interment will be in Greenwood cemetery, Brooklyn.

The Peary Sale Begins

The sale of seats for the Peary lecture opened briskly at Armstrong's Pharmacy this morning, and a large number were taken, enough to give evidence that the great explorer will be greated by a large audience, when he speaks in Plainfield February 25. The subject of the lecture will be "Explorations in Northernmost Greenland." The lecture will be illustrated by 100 of the finest views ever projected upon a canvass.

Euchre Club Entertained.

The Saturday Evening Euchre Club was charmingly entertained by Mr. and Mrs. Longman, of Sandford avenue, last Saturday evening, and the members together with several guests had a thoroughly enjoyable time. The first and second prizes for the ladies were awarded to Mrs Longman and Mrs. DeLong, while Mr. Hall and Mr. Salkeld won the first and second honors for the men.

introduced Dr. Glazebrook, who spoke in part as follows:

"There are two elements that enter into this occasion today that make it exceedingly pleasant. The, first elemet is 'Friendship,' and next to God's gift of His Son, I think that that friendship holds second place. Friendship, of the loyal and true kind is one of God's best gifts to men. This rector has never faltered and has always been faithful in his work. I am glad to be one of a number to be present today and speak a few words on such an occasion, for I have always considered Mr. Murphy one of my closest friends.

"The second element is 'Duty' on the part of the congregation. This rector has stood here among you for twenty years, subject to the closest scrutiny of the public, and any man that can do that is deserving of recognition and honor. Put yourself in his place, and ask the question how could I do it? Let the doctors, lawyers and citizens ask themselves that question.

"I congratulate the rector of this church and the congregation on their success. I notice that there are many young people here today, and I suppose that many have been baptized and married by the rector of this church, and a strong feeling of love has evidenced itself among you. As you grow older that love and admiration will become stronger. God grant that your rector may be spared many years and that the fruits of his labors may be abundant."

The next speaker was Dr. Rodman, rector of Grace P. E. church, who spoke somewhat as follows:

"My brother and I believe in long rectorships, for we think that there are very many advantages to be gained. The Methodist people are wise and next to the church of Rome they show as much worldly reason as anybody I know of. They keep a minister two, three or four years and then they think that he had better obey the church injunction and leave. Short rectorships are like the small boy who planted some seeds and then unearthed them every day to see how much they had grown. On the other hand long rectorships are like the great and sturdy oak with its mighty spreading roots. To my mind there is no question as to the advantages of long rectorships. The State courts have decided that you cannot remove a rector, that it takes the higher power to do that.

"It takes a man years to learn who his parishers are and where they live. After that there is the strong growth as the years roll on. I wish you all good luck, and may God bless you abundantly for years to come."

The last speaker was Rev. Mr Simpson, pastor of St. Stephens' church, Netherwood. His remarks were in part as follows:

"There is very little left for me to say as those who spoke before me have well covered the ground. Twenty years service is quite an epoch. It means two things, namely: fidelity on the part of the priest and affection on the part of the people. It certainly speaks well for you and your rector. You could scarcely pass those years without some clouds, but God has never allowed a storm to overcome the ship. You never find a rectorship that is not full of light and shadow, but there is always a silver lining to every cloud.

"How often do you pray for your rector? A priest requires your help to carry out God's plan. If you pray for him there is one thing certain and that is you will not have grace to find fault. As a rule we generally wait until a person dies and then we cover their coffin with flowers, and possibly a monument is erected. It is possible that that same person may have lived for years without sympathy.

"I have known your rector for many years and there is a very strong affectionate feeling between us. Let him know that you love him now and don't wait until he passes away. Tell him to his face that you love him. I wish you good luck in the name of God and I trust that you may be greatly prospered."

At the conclusion of the addresses Mr. Murphy thanked his fellow-rectors for their kindness in speaking words of cheer and he hoped that all would profit by what was said.

The service closed in the usual way and many remained to extend greetings to Mr. Murphy and wish him many years of prosperity.

On Wednesday evening of this week a reception will be held at the home of the rector, when the members of the church will have an opportunity of honoring by their presence and good cheer.

Rev. T. Logan Murphy was born at Pittsburg, Pa, and the largest part of his life was spent in and around Philadelphia. After leaving college he studied at the Philadelphia Divinity School. He then became assistant rector of Grace church, Philadelphia. Sometime later he was rector of a church at Newport, R. I., for a period of seven years. He entered upon his pastorate at the church of the Holy Cross, February 14th, 1877, and has honorably held the position ever since.

THE CONGREGATIONALISTS.

TH.NGS THEY HAVE BEEN DOING.

A History of the Church Read by the Endeavorers.

Some idea of the Congregational denomination, its history and what it has been doing, was given to those who were present at the meeting in the Congregational church, last even ing. The meeting was under the auspices of the Christian Endeavor Society. The subject was the "Congregationalists and what they are doing." The leader was the pastor, Rev. C. L Goodrich.

Rev. Mr. Goodrich first told something of the history of the denomination and explained that it was the oldest of them all. The principles were the autonomy of the local church and the fellowship of the churches. There are 5,800 churches in the United States with a membership of over 600,000. Robert LaBoyteaux told of the strongholds of the denomination in the country. Mrs. C. L. Goodrich told of the American Board of Commissioners of Foreign Missions. A. C. La Boyteaux spoke of the work of the American Missionary Association. Something about the Home Missionary Society of the Congregational Church was read by Miss J. Louise Jenkins. The works of the Congregational Church Building Society was described by Miss G. M. Morse. Miss Anna E Manktelow told of the Congregational Society. The Congegational Sunday School and Publishing Society was the subject of a few remarks by Josph A. Robinson. William Whiting read a list of the leading states in benevolences.

Mr. Goodrich then referred to the claim that Congregationalism is the denomination that educates and a few arguments in favor of that claim were advanced by Miss Alice Miller. She told of the numerous colleges and schools which have been founded by the denomination and are now being conducted as denominational colleges and schools. Several charts showing the growth in the country and individual churches were exhibited.

This Is Certainly a Wonderful Chance.

We are aware that our people who suffer from nervous, chronic or long-standing complaints do not have the same opportunity to be cured as do the residents of the great cities where the most eminent physicians and specialists reside. Dr. Greene, of 35 West 14th St, New York City, who has the largest practice in the world and who is without doubt the most successful specialist in curing all forms of nervous and chronic diseases, offers to give free consultation by mail to all sufferers. Write to him at once about your case. He will surely cure you.

G. A. R. Posts to Consolidate.

At the meeitng of Major Anderson Post, No. 109, G. A. R., held Saturday evening it was decided unanimously by all, except one member, to surrender the charter of the Post and join Post No. 73. However, according to the rules final action will be taken at the next meet after all the members have been notified.

Patrolman Higgins' firs prisoner, a man named Young, was arraigned before City Judge DeMeza this morning on the charge of being drunk. Sentence was suspended on the offender, as it was his first offence.

Seven Young People Confirmed.

A class of five young men and two young women were confirmed at St. Stephen's church last evening by Bishop Scarborough. The service was an impressive one largely attended.

Retiring Sale, and it may close any day now, as the amount that we agreed to sell was reached yesterday and Messrs. Woodhull & Martin, the new proprietors, want to take possession just as soon as possible.
The sale up to date has been a great and marvelous success, the amount of sales being just double of what we calculated on when we started in.
There is scarcely any abatement of interest or crowds yet, as the sale has become so widely and popularly known, not only in Plainfield and vicinity, but all around in this part of the State.
The $80,000 stock begins to show some thinning out of course; but there are hundreds and hundreds of good things yet that every household needs that you can save money on by buying now at this sale.
Now if you have not bought all you want at the sale you had better come in at once, as it may run only a few days longer, as far as we can tell at this writing.
Hundreds of people are buying now for future use. They say that in all of their experience, even in New York and other large cities, they have never seen such marvelously low prices marked on fine seasonable goods.
Everybody knows that we have never dealt in second-hand goods or cheap auction stuff, and that when we advertise FIRST-CLASS seasonable goods they can rely on getting just what is advertised.
And so the great mass of people who have been to this sale regard our announcements at this time.
As the writer sits at his desk writing these notes Thursday afternoon, Feb. 11th, both floors of the popular Commercial Palace are literally packed with eager buyers, who go away pleased and delighted with their great bargains.
Remember the sale may last only a few days more, and if you wish to avail yourself of the greatest opportunity to buy fine goods cheaper than you have ever had you had better speak quick.

FOR CARE OF CITY POOR

OBSERVATIONS MADE BY A VISIT TO PATERSON'S POOR FARM.

Everything is Systematized and the Inmates Are Cared For at a Low Rate—What is Intended to be Done Here.

"When silk and iron are dull then there is panic in Paterson," remarked Mr. John G. Donelly, superintendent of the poor house and farm in that widely known centre of the above industries.

We had introduced ourselves to the superintendent as seekers after information on the best methods of housing and caring for the poor of Plainfield, and we know of no better source of gaining such knowledge and having it illustrated by object lessons than by coming to him. And so when we were seated in the comfortable business office of the great building,—Overseer Marx with list of prepared questions in hand,—the very genial and accomodating superintendent led the conference by giving, in the above opening sentence, the key to the situation in his own special bailiwick.

There are now 210"patients,"as they are styled, in the asylum; of these about forty are children, nearly all under seven years of age; a very considerable percentage of the adults are demented, from very slightly to utter and incurable idiocy, and insanity of a mild type, and for these unfortunates separate sitting rooms are provided. The entire house and farm work is done by the patients; by dint of coaxing and "taffy" even the most indolent and stubborn can be induced to do something, and, as the superintendent remarked, "Many hands make light work," and the patients are the better physically and mentally as a result of the exercise. The salaried officials of the institution are the superintendent and his wife, who is matron; a trained nurse in charge of the medical department under the instruction of the city physician, and a school teacher for the children, under the direction of the city school board.

The patients do not wear a distinctive uniform except those who are employed in special daily duties in the house, kitchen and bakery. The dining rooms contain long, narrow tables and seats are placed on one side only, so that all occupants while at meals face one way. The kitchen is fitted up with steam stockpots and vegetable boilers as also a large range. There is also a regulation baker's oven. There is a large laundry and ironing room. Both men and women have rooms for the accommodation of the sick, as also their separate bath rooms and sitting rooms. There is no fixed dietary, but such things as cereals, potatoes,and other vegetables in their season, with plenty of good bread and butter, make up a large part of the rations served out to the inmates. Butter is served for breakfast and supper, and on all holidays a turkey dinner is given. All inmates bathe once a week and well behaved ones can visit their friends once a month. Each sleeping room is heated by a coil of steam pipe, bnt no provision is made for light in them. At seven o'clock the patients are lighted to bed and the light taken away; at nine o'clock the door is locked until rising time next morning. Every Sunday morning a priest comes out and holds service for the Roman Catholic inmates, while the Protestants have their service on Sunday afternoon.

The farm contains about 130 acres of ground. There are barns, horse and cow stables, a piggery and a hennery. There are six horses and about thirty cows of good breeds, and all grain and other fodder for the stock is grown on the farm. The Superintendent showed us through the entire institution; every sleeping room was thoroughly ventilated, an iron single bedstead was allowed for each inmate from two to six in a room; bedding was most generous in quantity and was clean. The superintendent seemed to be a favorite with everybody and especially with the children, showing conclusively that the inmates were well treated. The cost per capita per month for keeping these patients is $7.84, and for burying them when they die $10 per capita; in Plainfield the prices now are respectively $10 and $15 per capita.

There are now on the list of beneficiaries of the poor fund of Plainfield, 11 men, 29 women and about 30 children; some of those are assisted with rent only, others are allowed a certain amount monthly for the payment of board, some are assisted with rent, food, fuel and clothing. A number are very old and utterly unable to provide for themselves. Some are living with relatives or friends; there are some who ought not to receive a cent of city support.

It is proposed to repair and arrange

AGAIN THE PARK'S WON.

WHIST VICTORIES ARE A REGULAR THING NOW WITH THE BIG FOUR.

Last Night the Jersey City Club Met Their Waterloo at the Whist Board in Contest For the Challenge Trophy.

The Park Club challenge whist trophy still remains in the club house of the Park Club. Another was added to the list of the Park Club's victories. It was hard for the whist players of the Jersey City Club, but it couldn't be helped as the Parks could not be prevailed upon to loose their grip on the challenge trophy.

The team from the Jersey City Club came to Plainfield last evening to play a match for the trophy and they were defeated by the famous four from the Park Club by a score of 15 to 7. The game was played in the club house of the Park's. This was the fifth consecutive victory for the Park's in the contests for the cup.

The Jersey City team was composed of the Messrs. Watson, D. Bowly, C. Bowly, and Macabe. The regular team, Messrs. Townsend, Rogers, McCutchen and Howell, represented the Park Club. In the first round the Parks secured the lead by a score of 4 to 2. The second round was even more in favor of the home team, the Park's winning by the score of 8 to 1. The visitors improved their playing in the last round and succeeded in besting the Parks by one point, 4 to 3 The total was 15 to 7.

The Jersey City players put up a good game but the trouble was that the Parks put up a better one. When these teams met several months ago, the match was won by the Park's by a score of 20 to 6.

DAVIS-TERRY MATCH A TIE

A SHOOT BETWEEN LOCAL CRACKS.

George Davis and William Terry Contest at Live Birds.

A great many sports of the shooting fraternity of this city went to Elizabeth yesterday to witness the pigeon match at Nate Astfalk's club grounds between George Davis and William Terry, both of Westfield. The conditions of the match were that each man was to shoot at thirty-five birds for $50 a side. Quite some money changed hands, but there was not enough Davis money to cover the money Terry's friends had to wager on him as he was the favorite in the betting ring. No extra score was made, as the birds were not a very fast lot, but Mr. Terry drew the hardest birds of the two. Following is the score as it was shot, Mr. Davis winning the toss and went to the trap first:

The figure (2) denote the birds killed by the second barrel. and the figure (1) the first barrel

Mr. Terry wanted to arrange another match for some future date, but Mr. Davis did not seem to want to try it over again, as he seemed to be only to glad it was a tie, and he would not even shoot off the tie at ten birds, as was proposed to him by Mr. Terry. As it was all bets were declared off and the stake money returned to the contestants. As a result each man was out the price of the birds.

A Policeman's Birthday Party.

Policemen are afflicted with birthdays as well as other men and, last evening, one of Plainfield's finest celebrated his at his home in a quiet manner. Yesterday, Patrolman James Saunder was thirty-five years old and he was given the night off to celebrate the event. Saunders is on the night squad and usually covers the beat in the vicinity of West Seventh street and Central avenue. Last night his place was filled by Special Officer Cash while Saunders remained at his home on Berckman street where a family gathering was held in honor of the event.

Miss Leonard is the only regularly ordained pastoress of a Congregational church in that part of the country. She is a speaker of great eloquence and piety.

COMMON COUNCIL MEETING OF MUCH IMPORTANCE

VINCENT L. FRAZEE ELECTED A COUNCILMAN AND ANDREW J. GAVETT APPOINTED STREET COMMISSIONER.

Both of These Important Acts Received the Unanimous Vote of the Council—Councilman Frost is Opposed to the Granting of a Franchise to the Plainfield Sanitary Company, and a Committee Was Appointed to Investigate More Thoroughly—The Delinquent Taxes to be Collected—Other Business.

Among the many important things transacted at the adjourned meeting of the City Council, held last evening, was the appointment of Andrew J. Gavett as street commissioner, the acceptance of the resignation of Councilman Randolph, the laying aside for a longer time the petition of the Plainfield Sanitary Company asking for the privilege of erecting a crematory, the election of Vincent L. Frazee to succeed Councilman Randolph, resigned, and the adoption of steps to enforce the Martin Act for the collection of back taxes. All of the above items combined to make an exceedingly interesting session.

In the first place, residents of Hillside and Watchung avenue asked that crosswalks be placed on the above mentioned streets, also on Putnam avenue, and the matter was referred to the proper committee. The Dime Savings Bank, together with the other holders of the city bonds, could take the long term bonds, and the petitions were filed.

The lawyers of the city presented a petition asking the council to locate the city hall somewhere in the centre of the town, and not at the corner of Park avenue and East Fifth street. In connection with a proposed site for this new municipal building, the property at the corner of West Front street and Central avenue, known as the Neal property, was offered to the city for $16,800, and the petition was referred to the special committee. Along the same line a communication was received from Charles Potter in which he stated that if the city was looking for a place for the new building they could do no better than to locate it at the corner of West Front street and Madison avenue. He thought that the site offered many advantages that other properties do not. This matter was referred to the special committee.

A petition was received from the United Order of Carpenters, of this city, in which they asked the City Council to give Plainfield workmen the preference in all city work. The matter was referred to the special committee.

The bond of City Treasurer William F. Arnold for $25,000 was received and filed after being examined by the finance committee. The bondsmen are H. G. Runkle, J. B. Coward, J. A. Hubbard and Walter Scott.

Washington G. Lawrence, of New York, in a communication, asked the Council for the privilege of furnishing plans for the new city hall, and Mr. Serrell stated that he had promised Mr. Lawrence that he would see that his request would reach the proper committee. This matter was placed in the hands of the special committee.

At this time the appointment of A. J. Gavett, as Street Commissioner, was presented to the Council, and after being referred to the Streets and Sewers committee, it was reported back and confirmed by the Council.

Mr. Baker stated that at the last meeting the members had failed to fix the salary of the janitor of the Council chamber, and he moved that it be made $200 per year, and it was so decided.

Mr. Frost at this time made a report on the petition of the Plainfield Sanitary Company asking for the privilege of erecting a crematory. He said that the matter had been pending since last summer, and during that time the members of the committee had examined the same, together with the members of the Board of Health. On the face of it he thought that the petition was very innocent in appearance, but he had been unable to find a parallel case in the country where the desired permission had been given. The proposal certainly looked very flattering, but he was not in favor of it. In his opinion the city should own its crematory and take care of it. Mr. Frost also stated that he had conversed with the Mayor on the subject, and the latter was of the same opinion and suggested that a committee be appointed to take up and discuss in detail the matter of garbage disposal. Mr. Frost stated further that the scheme as presented by the Plainfield Sanitory Company was not first-class and that he had evidence to prove it.

On this same subject Mr. Barrows stated that it was the intention of the committee to vote favorably on the petition at this meeting, but a communication had come from the Mayor, and in accordance with advice, it was thought best to lay the matter over for awhile. He agreed with Mr. Frost that the city should own this kind of an institution, and he thought that it was to be regreted that the city does not own the city water works. In his opinion he thought that the committee should have more time to consider this matter and the request was granted.

Mr. Serrell reported that the collector of taxes, together with assistants, had gone over the books and had made a complete list of all delinquent taxpayers from 1881 up to the present time, and had entered the same in a book especially prepared for that purpose. He stated that the committee proposed to take further steps a little later to prosecute this work. He then offered a resolution that inasmuch as J. R. Perrine desired to pay his taxes for 1881 the city clerk be authorized to receive $82.97 and give a receipt in full.

In response to an inquiry on the part of Mr. Barrows, Mr. Serrell stated that the delinquent book would be ready in about ten days and that the committee would be ready to make a full report at the regular March meeting.

Mr. Frost offered an ordinance which specifies the city limits regarding the laying of sidewalks. In offering the same he said that there were certain parts of the city where it was almost impossible to get through at times on account of the poor walks, and the ordinance was offered so that some definite plan of work could be prosecuted.

In speaking about the above Mr. Barrows said that Fourth street was one sea of mud in the western part, and that the people in that locality were obliged to wade through it almost every day; especially was this true on Sundays when there were about fifteen hundred men, women and children who were obliged to go through the mud to get to church and Sunday-school. He thought that it was an outrage as well as a menace to the public health.

The ordinance was adopted on its first and second readings, and was duly ordered engrossed and advertised.

Mr. Serrell offered a resolution that the city collector deposit each day in the bank the money received from the sewer assessments, and that as soon as possible he pay the sewer notes as they come due. Another resolution offered by Mr. Serrell provided for the adoption of the Martin Act which would assist the city in collecting back taxes. Further steps will be taken in this matter a little later. Mr. Serrell reported in the matter of changing the time of starting and ending the fiscal year, as suggested by the Mayor, and presented a resolution to that effect. This move brought out a great deal of discussion and Mr. Barrows was the first one to speak on the subject.

He thought the Council should take into consideration the many schemes on foot this year, which would necessarily crowd the people, so to speak. He said that he thought that the people were anxious to do all that they could, but everything could not be done in one year. On the other hand he thought there was a great deal of false cry about the tax rate, and if the people were getting proportionate benefits he could see no reason why they should object. He thought that the matter should be laid over for one year.

Mr. Serrell thought that inasmuch as it was the mind of the Mayor and committee that such a course should be adopted, the change should be made.

Mr. Barrows replied that the Mayor was the head and the Council was the executive body. The people do not look to the Mayor, but they do look to the Council.

Mr. Dumont made a long statement regarding the proposed change and he did not think that it was wise to make it this year. His reason for this was that the people had about all that they could attend to. He said that those who now do not know what the Martin Act is, will know, for the city will get the back taxes or the property itself. It would not be a case of lien on the property, but the taking of the property for taxes.

In accordance with a suggestion Mr. Serrell withdrew the ordinance, and the matter was left as it is.

At this point Mr. Barrows called up the resignation of Councilman Randolph, and on his motion it was accepted.

MARITAL WOES ENDED.

RECONCILIATION BETWEEN MR. AND MRS. HUGO B. KURZHALS.

While the Witnesses Waited to Give Their Testimony in the Divorce Proceedings the Couple Decided to Makeup.

While the twenty-five witnesses and several reporters waited in the office of Counsellor W. K. McClure to offer and to hear testimony in a divorce case, the estranged husband and wife, Hugo B. Kurzhals and Laura Kurzhals, met on the quiet and agreed to let bygones be bygones. The meeting of the couple was held at the office of Winfield S. Angleman, the lawyer for the husband. The divorce suit of Kurzhals against Kurzhals was begun some time ago by Mr. Kurzhals, as was stated at the time in The Press. Kurzhals is a barber in Westfield. He is the son of Theodore Kurzhals, of West Second street.

The first hearing was set down for this morning before Counsellor W. K. McClure in his office on East Front street and twenty-five witnesses were subpoened for the case. They all appeared at the appointed time and waited for the hearing to commence.

For several days it has been understood by those interested in the case that both parties were willing to effect a reconciliation. Yesterday, Mr. Kurzhals came to see his lawyer, Mr. Angleman, and was advised by that gentleman to "make up," if they could, before the hearing. The more the couple thought of it, the less they wished that they had become estranged.

Mrs. Kurzhals and her lawyer, Paul Q. Oliver, of Westfield, were invited to a conference at Angleman's office before the hearing. They came and it did not take long for the young couple to put aside the past and unite in a loving embrace. There were no traces of anger on the faces of either when they met. Smiles predominated and the eyes of the young wife glistened with tears of joy. After all was satisfactorily settled, Mrs. Kurzhals went to the station with her lawyer, while her husband followed in a few minutes, after a short talk with his counsel. Word was sent to the expectant crowd in McClure's office that the suit was off and they departed, greatly astonished by the sudden turn of affairs. The reunited couple met at the station and departed for Westfield together, where they startled the good people of that town by returning home as of old.

The dismissal papers were signed in Angleman's office and will be presented at the Court of Chancery by Mr. Angleman today.

WORD OF CHEER FROM EACH

JOLLY TIME OF THE ARCANUMITES

An Open Smoker Enjoyed in Their Rooms Last Night.

The Loyal Additional Benefit Association, Royal Arcanum, together with their friends, enjoyed an open smoker in their rooms on Park avenue, last evening, and affair proved to be an exceedingly pleasant occasion. E. W. Conklin, as chairman of the committee, presided, and in his usual happy manner introduced the speakers of the evening, which included pretty nearly everybody present. Eash person was expected to have something to say and they did. Some told amusing stories while others related incidents on the sober side of life. After all had spoken their little piece delightful refreshments were served by Stephenson, the caterer, in his excellent style. During the evening the speaking was interspersed with banjo selections by Henry Piker. The committee having in charge the smoker comprised E. W. Conklin, H. E. Lavell and A. W. Rand.

Of course there were plenty of cigars on hand and everybody was kept busy in this respect. Among the guests present was Mr. Croser, of Orange, who furnished the members with some of his best stories.

Peary Audience Will be Large.

Plainfield people never have had the opportunity before to hear an explorer and investigator of the rank of Lieutenant Peary. This will account in a great measure for the fact that the coming of the great discourser to Plainfield is looked upon as being an event so much out of the ordinary. The demand for seats has already been large, so much so that it begins to look as though the size of the audience will only be limited by the capacity of the hall.

A Soldier's Story

The next entertainment of the Y. M. C. A. Star Course, which is to be "A Soldier's Story," as recited and sung by Alfred E. Pearsall, is a powerful war monologue, by Major Calhoun, and will be given at the Young Men's Christian Association Hall, the evening of Washington's Birthday. Don't fail to hear a good thing.

SET HIS DOGS ON THEM

A COUNTER CHARGE NOW MADE AGAINST GEORGE BECKER.

Hobbie Boys Claim They Did Not Assault the Polander But That He Was the Aggressor When They Asked For Their Gun.

Every story has two sides and it is but fair that the Hobbie boys should be heard in regard to the trouble on Woodland avenue, Saturday evening. According to the story told by George Becker, the native of Poland who figured so prominently in the case, as told in yesterday's Press, Becker was very badly treated, but the other people in the case say that Becker was to blame for the entire affair and that instead of Becker being assaulted by Simon and young Hobbie, he assaulted them. To add further to the general confusion, a warrant has been secured for the arrest of Becker on the charge of assault and he will have a hearing this afternoon.

According to the statements of the Hobbies, Becker is by no means an inoffensive character. He is said to have four vicious dogs that take delight in fastening their teeth in the calves of small boys legs. Becker says that the dogs are mere pups and would not hurt anybody. The other side says that young Hobbie has been bitten by these dogs several times.

The lad did shoot off his rifle, but he declares that it was pointed in an entirely different direction than at the horse, and that the bullet did not pass through the mane of the horse as Becker claimed.

In the afternoon,a party of Hobbie's young friends went to the Becker home and asked for the rifle. Becker claims they threw snow in the kitchen and kicked his dogs, but the boys say that they merely asked for the gun and that Becker set the dogs on them. It is evident that the dogs did chase them, for Edward Suffren, who was one of the party, did not see their approach until too late to escape and he was badly bitten on the leg. The wound was so serious that it was necessary to cauterize it.

The other boys escaped by climbing trees and fences when the dogs approached. Becker claims that he told the boys that the gun was in the hands of Chief Grant, but his English is rather unintelligible at any time, particularly when he is excited, and so it would not be not strange if they did not understand him.

George Simon and Will Hobbie claim that they went to Becker's house, Saturday evening, and asked for the rifle and that while they were there Becker rushed forth and assaulted them. They deny all the story of Becker's assault and say that they carried no weapon of any kind. They also deny that they had a rope with them. They think that Becker's wounds were self-inflicted.

Becker is a heavy powerful man while young Hobbie is a lad of sixteen and very slightly built. Simon is a well built man but does not look as heavy as Becker. Simon and Hobbie claim that Becker rushed at them and in the struggle that followed bit Hobbie in the hand.

Hobbie and Simon appeared before Justice Nash, yesterday afternoon, and swore out a warrant for Becker on the charge of assault and battery and mayhem. Becker will appear before the justice this afternoon for a hearing.

Hobbie appeared before Justice Newcorn last evening and was remanded in the custody of his father to appear this evening at 5 o'clock for an examination. George Simon also appeared and he pleaded not guilty. He was placed under $100 bail to appear tonight for a hearing. His father furnished bail

THE CHRISTIAN MARTYR.

Lesson Taught at the Primary Teachers' Union Yesterday.

The regular meeting of the Primary Teachers' Union held yesterday afternoon was largely attended, and in the absence of the president, Miss Beeching, the first vice-president, Miss Rocap, took charge. The devotional exercises were conducted by Mrs. Bailey, and the lesson, "The Christian Martyr," was taught by Mrs. Baker of Westfield. The topic for discussion was "Discouragements," and it was considered that they were growing less all the time.

After the regular meeting a letter was read from President Murray, of the Y. M. C. A., in which he thanked the Union for their gift of $5, and said that he was glad that the association was able to let such an enthusiastic and devoted organization have the rooms for their meetings.

—Tickets on sale for "Caste" at the box office Thursday morning at 9 o'clock.

—A Martha Washington tea will be held at Grace M. E. church on Thursday and Friday evenings of this week.

SAYHEWASINSULTED

Friends of Senator Sherman Denounce Mr. Morgan's Remarks.

MUCH COMMENT OVER THE DISPUTE

The Unfortunate Incident Brought About During the Discussion of the Resolution To Abrogate the Clayton-Bulwer Treaty.

Washington, Feb. 16.—There is no telling what may occur in the senate this afternoon, beyond the fact that the bankruptcy bill, which is the unfinished business, will be discussed. Senators are still commenting upon the dispute indulged in yesterday afternoon by Messrs. Morgan and Sherman, in which, according to warm friends of the member from Ohio, he was insulted by Mr. Morgan. The regular business of the senate was broken in upon by the vice-president laying before the body the joint resolution introduced last week by Mr. Morgan to declare the Clayton-Bulwer treaty abrogated. When Mr. Sherman called attention to the fact that a joint resolution was not properly a subject for consideration at the time, the vice-president promptly sustained the point of order, intimating at the same time that he would recognize Mr. Morgan to move that the joint resolution be taken up. Instead of making that motion, however, Mr. Morgan appealed from the decision of the vice-president, and was about to make his speech in support of the joint resolution, when he was again brought up suddenly by another point of order on the part of Mr. Sherman that the appeal was not debatable. Mr. Morgan insisted that it was, and made the cutting remark that the senator from Ohio had been so long in the senate that he had forgotten its rules. Again the vice-president sustained Mr. Sherman's point, causing Mr. Morgan to intimate that he was being "victimized" by the chair and by the senator from Ohio. The allegation was promptly, and not without a show of annoyance, repelled by the vice-president. Senators Quay, Faulkner and Chandler made suggestions intended to clear obstructions out of Mr. Morgan's path, and finally the latter made the formal motion that the joint resolutions be taken up for consideration, and the motion was carried by a majority of one. But just as Mr. Morgan was about to enjoy his triumph, and deliver his speech for the abrogation of the treat, he was once more blocked by the objection (made by Mr. Hoar) that the subject was one for consideration in executive session. Mr. Morgan suggested that what Mr. Hoar meant was, not an executive session, but a secret legislative session. Taking the same view of it, the vice-president ordered the galleries to be cleared and the doors locked. When the doors were re-opened the bankruptcy bill was taken up as the unfinished business. No progress was made with it beyond having the senate substitute read in full. After that the conference report on the legislative bill was presented and agreed to, and twenty-four private pension bills, with a lot of miscellaneous bills, were passed.

House of Representatives.

The most important measure passed by the house yesterday was the sundry civil appropriation bill, carrying a total of about $50,000,000 and comprising 111 pages. The short time allowed for debate, one hour, was sharply criticised, as were also the appropriations of about $16,000,000 for river and harbor improvements under the contract system. Some reflections upon the appropriations committee and its chairman, Mr. Cannon, on account of an item in the bill appropriating $200,000 for establishing a new soldiers' home at Danville, Ill., Mr. Cannon's home, were warmly replied to by that gentleman, who stated that he had urged its location there only after the unanimous recommendation of the soldiers' home officials, the house committee on naval affairs and the committee on appropriations. Private pension bills were considered at last night's session.

M'KINLEY IS BETTER

The President-elect Able To Sit Up To-day.

NEEDS A FEW DAYS OF PERFECT REST

He Is Suffering with a Severe Cold and Will Not Be Able To Receive Callers Probably Before the First of Next Week.

Canton, O., Feb. 16.—Major McKinley is much better to-day and is able to sit up. His ailment in a mild attack of influenza. Dr. Phillips, the attending physician, says Mr. McKinley will be unable to receive any one for several days and must be permitted to reserve all his strength for the inaugural ceremonies. He furnished the United Associated Presses with the following. "Major McKinley is not seriously ill, but is suffering with a mild attack of influenza. His pulse and temperature are now normal. He must not receive callers during the present week and cannot make the anticipated trip to Cleveland until Thursday or Friday. He should be allowed to rest from now until the time of his departure to Washington." The callers who were unable to see Mr. McKinley yesterday afternoon, with few exceptions, were only prominent in local politics. Of course cabinet talk is brought to an abrupt termination by Mr. McKinley's slight illness. A great deal of influence is being brought to bear upon Major McKinley to select Gen. Stewart L. Woodford for one of the vacant cabinet positions. Ex-mayor Charles A. Schieren of Brooklyn was in the city last evening to speak a few words for his friend, Gen. Woodford, but of course was unable to see the president-elect. Col. W. W. Dudley of Washington, a member of the inaugural committee, wished to talk over the preparations for the ceremony. He is desirous of learning if the president-elect wishes a reception to be tendered him upon his arrival in Washington by the military order of the United Veterans' legion, of which he is a member. He will remain in the city until the major is able to receive him. Other callers included Rev. J. H. Murdock of Pittsburg, Col. V. V. Van Pallen of Port Jervis, N. Y., and John Conkling of Harrisburg, Pa. Hon. Wilbur F. Wakeman, of New York, secretary of the National Protective Tariff league, is here awaiting an opportunity to confer with Major McKinley. Hon. Wm. V. Warner of New York is also desirous of seeing the president-elect.

Unknown Ocean Wreck Discovered.

Highland Light, Mass., Feb. 16.—Capt. Charles of the Orleans life-saving station reports that he saw last evening east of his station some floating wreckage. Rowing out to it, he discovered what appeared to be the mainmast of a vessel of about 100 tons floating keel up and held to the bottom by rigging attached to the sunken craft. The wreck lies in fifteen fathoms of water, directly in the path of coastwise ships, and apparently had not been long in that position. Capt. Charles thinks that the disaster occurred previous to the storm of last Friday. The wreck is a dangerous obstruction to navigation.

ALEXANDER DUMAS.

His Practical Jokes Were Often Turned Upon Himself.

Alexandre Dumas, whose life and death have been largely commented upon by the European press, was, it appears, not all an urbane man. Still he had his moments of laxity, and on such occasions he could be jocular, though only in a very ponderous way. Practical jokes tickled his fancy the most, though why it is difficult to say, for he himself invariably tumbled into the trap he had prepared for others. One of his few friends was Meissonier, the famous painter, whose love of botany and horticulture was proverbial. To him, it is related, came Dumas one day with the dried row of a herring, or, as he termed it, a seedpod of that extremely rare exotic the Graniflora aurora borealis digitalis, of which he begged Meissonier's acceptance. The painter was profuse in his thanks, said he had heard of the Aurora Borealis before, and promised to plant the seeds and to tend the young exotics, when they came up, with all the care and skill in his power. Dumas delightedly ran off to his "den" to chuckle in solitary state; but, alas, Meissonier was too much for him, after all, for this joke ended in precisely the same way as all his others! The seeds indeed were planted, and the Aurora Borealis came up; but, when Dumas called a week later to see how matters were getting on, the artist took him to a corner of his garden, and here, beautifully bedded out in a circle, were two dozen red herring with their heads just peeping from the ground.

The Tables Were Turned.

The late professor Blackie used to relate with great gusto the following story. As every one knows, the genial old professor used to be a picturesque and striking figure in the streets of Edinburgh. A wiry-framed old patriarch, with strikingly-handsome features and long hair that fell in ringlets about his shoulders, no one, once having seen him, could forget him. Passing one day along one of the principal Edinburgh streets, he was accosted by a very dirty little boy with, "Shine your boots, sir?" The urchin was very importunate; and the professor, being impressed by the extreme filthiness of the boy's face, remarked, "I don't want a shine, my lad; but, if you'll go and wash your face, I'll give you a sixpence." "A'riche, sir!" was the lad's reply; and, going to an adjacent drinking-fountain, he made his ablution. "Well, my lad,' said the professor, when he returned, "you earned your money; here it is." "I dinna want it, auld chap," returned the urchin, with a lordly air; "ye can keep it and git yer hair cut!"

A Distinguished Guest.

An English actor was a member of a company snowbound in the Sierras while en route from California to the East. Before their train pulled out of the drifts they had been reduced to eating the coarse fare of the railroad laborers, and got little enough even of that, so that they were all ravenously hungry when the train reached a small station, at which there was a humble restaurant. The Englishman was the first to find a seat at a table. "Bring me as quickly as possible," he said to the landlord, a burly Western man, "a porterhouse steak, some devilled kidneys, a brace of chops, plenty of vegetables, and two bottles of Bass beer." The landlord stuck his head out of the dining-room door and yelled to somebody in the rear apartment, "Say, Bill, tell the band to play 'Rule Britannia!' The Prince of Wales has come."

Church Choirs.

A curiosity in churches is a Philadelphia suburban church (colored), which has a white Episcopal priest in charge. It has eight benches, seating three persons each, and every requisite to the service. A melodeon about three feet high furnishes the music. No bell hangs in the steeple, but a negro boy about 12 years old beats a triangle in front of the church just before service. He is also sexton and receives $1 per month as salary. The church was formerly an election booth; is built of sheet iron, painted gray, with only one window. It is called "Chapel of Saint Faith." It has a small but enthusiastic membership.—Philadelphia Press.

On the Bureau.

"Things are given to me pretty straight," said the curling irons.

"Perhaps so," said the make-up, "but there are mighty few wrinkles that I'm not on to, anyway."

A FETCHING FLY.

Red Hair Had a Greater Charm Than Beauty in This Instance.

One day Christopher North had wandered many miles in quest of a basket of fish. On arriving at the stream he perceived that the trout were "on the take," and were rising freely to the fly, a specimen of which he immediately captured with the view of making up a cast to that particular pattern. Examining his fishing-book for the flies needed, he found to his annoyance that it contained nothing like the pattern—a peculiar species of red spider—and so it seemed as if he were to be done out of his sport for once at least. Not a bit of it! Spying a hamlet near at hand, he went up to the first native he met, and asked—so the story goes—if there was anybody at hand who had a "carroty pow." The astonished countryman looked confused for a moment at such an extraordinary question, but at length replied that a certain Mysie—the minister's lass—had the "best trap o' reid hair in the hail parish!" Straight to the manse marched the resolute angler, who at once interviewed Mysie, though on what particular subject the story telleth not; but he presently cajoled that ruddy damsel to part with a lock of her coveted hair, whose blushing beauty he no doubt praised as only a poet could, but for which he most likely paid with a handsome "douceur." Busking his hooks straightway with a portion of the fiery tress, he proceeded to angle with the same, a brimming creel being the result in a few hours thereafter!

RACING COCKROACHES.

An Amusement of Turkish Prisoners During Their Tedious Confinement.

Racing cockroaches is the latest device of the prisoners who are languishing in Turkish prisons.

The prisons are overrun with cockroaches. The more intelligent of the prisoners make friends with these insects.

Infinite patience is required to train a cockroach.

By enticing a number of cockroaches into his cell every day, one of the prisoners discovered that they could easily be taught, if they were propitiated with molasses. After a few weeks' work he astonished his friends in the prison by bringing out for their edification a corps of trained cockroaches.

The cockroach fever at once spread through the prison. Every man who could beg or borrow molasses began a company of cockroaches.

Two of the most highly trained cockroaches were pitted against each other, and the prisoners ranged themselves on either side of the corridor to watch the race.

The owner of each insect prodded him with a piece of straw. As the cockroaches raced along the floor the excitement among the prisoners and jailers rose to fever heat. The insects had been so well trained that they deviated neither to the right nor left, but kept straight ahead.

The one that was beaten lost the race because he stopped to scratch his leg.

Merit

Made and Merit Maintains the confidence of the people in Hood's Sarsaparilla. If a medicine cures you when you are sick; if it cures your neighbors and your friends when they are ailing; if it makes wonderful cures of many diseases everywhere, then beyond any question that medicine possesses merit. That is just the truth about Hood's Sarsaparilla. Prepared by a combination, proportion and process unknown to other medicines, it has curative powers peculiar to itself. We know it possesses great merit because it has Cures, not once or twice or a hundred times, but in thousands and thousands of cases. We know it cures, absolutely, permanently cures, when all others fail to do any good whatever.

Hood's Sarsaparilla is known to possess merit or the power to cure disease; it is known to be the best building-up medicine on earth; it is known to be honestly advertised, and for these reasons the people buy and take Hood's Sarsaparilla almost to the exclusion of other preparations. In fact, Merit Made and Merit Maintains the confidence of the people in

To Kill Thistles

It is not necessary to kill all the seeds of the thistles in order to exterminate these undesirable weeds. You can so cultivate the ground that they will not thrive; and at last will disappear altogether. It might be better to kill the seeds, but we cannot do it. It would be the wisest course to destroy all the germs, or seeds, of consumption, could we do so. But this cannot be done. So we must keep the tissues of the lungs, the soil, in such a condition that the germs will not thrive the Delicate Dress Goods.

Some gowns are so dainty in the weave, so delicate in tint, that they seem to soil by being looked at—one or two wearings making them unpresentable, NOT USELESS. We make a specialty of cleaning fine fabrics, the more delicate the material, the better the results. Sometimes an accident will ruin a gown, without injuring the texture. We dye them then, sometimes we get a prettier effect than the original color. Fine goods stand redyeing. The finer the material the better the new color. We charge so little for cleaning or dyeing, that even if you are in doubt as to the result, it's worth while to experiment. Want a new evening gown for a dollar or two? Laundry drivers will receive your work.

Something to Know.

It may be worth something to know that the very best medicine for restoring the tired out nervous system to a healthy vigor is Electric Bitters. This medicine is purely vegetable, acts by giving tone to the nerve centres in the stomach, gently stimulates the Liver and Kidneys, and aids these organs in throwing off impurities in the blood. Electric Bitters improves the appetite, aids digestion, and is pronounced by those who have tried it as the very best blood purifier and nerve tonic. Try it. Sold for 50c or $1.00 per bottle at L. W. One day he picked up a newspaper and chanced to read an advertisement of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhœa Remedy. He got a bottle of it, the first dose helped him and its continued use cured him. For sale by T. S. Armstrong, Apothecary, corner Park and North avenues.

NOT A SUDDEN UPRISING.

Greece Merely Taking Advantage of the Opportunity To Claim Her Own.

New York, Feb. 16.—The Greek population of this city is intensely interested and excited to-day over the news of the firing on the Turkish flag and the evident intention of King George to defy the powers and place the island of Crete under the protection of Greece. John J. Viasto, editor of the "Atalantis," the only Greek newspaper published in the United States, said to a reporter to-day: "It is not a sudden uprising. King George, impelled by popular sentiment and forced forward to save his throne, has made the coup, because to remain passive would mean his own undoing at the hands of the people. That is the pessimistic view. The other and more reasonable hypothesis is that the king has received a friendly intimation from one of the powers to go ahead; that this was the opportunity to take what really belonged to Greece, and which, because of its race, language and religion demands her protection. Depending upon this and backed by the splendid patriotism of a brave people, the first gun has been fired. In my opinion, the Cretan massacre of May last was the final limit to all further patience with the barbaric oppression of Turkey." Mr. Vlasto predicted a war with Turkey and said that every Greek throughout the world was ready to help. With regard to the possibilities of retaliation on the Greeks in Turkey. Mr. Vlasto said such retaliation would be a disastrous blunder on the part of the Turks. He declared that there were 200,000 Greeks in Constantinople, and every one of them was armed and ready.

DEATH OF W. P. ST. JOHN.

Brief Sketch of the Career of the Late Banker and Silver Advocate.

New York, Feb. 16.—William P. St. John, the former president of the Mercantile National bank and one of the principal champions in the east of the cause of free silver, who died Sunday night at his residence in this city, of a complication of kidney and stomach troubles, was born in Mobile, Ala., in 1847. He received his early education in the schools of his native city and afterwards studied in England, Germany and Massachusetts. He held positions with a number of commercial firms of this city. In 1881 he became cashier of the Mercantile National bank and three years later became the president. Up to last year he was a director in the Second National and Hamilton banks of this city. Because of his prominence as a free silver advocate he was forced to resign the presidency of the Mercantile bank in July last. He then went to Chicago and took active part in the convention which nominated William Jennings Bryan. During the campaign Mr. St. John was stationed in this city, where he devoted himself to raising money for the democratic committee. After the defeat of Bryan, Mr. St. John went into the produce business, having bought a seat in the Produce exchange.

STILL HEARING ARGUMENTS.

House Committee Considering the International Monetary Conference Bill.

Washington, Feb. 16.—The house committee on coinage, weights and measures is again hearing arguments to-day on the senate bill looking to an international monetary conference. Mr. Fowler, a member of the committee, in opposition to the bill, replied to an argument by Mr. Newlands upon the effect of the demonetization of silver on the railroad business of the United States, and said that railroad failures had not been confined to this country alone, but that the entire world had been swept since 1884 by a wave of speculation, and when the inevitable collapse came on these roads were left without business. In reply to a question by Mr. Newlands, he said that we could double our present stock of gold—$700,000,000—without the world knowing it.

For Our Representatives Abroad.

Washington, Feb. 16.—Secretary Olney has sent to the house the following estimate of the cost of erecting official residences of our ambassadors and ministers abroad: Austria, $146,000; Belgium, $25,000 to $50,000; China, $35,000; France, $300,000; Germany, $225,000 to $800,000; Great Britain, $68,000 to $500,000; Greece, $30,000 to $40,000; Netherlands, $10,000 to $32,000; Portugal, $20,000; Russis, 200,000 to 400,000 roubles; Spain, $80,000; Sweden and Norway, $35,000 to $40,000; Switzerland, $30,000 to $40,000; Turkey, $100,000. While not expecting that congress will make all these appropriations at once, the secretary hopes a beginning will be made.

The Taleville Mine Disaster.

Gouverneur, N. Y., Feb. 16.—The coroner's jury in case of the six miners who were killed in the cave-in of a section of a shaft in Freeman's mine on Saturday last, returned a verdict exonerating the company from all blame. All of the testimony was favorable to the company and none of the experts examined was able to assign any reason for the collapse. State Mine Examiner Kine of Syracuse, has arrived at Taleville and will make a thorough examination of the mine.

Death of John Berry.

Mount Vernon, N. Y., Feb. 16.—John Berry, the philanthropist and merchant, died yesterday at his home, No. 150 South Eighth avenue, this city. He had been ill for some time. He had held various political positions. He leaves an estate valued at $500,000.

Labor Law Amendment Defeated.

Boston, Feb. 16.—In the house the bill to repeal the act permitting women and children to work overtime in manufactories to make up for the time lost by the stoppage of machinery has been defeated—91 to 101.

THE CRETAN TROUBLE

Details of the Occupation by the Powers of Canea.

WELCOMED BY THE MOHAMMEDANS

Whereabouts of the Greek Forces Now on the Island Not Known—Three Mohammedan Villages Burned—Significant Statement in Paris.

London, Feb. 61.—A dispatch from Canea gives details of the landing from the foreign warships of the force which occupied Canea. The debarkation of of the men took place in the afternoon under the direction of the Italian admiral, who is senior commander. The weather was brilliant and the men in their different uniforms made a picturesque scene. The quays were crowded with curious spectators, but not the least demonstration of hostility was made. The Mohammedan population are evidently pleased with the action of the powers in occupying the city. A small fanatical minority alone exhibited any signs of discontent. Mushavir Ismail Bey, to whom was delegated by Berovitch Pasha, the Christian governor of Crete, the powers of government, has addressed a note to the commanders of the foreign fleets gladly accepting the occupation of Canea and expressing hope that Heraklion, Retimo, Kisamo, Selino and other cities and towns in the island will also be occupied by the powers. Other prominent residents begged that the occupation be extended over the entire island. No information, the dispatch says, can be obtained regarding the movements of the Greek force under Col. Vassos, which effected a landing at Platanias. Fighting is reported to have taken place in the vicinity of Heraklion during the afternoon and three Mohammedan villages were burned.

The Powers Occupy Canea.

Canea, Feb. 16.—One hundred men each from the Russian, French, British and Italian fleets at Canea and fifty Austrians have been landed, under command of an Italian officer, and have occupied the city, the Turkish officials having given their assent to the step. The flags of the nations represented by the occupying forces have been hoisted upon the ramparts of the fortress.

Rejoicing in Athens.

Athens, Feb. 16.—When the announcement was made here that the "corps of occupation," under command of Col. Vassos, chief aide-de-camp to King George, had landed in Crete demonstrations of wildest joy were indulged in by the populace. A dispatch from Canea states that Col. Vassos has issued a proclamation to the Cretans, and has demanded that the Turks surrender.

Greece Purchases Arms.

London, Feb. 16.—The Daily Chronicle publishes a dispatch from Brussels saying it is reported there that the Greek government have purchased 100,000 rifles at Liege.

Significant Statement in French Chamber.

Paris, Feb. 16.—In the chamber of deputies yesterday M. Hanotaux, minister of foreign affairs, replying to an inquiry by Jaures regarding the situation in Crete, said that the status of that island was such as to render a public explanation impossible. M. Jaures expressed his dissatisfaction with the reply of the foreign minister to his request for information and demanded that the Cretan affair be discussed at once by the chamber. Thereupon M. Moline, the premier, declared that such action was impossible, as the discusion demanded would necessitate the divulging of secrets which were not France's alone, and demanded that consideration of the matter be postponed, and this course was adopted by a vote of 482 to 70.

Crisis Considered To Be Over.

London, Feb. 16.—The Standard today prints a dispatch from its Athens correspondent saying that the powers have decided to supervise the execution of a new charter for Crete, the chief feature of which is the autonomy of the island under the joint rule of the powers. The Standard's correspondent further says that he has been assured by a Greek official of high position that Emperor William of Germany used his influence very largely to effect this solution of the matter, which is hailed with delight, and the crisis is considered to be over.

Stock Markets Panicky.

London, Feb. 16.—The Stock exchange is in a state of panic on account of the Greco-Turkey trouble. Turkish securities have fallen 1½ to 2, Italians, ⅜, and Ottoman bank shares ⅜. Advices from Paris, Berlin and Vienna show that a semi-panic prevails on the bourses in these cities.

Why Queen Lil Left the Shoreham.

Washington, Feb. 16.—The removal of ex-Queen Liliuokalani of Hawaii and her suite from the Shoreham hotel to the Cairo, one of the handsome apartment houses in the northwestern portion of the city, was caused by the fact that all the available rooms at the Shoreham have been engaged in advance from the 26th inst., on account of the coming inauguration of Major McKinley as president, and it was therefore necessary that new quarters be secured. There have been rumors of threats of the assassination of the ex-queen, but the removal has no connection with these stories.

Senator Wolcott in Berlin.

Boston, Feb. 16.—United States Senator Wolcott of Colorado, who is making a tour of the continent in the interest of bimetallism, reached here yesterday afternoon.

TO RESCUE CRIMINALS.

Senator Voorhees has introduced a measure in the Legislature embodying the ideas of Mrs. Ballington Booth with respect to the care of convicts after they shall have served their sentences or shall have professed religion. The bill provides for the appointment of probation officers and an advisory board of parole, to consist of five members, including the keeper of the New Jersey State Prison and two moral instructors. This board will recommend to the Board of Pardons those prisoners most entitled by their conduct to be released upon parole. When released, Mrs. Booth's idea is for the American Volunteers to establish a home and provide places for the paroled convicts.

LONG RECTORSHIPS.

The Episcopalians of this place seem prone to retaining rectors for long terms of service. Only last year Rev. E. M. Rodman passed his twenty-fifth year as rector of the Grace church and now Rev. T. Logan Murphy celebrates his twentieth anniversary as the mentor of the Church of the Holy Cross. Both pastors are men of high intelligence and are among the first in the ministerial ranks of Plainfield, a place especially prolific with bright pulpit minds.

THEATRICAL.

The dangerous question of capital and labor has never been properly placed before the public in dramatic form. The Cotton King's beautiful story although dealing with the mill hands of Manchester and the capital of the owners still does not tread upon the dangerous ground. It is equally pleasing to both the owner and the hands. Many thousands of dollars have been expended upon the scenery and it is placed before the public in the most effective manner, which is characteristic of Manager Brady. He never does anything by halves. The cast especially selected by him is probably the best one ever sent out from his New York office. It will be presented here this evening at Music Hall.

Inflammatory Rheumatism Cured in 3 Days

Morton L. Hill, of Lebanon, Ind., says: "My wife had Inflammatory Rheumatism in every muscle and joint, her suffering was terribe and her body and face were swollen almost beyond recognition; had been in bed for six weeks and had eight physicians but received no benefit until she tried the Mystic Cure for Rheumatism. It gave immediate relief and she was able to walk about in three days. I am sure it saved her life." Sold by T. S. Armstrong, druggist, cor. Park and North avenue, Plainfield.

Notes of the Street Railway.

John Adelman, of the street railway company has caused to be laid a substantial cinder cross-walk over Seventh street and Monroe avenue, where none heretofore existed. Now passengers can board and leave the cars without walking through mud ankle deep.

Some miscreant placed an obstruction on the track near the Monroe Avenue school house, Wednesday night, and car No. 1 jumped the track on its last trip. The superintendent was sent for and after an hours hard work the car was re-tracked. Placing obstructions on the tracks is a most serious offence, and the culprit, if caught, is liable to a term of from ten to fifteen years in State Prison.

with as little expense as possible the large building on the city farm, situated on Rock avenue, near Front street, and use it as a poorhouse, where such of the present and future beneficiaries of the poor fund may be cared for by the city under the personal surveillance of the Overseer of the Poor. It is ascertained that several now on the list will not go to the poorhouse, preferring to be dropped; others cannot possibly be admitted but will be left where they are, so that the problem of caring for our city poor will soon be in a fair way of solution. With a comparatively small investment nearly all food supplies can be raised on the city farm; all the work of the house and garden would be done by the inmates, and there is no doubt that within one year the machinery of maintenance can be so perfected as to provide the most comfortable and healthful accommodations for these unfortunate people, but the city would be a gainer in the reduced cost of maintenance as compared with the present cumbersome and unhealthful plan. G.H.F.

PASSING COMMENT.

It is understood that W. E MacClymont, of Washington avenue, is a candidate for the office of councilman in the borough, and it is also said that he has been sought after by the Republican party.

Some fun-loving small boy nearly broke up the drill of the North Plainfield High School cadets the other evening when they were practicing in Saengerbund Hall. The youth placed some red pepper on the stove and the result may be imagined. Captain Edwards had hard work to give his commands while the cadets were crying and sneezing by turns. The cadets are now looking for the lad who had the pepper.

The Yankee is famous for always having his excuse ready under all circumstances, and his sons and daughters are able to hold their own in that direction. Some of the excuses are quite remarkable. A little girl in one of the local Sunday-schools had a new excuse the other day to present.

"Well, my dear, do you know your text today?" asked her teacher.

"No," responded the child, "I had a sore ankle all the week and couldn't learn it."

A colored man called at The Press office a day or two ago with a strange story to tell about his treatment at one of the colored churches in this city. According to his story he went to church and when the minister asked all to kneel while he prayed, this colored man only bowed his head. It was evident that one of the deacons of the church did not think the attitude reverent enough and so he went up to the visitor and requested him to kneel. The visitor did not wish to and informed the deacon of that fact. The deacon then told him that unless he knelt he would have to leave the building at once. Highly indignant at his treatment the visitor left.

There is one particularly unpleasant feature of a thaw in this city. When the snow melts the water runs over the sidewalk and then freezes toward evening, to the danger of life and limb of the pedestrian. There is a general exodus for the middle of the street, while falls are frequent and decidedly unpleasant. The reason for this flooding of the sidewalks is easily explained and the flood might be prevented with a little care. The sidewalks are of the same level or a trifle lower than the ground on either side and the melting water from the side toward the house naturally drains out on the sidewalk. By laying the stones of the sidewalk higher than the lawns at the side, or else digging a shallow ditch on either side, the customary flood and consequent icy sidewalks are prevented.

Fernandina, Fla., Feb. 28, 1896.
Mr. J. George Suhrer, Druggist, City.

Dear George:—Please send a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. I would not feel easy if I knew there was none of this valuable Remedy in the house. I have given it a fair test and consider it one of the very best remedies for croup that I have ever foumd. One dose has always been sufficient, although I use it freely. Any cold my children contract yields very readily to this medicine. I can conscientiously recommend it for croup and colds in children. Yours respectfully, Geo. E. Wolff. Sold by T. S. ALL THE DETECTING HE WANTED.

An Amateur Pinkerton Has His Ambition Satisfied in One Night.

After the discussion of an important arrest, stories that the subject suggested naturally followed, and this one was told by a leading business man, who would not dare to have his name accompany it:

"Like the great majority of boys, I was infatuated with detective yarns, and by reading them became possessed of the idea that I had the special qualifications of a great thief taker. The practical men in this line of business did not encourage my desire to enter their ranks, but persistency is one of my characteristics, and I was given a chance as a volunteer without pay.

"Just at the time I began operations there were a number of footpads operating in the city, and I secretly determined to win my spurs at once by rounding up these knights of the pavement. I conceived the brilliant idea of making myself up as a decoy, putting on a fine suit of clothes, plug hat, plated chain, and paste studs. Then I betook myself to the more retired portions of the city, and wandered about in search of game.

"As a decoy I was a howling success. I had just passed a dark alley when I was swiped to the earth with a sandbag, a revolver muzzle was inserted into my right ear, and I had a very misty comprehension of what was going on while being stripped of my cheap ornaments, arms and pocketbook.

"I recovered from the effects of the assault in about ten minutes, but was very shaky on my pins. This must have created the impression that I was a swell on a toot, for I was held up three times in as many blocks, and soundly thrashed each time for not having something to reward the ruffians for their trouble.

"You can be sure that the case was never reported, and all I ever said to the department was that they would have to get along without me because I had stumbled upon a much better thing. I still think I had a great scheme if the footpads had only stood in with it.—Detroit Free Press.

Orders Had to be Obeyed.

Hugh McD., a son of the Emerald Isle, who had volunteered for the United States Sixth Regiment of South Carolina Infantry, was stationed on the beach of Sullivan's Island, with strict orders to walk between two points and to let no one pass without the countersign and that to be communicated only in a whisper. Two hours afterwards the corporal, with the relief, discovered by the moonlight Hugh up to his waist in water, the tide having turned since he was posted. "Who goes there?" "Relief." "Halt, relief! Advance, corporal, and give the countersign!" "I am not going in there to be drowned. Come out here and let me relieve you." "Divil a bit of it; the leftenant told me not to lave me post!" "Well, then, I'll leave you in the water all night"—going away as he spoke. "Halt! I'll put a hole in ye if ye pass without the countersign! Them's me orders from the leftenant"—cocking and levelling his gun. "Confound you—everybody will hear it if I brawl it out in a whisper!" "Yes, me darlin'; and the leftenant said it must be given in a whisper. In with ye; me finger's on the trigger, and me gun may go off." The corporal had to yield to the force of argument and wade in to the faithful sentinel, who exclaimed, "Be-jabers, it's well ye've come! The tide has a-most drowned me!"

Spanish Pride.

Pride is the birthright of almost every Spaniard, and the fact that one of the race may take up the occupation of a beggar does not shut him out from the possession of it. A traveller relates that, in alighting at an hotel in Granada, he saw a man at the door put out his hand toward him.

The traveller supposed that the man was the porter of the hotel, and offered him his valise. The man stepped back, tossed his head, and frowned scornfully.

"Caramba!" he exclaimed. "Do you take me for a porter? I would have you to understand that I am no porter."

"Then may I ask you, senor, what you are?"

"I am a beggar, sir, and asked you for alms!"

Certain of Success.

Sunday-school Teacher—"I told you last Sunday that I wished each of you would try to make at least one person happy during the week. Did you?"

Boy: "Yes'm, I made grandma happy."

"That is noble. How did you do it?"

"I went to visit her, and she's always happy when I go away."

Generously Considerate.

Magistrate—"Prisoner at the bar, you are charged with shooting the plaintiff through each ear, one foot, an elbow and along the top of his head. What have you to say?"

The Prisoner—"Well, I didn't have no killin' grudge agin him, so I jest shot him in the thin places round the edges, so's not to hurt him too much."

She Knew.

"Mamma," said little Mary, "what does amen mean?"

"It means that you join in with what has been said, dearie—that you approve of and believe it."

"Oh, yes, I know," said the little girl. "It's the opposite to nit!"—Harper's Bazar.

Equally Clear.

Notewell—Do you like opera in English?

Slurson—I don't know; I never can tell what language operas are sung in. —Roxbury Gazette.

HE DIDN'T TOUCH THEM.

A Little Lying to a Gullible Thief Saved the Valuables.

I once had an experience that proved to me that there is honor among thieves, said a "commercial." It happened several years ago in a little town. I retired to bed in the hotel at my usual time, and placed my watch and pocket-book under the pillow. After having been asleep for some time, I was awakened by hearing a strange noise in the room. You can imagine I was considerably startled at beholding a man with a handkerchief tied over his face standing by my bedside. In his hand was a dark lantern, which shone full in my face. He did not give me much time to think, but in a gruff voice demanded my watch and money. I don't know what ever put the idea in my head, but, endeavoring to appear as calm as possible, I said:

"If I tell you exactly where they are, will you promise not to molest me, and leave me to finish my sleep?"

"Well, you are a cool one, I must say," he replied; "but you just tell me where your valuables are, and I will promise not to harm you, and leave you in peace."

"I will take you at your word," said I; "my watch is at the jeweler's being repaired, and every cent I have is locked up in the safe downstairs."

He stared at me a minute or two, as though trying to tell by my face if I had spoken the truth. I must have convinced him, for, muttering something which I did not catch, he turned on his heel and walked out of the room without a word.

A BICYCLE FOR WINTER USE.

Run by a Gasoline Motor, Frame Heated and a Wind Shield.

A clever inventor has made it possible for the bicycle girl to ride her wheel twelve months in the year and to bid defiance to ice and snow, not to mention a gale or two. What is more, the fortunate young woman will not even have to furnish motive power for working her wheel, because there is a little gasoline motor just forward of the rear wheel which impels the machine at any desired rate of speed. The young woman may imagine herself a lightning express and travel at an astonishing rate, or move along as slowly as she pleases. Her winter bicycle will protect her from the cold blasts, too, for she will sit behind a shield. But even this is not all.

As much of the framework of the bicycle as is possible will be hollow, and these hollows will be steadily filled with constantly changing hot air, which is heated and forced to circulate through the pipes by means of the same heat that drives the motor. Thus, though out of doors, in the cold, and facing a breeze, the bicycle girl who rides never need be cold or frostbitten.

Sharks and Men on Good Terms.

"I saw an article about the unusual number and voracity of the sharks along the Florida coast," remarked a gentleman yesterday, "that interested me exceedingly. It brought an incident to my recollection that I had almost forgotten. It happened when I was making a trip on a sailing ship many years ago along the coast of India. Well, we had occasion to drop anchor off an island near Ceylon, and sent a boat to the shore for a supply of fresh water. I accompanied the boat, and was really scared out of my wits to witness the incredible number of man-eating sharks that played about the yawl. When we had secured a barrel or two of water we put off, accompanied by two natives, who wished to see the ship.

The water was clear, and we could see dozens of huge sharks playing about the ship, and it was among the lot that the natives plunged when they had seen enough. They went without warning, and I ran to the side of the vessel, expecting to see the hazardous fellows torn to pieces. For an instant there was no commotion among the sharks, and then, apparently scenting human flesh, fully a score of the gigantic man-eaters darted through the water in the direction of the natives, who were swimming quietly for the shore. The water was cut into shreds by the fins of the sharks as they fairly flew toward the swimmers. In another minute the two men were surrounded by the fish, and I closed my eyes to avoid seeing their horrible end. When I took down my hands the natives were swimming along in the same old way, and the sharks were coming back to the ship as quickly as they had gone. Well, sir, don't you know that the fish were so well acquainted with the islanders that they never touched them. They had been reared in the same water and were old friends."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

To Tell How Long You'll Live.

Starting from the base of the big toe there is a distinct line. That is the life-line. In one foot it will curve along until it terminates under the instep far toward the lower base of the little toe. This means long life.

If broken in the hollow of the foot, it denotes a sickness at middle age, and if it terminates in the hollow of the foot it means a short life. This line is the most interesting one on the foot The experiments that have been conducted lately have proved this to be an almost unfailing reading of longevity —Answers.

Rather Tinny.

"It must have been dreadfully hard to wear these old coats of armor."

"Yes; they have the appearance of hardware."

Gabway—I've seen your face before haven't I?

Gagby—Most likely; I've had it before.—Roxbury Gazette.

MUSIC AND MICE.

How it Attracts Them and Other Animals Has Been Much Noticed.

One night half a dozen persons were gathered in the parlor of an Adirondack home, listening to a skilled player, who, as a woodsman said, "could make a pianner talk," when it was observed that the mice were acting in an unusual manner. The ordinary conduct of mice when they hear piano music is to merely rattle the plaster, but on this night they squeaked and squealed and rattled the plaster as they had never done before. The rush of the rodents died away after the music stopped, but it was hours before the last squeak was heard.

One of the human listeners was a boy who had some little skill as a harmonica player, and he went frequently to the woods, where, with the aid of the instrument, he succeeded in calling chipmunks, red squirrels, and, on one occasion, a woodchuck, besides wood mice—including the deer mouse —and the smaller birds. The mice chiefly ran about the player, with now and then a squeak, but sometimes a low strain with slight modulations would seem to drive them insane, and then, without hesitation, they would run over the player, as if he had been a stump. The squirrels were less demonstrative.—New York Sun.

A NEW FRENCH GLOCK.

The Decimal System to Denote the Hours, Instead of the Old Roman Letters.

The Geographical Bureau of the French Army has adopted and urges for general use a clock in which the decimal system is employed. The decimal is a passion with the French. On the face of the new watch our old friends eleven and twelve o'clock are no longer to be seen, the numerals from 1 to 10 being employed. The day, from midnight to the midnight following, is to be divided into 100 equal parts known as "ces." The sub-divisions, according to the decimal plan, are "decices," or tenths, "centices," or hundredths, "millices," or thousandths. One of the main divisions, the "ces," is equal to 14 minutes and 24 seconds, or a quarter of an hour.

It is urged that under this system the labor of calculation will be diminished by two-thirds, and the chances of mathemathical error from 4 to 1. It will be a long time, however, before the general public will agree that 25 ces, or its decimal equivalent, sounds as well as 6 a. m.

Cardinal Newman.

Cardinal Newman, according to his life-long friend, Mr. Froude, bore a remarkable resemblance to Julius Caesar. Not only in features, in the very peculiar lines about the mouth, and in the poise of the head, was the likeness striking, but in mental characteristics as well. Like "the mightiest Julius," the English priest had an original force of character, clearness of intellect, independence of judgment, contempt of conventionalities, and imperious self-reliance, united with a sweetness, tenderness, generosity, and affectionateness tht seldom coexist, and in their conjunction make the personality of their possessor most fascinating.—Harper's Bazar.

Secreting Manuscripts.

It is reported of our ancestors that they had a way of secreting valuable manuscripts, and concerning that vast collection of state papers of Thurloe, the secretary of Cromwell—a collection of seventy volumes at least in the original manuscript—it is recorded that it came to light in a very strange way, accidentally falling out of the false ceiling of some chambers in Lincoln's Inn.

Mention is also made of other certain treasures in that line being in the secret drawer of a chest that had passed through many hands before the secret came out.—Harper's Bazar.

J. Gould's Luck.

That very hard-headed financier, Mr. Jay Gould, it is said believed if not in a "luck penny," at least in a luck pen-wiper. This pen-wiper was a primitive construction of blue velvet, made by his daughter when she was three years old. It laid upon his desk by day, and was carefully locked up at night. The legend runs that just before the great strike on the Missouri Pacific road the pen-wiper disappeared mysteriously, and just after the settlement it reappeared mysteriously, its owner, however, having parted with a million dollars in the interval.—Harper's Bazar.

Japanese Postmen.

In Japan the postman wears a suit of blue cloth, a wide butter-bowl hat, and walks or rather trots along in comfortable straw shoes. Sometimes a little two-wheeled cart bears his budget, or perchance, being light, the post-bag is carried by hand. From station to station the postman hurries along, often running mile after mile, to deliver his precious bag into the keeping of the next man on the route. In this way the mail is carried in the greater part of the Japanese Empire.—Harper's Bazar.

A Curious Prayer.

At an Armenian meeting in the East End of London the other night, Mr. Benn relieved its seriousness by the relation of an incident at once grotesque and pathetic, says Tit-Bits. At a Salvation Army meeting recently, he said, a fervent Salvationist prayed, with all the intensity of his faith, that God would "break the Sultan's heart," with a view, of course, to the conversion of the barbarous Abdul. The prayer was interrupted by an additional petition from one of the devout company, and it ran thus: "Oh, God! break his neck."

USURY OF GOVERNMENT CLERKS.

The High Rates Demanded from the Borrower Who Can Give No Security.

While the order isued by the Secretary of the Treasury forbidding under pain of dismissal the loan of money to each other by the employes of the Department will in some degree break up a villainous business, it is a pity some authority does not exist to exterminate it root and branch. It is doubtful whether there is a community under such a burden of usury as the inhabitants at the sest of government.

This community seems practically divided into two elements, lenders and borrowers, the former only as a drop in the bucket to the latter, and, by reason thereof, frequently reaping such profits and premiums as would have made Shylock gnash his teeth in impotent rage.

To those who are fortunate enough to possess tangible and solid collateral the rates of interest average no more than anywhere else, as the legitimate and respectable institutions are always ready to accommodate. But oh! for those who have no security but their word.

The "friends" who accommodate them are generally men who carry their banks around in their pockets. Their capital is put out among innumerable borrowers and in small amounts—$5, $10 or $20. Fifty dollars is a big loan, and $100 a princely one. On these small amounts a rate of interest is exacted, running up to 20 per cent for a week, and in cases even much higher. The lenders justify themselves with the plea that they have to take desperate chances and can only rely upon the honor of the unfortunate borrower. This is true to some extent, but with all their losses these winners make gains which are absolutely fabulous. The victim once in their meshes has no escape but death. He may twist and squirm as he will, but he cannot break loose.

The foundation cause for this condition of affairs is, of course, the yielding to the prevalent temptation in Washington, which seems so hard to resist here, to live beyond one's means. It seems to afflict the humbler classes as much, if not more than the others.—Washington Correspondence of The Baltimore Sun.

THE ONLY WOMAN DIVER.

Mrs. Sorcho Goes Down into the Depths Exploring for Sunken Treasures.

After mastering about all the occupations which man is heir to, the new woman has begun investigating the bottom of the sea.

This daring task has been accomplished by Mrs. Frances Namon Sorcho, wife of Captain Louis Sorcho, the veteran submarine diver, and an ex-captain of the United States Life Saving Service. She is the only woman in the world who has successfully striven to become a deep-sea diver.

There is no task that falls to the lot of the diver who goes down to the ocean's bottom in search of everything, from treasure to a dead body, that Mrs. Sorcho has not achieved. She is considered an expert, and is capable of doing any work that is done by the divers that travel around beneath the water of New York Harbor. A pretty woman, without a sign of masculinity about her, this lady has as much courage as any one needs in the work in which she is engaged, and that is saying a good deal.

Paints With His Feet.

Lessing's oft-repeated question: "Would Raphael have been a great painter if born without arms?" is positively answered by Herr Adam Siepen, one of the well-known artists of the renowned Dusseldorf school, whose portraits, landscapes and genre pictures, paintings and drawings attracted so much attention at this year's art exhibition in the old Rhenish town.

Some German critics who had come from all parts of the Empire to view the great things and small that one expects to find at the annual picture display in Dusseldorf became so interested in the Siepen exhibit of miniatures on ivory and copper that they determined to make the artist's personal acquaintance in order to learn more of his work and wonderful method. They were surprised to find that the painter was armless, and did his exquisite work by holding his brushes with his feet.

Curiosities of Nomenclature.

Perhaps the strangest specimen of local nomenclature in the United States is furnished by South Carolina, which has a post-office named Catarrh. But the following are not bad in their way: Grubgulch, Pulltight, Yum Yum, Shoulderblade, Ink, Mud, and Getup. There are a Romulus and Remus, a Romeo and Juliet, one Truly and eleven Rurals, but no combination of both. Georgia has its Payup, and Rhode Island is Quonochontaug; and Kentucky has its Rabbit Hash, Teatearsville, Tarheel, Pope, Maddog, Taffy, Jamboree, and Nazareth. Here are a few other strange names: Gunpowder, Huff, Cash, Difficulty, Jug, Judy, Jingo, Bigbug and Biglick.—Tid-Bits.

Insect Vision.

An interesting subject is the study of the near and far sighted insects. Johanna Muller long ago pointed out that the flight of insects depends upon their power of vision. This will account for the difference in the flights of the common house fly and the wasp. The one confines itself to short flights; as his food is always to be found within a small area, he flies in short curves and circles. But the wasp is remarkably sharp-sighted, and the arrangement of the lenses shows that his line of vision is decidedly forward.

can consume more money and waste more patience than anything you can put your money into. When you buy from a dealer who sells you this kind of coal and go back to him again, it is your own pocketbook you're robbing. There are many dealers—we among them—who are willing to sell you good coal at a close margin and be sure of giving you perfect satisfaction. We have a good, honest Lehigh coal at $5.50 per ton. IASIGI'S ALLEGED STEALINGS

List of the Stocks the Turkish Consul Is Accused of Embezzling.

Boston, Feb. 16.—Information has been obtained from a source supposed to be trustworthy which discloses for the first time a list of stocks said to be missing and the dates on which Turkish Consul Iasigi, now under arrest in New York, is alleged to have embezzled them. The list is as follows: On Dec. 13, 1896, 108 shares of Chicago, Burlington & Quincy railroad stock. On May 14 railroad shares of Boston & Providence railroad stock; on Jan. 22, 1894, two 25-share lots of Norwich & Worcester railroad stocks. From Chief Inspector Watts the following has been obtained, showing the different amounts alleged to have been embezzled by Mr. Iasigi from the Derieux and Villardiere estates, the total amount being $167,838: from the Derieux estate, $61,152; from the Villardiere estate, $106,686. People in State street, who are more or less familiar with Mr. Iasigi and his business relations, do not place much credence in the statement that he has been a heavy "plunger" in the stock markets. It is possible that he may have done some extensive trading in New York, but in this city, as far as can be learned, he did business with only two brokerage firms and only to a limited extent. The general impression seems to be that Mr. Iasigi's financial troubles are primarily due to the losses he has sustained in his regular business, and there are some who think that he will eventually be able to extricate himself from his present entanglement and make good the alleged deficit in his trust accounts.

STEEL RAIL WAR.

Big Contract for an Eastern Road About To Be Closed.

New York, Feb. 16.—Local representatives of the large steel mills are much interested in a big contract for steel rails for an eastern road which has been holding off since the pool dissolved. One of the largest companies offered to close for $20.25 a ton, including freight charges to this city. The offer will probably be taken, as it comes from a strong concern, fully able to meet competition. It was said later that ordinary business could be placed at $20.75 at this city, and that rates would be stiffened from now on. The heavy business of last week has reduced the supply at many points, and a normal market is expected soon. The strongest companies, it is expected, will insist on better rates this week, and it is not unlikely that an informal agreement of a general nature may be entered into between companies in the same territory.

CHEAP ARMOR PLATE.

Illinois Steel Co. Offers To Supply the Government at $200 Per Ton.

Washington, Feb. 16.—Mr. Lorimer, after a conference with the secretary of the navy, introduced a bill in the house to authorize that official to make a twenty year contract with the Illinois Steel company to supply armor plate for ships at $200 per ton, which is $263 per ton less than the present price. Mr. Gates, the president of the Illinois company, has been in the city some days and states that his associates will agree to put up a plant to cost $3,500,000 if the contract asked for is awarded them.

High Price for Municipal Bonds.

Stamford, Conn., Feb. 16.—Bids were opened late yesterday afternoon for $75,000, thirty year 4 per cent. gold bonds, to take up the floating debt of the town of Stamford. Twenty-one bids were received, most of them from Boston firms. The bonds went to the New York Security & Trust company at 107.143 and interest. This is the highest price paid for municipal bonds in Connecticut in many years.

Stabbed by a Government Officer.

Washington, Feb. 16.—E. P. Speer of Georgia, chief of division in the treasury department, yesterday afternoon, while in his office became involved in a quarrel with William Callan, during which Speer stabbed Callan. Callan was taken to the Emergency hospital, where his wounds were dressed.

Two New Revenue Cutters.

Washington, Feb. 16.—Bids will be opened in the treasury department on March 15 next for the construction of two revenue cutters for the great lakes, each to cost $200,000.

MATTERS IN CUBA

Captain-General Weyler Issues Two More Decrees.

COIN AND SCRIP TRADING STOPPED

A Political Prisoner To Be Shot To-day—Gambling Houses Closed—A Frenchman Released from Prison—Two Engagements Reported.

Havana, Feb. 16.—Captain-General Weyler recently announced his intention of closing all the exchange booths and prohibiting the exchange of scrip for coin, and also his determination to banish all persons found guilty of speculating in coin and scrip to the island of Fernando Po. The Official Gazette to-day publishes two decrees, the first of which provides for making compulsory the circulation of scrip at par with silver, for the trial of depreciators of paper money upon charges of being in league with the rebels, and for the sending of an order to the American Bank Note company of New York for the printing of fractional currency, which order is to be immediately executed. The second decree provides regulations for the sale of lottery tickets. Jose Gonzalez Laserada will be executed to-day for the crimes of sedition and rebellion. Honore Laine, a Frenchman, who was arrested some time ago upon a political charge, has been released. A party of rebels yesterday opened fire upon Valladares, in Santa Clara province, killing Lieut. Mata of the Spanish army. The Prince and Princess of Khevenhuller-Eatsch of Austria have arrived here from Vera Cruz. Acting under orders from Captain-General Weyler two gambling houses have been closed and their proprietors have been sentenced to imprisonment and to pay a fine of $500 each. It is announced that Captain-General Weyler has expressed himself as satisfied with the operations of the Spanish forces in Cuba. It is also stated that he favors the cultivation of tobacco instead of sugarcane on the island. Colonels la Pintos and Lara while reconnoitering in the vicinity of Placetas, province of Santa Clara, had an engagement with a band of insurgents, in which twenty-two of the rebels were killed. The Spanish losses consisted of seven men wounded. Advices received by friends of the insurgents just reverses the above report. Instead of twenty-two rebels having been killed they were Spaniards. A number of the insurgents were wounded.

Cuban Patriot Defeat Reported.

Havana, Feb. 16.—Gen. Aldave with two columns of Spanish troops has entered the town of Siguanas, in the province of Santa Clara, defeating the insurgent forces which were entrenched there and pursuing them to the Niguendo hills.

Indicted and Sentenced in One Day.

Philadelphia, Feb. 16.—John H. Hoffer, former cashier of the First National bank of Lebanon, Pa., who was charged with embezzling $109,000 of the bank's funds, was arraigned in the United States district court yesterday afternoon before Judge Butler. After a consultation with his attorneys the accused pleaded guilty and was sentenced to ten years' imprisonment in the Eastern penitentiary and ordered to pay a fine of $1,000. Hoffer was indicted yesterday by the grand jury.

The Hull Divorce Suit.

Columbus, O., Feb. 16.—In her answer to her husband's petition for divorce filed here, Mrs. Elizabeth Hull, wife of Willard J. Hull, editor of "The Light of Truth," the national organ of the spiritualists, charges him with highly improper conduct at a spiritualists' camp meeting near Minneapolis in the summer of 1894, which created a scandal at the time. She also charges that her husband was afterward guilty of improper conduct in Minneapolis.

Corbett and Fitzsimmons' Side Bet.

New York, Feb. 16.—"Al" Smith, the stakeholder for the Corbett-Fitzsimmons fight, has been notified by one of the national banks in this city that $5,000 has been deposited at the bank and is awaiting his identification. This is the Australian's side bet, and with the $2,500 appearance money already in Smith's hands completes Fitz's end of the money question. Corbett's $7,500 has already been posted.

Won the Yale Literary Medal.

New Haven, Conn., Feb. 16.—Alexander Wheeler of Bridgeport has been awarded the Yale literary medal valued at $100. This is the chief literary honor at Yale. The new editors of the Yale Literary Magazine are Walter Makepeace, Springfield, Mass., Huntington Mason, Chicago; G. L. Parker, Louisville, Ky., and R. L. Minger, Ansonia, Conn.

Visible Supply of Cereals.

New York, Feb. 16.—The statement of the visible supply of grain, in store and afloat, as compiled by the New York Produce exchange, is as follows. Wheat, 46,658,000 bushels; decrease, 1,227,000. Corn, 24,394,000 bushels; increase, 1,062,000. Oats, 13,494,000 bushels; increase, 170,000. Rye, 3,901,000 bushels; increase, 37,000. Barley, 3,382,000 bushels; increase, 61,000.

CYCLING COMMENT.

The F. L. C. Martin Cycle Company has received two samples of the new racing wheel on the Cleveland wheel. There are a number of improvements in this year's racing wheel over last year's model which will materially increase the speed.

Among the many wheels on exhibition at the cycle show in the Grand Central Palace was a triplet which will make a visit to Plainfield early in the spring, as soon as the roads are in ridable condition. The triplet is a Wolfe-American wheel. The superintendent of the company which manufactures the wheel is Mr. Hondloser. His son, Robert C. Hondloser, is the room-mate of Walter B. Rittenhouse, of East Sixth street, while attending the Stevens Institute of Technology, at Hoboken. Hondloser, Rittenhouse and another of the Stevens boys expect to ride out on that three seated wheel this spring and spend a few days in this city at the home of Rittenhouse.

EARLY INTELLIGENCE.

—The Alms committee of the City Council will meet this evening and decide on some definite plans for an almshouse.

—Mrs. Lockerty, of Grove street, is building an addition to her house, which improves the appearance of the house very much.

—Free lecture tonight at 8 o'clock in the W. C. T. U. rooms, corner of Fourth street and Watchung avenue, on "The Crime of Crimes," by Rev. A. A. Phelps, A. M.

—Mrs. Gould, the hair and scalp specialist, will be at her office, 431 Park avenve, tomorrow. Mrs. Gould will hereafter visit Plainfield once a month instead of once a week.

—It is necessary that all persons who desire to make application for licenses should get the same in the hands of the city clerk this week. This includes peddlers, hackmen, etc.

—If you are desirous of saving money on your butcher bills, J. M. Smalley wants you to call at his market, 405 Park avenue, and get his prices on prime cuts, poultry, sausage, etc. He selects his own meats at the beef house, pays spot cash and sells at a small profit for cash. That's the way, he says, he saves his customers money.

THE MISSIONARY FIRE.

The Bible Represents the Back Log Which is Never Exhausted.

How to keep the missionary fire burning was the chief topic of the address by Rev. A. DeWitt Mason, of Brooklyn at the Trinity Reformed church last evening. It was the occasion of the Endeavor Day services of the Christian Endeavor Society of that church and they were held in the lecture room. It was led by the president, Fred Willett. Miss Emma Gillem acted as accompanist.

The meeting opened with devotional service, with prayer by Rev. Cornelius Schenck, Ph. D. After a soprano solo by Miss Etta Krymer, Rev. Mr. Mason was introduced.

He referred in opening to the hearty welcome he had received in this city last fall, at the time of the Christian Endeavor Convention and of the enthusiastic spirit shown by the local Endeavorers at the time.

He spoke of the missionary fire which it is so necessary to keep burning to have the work go on. He drew a comparison between the work and the wood fire. The Bible represented the back log which would never be exhausted but would burn steadily and hold the fire. For the lighter material, he spoke of the records and histories of the different missionary workers and advised his hearers to look up the subject of modern missionary enterprise and have their missionary fire quickened and helped by it.

The most important way, he said, of continuing missionary interest is by prayer, prayer of an earnest nature and not forced as a duty.

An offering was taken while a solo was being sung by Mrs. Manley, and then the meeting closed with a hymn and the benediction.

MEETING OF COUNCIL

Mr. Runyon was not convinced as to how far the Council knew Mr. Randolph's desire to retire from that body, and he thought that in accepting his resignation it was manifestly unfair.

Mr. Barrows said that Mr. Randolph knew all the time what was going on, and he had expressed no desire to remain in the council.

Mr. Westphal thought some action should be taken in the matter and he agreed with Mr. Barrows.

When the vote was taken all voted to accept the resignation except Mr. Runyon.

On Mr. Barrows' motion the council at once proceeded to elect a man to fill the vacancy, and Mr. Westphal, in a neat little speech, presented the name of Vincent L. Frazee, as one who adorned the council chamber before and one whom he thought would fill the office with credit. On the motion of Mr. Baker the clerk cast the ballot for Mr. Frazee and the latter was elected unanimously. Mr. Barrows then asked that the latter be placed on the various committees in the same positions held by the gentleman he succeeded. The request was granted.

Mr. Runyon called up the ordinance regulating the speed of vehicles and wheels and on his motion it was adopted on the last reading. Mr. Serrell offered a resolution showing the form of sewer bond to be used by the council, and on its motion it was adopted.

Mr. Barrows then offered a motion that when council adjourn it be to meet one week from this evening, when the liquor licenses would be considered. This concluded the business of the evening and the council adjourned.

There was a large attendance of people in the lobby who expected that the liquor licenses would come up, but they were disappointed.

WHERE MINERVA RULES.

OXFORD, HOME OF MANY COLLEGES.

An Interesting Lecture Delivered in the Y. M. C. A. Hall.

A large and appeciative audience gathered in the Y. M. C. A. Hall, last evening, to listen to the lecture on the "University and City of Oxford," by Alfred M. Collett, M. A., a graduate of Oxford University. The lecture was illustrated with some seventy-five stereopticon views, all of which were most highly appeciated by the audience.

Oxford is one of the oldest cities in England, as it dates back to the Anglo-Saxon times. The city with its 40,000 inhabitants, stretches out from one hill to another, through valley and vale and with its wide and beautifully shaded streets makes it seem like a veritable Eden. Oxford City was organized in the year 735, and in 912 passed under the control of London. The Mayor of Oxford is still great and he is vested with many privileges and powers. Many of the coins in circulation there contain miniature views of London and Oxford, and not a few are in circulation with Lincoln's portrait on them. There are in Oxford 23 massive colleges, and the "Masters," "Wardens" and "Fellows" constitute the Board of Governors.

In conclusion the lecturer said while there was little aristocracy in Oxfor colleges, the main object sought was that of learning.

The many beautiful views of the churches, colleges and other important buildings, together with boat-racing by the students on the Thames, were warmly applauded as they were presented on the canvas.

PARTICULAR MENTION.

Mrs. J. F. Runyon is visiting her brother, S. A. Cruikshank, indefinitely.

Bert Mundy, of this city, has secured a position with Rushmore & Co., on Watchung avenue.

J. E. Townsend, of Coddington avenue, is able to be out again after being confined to the house for some time by illness.

Mr. and Mrs. William G. Brett, of Mercer avenue, have returned home after a week's visit with friends in New York.

Wm. Swalm, of West Front street, is slowly recovering from a long illness and is able to take short walks occasionally.

Rev. L. E. Livermore occupied the pulpit at Warren chapel Sunday in the absence of the pastor, Rev. J. O. McKelvey, who is confined to the house by illness.

Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Perry, of Willow avenue, who have been traveling through Connecticut and Pennsylvania for the past three weeks, are expected home today.

Not exactly right is the way thousands of people feel. It is because their blood is poor. Hood's Sarsaparilla, the One True Blood Purifier, will promptly set them right.

Hood's Pills are purely vegetable and do not purge, pain or gripe. All druggists.

THE SHAKERS' IDEAS of MEDICINE.

Now a days when a man goes to his doctor, he is usually told that he has some unheard of disease with a long name, and when he leaves the office he does not know whether it is St. Vitus Dance or consumption that is gradually undermining his health.

It is, therefore, refreshing to talk with the Shakers, for their very simplicity commands confidence and respect, and we have the further satisfaction of knowing that they have devoted themselves to the study of disease and its cure for more than a hundred years.

The venerable old man whom the writer saw was only too glad to discuss his pet subject. He said that as strange as it might seem, very few doctors realized that three quarters of the most prevalent diseases were all attributable to faulty digestion.

He went on to say that a child of average intelligence knows that putrid meat or decaying vegetables are poisonous, and must be avoided, and yet these same foods, even if taken into the stomach in the freshest possible condition soon decompose unless digested and absorbed.

In such cases the resulting poisons enter the system, when aches and pains, weakness and debility soon follow as a natural consequence.

It was recognition of this that led the Shakers to devote their energies to the perfection of a product which would stimulate the digestive organs and assist them to perform their proper work.

The first symptom of disordered digestion is loss of appetite, and the Shaker Digestive Cordial is wonderfully efficient in supplying any deficiency in this respect, at the same time it relieves all distresses after eating. Furthermore, as was carefully explained by our venerable friend, it is absolutely harmless.

Better evidence of the Shakers' confidence in it could not be found, than in the fact that they have placed 10 cent sample bottles in the hands of all druggists, assured that if once tried it will produce such immediate and marked benefit that it will be continued.

SILVER WEDDING ANNIVERSARY.

Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Higgins Married for Twenty-five Years.

All the pleasant things attendant upon the celebration of an anniversary were evidenced at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Higgins, of West Front street, last evening, when they celebrated the twenty-fifth anniversary of their marriage. The couple stood beneath a bower of flowers and received their guests in a genuine hospital manner.

Among the large collection of elegant presents received was a costly silver set from the members of Minerva Temple, Rathbone Sisters, of which lodge Mrs. Higgins is a member. Other valuables presents were also received, including a handsome table for the dining room, and several pieces of cut glass and china.

During the sociability recitations were given by Miss Gerhold and vocal solos were rendered by Eli Odam.

Iona Council to Entertain.

The members of Iona Council will entertain their friends in the hall tomorrow evening. The entertainment will be up to date in every respect, and besides a programme of vocal and instrumental music, there will be ad Indian lunch and watermelon feast. The committee in charge consists of Mrs. A. Stiglitz, chairman; aides, Mrs. C. Dodwell, Mrs. James Radin, Mrs. Fred Westphal. The Council will probably give another entertainment before the warm weather sets in.

A committee from the Woman's Auxiliary Board will be in attendance.

Very Efficient With the Arms.

The North Plainfield High School cadets met in Saengerbund hall, last night, for drill. The borough boys made a good showing and are rapidly improving in their manœuvring. Captain Edwards expects to secure the arms for the company in a short time, when they will also receive instructions in the manual of arms.

Mr. Gavett Sworn In.

Street Commissioner A. J. Gavett was officially notified of his appointment, this morning, and soon after he was sworn in by City Judge DeMeza. He will begin his duties at once but he has made no plans as yet in regard to his work for the future.

A Noted Minister Coming.

Rev. Arthur T. Pierson, who so ably supplied the pulpit for Rev. Dr. Spurgeon, is expected to come to this city shortly to address the Plainfield Branch of the Christian Alliance. Rev. Mr. Pierson is from New York.

An Amusing Error.

Some of the risks attending illustrations in daily newspapers, where the work of making up has to be done in the small hours of the morning, are illustrated by what appeared in a Chicago newspaper recently. A picture of the late Cardinal Manning was labelled "Frau Kruger, wife of Oom Paul," and accompanied by an entertaining sketch of that excellent lady while in another place a picture of Mrs. Kruger, looking grand and intensely Dutchy, bore the legend, "Cardinal Manning."

The Force of Habit.

A widower is being married for the fourth time. During the ceremony one of the guests is surprised to hear violent sobs proceeding from a woman in a corner of the church.

"Who is that lady crying so bitterly?" he asks of the bystanders.

"Oh, it's only Martha, our cook," answers one of the bridegroom's children; "she always blubbers when papa gets married."

OF EDSALL'S
Great, GREATER, GREATEST

Retiring Sale, and it may close any day now, as the amount that we agreed to sell was reached yesterday and Messrs. Woodhull & Martin, the new proprietors, want to take possession just as soon as possible.

The sale up to date has been a great and marvelous success, the amount of sales being just double of what we calculated on when we started in.

There is scarcely any abatement of interest or crowds yet, as the sale has become so widely and popularly known, not only in Plainfield and vicinity, but all around in this part of the State.

The $80,000 stock begins to show some thinning out of course; but there are hundreds and hundreds of good things yet that every household needs that you can save money on by buying now at this sale.

Now if you have not bought all you want at the sale you had better come in at once, as it may run only a few days longer, as far as we can tell at this writing.

Hundreds of people are buying now for future use. They say that in all of their experience, even in New York and other large cities, they have never seen such marvelously low prices marked on fine seasonable goods.

Everybody knows that we have never dealt in second-hand goods or cheap auction stuff, and that when we advertise FIRST-CLASS seasonable goods they can rely on getting just what is advertised.

And so the great mass of people who have been to this sale regard our announcements at this time.

As the writer sits at his desk writing these notes Thursday afternoon, Feb. 11th, both floors of the popular Commercial Palace are literally packed with eager buyers, who go away pleased and delighted with their great bargains.

Remember the sale may last only a few days more, and if you wish to avail yourself of the greatest opportunity to buy fine goods cheaper than you have ever had you had better speak quick.

YES, SPEAK QUICK, OR YOU'LL GET LEFT SURE.

HELD FOR GRAND JURY

SUFFICIENT EVIDENCE AGAINST ALLEGED ASSAILANTS.

The Complaint of George Becker Aired Before Justice Newcorn Last Night—Hobbie and Simon Held in $150 Bail.

Something happened last Saturday evening on Woodland avenue, but exactly what it is impossible to tell. The statements of George Becker on one side and Willie Hobbie and George Simon on the other are so contradictory that the Grand Jury will have to decide the matter. Such at least seemed to be the view of Justice Newcorn yesterday afternoon. Hobbie and Simon were brought before him on the charge of assault and battery and after hearing the story of their accusers, Mr. and Mrs. Becker, he held them for the Grand Jury, as examination was waived by their counsel, Craig A. Marsh.

The hearing took place yesterday afternoon and evening in the office of Justice Newcorn. The story as told by the foreign couple was substantially the same as told in the Press, Monday, except that Becker declared that he was in the barn just before the alleged assault was committed and was attracted to the front of the house by the barking of his dog, which was tied in the yard. After the assault on the front piazza, Becker said he ran to the back door with the two following and that he was again assaulted, one of his assailants using a broom handle. It was in the last assault that he claims to have received the cuts on the back of his hand. He says that he was attempting to get in the kitchen door.

Becker was represented in the matter by Ex-Councilman Walter L. Hetfield. The clothes he wore on that occasion were produced as testimony and Becker exhibited the wounds that he claims to have received during the fracas.

The cross-examination of Becker by Mr. Marsh was very close and the foreigner was nearly crazy with the numerous questions that he was compelled to answer. He had some trouble in understanding all the questions and a lively debate followed between the two lawyers as to whether Becker understood the real meaning of the questions in some of which he got hopelessly entangled.

A new fact came out in the examination. Becker said that Hobbie drew a revolver but, after displaying it, put it back in his pocket.

Becker was treated by Dr. Hedges, and Becker admitted that the doctor did nothing for the wound. Becker claimed that his chest was affected by the beating he had received and that he had been suffering much during the last three days.

Several witnesses were sworn who had heard the noise of the fracas but, on account of the darkness, could see nothing. The testimony only confirmed the fact that there had been a racket of some kind but the circumstances were not to be learned.

After a hearing that lasted two hours, Mr. Marsh waived examination for his two clients, and they were held in $150 bail each to appear before the Grand Jury. The bail was secured at once and the prisoners were released.

DOMINEERING OLIGARCHY.

Prof. A. A. Phelps Thus Describes the Liquor Traffic.

Prof. A. A. Phelps delivered a temperance address on "The Crime of Crimes" before the W. C. T. U. last evening. Among the remarks he made was the following:

"It is a domineering oligarchy. Here is a case when a million or less engaged in the liquor business exert a controlling influence over sixty-five million people. This insolent oligarchy sits almost supreme in our National Congress and walks our legislative halls with a swing of triumph. It bribes legislators, bulldozes officers, handicaps editors, muzzles ministers, frightens churches and manages to have its own hateful way in almost everything. This traffic in human depravity is bad all over, bad all through and bad all the time. It ought to die, and be buried beyond the hope of a resurrection. Who will help dig its grave?"

Plans for the New Chapel.

The plans for the new Baptist Mission Chapel on East Third street are being prepared by Architect Charles Smith of Grove street and contemplate a very pretty and practical structure. Brady is drawing the legal papers necessary to secure incorporation of the new chapel under the Religious Society Act, and five trustees are to be elected on Thursday evening of this week. During the present revival the need of more room is felt very much and the new building is to be pushed as rapidly as possible.

A HOME FOR CITY POOR

BROWN PROPERTY SELECTED BY COUNCILMANIC ALMS COMMITTEE.

The Council Will be Asked to Appropriate a Sum to Put the Property in Condition For Use by the City.

The alms committee of the City Council held a meeting last evening for the purpose of discussing ways and means for the establishment of an alms house. It was decided that the committee would ask the Council at its next meeting for an appropriation to take the Brown house at the corner of Rock avenue and West Front street, and to at once proceed to place the house in first-class condition suitable for the purpose for which it is intended. The committee has already asked for estimates for white iron bedsteads for the house and it is the intention to furnish each occupant of the house with a separate bed, and to have the home kept scrupulously clean. For the present no men will be taken unless accompanied by their wives, and no children will be admitted.

Overseer of the Poor Marx will locate at this house in a few days and that will be his headquarters. The house will be furnished with hot water or steam heat. Other things necessary will also be provided.

A NEW WATER COMPANY.

Organized to Supply Water From Artesian Wells.

A corporation known as the Watchung Water Company has been formed, with a capital of $50,000. The incorporators are Charles P. Sebring, W. W. Smalley, L. S. Cook, James B. Vredenburgh, Spencer Wert, Phillip N. Jackson and S. Z. Dickson.

A plant is to be located at Greenbrook, and a supply of water will be procured from artesian wells. Application has been made to the Township Committee of Piscataway to locate mains through several of the highways. The company intends to supply Dunellen, New Market, Lincoln and Beechwood Heights with water, and incidentally the farmers along the lines.

The names of the incorporators of the Watchung Company are a guarantee of the capital behind the scheme.

Hank Frisbie's Chicken.

There is going to be a big time at the Mt. Zion A. M. E. Church, on Thursday evening, when a mock trial will be held by the members of the congregation. The chief justice in the trial will be William Grobes, with Grant Cannon and George Anderson as his associates. The clerk of the court is to be Miss Bertha Grobes.

The case is to be an exciting one. One of Hank Frisbie's hens is said to have escaped from its roost and wandered into the roost of Charles Ward, the porter at the Hotel Grenada. Frisbie is now suing to recover his property, while Ward claims that the hen in question is not a hen at all. He will also try to prove that Frisbie is color blind, and can't tell a buff cochin from a black Leghorn. Frisbie is to represented in this wonderful trial by Lemuel Perry and H. A. Freeman, while the attorneys for Ward are Charles Henry and Alfred White.

Going to the Inauguration Free

Dr. C. B. Stelle, formerly a dentist in this city, but who is now located at 314 West 56th street, New York, was one of the winners in the Presidental guessing contest of the Evening Telegram. The contest was to guess correctly the popular majority of the winning candidate. The majority was 597,405 and Dr. Stelle was twenty-third in order. He guessed 597,301. The winner of the contest was only eight votes out of the way. As a reward for his guess, Dr. Stelle will be sent to the inauguration at Washington free of all expense to himself. The winner will be sent on a trip around the world.

Lecture Seats by Wholesale.

Great blocks of seats have been marked off for the Peary lecture in Music Hall Thursday evening, Feb. 25th, and it behooves those who would hear the great explorer to take time by the forelock and hie themselves to Armstong's pharmacy as soon as possible, else it may be too late. From present appearances there will not be an empty seat in Music Hall, and it may be that Chief Doane may have to relax his usual vigorous rule and allow standing room to be sold.

About a Worthy Work.

On Wednesday evening, March 3d, it is expected that the National Superintendent of Soldier and Sailor Work of the W. C. T. U. will be in this city and make an address before the members of the Grand Army of the Republic. If such a meeting should be held it is quite likely that a programme will be arranged for the occasion to be followed by a supper.

ACT OF TRUTH SPEAKING

PROGRESSIVE WOMEN DISCUSS WHAT MAKES IT DIFFICULT.

Idea Brought Out That There is a Great Deal of Difficulty to Convey Thought in One's Mind—Various Kinds of Lies Told

The members of the Plainfield Branch Alliance of Unitarian and Other Liberal Christian Women met yesterday afternoon and discussed the subject of "Truth Speaking: What Makes it Difficult?" The president, Mrs. Florence Howe Hall, presided and led the discussion of the subject in its various forms.

The idea was brought out that there is a great deal of difficulty in conveying the exact thought in one's mind, and that the nicer shades of truth speaking were liable to be misunderstood. Regarding carelessness and exaggeration, it was thought that these annoying things often arise from inattention, and from the fact that a person is not able to report a thing precisely as they hear it. It was not thought that the thing was done intentionally, however.

There seemed to be a prevailing idea that as a rule servant girls have a faculty of being evasive when asked why they left their last place, although it was stated that there were exceptions to the rule. One woman said that she had at different times employed three Catholic girls and that she had found them to be exceedingly conscientious and truthful.

Under the head of prejudice many good points were made. It was considered difficult to tell a person about their weaknesses, but self-love was thought to be a good thing to help one out in such a case.

Cowardice was held to be one of the strongest motives to tell black lies, and flattery was thought to be one form of untruth which comes from a desire to please. The vivid imagination of children and older people was discussed quite freely on the part of all present, and no one thought that a child should be punished for that trait.

The balance of the meeting was devoted to the discussing of the question as to whether a lie is justifiable. Some held that it was not while others thought there were times when such a thing was permissable. One woman expressed her ideas by saying that she did not think that a falsehood was a lie. The former she considered to be a strained untruth, while the latter was the same thing with evil intent added. The question was a lively one and every one present had something to say regarding it.

Engagement Announced.

The announcement of the marriage of Miss Anggie Feytel, formerly of this city but now of Newark, and Carl Johnson, also of Newark, is made. The wedding will take place in June at the home of the bride. They will reside at Roseville.

ELIZABETH PRIDE HUMBLED

EASILY DEFEATED AT BASKET-BALL.

The Plainfield Y. M. C. A. Team Won By a Score of 17 to 6.

The pride of Elizabeth, the athletes of the Elizabeth Athletic Club, came to Plainfield and tried to play basket ball, last evening, against the team from the Plainfield Y. M. C. A. The Elizabeth boys were not in the game at all, the Plainfield team winning by a score of 17 to 6. The Elizabeth players showed much promise for the future, but their aim for the goals was unusually poor and they were outclassed by the more experienced team from this city. The score of the game at the end of the first half was 13 to 3. The Plainfield team consisted of E. Moraller, W. Long, G. P. Smith, F. E. Richards and M. Moraller.

While the basket ball game was being played, the bowlers of the Y. M. C. A. succeeded in defeating the team from the Scott Press Works in two games. The association boys won the first game 648 to 647, and the second game 652 to 567. The winning team was composed of M. Sutphen, Rittenhouse, Schloss, Bristol, C. Sutphen. The team from Scott's was composed of Wilson, McLean, Frey, Bittle and Sutphen.

"Caste" for the Hospital.

Attention is called to the advertisement in this issue of the play of "Caste," which will be produced at Music Hall, Saturday evening, February 27, for the benefit of Muhlenberg Hospital. This is a great play given for a good purpose, and it offers the people of Plainfield an opportunity to contribute their mite to this worthy institution, receiving a rich evening's entertainment in return. The same persons will take part who surprised everybody last December at the Casino. So well was the play performed that there was a general request that it be repeated in a larger hall at popular prices.

GROWTH OF EDUCATION

DR. RIGGS TRACES THE ADVANCEMENT OF INTELLIGENCE.

He Deprecates the Use of the Term "Dark Ages"—Properly Speaking Europe Had No Such Age—His Most Salient Points.

"Education, the Universities, and the Intellectual Uprising" was the subject of the lecture delivered in the chapel of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church, last night, by Dr. James F. Riggs. This lecture was the last in the series dealing with "Vital Forces in Modern History," and was unusually well attended, it being on an especially interesting subject.

Dr. Riggs began his lecture by speaking against the use of the term "Dark Ages." Properly speaking Europe never had a dark age. There were always religious workers and philosophical and scientific thinkers here and there. It is wrong to suppose that there was no education in ancient times. Schools and books existed, tablets for writing and for mathematical computations, and there was a regular book trade. But the discoveries of the period which followed the Crusades made a vast difference in all these matters.

Intellectual advance is largely the result of pressure exerted by individuals. Men of exceptional mental power come in groups from time to time, along the line of the centuries. The ninth century was rich in men of that sort. Then, after a short interval of comparative barrenness, there came the wonderful movement known in a general way as Scholasticism.

A vernacular literature began to grow up to take the place of Latin. The Arabs in Spain also exerted a strong influence on the learning of Europe. A strong impulse was likewise given to the revival of learning the occupation of Constantinople by the Ottoman Turks, in consequence of which learned Greeks were scattered over Europe, and found work in many universities. From the thirteenth century to the eighteenth, universities were founded all over Europe. The figures given are sufficient to indicate a prodigious intellectual awakening. One great teacher arose after another, and each added something of his own, till the times were ripe for the true and cordial adoption of the Inductive Philosophy. Francis Bacon, who was born 1561, in London, gave form and consistency to the inductive, method making it the supreme law of research in modern thought.

We honor the good workmen of today, who make a wise use of dictionaries, lexicons and treatises, but we delight to do homage to the giants of mental power, who, toiling patiently, created the libraries and the wonderful apparatus with which the miracles of modern genuis have been brought to pass.

COCK FIGHTERS IN A ROW.

DISPUTED FAIRNESS OF A BOUT.

Broken Noses and Black Eyes Were the Result.

There was a cocking main out on Greenbrook road, Saturday evening, and it finally broke up for unexpected reasons. The usual crowd of sports from this city and the borough turned out to see the fun and gathered at the place of meeting just across the borough line. It was rather chilly but the enthusiastic ones didn't mind the cold or the snow. The birds were well selected and the prospects of some exciting bouts were good. After the sport had begun, a dispute arose among several of the spectators regarding the fairness of a certain bout. Words were thrown about the pit in a lively manner and then the combatants, tiring of such missles, renewed the scrap with canes and fists. Everybody had a hand in the fracas and the main came to a sudden and unexpected end.

One man in the party had the bridge of his nose seriously dilapidated by a blow from a cane, while several other of the combatants encountered the fist of somebody else in the neighborhood of their eyes. Other reminders were given and the fracas ended and the participants departed, vowing vengence.

Played at Whist.

The ladies whist club held its last meeting for the season yesterday afternoon, at the home of Mrs. Arthur Baynon, on La Grande avenue. The first prize was won by Mrs. Kleinicke. The second prize was won by Mrs. Clay. Mrs. Stuart Pattersom was the winner of the third prize.

A Growing Order.

At the meeting of Franklin Council, No. 11, J. O. U. A. M., it is expected that the membership will be over two hundred, thus making it one of the largest Councils in the State. It is likely that exercises appropriate to the occasion will be held.

FRAZEE GOT THROUGH.

THE EXPRESSMAN OUTWITTED THE RAILROAD DETECTIVES.

An Attempt Made to Stop Him From Getting on a Train With Bundles But With Brother's Assistance He Eluded Them.

The war between the Jersey Central railroad detectives and the package expressmen still continues. The commuters and other passengers who were waiting at the North avenue station this morning for the 8:30 express had a chance to see something of the conflict. Whitney Frazee, the well-known package expressman, appeared a few minutes before the 8:30 train was due with his pockets bulging out in a significant manner. He smiled at his friends and prepared for battle. With several packages under his arm he started for the train as it pulled into the station. Detective Blackford had been standing in the background with an express company spotter, and the two started for Frazee. The crowd of commuters was hurrying for the express when the fracas began.

As Frazee advanced toward the cars Blackford and his companion executed a flank movement and loomed up between Frazee and the waiting train. There was a collision between the shoulders of Blackford and the package expressman. Frazee stopped and the crowd began to manifest itself by voice.

Frazee, encouraged by the shouts of his friends, tried again, but Blackford blocked him in true football style.

Conductor Dodwell of the express waved his hand to the engineer and the train began to move. For the third time, Blackford was in the path and Frazee finally gave up the attempt. The detectives smiled, the crowd yelled, and Frazee withdrew from the scene of action.

Another local train follows at 8:33, and the knowing ones watched for further developments. The detectives kept their eyes on the expressman and waited for him to renew the fight.

The local train came to the station and stopped and at the same time Frazee appeared at the center entrance to the platform. He was accompanied by his brother, George Frazee, from whose pockets stuck bicycle tires and sundry other articles. Whitney was in fighting trim and headed for the train. It was the packages and not the man that the detectives were after, and they started for the brother. George Frazee put down his shoulder and so did Blackford and they came together like two of Frazee's game roosters. The most excited of the on-lookers howled with delight. The other detective was on hand and he interposed his shoulder in the path of the wiggling man.

Whitney Frazee had boarded the train successfully, but he now skipped off to go to the rescue of his brother. The detectives were so busy playing football with the brother that they saw not the stealthy approach of the messenger. With a dive that would have done credit to an acrobat he made a plunge into the group of struggling forms and emerged waving a tire triumphantly over his head. Back he danced to the train waving the tire tauntingly at the detectives. They stood a moment as if uncertain which man to pursue. That moment was all that George wanted and he made a break for the train where his brother was waiting on the steps. The train started to pull out. Blackford again interposed his body in the way of the hurrying man. The other detective came to his assistance.

Frazee had made up his mind to go, and go he did. The crowd ran to see the fun but still the detectives blocked. George and the two detectives finally came to a standstill in front of the platform of the car where Whit was waiting. Out of the bunch shot George's short arms with the packages clasped firmly in his hands. Whit grabbed at them and so did the detectives. There was a brief tug-of-war and then Whit was victorious and the train pulled slowly out of the station with the excited messenger on his knees on the platform with the little finger of one hand on his nose and the fingers wiggling a farewell to the detectives. The crowd fairly howled with delight and the detectives departed.

It is understood that the Frazee's have decided not to let the matter rest this time. Whitney Frazee claims that the spotter has been following him all over the city and dodging his steps wherever he goes. George Frazee says that he was going to Elizabeth this morning, when the spotter and Blackford prevented him. He had bought a ticket and was all prepared, when, he says, Whitney asked him to carry a few of the packages for him. The Frazees are planning to take the matter into the local courts and have the detective and the spotter arrested for interfering with a passenger at the station. They also expect to make complaint against the spotter for following Frazee.

RED MEN AND MR. NEWELL

STATEMENT MADE BY DEPUTY GREAT SACHEM NEWCORN.

Report of What Was Said When a Committee Called on Rev. Mr. Newell and Asked Him for an Explanation.

After a long silence with apparently no interest, the matter regarding the recent alleged remarks of Rev. G. Kennedy Newell about the burial services of certain lodges has again come to light, and this time in the way of an explanation on the part of the Red Men, whose auxiliary, Degree of Pochohontas, the remarks seemed to be directed at. During the interim the matter has been under investigation by a committe appointed for that purpose, and after due deliberation they have decided to make known the result of their work through their Deputy Great Sachem, Wm. Newcorn.

Soon after the matter became known through the newspapers, the committee very courteously asked Mr. Newell for a copy of the notice he read and the remarks he uttered at Hope chapel, before giving the order's versions on the subject. Mr. Newell disclaimed all responsibility for the published accounts and he refused to grant the request. The entire correspondence was laid before the committee on Friday evening, February 5th, and acting on the advice of Mr. Newcorn, decided to make another effort to see if Mr. Newell would state his position in the matter. The committee waited on the latter, Monday evening, February 8th, at Hope chapel, and they were accorded the interview asked for. At first Mr. Newell took the same stand as he did in his original letters and replied so to that effect. He said that he had no objections to disclose individually what he had said or intended, but did not desire to state his position to representatives of any organization. His attention was called to the fact that he was not dealing with individuals but with an organization, which was really the only one injured by his remarks, and that he was accountable to them. Mr. Newell then stated his position by saying that he took exception to the use of the word "Kish Manitou" in the form of service conducted by the organization. He objected to the use of any word in calling upon the Deity. He was met with the reply that every nationality calls on God in their own language and that it is not disrepectful or heathenish. Mr. Newell thought that the church service was sufficient and he did not believe in the service of societies.

The question concerning the dove as used by the lodge was then recalled, and Mr. Newell said that he did not object to that so much, and when he was asked concerning the report that he had said that a mother whose son was buried had become hysterical because the dove descended instead of rising, he replied that if he did make that remark he would apologize. The committee demanded no apology from Mr. Newell, desiring to let the public judge for themselves as to who was in the right. Continuing Mr. Newcorn said:—

"The Improved Order of Red Men is a strictly American order, and its ritualistic work is founded after the customs and habits of the aborigines, and more especially the six great nations. Its objects are to care for the sick orphans and widows, and to practice charity. Its work being derived from the Indians, the use of a great many Indian names are employed, among which is Kishe Manitou, the word taken exception to by Mr. Newell. The order is non-sectarian, and one of the qualifications for membership is that a person shall declare that there is a Supreme being, the Creator of the Universe.

The ceremonies are grand and impressive, and each meeting is opened and closed with prayer. At present the membership of the order, male and female, is 200,000, representing people in every walk in life, and possessing intelligence. During the past year $700,000 was spent for the relief of its members and the burial of the dead. When members of the order use the words Kishe Manito it only means one thing and that is the Supreme Being, and in its use the members do not consider that they are any more disrespectful than the French or Germans in calling upon God in their own language. If Mr. Newell's idea is carried out people would have to go back to the use of the original Old Testament word "Adonay," which means God, and then they would not be using an English work.

"The order teaches that faith is the foundation of all spiritual belief, and that it is not the language, but what is felt and done that constitutes the devotion, showing a last token of re-

MILLIONS FOR YALE

Recluse Lampson Leaves All His Property to His Alma Mater.

AN ENTIRE UNIVERSITY INCLUDED

Strange Life Led by the Collegebred Leroy, N. Y., Property Owner and Politician---Said To Have Been Related to George Peabody.

New Haven, Conn., Feb. 17.—William Lampson, the Leroy, N. Y., bank president, has apparently ended his life of a recluse by quietly giving to his native university, Yale, one of the richest gifts in its history. The story of his life is unique for its strangeness, 'ts seclusion from the world and its quiet ending, without intimation of the disposition of his million dollars of property. There seems to be little doubt that Mr. Lampson left practically all his property to Yale, including an entire university plant. Yale has been bequeathed many gifts, but a university—never before. In Mr. Lampson's estate are listed the Ingham university buildings in the vicinity of Leroy, his home. If the terms of the will are caried out, these will be at the disposal of Yale, by whom they can be used with great advantage as an observatory or an experiment station. William Lampson was born in Leroy in the house which stood on the site of the residence in which he died. His father held much land and his son William was at his death the richest land owner in the Genesee valley, possessing Ingham university and half the business blocks in Leroy. He was formerly an alderman of Leroy and organized the first national bank ever established there. His career at Yale was in keeping with the rest of his quiet life. He lived alone while in college and possessed one of the finest libraries of any undergraduate. He was an editor of the Yale Literary magazine, was a member of Skull and Bones and had the rank of dissertation as scholarship average. He graduated from the academic department in 1862. A year ago he sustained a slight paralytic shock in the Leroy National bank, but recovered. He was 57 years old. Mr. Lampson was a bachelor and a recluse. He is said to have been a relative of philanthropist George Peabody.

Confessed To Robbing the Mails.

Boston, Feb. 17.—James A. Coughlin, 23 years of age, was arrested last evening charged with stealing letters from the South Boston postoffice last Monday. He has been employed as a drummer for a clothing supply company and in taking orders he took the measurements of his customers. For this purpose he was permitted inside of the enclosure where the letters were kept. While leaving the office he took the letters, twelve in all, from a table, only to be seen by a clerk, who apprehended him. Coughlin pleaded guilty and was held in default of $1,000 bonds for the United States district court.

Fitzsimmons' Training Quarters.

Reno, Nev., Feb. 17.—Martin Julian, Fitzsimmons' manager, who has arrived from the east, says that Fitzsimmons will arrive in Nevada next week. His training quarters have not yet been selected, but from remarks that were made, Danberg's ranch, near Carson, will be the location. Julian said that Fitzsimmons was in perfect condition. Referring to Sharkey's challenge to fight the winner, Julian said: "Should Fitzsimmons defeat Corbett, Sharkey will be accomodated."

Confirmed by the Senate.

Washington, Feb. 17.—The senate has confirmed the following nominations of postmasters: Massachusetts—John J. Winn, Haverhill. New Jersey—William Gill, Rockaway; H. J. Kohlhaas, Paterson; R. Howard Thorn, Ocean City; C. H. Pierson, Bridgeton; J. W. Goddard, Bayonne; Michael A. Devine, Atlantic City; C. W. Scott, Kramer Hill; J. J. Davidson, Swedesboro.

Williamsport, Pa., Feb. 17.—Mary Steiger, a 19-year-old prisoner in the county jail here, was caught just as she was about to swing out to liberty yesterday afternoon. Mary is in jail for housebreaking, and her sentence would have expired on March 4.

London Market Better.

London, Feb. 17.—The tone of the stock exchange market at the opening to-day was quiet and firmer. Similar conditions were reported as prevailing at the opening of the continental bourses.

TEXAS AT GALVESTON.

The Big Battleship Preparing To Receive the Public and Her Silver Service.

Galveston, Tex., Feb. 17.—Arrangements have been completed aboard the battleship Texas for the reception of the public, and this afternoon crowds of people will visit the vessel. She anchored last evening near the quarantine station. She can be plainly seen from the city and the docks and every available space was crowded with humanity to see her round-to and drop her anchors. Her run from New York to this port is said to be the fastest ever made by a battleship, the average run being 12⅛ knots an hour from the time she left New York. Of the 800 tons of coal she had in her bunkers when she left New York, she has about 200 tons left. After leaving the straits of Florida the weather was so thick and foggy that observations were impossible and a sharp lookout was maintained until the mouth of the harbor was reached here. The ship is in first class condition and is being painted and polished up and her officers declare that she is as fine a ship as there is in the navy. The presentation of the silver service will take place on the 19th.

POSTAL RECEIPTS.

Only Nine of the Thirty Largest Offices Show an Increase.

Washington, Feb. 17.—Postmaster General Wilson has given out a statement showing the gross postal receipts of the thirty largest postoffices for the month of January 1897 as compared with that of the same period of 1896, were $2,839,911, and for January 1896 $2,963,384, a net increase of $14,443. The eight largest offices—New York, Chicago, Philadelphia, Boston, St. Louis, San Francisco, Cincinnati and Brooklyn, showed decrease of receipts. Only nine of the thirty larger offices show an increase. They are Baltimore, Cleveland and Detroit, Washington, Milwaukee, Minneapolis, Providence, Albany and Newark.

Naval Appropriation Estimates.

Washington, Feb. 17.—The sub-committee of the house committee on naval affairs, charged with the preparation of the bill making appropriations for the naval establishment for the year ending June 30, 1898, will probably be ready to report the framework of the measure to the full committee to-day. The amount of the appropriation will be fixed by the sub-committee, when Captain Sampson, chief of the bureau of ordnance, will furnish an estimate of the total weight of armor that will be necessary. The sub-committee will base its calculations upon an average price of about $425 per ton for the armor, but the insertion of a specific price per ton will be carefully avoided.

New York Canal Contracts Awarded.

Albany, Feb. 17.—The state department of public works has awarded the following canal contracts: For the construction of a bridge over the Glens Falls feeder, Champlain canal, at Glens Falls, to the Hilton Bridge Construction company of Albany, at $4,057; for replacing pipes under the Erie canal in Rochester, to Chambers & Casey of Rochester, at $2,480; rebuilding the Newark waste weir, western division, Erie canal, to Thos. H. Karr of Troy, at $4,010.

Sullivan Thinks Corbett Will Win.

Philadelphia, Feb. 17.—John L. Sullivan will be tendered a benefit tonight at the Quaker City Athletic club, when he will appear in a four-round bout with Paddy Ryan, his first opponent for the championship. When asked for his opinion on the coming fight between Corbett and Fitzsimmons, he said: "I certainly think Corbett will win, for he is a level-headed chap and has had lots of experience."

To Inspect Torpedo Boat No. 6.

Washington, Feb. 17.—The crew of the torpedo boat Cushing, which was put out of commission yesterday afternoon at the Norfolk navy yard, has gone to Bristol, R. I., to bring hither torpedo boat No. 6 in order to enable members of congress to examine a vessel capable of running nearly thirty knots an hour. Next week the little vessel will give exhibition runs on the Potomac river.

This Man Can Defend Himself.

Bridgeport, Conn., Feb. 17.—Harry C. Rylands, secretary of the Union Metallic Cartridge company, while going home last night with a large sum of money in his pocket, was attacked by three footpads, but Rylands drew a revolver and shot one of them, probably fatally, in the neck. The other two escaped.

A FARM FOR EX-CONVICTS.

A Salvation Army Scheme of Reform Which Appears Practicable.

In the San Ranson Valley, California, a Salvation Army farm for convicts has been put into operation. This institution is the only one of its kind in existence. It opens up to the released convict a channel whereby, outside of city influences and surrounded by every inducement to reform, he may escape from the fate of a confirmed jailbird and become an honest member of the community.

By persistent labor since the farm was deeded to them by George S. Montgomery, the Salvationists have been able to gather together material enough with which to stack it. Several horses, a large quantity of seed wheat and oats, wagons and a number of farming implements have all been placed on the farm within the last few weeks, and nothing remained to be done but to dedicate the place and begin the work of collecting the ex-convicts to take charge of it.

It will be entirely self-supporting, producing all it consumes. Each man's account will be kept. He will be credited with the value of his labor, and his supplies will be given to him at the lowest possible price. An attempt will be made to have nearly all the industries represented. The men who have gone into prison and come out without any skilled ability of any kind will receive a training in some trade, according to their bent. They will leave the home good blacksmiths, orchardists, fruit growers, etc. The Salvation Army proceeds on the principle of helping those who help themselves, giving doles only in cases requiring urgent temporary relief.

The life at the farm will be like that of a family. The men will be surrounded with the best influences. There will be two officers of the army in charge, one to attend to the material wants of the members, the other to the spiritual.

The Salvation Army does not drop its work in the middle. When the men have thoroughly re-established their character, every effort will be made to secure employment for them. The army deputies are in every part of the State, on the lookout for chances of employment and they are in touch with Labor Commissioner Fitzgerald in the splendid work he is doing. When a position is secured for one of these men the employer is told the whole story, but no one else, and the Salvation Army holds itself responsible for them. An effort is usually made to place the men in localities somewhat, if not entirely, removed from the scene of their disgrace.—San Francisco Chronicle.

TWO BOYS AND A WILD CAT.

They Were Looking for 'Possum, but Got the Cat After a Hot Fight.

Two boys in Kentucky had a serious time 'possum hunting recently near Kenton Furnace. John and William Anderson, 15 and 17 years old, went out with their dog after oppossums. They had been out only a short time when the dogs treed what was supposed to be an oppossum. By the dim light of the lantern the boys could see the animal in the tree, and William at once proceeded to climb it to shake the game down to the dogs. When he came near the animal it made a savage spring toward him and he lost his hold and fell with the animal to the ground. The animal proved to be a large wildcat, and it quickly killed both dogs and then jumped on William, who was lying on the ground with a broken arm and a wrenched leg. The younger of the boys drew his barlow knife, his only weapon, and tackled the cat, which left his brother and came at him. After a hard fight the boy came out victor, but he was badly scratched and his clothes were almost entirely gone. The boys got back to their home, but both will be laid up for some time. The wildcat measured over three feet, and is the first one seen in this county for some time.—New York Sun.

How Hog Back Changed Its Name.

"Until a few years ago a little Wisconsin hamlet was known simply as 'Hog Back,' from the peculiar shape of a hill near there," said a Milwaukee drummer. "Finally the citizens held an indignation meeting to wipe out the plebeian name and choose a better one.

"It was decided to honor the place by giving it the name of the oldest settler, a man named King. Somebody suggested 'King's Mills,' and another 'Kingsville,' and so on, but the old man himself objected. Then it was agreed to name the town for one of Mr. King's daughters. But he had seven of them, and jealousies promptly cropped out. At last some genius noted that all the girls were red-headed, and suggested 'Auburndale.' And Auburndale it is to this day."—Chicago Times-Herald.

Some say that the hypophosphites alone are sufficient to prevent and cure consumption, if taken in time. Without doubt they exert great good in the beginning stages; they improve the appetite, promote digestion, and tone up the nervous system. But they lack the peculiar medicinal properties and the fat found in cod-liver oil. The hypophosphites are valuable, and the cod-liver oil is valuable.

Scott's Emulsion

of Cod-liver Oil with Hypophosphites contains both of these in the most desirable form. The oil is thoroughly emulsified; that is, partly digested. Sensitive stomachs can bear an emulsion when the raw oil cannot be retained. As the hypophosphites, the medicinal agents in the oil, and the fat itself are each good, why not have the benefit of all?

SCOTT'S EMULSION has been indorsed by the medical profession for twenty years. (Ask your doctor.) This is because it is always palatable—always uniform—always contains the purest Norwegian Cod-liver Oil and Hypophosphites.

A PRIVILEGE GRANTED.

The De Courcys Were Allowed to Stand Before Royalty With Their Hats On.

It is the privilege of the grandees of Spain to stand in the presence of their sovereign with their hats on. A similar privilege, says a contemporary, is hereditary in but one family in England—the De Courcys, Earls of Kinsale. Six hundred years ago Philip of France summoned King John to answer for the murder of Prince Arthur, or abide the trial by combat. John did neither, but, to save further trouble, induced a brave soldier named De Courcy to act as his champion. When the adversaries met, however, the French knight was so alarmed at the gigantic proportions of his opponent that he declined the combat, thereby losing his honor. As a proof of his quality, De Courcy placed his helmet on a post, and drove his sword through both so hard that none but himself could draw it out. "Never unveil thy bonnet, man, again before King or subject," said John, who was present. "But tell us why thou lookedst so fiercely round ere thou didst deal thy dainty stroke!" "Because, had I failed, I intended to slay all who had dared to mock me." "By the mass," said John, "thou art a pleasant companion; and therewith Heaven keep thee in good beavers!" For generations the De Courcys asserted their privilege by wearing their hat for a few minutes in the presence of their respective sovereigns, and then taking it off like other men. But, at a Drawing-Room in the reign of George III., the head of the family, with more pride than courtesy, continued to keep on his hat the whole time he was in "the presence." The King at last lost patience, and convulsed the entire Court by remarking, "That gentleman has a right to be covered before me; but even King John could give him no right to be covered before ladies."

Delicate Dress Goods.

Some gowns are so dainty in the weave, so delicate in tint, that they seem to soil by being looked at—one or two wearings making them unpresentable, NOT USELESS. We make a specialty of cleaning fine fabrics, the more delicate the material, the better the results. Sometimes an accident will ruin a gown, without injuring the texture. We dye them then, sometimes we get a prettier effect than the original color. Fine goods stand redyeing. The finer the material the better the new color. We charge so little for cleaning or dyeing, that even if you are in doubt as to the result, it's worth while to experiment. Want a new evening gown for a dollar or two? Laundry rivers will receive your work.

EARLY INTELLIGENCE.

—Walter Mundy, of the borough, broke ground yesterday for a new house to be erected on Somerset street, near Grandview avenue.

—Work was started yesterday remodeling the front of the store occupied by "Teddy" Clevely, on North avenue. When completed it will be one of the finest stores on the avenue.

—A concert will be given on Saturday evening in the Parish house of the Grace P. E. church, to be followed by refreshments. It will be given under the auspices of the Helping Hand Society of the church.

A few months ago, Mr. Byron Every, of Woodstock, Mich., was badly afflicted with rheumatism. His right leg was swollen the full length, causing him great suffering. He was advised to try Chamberlain's Pain Balm. The first bottle of it helped him considerably and the second bottle effected a cure. The 25 and 50 cent sizes are for sale by T. S. Armstrong, Apothecary, corner Park and North avenues.

—The work of putting in the elevator in White's dry goods store was started yesterday. The other work of arranging a new department in the rear of the store was completed yesterday.

—The committee having in charge the New England supper to be given by the Woman's Relief Corps next Saturday evening, held a meeting this afternoon to conclude arrangements for the same.

From everywhere come words of praise for Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. "Allow me to congratulate you on the merits of your Remedy. It cured me of chronic bronchitis when the doctor could do nothing for me." —Chas. F. Hemel, Toledo, O. For sale by T. S. Armstrong, Apothecary, corner Park and North avenues.

—Iona Council, D. of P., will hold an anniversary dance in their rooms this evening.

—The box office at Music Hall will be opened at 9 o'clock Thursday morning for the sale of tickets for the production of "Caste," to be given Saturday night February 27th, at the above place. Persons now holding tickets can exchange them Thursday morning for reserved seats.

A GOOD LETTER.

From the Clerk of the Circuit Court, Fernandina, Fla., Feb. 28, 1896.

Mr. J. George Suhrer, Druggist, City.

Dear George:—Please send a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. I would not feel easy if I knew there was none of this valuable Remedy in the house. I have given it a fair test and consider it one of the very best remedies for croup that I have ever found. One dose has always been sufficient, although I use it freely. Any cold my children contract yields very readily to this medicine. I can conscientiously recommend it for croup and colds in children. Yours respectfully, Geo. E. Wolff. Sold by T. S. Armstrong, apothecary, Park & North avenues.

PARTICULAR MENTION.

Isaac Vanderbilt and Mr. Mellick, of New York, were the guests of Plainfield friends yesterday.

Harry Bartling, formerly of Sycamore avenue, but now of Boston, has returned home after a pleasant visit with friends in this city.

Beware of Ointments for Catarrh that Contain Mercury,

as mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completly derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is ten fold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., contains no mercury, and is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. In buying Hall's Catarrh Cure be sure you get the genuine. It is taken internally, and made in Toledo, Ohio, by F. J. Cheney & Co. Testimonials free. Sold by druggists, price 75c. per bottle. Hall's Family Pills are the best.

—A regular meeting of the Exempt Firemen's Association, will be held tomorrow at 8 p. m.

—The price of seats for the Peary lecture, fifty and seventy-five cents, places the opportunity to hear the great navigator within the reach of every Plainfielder.

Mr. Ward L. Smith, of Fredericks-town, Mo., was troubled with chronic diarrhœa for over thirty years. He had become fully satisfied that it was only a question of a short time until he would have to give up. He had been treated by some of the best physicians in Europe and America but got no permanent relief. One day he picked up a newspaper and chanced to read an advertisement of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhœa Remedy. He got a bottle of it, the first dose helped him and its continued use cured him. For sale by T. S. Armstrong, Apothecary, corner Park and North avenues.

MUST STAY INDOORS

Major McKinley is Better, But Still Needs Rest.

SEES ONLY MEMBERS OF HIS FAMILY

Ex-Senator Warner Miller One of the Disappointed Callers---Texas Republican Chairman Enroute to Canton To See McKinley.

Canton, O., Feb. 17.—Word has been received here that Dr. John Grant, state chairman of Texas, is enroute to Canton to see Major McKinley as soon as he is able to be about. Dr. Grant has been recommended for a cabinet portfolio and his visit will give gossips a choice morsel for mastication. It appears, however, that federal patronage in Texas will be the topic of conversation. Dr. Grant is an "original McKinley man" and an old friend of the president-elect. Ex-Senator Warner Miller of New York, in conversation with friends, said the Empire State would probably be without a representative in the president's official family. To the press representatives he declined to discuss the cabinet situation. It is believed here that Mr. Miller intended to urge Major McKinley to recommend the passage of the Nicaraguan canal bill in his message to congress at the special session. The president-elect has kept to his room all morning, seeing no one except the members of his own household, and expects to remain there all day. He is now devoting all his energies to getting well and has no intention of exposing himself unnecessarily. The brief respite from his arduous daily labors will be greatly beneficial to him. Canton troop, which attracted so much attention by receiving delegations during the campaign, has decided to attend the inauguration. The troop will also escort the presidential party from the McKinley home to the depot when Maj. McKinley leaves the city on the evening of March 1.

GAGE LEAVES CHICAGO.

The Next Secretary of the Treasury Starts for Washington with His Family.

Chicago, Feb. 17.—Lyman J. Gage left the city over the Big Four road at 1 o'clock yesterday afternoon bound with his wife and family for Washington. They will go south first, it is explained, possibly visiting Florida, where Mr. Gage will seek rest and seclusion before taking up his duties as secretary of the treasury. They expect to reach Washington about March 1. "I do not wish to tell my present destination," said Mr. Gage, before leaving. "My desire is to get a little rest before I go to Washington. I shall stop off somewhere and try and get a brief respite before taking up my duties."

Gen. Clayton and the Mexican Mission.

St. Louis, Feb. 17.—Gen. Powell Clayton of Arkansas, who is here on business, refuses to affirm or deny the report that he has been offered the post of minister to Mexico by Major McKinley. "My friends," said he, "have moved in the matter and with what success it would be indelicate for me to say until after the inauguration. I will say, however, that if the mission is tendered to me I will accept it."

X-Rays To Be Used in a Damage Suit.

Columbus, O., Feb. 17.—John R. Hughes, who has been sued by Patrick McGraw for $10,000 damages alleged to have been suffered in an accident in an elevator in Hughes' building, filed a motion in common pleas court yesterday afternoon for an order of the court compelling McGraw to submit to an examination by the surgeons, with the aid of the Roentgen rays, to ascertain whether he suffered the fracture of bones in the accident which he claims to have suffered. It is said to be the first time in the history of courts that such an order had been asked for.

The Cotton Mill Curtailment.

Biddeford, Me., Feb. 17.—Nine hundred looms in the Laconia and Pepperell mills here, a larger number than was anticipated when the recent curtailment agreement was announced by cotton manufacturers, are idle this week. They will be shut down until March 1, when they will be started, other looms then shutting down, and the employes who are now idle will take the place of those at work.

Guilty with Intent To Kill.

Boston, Feb. 17.—After a deliberation of one hour and a half the jury returned a verdict of guilty against Wm. H. Jordan in the suuperior criminal court yesterday afternoon. The charge against Jordan was assault and battery with intent to kill John Holmes, a creditor, in his store at 386 Broadway, South Boston, on the morn- of Nov. 30, 1896.

Fugitive from Justice Extradited.

Montreal, Feb. 17. — Louis Levy, wanted in Philadelphia on a charge of perjury, left last night for Philadelphia in charge of Detective Goldfow of the Quaker City. Levy was found guilty of perjury by a Philadelphia jury, but managed to escape from custody and came here, where he was arrested.

Secretary Herbert Leaves for Charleston.

Washington, Feb. 17.—Secretary of of the Navy Herbert and party will leave here this afternoon via the Atlantic coast line in a special car for Charleston, S. C., to witness the naval manoeuvres of the North Atlantic squadron.

New York Railroad Commissioners.

Albany, Feb. 17.—The senate has unanimously confirmed the nominations of George W. Dunn and Ashley Cole to be state railroad commissioners. The nomination of Frank M. Baker was confirmed by a strict party vote of 30 to 13.

WORK IN CONGRESS

Senate To Vote on Immigration Bill This Afternoon.

NO EXECUTIVE SESSION TO-DAY

Senator Sherman Will Try To Force a Vote on the Arbitration Treaty To-morrow---Allabach Pension Veto Sustained.

Washington, Feb. 17.—In the senate to-day the unfinished business is still the bankruptcy bill, which has now occupied the attention of that body for several days. Senator Chandler's speech yesterday on his resolution declaring it to be the sense of the senate that the United States should not permanently acquiesce in the single gold standard is pronounced by fellow members to be one of the best the gentleman from New Hampshire has ever delivered. He succeeded in gaining and keeping the attention of the senate from the beginning to the end of a three hours' speech. It was particularly pleasing to the silver senators. He attributes the fall of values in this and other countries for the last twenty years to the progressive steps in the demonetization of silver, and estimates the depreciation of property in the United States since the census of 1890, when it was given at fifteen thousand millions of dollars, at 36 per cent. He asked whether such continuous shrinkage of property and increasing burden of debt could be endured without widespread bankruptcy. If it had not been for the fortunate balance of trade in favor of the United States in 1896 there would have been, he asserted, a cataclysm in this country which would have prostrated all interests. "To the system of bimetallism from which we departed," he said, "we must return, and I trust that we are already on the road." He quoted Senator Sherman's speech on silver in 1876 in which it was said that nothing but the act of God would prevent the use of both gold and silver among the nations of mankind; and he facetiously anticipated the aid which Mr. Sherman would give to the cause of bimetallism as the leader of the new administration. He declared his belief that the new administration would by wise designs and virtuous deeds, prolong indefinitely the ascendancy of the republican party, but said that if it content itself with seizing and enjoying the spoils of office, treating bimetallism as a "juggling humbug," the tide of political battle would once more be turned against the republicans and they would soon exchange places with their now sore, bleeding and prostrate foe. This afternoon at 4 o'clock the senate will take the vote on the immigration bill conference report. Owing to this fact, Senator Sherman changed his notice of an executive session for the consideration of the arbitration treaty from to-day until to-morrow, at which time, he said, he would ask the senate to remain in session until the vote was taken.

House of Representatives.

The house refused to pass the bill granting a pension at the rate of $30 a month to Nancy C. Allabach, widow of Peter H. Allabach, in the latter years of his life captain of the capitol police, which President Cleveland vetoed. A number of house bills granting pensions which had been amended in the senate were laid before the house and the amendments agreed to.

Naval Manoeuvres off Charleston.

Charleston, S. C., Feb. 17.—The day with Admiral Bunce's fleet opened uneventful. Exercises with the main batteries were resumed at an early hour. By 9 o'clock the roar of the big guns could be distinctly heard in the city. These exercises were practically identical with those of yesterday. The practice was then discontinued till 2 p. m. when it will be resumed. Last night there was some exercising with the Coston signal, but no movement of general interest. The battleship Maine will sail for Port Royal to-night or to-morrow morning.

Fierce Fighting in the Philippines.

Madrid, Feb. 17.—The government has received a dispatch from Manila stating that heavy fighting has taken place between the Spanish and the Philippine rebels in which 400 rebels were killed and the troops lost twenty-six men killed and sixty wounded. The troops at the point of the bayonet captured the entrenched positions of the rebels on the Umus road.

Sentenced to Life Imprisonment.

White Plains, N. Y., Feb. 17.—Henry Williams, colored, 19 years old, of Providence, R. I., was convicted of murder in the second degree yesterday afternoon in the supreme court here and was at once sentenced to imprisonment for life. He was a prisoner in the county jail and killed Charles Phlag, also a prisoner, on Jan. 24 last.

Excursion to the Big Fight.

Columbus, O., Feb. 17.—An excursion to Carson to witness the fight between Corbett and Fitzsimmons is being arranged to go from this city. William Stryckler, a well-known sporting man says there will be at least seventy-five persons from this city at the great fight.

Killed While Seeking Work.

Schnectady, N. Y., Feb. 17.—Andrew J. Kelley of this city went to the Aqueduct to obtain work yesterday on the canal contract. A blast was exploded and Kelly was hit on the top of the head by a stone. He was brought to the hospital here and died later.

VAGARIES OF POLITICS.

Politics certainly do make strange bedfellows, as the saying goes, and especially true it seems right here in Plainfield—stronghold of the G. O. P. A twelve month ago Vincent L. Frazee was considered one of the never say fail Democrats, but today he stands honored by Republicans with a place in the very Councilmanic body in which two years ago he sat as the "Lone Star" of Democracy's hope in municipal life. Mr. Frazee retired from the circle of city fathers with the halo of Jeffersonian ideas hovering around about him, but now he asserts his total absolution of things Democrtic. There are those who think political life in Plainfield is void of zest and picturesqueness, but such is not the case.

LISTENED TO HONEYED WORDS.

Assemblyman Roll is keeping up his reputation as a friend of corporate interests. A lively tilt was precipitated in the House yesterday by Assemblyman Roll, when he moved to have recommitted the bill providing for the vestibuling of trolley cars. Assemblyman Scovel opposed the motion in a fierce speech, and said the motion was designed to promote the smothering of the bill by burying it in Chairman Roll's desk. He intimated that Mr. Roll had made his motion after listening to the honeyed words of a member of the House representing the trolley companies. He said that Mr. Roll was up to his old tricks. Assemblyman Roll's motion was defeated, he being the only one to vote for it.

A MAN FOR THE PLACE.

The fitness of James K. Arnold as Borough Clerk has been demonstrated a number of times during his administration, and only recently another evidence was afforded for this claim. The auditing committee of the Borough Council held a meeting a few nights ago, during which time they inspected a new set of books that was recently opened by Mr. Arnold. Their neatness, thoroughness and easiness of comprehension were so marked that the committee paid him a high compliment over the fact.

Funeral of a Junior Machanic.

The funeral services of the late John Pearson, of Wilson avenue, was held from the house yesterday afternoon at 2 o'clock. There was a very large attendance of friends including members of Somerset and Franklin councils, Jr. O. U. A. M., and many employes of the Pond Tool Works. The services were conducted by Paul Loizeaux, of Plymouth Brethren. After all present had reviewed the remains the members of the above order took charge and conveyed the departed to Evergreen cemetery where he was interred. The floral tributes consisted of a large pillow from Somerset Council, a wreath and several bunches of flowers.

Wholesale Liquor Store to be Opened.

The Plainfield Bottling company have leased the Charles Bock place adjoining the bridge, on Somerset street, and will open in a few days a wholesale liquor store. It is understood that Judge Bartine has given his consent to have the license tranferred to that place. The business was formerly in the hands of John Hibbitts and he disposed of it to this company of which Fred W. Hand is one of the members.

A Cottage Meeting.

The members of the Epworth League of the Monroe Avenue M. E. Church held a cottage prayer meeting at the home of Mrs. Camon, of West Front street, last evening. The meeting was well attended.

A Pool Tourney.

The handicap pool tournament was continued at the pool rooms of Charles Krewson, last evening. Schuyler defeated Stuart, 100 to 65. Piker defeated Wet 100 to 62.

DOINGS OF THE PEOPLE.

Mr. R. B. Greeve, merchant, of Chilhowie, Va., certifies that he had consumption, was given up to die, sought all medical treatment that money could procure, tried all cough remedies he could hear of, but got no relief; spent many nights sitting up in a chair; was induced to try Dr. King's New Discovery, and was cured by use of two bottles. For past three years has been attending to business, and says Dr. King's New Discovery is the grandest remedy ever made, as it has done so much for him and also for others in his community. CAUGHT HIS HAND IN A BELT.

Augustus Sergeant Suffered a Painful Injury at Scott's This Noon.

Augustus Sergeant, of East Second street, an employe of the Walter Scott Printing Machine Works, met with an exceedingly painful accident this forenoon just before stopping work. He had shut off his machine, but the belt started up again and caught young Sergeant in the right hand. The belt being worn out it was filled with brads and these were the means of lacerating the palm of the hand almost in half. As soon as possible Sergeant reached Dr. Long's house where he had the wound treated. It will be a long time before he will be able to work again.

THINGS THAT INTEREST SCOTCH PLAINS AND DUNELLEN.

Brief and Terse Observations Gathered by Alert Press Reporters to be Perused at the Supper Table at Your Leisure

DUNELLEN AND NEW MARKET.

Matthias Giddis, of Springdale, is visiting his brother, Joel, here.

John Wynhusky, of Flemington is visiting his brother Charles, on Front street.

Miss Bella Martin, of Bloomsbury, is visiting the family of Walter Fleet, on Front street.

Mr. and Mrs. William Connolly, of this place, spent Sunday with relatives at Glen Gardner.

John Connolly, of Glen Gardner, has been visiting his brother in the borough for a day or two past.

After a prolonged and painful illness Miss Lizzie Hunt, of Front street, is able to go out of doors again.

Miss Mamie Hunt and Miss Annie Maier have been visiting among relatives and friends at Somerville.

Peter Sutton and family are visiting friends at Centreville, Hunterdon county. They left home yesterday.

Harry J. Swackhammer will Monday next remove from his present location on Lincoln avenue to his father's new house on Dunellen avenue.

Drill Engine No. 75 has been consigned to the Elizabethport shops for repairs, and Engineer Wilcox is now in command of No. 218 engine.

Already there is considerable wire pulling being done with reference to the coming borough election, and it is not unlikely that there will be three or four different tickets in the field.

Little Ethel, the seven-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Emory, who has been so dangerously ill with pneumonia for several days past, was much improved last night.

Everything is in readiness for the granting of a State charter to the Dunellen fire department, and it is expected that at the meeting to be held on the 18th instant all the plans will be consummated.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Lyons, of Front street, are the proud parents of a bouncing ten pound son. The little fellow reached here yesterday and can already proclaim to the world that he has come to stay.

Dunellen's finances, her assets and liabilities were thoroughly discussed at an adjourned meeting of the Borough Council, held in the new Council Chamber, last evening. It was well onto 9 o'clock when Mayor Brakeley called the meeting to order. The main object of the meeting was to act upon the report of the Auditing Committee.

The report went into detail and showed that $1,049.57 was still on the delinquent tax budget. The Treasurer's receipts, since the present incumbent went into office, amount to $4,031.92, and of this amount $1,463.77 is on hand and available for current expenses. $98.06 yet remains to the credit of the poor fund. If all the taxes were collected in there would be in excess over liabilities something like $800.

The Mayor stated that a committee had been appointed at the last meeting to confer with the Piscataway Township officials, with reference to the apportionment of railroad taxes, and Mr. Gaskill stated that two attempts had been made to come to an amicable adjustment, the last one on Monday of this week, but no decision had been reached. The Piscataway Township Committee had given notice that they would be governed entirely by their Counsel and in due course of time would communicate with the borough officials. The report was accepted and the committee continued.

Mayor Brakeley stated that a petition had been received from the Watchung Water Company, asking permission to lay pipes throughout the streets of the borough. It was received and filed.

The amounts to be voted for or against at the next election were fixed at $1,500 for borough purposes and $300 for the poor—the same amounts voted last year.

DRAMATIC ENDING OF KURZHALS DIVORCE CASE MAKES TALK.

Partial List of the Witnesses Who Were Subpœnaed to Give the Evidence, But Who Never Got a Chance to Say a Word.

ANNOUNCEMENT.

Of itself Westfield is not large enough to support a daily paper, but its citizens are active and progressive enough to furnish a lively news letter each day, and that is just what The Daily Press intends furnishing so long as Westfielders evidence by their patronage a demand for a daily resume of the local happenings. Orders given to Percy Clark will receive prompt attention.

Gossip still rages over the dramatic ending of the Kurzhals divorce case yesterday. No less than thirty-three witnesses had been cited to appear, all but six being Westfielders. A surprise party was tendered Miss Tessie Scudder, at her home on North Broad street, last Friday evening. Games were played, with music between times, all enjoying themselves very much. During the evening refreshments were served. Owing to the storm many were prevented from coming.

The Woman's Association of the Congregational church gave a parlor entertainment Monday evening evening at the residence of Mrs. Albert A. Drake. Miss Minnie Williams gave a recital of Shakespere's "A Midsummer Night's Dream," assisted by Miss Caroline H. Beebee, with Mendelssohn's music. Miss Nellie Drake gave several selections on the piano and Mr. Pearsall gave a recitation.

John Marsh is rapidly regaining his health and is now seen daily making his rounds on his butcher wagon. Mr. Marsh says he feels much better out of doors, as he has never been subjected to much indoor work.

Weather permitting the stone crusher on the mountain near here will resume operation on April 1st. Some improvements have been made to the machinery, and everything is now in readiness for the spring business.

The revival services were continued in the Baptist church last evening and with great success. The meeting was largely attended and great enthusiasm was shown. Evangelist Stout is doing excellent work and he is ably assisted by the pastor of the church, Rev. J. A. Braker.

Something to Know.

It may be worth something to know that the very best medicine for restoring the tired out nervous system to a healthy vigor is Electric Bitters. This medicine is purely vegetable, acts by giving tone to the nerve centres in the stomach, gently stimulates the Liver and Kidneys, and aids these organs in throwing off impurities in the blood. Electric Bitters improves the appetite, aids digestion, and is pronounced by those who have tried it as the very best blood purifier and nerve tonic. Try it. Sold for 50c or $1.00 per bottle at L. W. HER OLD SLAVE AIDED HER.

The Reason Why the Color Line Was Not Drawn on One Patron.

Two members from Mississippi were swapping stories during the intervals between refreshments when in an accidental way the name of ex-Senator Blanche K. Bruce was mentioned. "That reminds me," said one, "of a story told me a long time ago by a barkeeper at the Ebbitt. I was in there one day when Bruce came in, went into one of the side rooms, and having been served, walked out without saying anything to any one.

"'You don't draw the color line here, John,' I remarked to the barkeeper.

"'Not on that man, sir, I don't,' was the reply. 'I have had a pretty good opinion of him since a little thing that happened soon after he first came here.

"'Bruce was in his seat at the Capitol one day when a card was brought to him. He read it and at once went out to the waiting-room. There he met the woman who owned him when he was a slave. With her was her daughter. Both were in tears. She had lost all her property during the war, and was absolutely penniless. The negro once her slave was the only man she knew in Washington. She appealed to him. Bruce listened to her story. He got his hat and went outside with her. His carriage, drawn by a handsome pair of bays was waiting there. He called the carriage, assisted the mother and daughter to enter it with as much deference as he could possibly have shown them in the old plantation days, closed the door and told the coachman to drive to the Treasury. Then he called a public cab and followed. The three entered the Treasury together, and before Bruce came out he had placed in the hands of the woman he had once called "Missus" an appointment to a good clerkship in the Treasury Department.'

"That," added the Mississippi member, "was the reason why the barkeeper didn't draw the color line at Blanche K. Bruce, and seems to me the reason was a mighty good one, too."—Washington Post.

RUBBER TEETH NOW.

An Invention of a New York Dentist Which May Prove of Great Value.

An entirely new thing in teeth has been invented which places artificial masticators within the reach of the masses. The inventor and manufacturer is a well-known New York dentist.

The invention is a departure from anything heretofore introduced in modern dentistry. It consists of a complete artificial set of teeth made entirely of rubber, the base, or plate, and the teeth being formed integrally. In their manufacture an ingenious method is employed which not only insures a correct formation of the artificial masticators, whereby they are made to closely resemble nature's product, but also simplifies the process of what is called "setting the teeth up." A hollow, flexible metallic matrix, which both internally and externally reproduces the formation of the natural teeth, is made, which, when filled with rubber and vulcanized, produces a perfectly formed set of teeth.

One of the greatest advantages of the rubber teeth, aside from their cheapness, is their extreme lightness. They weigh less than half as much as any other form of denture.—New York Journal.

Electrical Rat-Killing.

A Kansas City electrical supply shop has an electrical method of catching rats in the electrician's cellar. A large square of plate iron is placed on the floor, and above it another plate, not so large, and separated from the other, at the distance of an inch or so, by porcelain insulators. To each plate is attached a wire connected with a dynamo having a 1,000 volt alternating current. On the upper iron plate is scattered a seductive luncheon of bacon rinds, old cheese and tallow.

When a rat steps on the lower plate the current has no effect on him; but the instant he puts his paws on the upper plate to reach for the cheese the full force of electricity reaches every part if his sinewy body, and, contracting it suddenly, shoots him into the air in somersaults. The other rats, observing this, think he is jumping for joy and hasten to the feast. One after the other they are shot into the air and fall to the floor stunned, when they are easily captured and killed. Thus it is that science lends itself to even so humble an occupation as rat-killing.—New York World.

A Natural Apparatus.

"In Florida they have marsh hens that build their nests in the grass or in 'logs,'" said A. P. Cornell, of Jacksonville, at the National. "I was hunting along the upper St. John's River when I saw what at first appeared to be a log. Then I noticed that one end was split and went to investigate it. I soon saw that the object was a dead alligator, with its mouth wide open, and as I approached a marsh hen flew from between its jaws, making a fuss that indicated its nest was near. On reaching the alligator I found its nest in its mouth, with four eggs in it. The saurian's remains appeared to be whole, except a portion of the tail, which had rotted away. I went to turn the body over, and found that was a regular apartment-house. From the tail emerged three good-sized moccasin snakes, and from a hole in the side that I had not seen a ground-hog emerged, while the hen that occupied the mouth strenuously objected to my interfering with her home.—Washington Star.

He—Jones is all right, I suppose, but he and I do not like each other a bit.

POLLY ON A BIKE.

A Trained Parrot that Rides the Bicycle Holding on With Beak and Claws.

Now the winged steed has captured the winged creation. In Paris at one of the theatres the latest in the way of bicycle trick riding is done by parrots. A parrot is put upon a tiny wheel of the exact pattern of those ridden by human beings. He grasps the handle bar in his beak and with his claws gets a good grip on the pedals.

The wings are clipped so that he must depend solely on his leg power for locomotion. He rides about a little table furnished with a raised rim, to keep the feathered pedaller from taking a header over the edge. The parrot rides around apparently much at his ease, now and then giving vent to a hoarse cry of joy.

After several spins around the table, the bird is dismounted and placed upon another wheel, this one having hollow tires to fit a wire. A wire is then swung across the whole length of the room. The bicycle and parrot are put on it, and at a signal Polly works his legs and at full speed a la Blondin traverses the hall amid enthusiastic applause. To keep the equilibrium a second parrot is put on a trapeze underneath the frame and seems to enjoy the free ride immensely.—New York Journal.

MEN WITH ONE IDEA.

Strange Fancies that Have Become the Ruling Passion.

The man with one idea, and that idea the passion, the end-all and the be-all of life, is a numerous individual, and there is infinite variety to his eccentricity.

A clever French doctor, who had made a fortune in his profession, spent every penny of it in purchasing expensive chemicals in the attempt to construct a human body and to endow it with life. He died firmly believing that, given another opportunity, he would have realized his great ambition.

There is a man in England who once found his double in the crowd on the Strand. The next instant he lost him, and since then, day in and day out, he has paced up and down that street hoping to catch his physical counterpart again. That is his business in life.

There is a man who believes he can solidify the salt in the sea, the man who has a scheme to bridge the Atlantic and the man who dreams of harnessing the tides. This is a very practical age, but it is the age of visionaries. Perhaps, after all, it's the visionaries who keep the world from going backward.

The Coachman's Fault.

An omnibus was going along a crowded thoroughfare with an immense railway van travelling by its side, but just a little in its rear. As they passed a certain street, out shot a dogcart at full speed, driven by a young gentleman with his coachman sitting beside him with folded arms. The driver of the omnibus pulled up short, and the dog-cart dashed across it, only to meet the full force of the van.

The youthful personage on the top of it, with his coachman, was, of course, thrown out, but otherwise not seriously damaged.

Then came the inevitable policeman, and the question whose fault it was.

The omnibus driver, who had seen it all, was appealed to by all parties.

"Was it my fault?" inquired the young gentleman.

"Your fault! Well, certainly not," growled the philosopher.

"Then whose fault was it?" continued the youth, greatly pleased, and naturally expecting the vanman to be denounced.

"Well, it was your coachman's."

"But how could that be? He was doing nothing; how could that be his fault?"

"Why, just because he was doin' nothin' and lettin' a baby like you drive!"

The Medium Was Correct.

Mr. Greville was persuaded, when he was over sixty-five years of age, to attend a spiritualistic seance. Foster, the presiding medium, was in great form, and the revelations were astounding. Greville sat silent, and his aged, wizened face was emotionless as a mask. Suddenly the medium grew excited, and said to the old gentleman:—

"A female form is bending over you. Oh, the extraordinary likeness!"

Greville sighed.

"She lifts her hands to bless you."

Greville sighed again.

"It is your mother!"

"Ah, poor thing," said Greville; "I am glad."

"She smiles! She says all is well with her!"

Greville sighed again, and said, "I'm delighted!"

"She says she will see you soon. You are old, and you must see her before long."

Then Greville quietly observed, "That's very true! I'm going to take tea with her this evening."

Tableau!

Shoe on the Other Foot.

It is said that while Rudyard Kipling was in England he became very partial to Miss Dorothy Drew, Mr. Gladstone's grand-daughter. He met her at a country house, and, being very fond of children, took her about the grounds and told her stories. After a time, Mrs. Drew, fearing that Mr. Kipling must have had enough of the child's society, called her, and said, "Now, Dorothy, I hope you have been a good child and have not been wearying Mr. Kipling." "Oh, not a bit, mother," replied the little girl; "but you've no idea how Mr. Kipling has been wearying me!"

UTILIZING COBWEBS.

The Manner in Which It Is Obtained for Surveying Instruments.

Cobwebs have been applied to various uses. The delicate cross hairs in the telescopes of surveying instruments are fine webs taken from spiders of species that are specially selected for their production of an excellent quality of this material. The spider, when caught, is made to spin his thread by tossing him from hand to hand, in case he is indisposed to furnish the article. The end is attached to a piece of wire which is doubled into two parallel lengths, the distance apart exceeding a little the diameter of the instrument. As the spider hangs and descends from this, the web is wound upon it by turning the wire around. The coils are then gummed to the wire and kept for use as required. About a century ago, Bon of Languedoc succeeded in making a pair of gloves and a pair of stockings from the thread of the spider. They were very strong, and of a beautiful gray color. Other attempts of the same kind have been made; but Reaumur has stated that the web of the spider was not equal to that of the silkworm, either in strength or lustre. The cocoons of the latter weigh from three to four grains, so that 2,304 worms produce a pound of silk; but the bags of the spider, when cleaned, do not weigh above the third part of a grain.

A GLOBE-TROTTING DOG.

Donnie II. Has Placed 40,000 Miles to His Credit in the Last Few Years.

"Donnie II., the property of Capt. A. H. MacMahon, is winner of first in novice, and third in limit and open classes at Northampton show. In his short spell of life he has travelled some 40,000 miles, of which some 20,000 have been by sea, some 8,000 on horseback, and some 12,000 by rail. It does not often fall to the lot of any dog to have made three journeys to and from India, to have traversed the length and breadth of that great continent, and visited Afghanistan, Beloochistan, and Persia, and as he has accompanied his master on his wanderings in countries where roads do not exist and wheeled conveyances are unknown, he has been obliged to acquire the art of riding horseback, which is a feat that will endear him to every sporting Briton, man or woman. He is equally at home in the saddle, whether his steed walks, trots, canters, or gallops. With his hind quarters against his master's waistcoat, he is quite independent of steadying hand, and has a firm seat even over jumps, and 8,000 miles on horseback is a fact that speaks for itself as to his balance.—New York Sun.

BEAR TRAP, SWEDISH STYLE.

It Caught the Bear, but American Frills Proved Too Much for It.

Sven Larsen has tried the Swedish method of trapping bears, with American trimmings. The bear fell in with the Swedish plan, but kicked on the American frills, and is still at liberty.

John Watson runs a small sawmill, and in the spring turns his attention to boiling maple sugar, in which he is assisted by Larsen. The other day he sent Larsen down to the sawmill to fire up the boiler. In a short time Sven came running back breathlessly shouting between gasps:

"Hand me the gun! A big, black devil has his head in the boiler."

Watson called another man, seized a rifle, and started toward the woods. Larsen and the other hired hand following, armed with axes. The bear had disappeared when they arrived at the sawmill, and with it a fine big ham which had been left in a small smoke house.

Larsen then began to tell how he had seen bears trapped in Sweden, and proposed to catch this one. He secured an empty oil barrel, knocked in one of the heads, and smeared the interior with maple syrup and honey. He secured assistance, and carried the barrel toward a spot where the bear was supposed to reside. He dug a hole in the ground, and let the barrel down into the earth, leaving about ten inches above the ground, filling the earth lightly about the barrel. He also threw in a piece of ham bone for bruin to catch a whiff of as an extra inducement.

The following day, while the men were working in a clump of woods near by, they heard a scratching and growling in the direction of the bear trap, and hurried toward it. Sure enough there was a big black bear headforemost in the barrel, stuck in tight.

Larsen was anxious to run to the log house and get a rifle with which to shoot it. Watson suggested a cheaper and quicker method. His was to dip water out of the run near by, pour it into the barrel, and drown the bear. This improvement on the Swedish system of bear trapping started trouble. Larsen and the other laborer filled two buckets, and poured one into the barrel over the bear's back. As the ice-cold water flowed down its shaggy coat the bear carried on at a furious rate. It clawed, snorted, sneezed, and fought with its hind paws.

Larsen had started to throw the second bucket of water down the bear's spine when it gave an unearthly growl and tore itself free from the barrel with a jerk.

Larsen threw the bucket at the bear, hitting it full on the snout, which the bear stopped to rub an instant before starting in pursuit of Larsen. The latter thus gained about a hundred yards. Larsen made for an embankment and just cleared the hill, rolling over and over, as the bear made a vicious lunge after him with his paw. The bear did not follow. It sat down and licked the syrup, honey and blood from its body and slowly trotted off toward the woods.—New York Sun.

The Queen Dislikes Inaccuracy.

Inaccuracy in an important newspaper as to royal matters gives the Queen grave annoyance, and it has been known for an official to call and complain of the misstatement and demand a rectification. Not long ago an illustrated London paper gave a picture in which her Majesty was represented as holding the arm of her Indian attendant. Within a short space of time a member of the royal household called on the editor to state the absurdity of such an error. The Queen is much annoyed at this mistake on the part of your artist, as it might give grievous offense to important persons in India. She could never take the arm of a servant." This will show how closely she watches even the pictorial press. When a good illustration appears of any state function it is a common incident for the artist to be requested to visit the Queen, very likely to receive a commission.

One Was Entirely Enough.

The small girl had been naughty, and mamma had found it necessary to reprimand her. She closed her remarks by saying seriously: "Now, remember that though I cannot always see what you do, God is always with you." It was summer, and the little girl, in a not very amiable frame of mind, started off for a walk, as she was accustomed to do, and the big Newfoundland dog belonging to the family started to follow, as he, also, was accustomed to do. But he was not to go this time. "Go home," said the little maiden, turning suddenly and stamping her foot when she saw him. "Go home. It is bad enough to have God tagging after me all the time without having you come along, too."—New York Times.

W. D. Howells's Manuscript.

People who have seen manuscripts of W. D. Howells' writing have been surprised that the work of a man who is such a prolific writer should show so many changes. One little sketch of his that I happened to see," says an admirer of the author, "was crossed out and rewritten many times. And it was a simple sketch, not a story—one that I should have thought he would have written at a sitting without changing a word."—New York Times.

AFFAIRS IN CUBA.

Shameful Treatment of Women Political Prisoners—More Troops Arrive.

Havana, Feb. 17.—Much adverse comment has been excited even among Spaniards here by the fact that the house of refuge is the only place in the city in which women prisoners are kept. The Diario de la Marina denounces the place and declares it an outrage that women of high social standing who are arrested on suspicion of having rebel sympathies should be compelled to associate with the class of women for whom the prison is intended. There are only forty-two cells in the place, yet seventy-four women are confined there. In view of the scarcity of meat here a petition has been presented to the government asking that the free importation be allowed of cattle from Mexico and the United States. The steamer Satrustegui arrived yesterday from Barcelona. She brought 700 troops and a large number of officers. Captain General Weyler remains at Cabaiguan, in the Cienfuegos district. It is reported that some of the merchants here contemplate the establishment of a line of steamers to compete with the New York and Cuba Mail Steamship company (the Ward line). The Diario de la Marina says that the Santo Domingo press announces the death of Quintin Bandera, the well known rebel leader.

DROPPED HIS MASK OF INSANITY.

Millionaire Murderer Duestrow Ceased To Dissemble on the Scaffold.

Union, Mo., Feb. 17.—Dr. Arthur Duestrow, the St. Louis millionaire, hanged here yesterday for the murder of his wife and child, threw off the mask of insanity he has worn since the crime and admitted his guilt just before he mounted the scaffold. His pleadings for life aroused pity among his auditors notwithstanding the aversion in which he was held through the enormity of his crime.

Death of an Old Postal Employe.

New York, Feb. 17.—Henry Taylor, more familiarly known as "Uncle Harry," one of the oldest employes of the postal service of the country, is dead at his residence in Brooklyn. He had been engaged in the postal service here continuously since April 10, 1847, and at the time of his death was 83 years old. Mr. Taylor was proud of his record in the office and used to tell visitors how thirty-five or forty years ago he and another man used to handle all the local and nearby mail, forty men being now required to do the same work.

Lloyd's Marriage License Bill.

Trenton, Feb. 17.—Lloyd's marriage license bill was reported in the house last night with amendment by the committee on judiciary. The amendment provides that justices of the peace may take affidavits from parties desiring to be married and obtain for them a license from the county clerk. This is to obviate the necessity of journeying to the county seat for a license. The amendment was agreed to and the bill ordered to a third reading. It will come up on third reading next Monday evening.

Tariff Decision at New Haven.

New Haven, Conn., Feb. 17.—In the United States court here Judge Townsend sustained the appeal of Lillian Russell from the decision of the New York custom house assessors, who had assessed duties of $2,799 on 162 packages of stage properties. The judge held that she was to be assessed under the Wilson tariff law instead of the higher duties of the McKinley law, the goods falling under the rule which allows six months' exemption when they are for exhibition and not for sale, with six months' additional time for sending them back.

Gen. Couch's Body Lying in State.

Taunton, Mass., Feb. 17.—The body of Gen. D. N. Couch arrived in this city yesterday afternoon in charge of a detachment of Buckingham Post of Norwalk, Conn. It was at once conveyed to St. Thomas' church where it will lie in state until 2:30 this afternoon, when the last rites will be observed. A detachment of Post 3, of which deceased was a member, and of Gen. D. N. Couch Sons of Veterans, met the remains at the Central passenger station and acted as escort to the church.

Lexow Trust Investigation.

New York, Feb. 17.—The senate Lexow committee is to-day continuing its investigation of the rubber trust, with Mr. Flint, treasuer of the United States Rubber company, in the witness chair. The investigation of the sugar trust brought out the fact that one of the objects of the formation of the combine was to reduce the number of workmen employed and to be in a position to put down strikes or any labor disturbances.

Benham Breaking Down.

Batavia, N. Y., Feb. 17.—Howard C. Benham, charge with the murder of his wife by poison here, passed two very restless nights in the Genesee county jail since his committal Monday for the action of the grand jury. He is miserable in his present condition, and it is believed he will be a mental and physical wreck.

Imitated a Union Labor Label.

Newark, N. J., Feb. 17.—Vice-Chancellor Emery has granted an injunction restraining Wooley & Crane, large hat manufacturers, from using a hat label, an alleged imitation of the union label. The proceedings were brought by the United Hatters of North America. The defence will be heard in a week.

Death of Mrs. Mary Ann Reed.

Hartford, Feb. 17.—Mrs. Mary Ann Reed, mentioned by Charles Dickens in his "American Notes," died at the retreat for the insane, of which she had been an inmate for fifty-three years, last evening, aged 92 years.

FIRST GREEK VICTORY

News from Crete Causes Wild Enthusiasm at Athens.

FORT AGHIA ATTACKED AND CAPTURED

Four Hundred Moslam Prisoners Taken—Among the Number Are One Hundred Turkish Soldiers—War Preparations Continue.

Athens, Feb. 17.—The first definite news of a Greek victory in Crete has been received here, and the wildest enthusiasm followed the receipt of the intelligence. The Greeks, it is said, attacked and captured Fort Aghia, taking four hundred Mussulmans prisoners. Among the number are one hundred Turkish soldiers, the remainder of the prisoners being Moslems who had taken refuge in the fort. Details of the report are lacking. One report states that no fighting occurred, the garrison surrendering upon the demand of the Greek commander. As no mention of any losses is made in any of the dispatches, it is surmised that this report is true. Notwithstanding the reports that the powers would take concerted action to prevent Greece from taking further hostile action of Crete, warlike preparations are being made with all possible dispatch. In addition to the "corps of occupation" already in the island, which corps numbers 1,500 men of all arms, another regiment embarked upon a transport and sailed for Crete last night. Another regiment will sail thence this evening. The government is preparing for every possible contingency, and has summoned two classes of the naval reserves for active service. The people are in a frenzy of excitement and demend that the Cretan question be settled now and for all time. It is popularly thought that when the powers find the annexation of the island, which Greece has in view, an accomplished fact, they will readily acquiesce in this spoliation of the Turk.

ITALY AROUSED.

Philo-Crete Agitation Being Carried on Throughout the Country.

Rome, Feb. 17.—The bold action of Greece in attempting to solve the Cretan question with the sword has excited popular admiration everywhere in Italy, and a great philo-Crete agitation is being carried on throughout the country. The sympathies of the people are entirely with the Cretan Christians in their struggle to throw off the yoke of Moslem rule, and this sympathy is taking practical form. Enthusiastic mass meetings have been held in several cities, at which the speakers have traced the whole history of Turkish misrule in Crete and have dwelt upon the promises of the porte, broken time and again, to inaugurate reforms in the island. At these meetings subscription lists were opened for the benefit of struggling islanders, and goodly sums have been realized. Many young men whose enthusiasm has been aroused by the heroism of the Cretan Christians and the bold defiance of Turkey by the Greeks have volunteered to serve with the Christians and numbers of them have already started for Crete.

ADDRESS TO CRETANS.

The Commander of the Greek Forces Issues a Proclamation to Christians.

London, Feb. 17.—A dispatch from Athens this morning confirms the statement that Greek troops have landed at the bay of Kolymbari. Col. Vassos, the commander of the Greek forces in Crete, has issued the following proclamation: "Cretans—You are suffering from the present state of anarchy and are exposed to the excesses of a fanatical populace—excesses which have awakened the national sentiment and have deeply stirred the Hellenic people. This lamentable situation of a people of the same race and the same religion, having common destinies with ourselves, could not any longer be allowed to exist. The king of the Hellenes has resolved to end this state of things by proclaiming a Greek occupation of the island. In making this proclamation, I promise in the name of King George to protect the lives, honor and property of the inhabitants without distinction of religion or nationality, and to respect the religious convictions of the inhabitants, while bringing to them peace and law."

Prince George Not Menaced.

London, Feb. 17.—In the house of commons last evening, George N. Curzon, under foreign secretary, stated that the report that the admiral commanding the British fleet in Cretan waters had menaced Prince George of Greece with the use of force should the latter attempt to execute the orders he had received from the king and government of Greece could not possibly be true. No British commander, he said, could have been capable of using the threats alleged to have been made.

Miss Barton May Go Abroad.

New York, Feb. 17.—Miss Clara Barton and George H. Pullman of the Red Cross society, who are in this city, have been very busy of late, since returning from the scene of the outrages in the east, and it is probable that the present disturbances in Crete will call for active field work by Red Cross agents, in which case Miss Barton might make a second trip abroad. The society is reputed to be in a flourishing condition.

No Danger of War.

Washington, Feb. 17.—In regard to the Cretan crisis, Secretary Olney has dispatches from the American minister at Athens, Eben Alexander, conveying briefly some of the important points, including very full press accounts, of occurrences in Athens. Minister Alexander expresses the opinion that there is no danger of war.

PARK CLUB CONTESTS.

PROJECT ON FOOT TO ORGANIZE A WOMAN'S TOURNAMENT.

Several of the Fair Members Have Made Their Mark in the Various Games—Standing of Other Contests.

All of the tournaments at the Park Club are now under way and the members are having lots of excitement in the different contests. There is also a project on foot to hold a ladies' tournament for the ladies of the club, and such an event will be held if a sufficient number of entries can be secured. The Park Club has a number of ladies who can roll a good game and make scores that no one would be ashamed of. Mrs. Charles A. Reed has made a great record at the game in previous seasons and there are others who keep their scores close to the 200 mark.

The pool tournament has just been opened and only a game or two has been played as yet. The schedule is now completed and play will continue every evening.

The billiard tournament has been started and a number of games played. Only about half of the contestants have played as yet, however, but the standing of those who have is as follows:

	Handicap.	Won.	Lost.
Peck	25	3	0
Reed	25	2	1
Alexander	35	2	1
Townsend	30	1	2
Randolph	30	1	4

Nearly all of the contestants in the bowling tournament have been out on the alleys and there have been a number of exciting games rolled. F. O. Ball, of the regular bowling team, is having everything his own way so far, and is ahead in the tournament. He is a scratch man. Of the big handicap men, Laing and Dryden are doing the best work and are keeping close behind Ball. The standing of the contestants is as follows:

	Handicap.	Won.	Lost.
F. O. Ball	scratch	9	1
Dryden	30	8	2
Laing	20	6	2
VanBuren	scratch	5	2
Dr. Thiers	scratch	8	4

CYCLING COMMENT.

A better line of wheeling cannot be found in the city than at the store of the Plainfield Cycle and Sporting Goods Company. The most particular can be suited at this place, in price and quality.

The last season was such a successful one for the F. L. C. Martin Cycle Company that, with the opening of this season, the company is planning to extend its field of operations. A branch store is to be opened in Westfield under the management of A. H. Barnett, the well-known bicycle man. Yesterday morning George M. MacIntyre, of the company, went to Westfield to take charge of the opening of the new store. The store is located on Main street, in the center of the town, and with the combination of a good company, a popular agent, and a reliable line of wheels, the store promises to be as successful in Westfield as it was in Plainfield.

STRIKES AND SPARES.

F. H. Ball now holds the high score at the Park Club alleys for the month of February. While rolling there the other evening, he managed to put up a score of 246. He has twice rolled over 200 in other games this month.

Accepted a Better Position.

John Garno, who has been in the employ of the New York and New Jersey Telephone Company in this city as lineman and inspector for the past two years, resigned his position on Saturday to accept the position of manager of the telephone district comprising Wells River, Bradford and Littleton, in Vermont, and Whitefield, N. H., with headquarters at Wells River. Mr. and Mrs. Garno left town Saturday evening for New Hampshire, where he will assume his new duties to day.

The members of the order feel very much the position taken by Mr. Newell and the above report coming from the committee shows that they are willing to let the public judge for themselves as to who is right and who is wrong.

PASSING COMMENT.

At the home of Wm. H. Pangborn, on Chatham street, there is a beautiful southern fern which has attracted the admiration of a great number of people. It is especially large and its beauty is almost unequaled.

There are two men in Plainfield who bear such a striking resemblance to each other that their friends are of en getting them mixed. The two men in question are Rev. A. E. Main, pastor of the Seventh Day Baptist church, and H. S. Thomas, of the reportorial staff of the News. The resemblance is so great that Mr. Main is often taken for the reporter by Mr. Thomas's collegues on the News and the latter wonder why it is that Thomas has come to the lecture, or what ever it happens to be, when it was assigned to them.

A credulous person had a hard time at the cycle show last week, if he tried to believe all that was told him. Every booth had its attendants who told of the advantages of their special make of wheels and why it was so much better than any other. At one booth the visitor was told of the great advantage of a certain kind of brazing on bearings while at the very next, perhaps, he was told that the other kind was of no use whatever and the only kind was the brand condemned in the first booth. And so it was with saddles, lamps and tires, to the complete mystification of the visitor.

A dangerous place for the life and limb of travellers on the river road between Bound Brook and New Brunswick has been done away with. The Press has already noticed the unsafe condition of the bridge over Bound Brook on that road, the bridge being condemned by the county authorities and yet left open to traffic. A portion of the road including the bridge has been shut off and no more traffic allowed over it. There is another road, however, by which the travellor can reach Bound Brook which is only a trifle longer. The old bridge has been partially torn down and a new iron structure will be put up as soon as the weather permits.

MAY RESULT IN WIFE MURDER

Raritan Woman Brutally Beaten by Her Husband With an Axe.

Liba Pivirotto, known as the prettiest woman in the Italian colony at Raritan, lies in the Emergency Hospital at Somerville with her skull crushed in and seven gashes in her neck and face, which were inflicted by her husband with an axe. About four years ago Giuseppi Pivirotto deserted his wife. During his absence Mrs. Pivirotto has been earning her living as a weaver in the Raritan woolen mills.

Two weeks ago Pivirotto appeared at his wife's home and asked forgiveness for his long absence. Mrs. Pivirotto took him in and continued her occupation in the woolen mills. Pivirotto refused to work, but started in to squander his wife's savings.

At an early hour Sunday morning the woman's moans aroused her sister, who found the door locked from the inside. Pivirotto, after stealing all the money and valuables from his wife's chest, turned the key in the door and escaped by lowering himself from a second story window to the ground. The doctors believe that the woman will die.

CRIME LAID AT DELUCA'S DOOR.

Coroner's Jury Declares the Prisoner Guilty of Causing Pilacci's Death.

The coroner's jury which investigated the death of Giovanni Pilacci at Basking Ridge, returned a verdict last evening holding Francisco Deluca responsible for the murder. The jury, which was composed of P. C. Henry, N. M. Culbersen, John J. Allen, John R. Hollinshead, William McCollum and Dr. F. C. Jones, was out for an hour an a half before reaching the verdict.

After the inquest, the body of Pilacci was reinterred in the Methodist Episcopal Cemetery. Deluca, the alleged murderer, was arrested in Brooklyn, and it is expected that he will be taken to Jail in Somerville today.

HE HOOKED A BULLDOG.

One Time When the Brute Was Obliged to Acknowledge Defeat.

A Chicago novelist of repute, and whose veracity has never been questioned, sought a little rest one summer in the upper lake region tells a fishing story which seems to discount most of those related by lovers of the art.

"Three of us had been out trolling for muskallonge," he said, "and had had no luck at all. The savage 'muskas," which, when full grown, will give a man all he can do to land them, were sulky and refused to accept our challenge and so I bade the boys goodby and started for the farmhouse where I was boarding, a couple of miles away across the fields.

"I hadn't gone far when I heard a savage growl behind me, and the next minute I was clambering into the branches of a convenient tree with a big bulldog snapping at my heels. It was a mighty close call, and as I swung myself up out of reach I struck frantically at the brute with my trolling spoon. One of the heavy hooks caught him fairly in the nose, and in a moment he began pawing and thrashing about in a wild endeavor to get loose.

"It took an hour to land him. He would run out a couple of hundred feet, dive into the deep clover and sulk and growl. Then I would haul him in, hand over hand, with a hitch around a convenient limb. Whenever I slackened the line away he would go again until I brought him up with a sharp turn. It was great sport. Talk about fishing! Landing a twenty-pound muskallonge is tame and uninteresting when compared with landing a thirty-pound bulldog.

"At the end of an hour he lay down at the foot of the tree and I couldn't induce him to fight. I tied the line about a limb, jumped down out of his reach and ran for the nearest fence. But there was no necessity for hurry; the dog stayed. I told a farmer's boy I met shortly afterward where he could find his dog. I guessed he deserved to keep my trolling outfit for recovering it. At any rate, I didn't see it again, for I took a train for Chicago that night."—Chicago Times-Herald.

Mr. Bronson's Serviceable Skull.

Late yesterday afternoon Rufe Bronson, colored, drove down below the I. C. incline to dump a load of trash in the river. About the same time Captain Newt. Roberts, the well-known steamboat man, repaired to the bottoms on the north side to try a new Winchester of 38 calibre. Just as Captain Roberts drew a bead on a stalk of ironwood and pulled trigger Rufe moved into range from behind a gravel bank about 275 feet away. There was a crack from the rifle, and an exclamation from Rufe. The heavy ball had hit him on the forehead, somewhat above the eye, with all the force of a heavy charge of powder. The negro did not even fall down. He wiped his brow with an old handkerchief and drove on toward the river bank. This morning he told a reporter about it:

"Yissir, somethin' hit me in der head, and den I heard a gun go off. At fus' I thought a hornet had stung me. It felt kinder that way."

"Did you fall down, Rufe?"

"Naw, sir; but de bullet sort of pushed my head over ter one side, but dat uz all. Dis mornin' my head kinder ached a leetle, but I'se been workin' all day. My head's peeled a leetle bit and skinned up, but not 'nuff ter hurt."—Paducah News.

Pepper.

"It has always amused me," remarked a botanical expert, "to hear people talking of their preference for black pepper over white, and the various explanations they give for the same. Little do they know that both black and white pepper grow upon the same shrub. Over the pepper seed grows a black covering. The seed itself is white, or nearly so. To make black pepper the seed and its external covering are ground up, while the white pepper is the seed alone ground up. White pepper is milder than black, the greater part of the pungency being in the covering. A pepper made of the coverings alone would be such hot stuff that it would burn the mouth. The black covering of the pepper seed contains the oil.—Washington Star.

Great,

Retiring Sale, and it may close any day now, as the amount that we agreed to sell was reached yesterday and Messrs. Woodhull & Martin, the new proprietors, want to take possession just as soon as possible.

The sale up to date has been a great and marvelous success, the amount of sales being just double of what we calculated on when we started in.

There is scarcely any abatement of interest or crowds yet, as the sale has become so widely and popularly known, not only in Plainfield and vicinity, but all around in this part of the State.

The $80,000 stock begins to show some thinning out of course; but there are hundreds and hundreds of good things yet that every household needs that you can save money on by buying now at this sale.

Now if you have not bought all you want at the sale you had better come in at once, as it may run only a few days longer, as far as we can tell at this writing.

Hundreds of people are buying now for future use. They say that in all of their experience, even in New York and other large cities, they have never seen such marvelously low prices marked on fine seasonable goods.

Everybody knows that we have never dealt in second-hand goods or cheap auction stuff, and that when we advertise FIRST-CLASS seasonable goods they can rely on getting just what is advertised.

And so the great mass of people who have been to this sale regard our announcements at this time.

As the writer sits at his desk writing these notes Thursday afternoon, Feb. 11th, both floors of the popular Commercial Palace are literally packed with eager buyers, who go away pleased and delighted with their great bargains.

Remember the sale may last only a few days more, and if you wish to avail yourself of the greatest opportunity to buy fine goods cheaper than you have ever had you had better speak quick.

RECTOR TWENTY YEARS.

RECEPTION TENDERED TO REV. AND MRS. T. LOGAN MURPHY.

A Beautiful Cloak Presented by the Parishioners of Holy Cross Church as a Token of Esteem, and Many Congratulations.

The spirit of good fellowship and kindly feeling evidenced at the reception given to the Rev. T. Logan Murphy, last evening, in honor of the twentieth anniversary of his rectorship of the Church of the Holy Cross, made it a particularly charming affair. The rectory was crowded between the hours of 8 and 11 o'clock with friends and parishioners. The absence of all formality was delightful and the effort to bestow honor was the chief desire.

The decorations were pink and green, with the ever-beautiful pink rose blended in delicate harmony with a choice arrangement of smilax. In the parlors, where Mr. and Mrs. Murphy received their guests, there was a decided beauty in the decorations, while the dining room was made attractive through a pleasing display of the same colors, and especially was this true at the table. The entire house presented a scene of brilliancy not soon to be forgotten.

Shortly before nine o'clock the guests assembled in the hallway and surrounded Mason W. Tyler, who occupied a position on the stairway. The feature of the evening was then enjoyed, for the latter, in his usual pleasing manner, presented to the rector, on behalf of the parishioners, an elegant and costly hall or grandfather's clock, which occupied a position on the second landing of the hall stairs. While Mr. Tyler was preparing his speech the drapery was removed from the clock by that genial personage, B. R. Western, and all eyes were turned toward the magnificent gift in the desire to catch the first glimpse. Mr. Tyler spoke somewhat as follows:

"Beloved friends, rector, ladies and gentlemen: It is mine to voice the sentiments of the parishioners of Holy Cross church on this occasion. It is quite an event in anyone's life to spend twenty years in one work, and especially so in this busy bustling world, when a life is lived in almost one single year. I congratulate you tonight that you were able to pass twenty such years, which has fallen to the lot of few men. I cannot describe this scene more artistically than by reciting Goldsmith's immortal poem, 'The Village Preacher.'"

After Mr. Tyler had given those beautiful lines he continued as follows:

"The people of this parish wish to show their appreciation and have asked me to present to you this beautiful memorial."

The hearty applause that followed Mr. Tyler's remarks only voiced in part the true feelings experienced by those present.

The response by Mr. Murphy was equal to the occasion and he replied as follows:

"I desire to thank you all for your hearty congratulations and expressions of good will on this anniversary occasion of my twenty years rectorship of this parish.

"And again for the very handsome and costly testimonial which you have presented to me on this occasion. I assure you that what has taken place at this time will be cherished and remembered by me as one of the red letter days of my life. An occasion like this brings joy to the heart of a rector, when his people assemble at his house for an evening of social reunion, and emphasize it by hearty congratulations and the presentation of a gift which will always be highly prized and appreciated as coming from parishioners and friends.

"What could be more appropriate as a gift from you than this handsome and elegant time piece, called a hall, or a grandfathers clock. It is useful as well as ornamental. It is something that can be handed down from father to child. Day by day and year by year it will be active in its work of measuring time. By day and by night, in sickness and in health it will chime out its sweet tones as time goes marching on. And as we listen to it, it will often remind us of the beautiful poem of Lonfellow, for it stands where his clock stood.

'Half way up the stairs it stands
And points and beckons with its hands
From its case of massive oak
Like a monk from under his cloak
Crosses himself and sighs alas;
With mournful voice to all who pass
Forever never, Never forever.'

"In looking back over the past I can hardly realize that twenty years has elapsed since I first came to this parish. However, there is one way in which we can realize it, and I think it is the only way, when we look at the children. Very little tots they

TOO MANY JONES THERE

A HUMOROUS FARCE GIVEN AT A CHURCH SOCIABLE.

The Loving Couple, the Opposing Aunt and Seven Men of the Same Name Get Woefully Mixed and Make Lots of Fun

The Ladies' Society for Christian Work of the Seventh-Day Baptist church held a sociable in the church parlors last evening, and the committee had something novel and entertaining for the enjoyment of those who came. The principal feature of the programme was a short play of two acts. The plot was an old one, but in a new garb.

After everybody was settled a piano duet by Mrs. W.C. Hubbard and Miss Bessie Titsworth was announced as the first number on the programme. The selection was well rendered. Then came the farce, entitled "Too Many Jones," or, "The Much Wanted Letter."

It was the old story of the tyrannical aunt, impersonated by Miss Ernestine Smith, and her abused niece, Mildred, which part was taken by Miss Luella Clawson. The scene of the first act was the home of Mrs. Stevers, the aunt. In departing, the aunt especially cautions her niece to admit no one, especially a young man. Of course as soon as the aunt disappears the young man, in the shape of a Mr. Jones (Harry Maxson), appeared and lost no time in declaring his sentiments. As he was about to pop the question he prepared to drop on his knees and drew forth his handkerchief to put under them, when he changed his mind and did his proposing on foot, which was not exactly according to the play. Then the aunt appeared and the young couple were separated.

Mildred planned a secret meeting and wrote to him, addressing the letter to Mr. Jones, as she did not know his first name. The second act showed the post-office at the five-thirty mail, when the letter was delivered. There were seven Mr. Jones and they all claimed the letter. "The" Mr. Jones finally appeared and the decision was left to him. He suggested opening it which they did. The letter was only signed with the initial which fitted all cases but the mystery was finally solved by the appearance of Mildred who had come to keep the date which she had set for that time. One of the Mr. Jones' happened to be a Rev. Mr. Jones who was waiting for a call and he was asked to perform the marriage ceremony at once for the young couple. Another Mr. Jones lived conveniently around the corner and all the Mr. Jones' were invited to come around to the wedding which was to be held at once. The prospective bride and groom marched off the platform followed by the rest of the Jones. The audience applauded and every body was pleased. The parts of the Messrs. Jones were taken by Robert Randolph, Frank Smith, Frank Randolph, W. C. Hubbard, Arthur J. Spicer, Frank J. Hubbard and Asa Randolph.

After a well rendered solo by Mrs. D. E. Titsworth, the inner man was remembered and a variety of refreshments were passed. The rest of the evening was spent very pleasantly in social chat.

The committee in charge of the sociable and entertainment consisted of Mrs. A. M. Ross, Miss Ernestine Smith, Miss Luella Clawson, Miss Bessie Titsworth and Miss Louise Lewis. The committee on refreshments consisted of Mrs. Charles Randolph and Mrs. Thomas Randolph.

A WOMEN PREACHER TALKS

SHOWED BEAUTY OF CHARACTER.

Compared the Saviour to Sunlight, Giver of Life and Happiness.

Those who attended the midweek service of the Park Avenue Baptist church, last night, had the pleasure of listening to a short but excellent talk from Rev. Mrs. Ella F. Leonard, pastor of a Congregational church in Denver, Colorado. Mrs Leonard is a tall, kindly-looking woman, with gray hair, and a face showing both intellectual strength and beauty of character. When introduced by Rev. J. W. Richardson, she read the first chapter of St. John's Gospel, then spoke very earnestly and helpfully from the text "I am the light of the world," John 8:12. She compared the Savior to the sunlight, the giver of life and happiness, a gift free to all; then reminded her hearers that Christ also said "Ye are the light of the world," and that they should be shining upon and bringing new life to those around them, as their master had done.

—Some special good values in wash goods, consisting of ginghams, cambrics and challies will be offered at White's tomorrow, Friday, at remarkably low prices.

TO DO AWAY WITH MUD.

DIFFICULT PROBLEM FOR THE NEW STREET COMMISSIONER.

Crosswalks Are Almost Impassable on That Account—Melting Snow Has Caused the Disagreeable Condition.

At the very start of Street Commissioner Gavett's term he has to deal with the important problem of making the crosswalks passable by doing away with the mud that bespatters and clings to everything that it comes in contact with.

The unusual abundance of the Jersey mud may be accounted for by the unusual kind of winter. There has been plenty of snow and after each snow there has come a thaw while long periods of very cold weather, when the streets are kept in a frozen condition, have been very infrequent. Then it will be remembered that the streets did not receive their usual scraping at the beginning of the winter on account of the shortage in the street appropriation, which would have removed much of the mud that was on the streets at the time.

To clear away all the mud is even too big a job for for the street department, and Old Sol will be depended upon to materially assist in the operation by drying it up. Meanwhile the men employed in the department are busy doing what they can. This morning a gang of Street Commisioner Gavett's men started work at the corner of Watchung avenue and East Fifth street relaying the crosswalk which was so low that the the mud from the surrounding streets flowed over it in a steady stream, and all attempts to keep it clean were futile. The crosswalk over West Front opposite the postoffice is in the same condition and will be elevated at once. Before raising the crosswalk it was necessary to scrape away the mud from the street about it.

Park avenue is the worst of all the business thoroughfares in the city. While the snow and ice in the center of the road and the eastern side has melted away, that on the other side remains and acts as a dam for the sticky mud with which the center of the street is covered to the depth of several inches. Channels are being cut in the snow and ice to allow the water to drain off into the gutter.

The mud in the vicinity of the school houses covers many of the streets and the children have to wade through it.

ARRANGING FOR FUTURE LECTURES.

University Extension Will be a Feature Next Winter.

Previous to the beginning of the University Extension lecture Tuesday several important announcements were made. This lecture was the last of the series, but Thursday evening, February 25, holders of University Extension tickets will be admitted to a reading from "The Rivals" by the well-known Brooklyn reader, Underhill.

A course of five lectures and a musical entertainment will begin Tuesday evening, February 23, at Irving School, for the benefit of the residents of the west side. Three lectures will be by Dr. Riggs, on historical subjects; two on chemistry, by a professor from Rutgers College. The price of the course tickets will be 35 cents.

It was voted to carry on University Extension work in North Plainfield next winter, and the committee who have arranged such a treat for Plainfield students this season were elected to serve next season also.

OF OLD QUAKER DESCENT

DEATH OF MRS. BURROWS TAKES AWAY A NOTED WOMAN.

She Was Born in Philadelphia Ninety Years Ago and Was Among the First of the Public School Educators

The death of Mrs. Martha Hallowell Burrows, aged 90 years, occurred last evening at the home of Mrs. Martin, No. 11 Grove street, where she had been residing for some time. During the past three years Mrs. Burrows had been declining in health and her death was the result of old age.

Mrs. Burrows belonged to old Penn Quaker stock and was born in Philadelphia in 1807. In her early girlhood days she was among the first public school educators, and at the age of 17 she was a teacher before the public school was established in Philadelphia. At that time public education was carried on by private enterprise. Later she became a teacher in one of the most important grammar schools in Philadelphia, and was identified in this work for forty years.

Mrs. Burrows moved to this city about twenty three years ago, and has always been an active woman, until several years ago. She was a faithful member of the First Baptist church and was closely identified with its interests. Her husband, Joseph Burrows, was a soldier in the War of 1812 and died in 1892. He never lived in Plainfield.

Mrs. Burrow leaves three sons to mourn her loss. In 1890 she fell down stairs, and since that time she has been unable to get about very much.

The funeral services will be held on Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock from the First Baptist church. Interment will be at Hillside cemetery.

Funeral of An Old Church Member.

The funeral of Miss Gertrude Vandenberg, whose death occurred on Monday, was held from her late home East Fifth street, yesterday morning. The services were conducted by Rev Cornelius Schenck, Ph., D., pastor of Trinity Reformed church, of which Miss Vandenberg was one of the oldest members. Rev. Mr. Schenck commented on the fact of her long and earnest devotion to the church and paid a high tribute to her true womanhood. A floral wreath and several other tributes of flowers from relatives and friends reposed on the casket. The interment was in Greenwood cemtery.

Young Man's Sudden Death.

The sudden death of Alfred Bowen Lord, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. William A. Lord, of Netherwood, will be received with sadness by the many friends in this city. The family were residing at Harlem and Mr. Lord had only been ill about four days with pneumonia, and his death was not expected, although he was very low. The funeral services will be held from St Agnes chapel, West 92d street, near Columbus avenue, Saturday, February 20th, at 10:30 a. m.

Attending the Annual Encampment.

Captain H. C. McVoy, Chaplain Raymond McVoy, First Lieutenant H. S. Thatcher, Quartermaster Fred Sutton and Sergeant of the Guard H. J. Martin, of John Hand Camp, No. 28, S. of V., went to Trenton today to attend the annual encampment of the New Jersey Division.

Veterans to Visit.

The department officers of the G. A. R. will visit General Wadsworth Post, of Somerville, this evening. Tomorrow evening they will go to Jersey City. Members of the G. A. R. from this city will be present on each of the above occasions.

HER BODY WAS A TORCH

HORRIBLE ACCIDENT THAT BEFELL AN OLD WOMAN.

Left Alone in a House She Dropped a Lamp and Her Clothing Caught Fire, and It is Believed She Cannot Live.

Mrs. Agnes McNear, who is nearly four score years of age, was the victim of a horrible accident at Scotch Plains last night, and now lies at the Muhlenberg Hospital in this city in a precarious position, the whole upper part of her body being almost burned to a crisp.

Mrs. McNear lives with the family of Lymus Walpole at Scotch Plains. Last night about 7 o'clock Mrs. Walpole sent her young son to a grocery store for some articles and when he did not return for over an hour, she became worried and started out to find him. She left her two youngest children in the house with Mrs. McNear, who is very feeble.

It was 8:30 o'clock when George Frantz and William Borkowsky was passing by the Walpole home and heard the screams of two little children. They ran to the house and found Mrs. McNear enveloped in flames in the kitchen, while a broken lamp had set fire to a clothes basket setting nearby. The old lady is so feeble that she was not able to help herself very much. As quickly as possible the two men tore the burning clothes from her and extinguished the flames.

An examination of her injuries showed that the arms, face and upper part of the body had been burned so that the skin peeled off. She suffered intense pain. Dr. Westcott was called and he ordered her to be brought to the hospital, which was done.

As nearly as Mrs. McNear could be understood in the excitement and excruciating pain, she said that she had attempted to pick up the lamp and it had exploded. It is believed, however, that in her enfeebled condition with her hands trembling she dropped the lamp. The little children were unable to tell a tangible story.

At the hospital this noon it was thought Mrs. McNear would not survive the injuries she received.

The Scotch Plains fire department was called out but its services were not needed.

RESCUE OF ERRING ONES.

WHAT SALVATIONISTS ARE DOING.

Homes Established for Those Who Desire to Lead Better Lives.

Last evening at the Salvation Army Ensign Parsons took as his subject, "Rescue Work." The speaker is an interesting one, and he stated many things which will give an idea as to the amount of work being done in this department.

In the Army there are 74 homes for fallen women, 17 homes for ex-criminals, and 10 homes for waifs and strays, while there are 82 slum posts. The number of fallen women that passed through the homes last year was 3,500, of these eighty per cent were restored to lives of virtue. There were 1,200 ex-criminals who passed through the homes provided for them, of these from sixty to eighty per cent were restored to lives of honesty.

A slum officer can be supported at the rate of $12 per month. A fallen girl can be rescued at a cost of $15, and a rescue home for twenty five girls can be kept up, in addition to the work of the girls, for $100 per month.

It is the intention of Commander Booth-Tucker to make rapid strides during 1897. He desires to open up additional rescue homes for three hundred women, also additional prison-gate homes for three hundred ex-criminals, and fifty additional slum posts.

COMMUTERS AID FRAZEE

CARRIED HIS BUNDLES ON THE TRAIN THIS MORNING.

Turned Them Over to Him in the Car and Then Frazee Waved Them Tauntingly at the Central Railroad Detectives.

The odds were on the side of Package Expressman Frazee this morning and he boarded the train without trouble. The railroad and express companies had increased their force, but most of the local commuters were on the side of the package messenger and his packages were carried on board by a number of the commuters, unbeknown to the detectives.

The story in yesterday's Press of the excitement at the station had been generally read and there was a crowd on hand to see the fun. Commuters who take the latter trains dropped down a few minutes to see what Frazee would do this morning, and the curious small boy was out in full force. The station platform was crowded.

The companies were well represented. Detectives Large, Blackford and Doughterty were on duty at the station while Mr. Downy and three men from the New York office were on hand as representatives of the United States Express Company.

Frazee arrived at the station about five minutes before the 8:30 express. The crowd surged in his direction to see what he was planning to do. They were disappointed to find that the messenger had not a single package with him. The detectives and the express company men wandered about the platform with an eye on Frazee but no attempt was made to stop him. The train pulled into the station and he stepped aboard without opposition as he had no packages with him.

Most of the commuters had boarded the train when there was a shout at th Watchung avenue end of the platform and every body moved that way to see what was up. There was Frazee standing on the platform of one of the cars waving several bundles at the crowd outside and laughing most gleefully. The crowd shouted in return and the commuters in the train lifted the windows and stuck their heads out to see what all the noise meant. The packages had been carried on the train by some of Frazee's friends among the commuters and turned over to him when he arrived safely on board.

The force from the railroad and express companies quietly broke up, some taking that train and the rest remaining in Plainfield for some littie time.

It is understood that the city officials are not at all pleased with the excitement at the station in the morning and that some of them have expressed themselves in very decided terms. Any future demonstration will probably end in the arrest of all concerned, and the City Judge will be called upon to settle the matter. The charge which will be brought against them will be disorderly conduct. There have been many rumors current that Frazee has taken action in the case and that a warrant is waiting the representative of the express company, who is said to be following Frazee about this city the moment he leaves the platform. So far nothing has been done by either side in the courts of this city.

There is no love lost between Frazee and the detectives. Frazee is always anxious to get ahead of them on every occasion. Several days ago he was coming out from New York without any packages and one of the express company's spotters was following him. It happened that J. Caspar Kirkner was on the same train and was carrying a pair of shoes that Thad. Doan, Jr., had asked him to bring out. When they boarded the train at Jersey City, Frazee took the package from under Kirkner's arm and waved it triumphantly over his head at the spotter. Frazee, to continue his little game, asked Kirkner to allow him to carry the package on to Plainfield and leave it there for Doane. Kirkner complied and the spotter, who had boarded the train, eyed Kirkner for some time, especially as he started to get off the train at Elizabeth. Frazee carried the package to Plainfield and everbody thought that he had again slipped by the detectives and spotters.

POWERS FOR PEACE

Bloodless Settlement of the Cretan Difficulty Their Object.

NOTICE SENT TO GREEKS AND REBELS

The Ultimate Annexation of the Island to Greece Said To Be the Intention of the Powers---Turkey's War Preparations.

Canea, Feb. 18.—Vice-admiral Canevaro, commanding the allied naval forces of the powers in Cretan waters, has written a note to the Greek consul at this place, informing that official that it is the purpose of the powers by their occupancy of various cities of the island to promote a bloodless settlement of the Cretan difficulty, and that, therefore, any attack upon the town occurred, whether made by Turks or Christians, will be repelled by the united forces of the powers. He also urges the insurgents and the Greeks to obstain from military action in other parts of Crete.

More Marines Landed.

Athens, Feb. 18.—It is reported here that detachments of marines have been landed from the foreign warships at Heraklion, Retimo and Sitia, it being the purpose of Vice-Admiral Canevaro of the Italian navy, who is in command of the united naval forces of the powers, to prevent attacks by the Greek forces upon those places. The provinces named are reported to have become less disturbed and affairs are returning more nearly to their normal condition. Col. Vassos, commanding the Greek corps of occupation, it is said, made no opposition to the landing of the marines. Prince Nicholas of Greece, in command of a battery of field artillery, started last evening for the Thessalian frontier. Large crowds of people gathered to witness the departure of the troops and gave the soldiers and their commander an ovation as they started on their journey.

Turkey's War Preparations.

Constantinople, Feb. 18.—The ministry of marine has asked the government for a credit of 500,000 pounds, Turkish, to defray the expenses incurred in preparing and mobilizing the Turkish fleet. Two squadrons are now being prepared. The first, which will comprise four warships and ten torpedo boats. The second will be commanded by Vice-Admiral Hassan, and will consist of five warships and ten torpedo boats. Fifty thousand naval reserves have been summoned for service in addition to the rediffs of the Third army corps, now in Salonika, and the rediffs of Trebizond have also been ordered to join their colors, making altogether 76,800 men who will be concentrated near the Greek frontier.

Greeks Ready and Anxious for War.

London, Feb. 18.—The Daily News publishes to-day a dispatch from its correspondent at Canea, Crete, saying that, accompanied by an escort of 600 insurgents, the writer visited the Greek camp at Platanias, a short distance west of Canea, where he found the Greek force occupying a lofty and virtually inaccessible fortress. Col. Vassos, who commanded the troops, is, according to the correspondent, thoroughly prepared for an advance, and is only awaiting instructions from Athens to move. In the meantime the troops are showing the greatest impatience to begin operations. The correspondent further says skirmishes are constantly occurring in the hills of Platanias.

Powers Behind Greece.

London, Feb. 18.—The Daily News to-day says it is reported in the lobby among the unionist members of the house of commons that it is not likely that the powers will seriously attempt to dislodge the Greeks from the island of Crete, but that their presence will, after a decent interval, be acquiesced in, with a view to the ultimate annexation of the island to the Greek kingdom. It is whispered that King George was made aware beforehand that the action taken by Greece would not be resisted desperately.

Greeks Warned by the Powers.

Canea, Feb. 18.—As the result of a conference of the commanders of the foreign squadrons held on board the Italian flagship, Admiral Canevaro sent a note to the Greek consul informing him that any attack on the part of Greece upon Canea, Retimo, Sitia or Hersklion would be repulsed by the warships of the powers. The consul was also warned that all further hostile action on the part of Christian insurgents and Greek troops in other parts of the island must cease at once.

M'KINLEY IMPROVING

The President-Elect Able To Take a Short Carriage Ride.

MRS. M'KINLEY IS ALSO BETTER

No Callers Will Be Received This Week and Probably Only Invited Guests Until After the Inauguration. Hanna Returns to Cleveland.

Canton, O., Feb. 18.—Major McKinley is considerably better to-day. He took, upon the advice of his physician, a short drive yesterday afternoon while the sun was bright and the air warm. Mrs. McKinley, who has also been suffering with the grippe, accompanied him. Major McKinley will recover his usual fine health by the first of next week if he continues to improve and to abstain from work. It is not likely that after his recovery he will see any visitors save the few for whom he sends. Mr. Hanna returned to Cleveland last evening. He came to make a friendly call upon Major McKinley and to ask about his health. Mr. Hanna has recovered his own health and is in fine condition again. The feeling in Ohio is that he will be appointed to succeed Senator Sherman. Gen. W. W. Dudley called last evening to speak with the president-elect and Mr. Hanna about selecting an escort to accompany Major McKinley from the depot in Washington to his hotel. There will probably be no military escort. Mrs. Ellen J. Foster of Washington was here yesterday to present an application for the appointment of a friend. She had an interview with Joseph P. Smith, but did not see the president-elect. Major McKialey will see no visitors this week.

Bicycles as Baggage.

Trenton, Feb. 18.—The house committee on railroads and canals gave another public hearing last evening on Gledhill's bicycle baggage bill. Judge Joseph H. Gaskill, appearing for the Pennsylvania Railroad company, made a strong argument against the measure. He said the idea of the bicyclists for carrying the wheels suspended from the ceiling of cars was ridiculous. In the summer time particularly the cars were filled every inch almost with baggage and there would be no room over it for wheels. The additional expense entailed upon the roads, if this bill became a law, he said, would amount to hundreds of thousands of dollars, for additional cars would have to be supplied and the working forces at all the depots increased. Judge Gaskill made many points against the measure and was replied to by Isaac B. Potter, president of the National League of American Wheelmen and one or two others.

Worcester, Mass., Track Games.

New Haven, Conn., Feb. 18.—Capt. Gerard of the Yale team has chosen his men for the Yale relay team that will represent the university in the race against Holy Cross in the track games of the Worcester A. C., in Worcester next Monday evening. It will be made up as follows: E. H. Lewis, L. Boardman, L. R. Fisher, A. G. Betts, B. Hinckley and W. S. Johnson. Each of the men will run a half mile. Yale's other entries for the meet are: Mile, Lewis; 600 yards dash, Hinckley and Betts; dashes, Capt. Gerard.

Lynn Shoe Strike Settled.

Lynn, Mass., Feb. 18.—The big strike at the shoe factory of D. A. Donovan & Co., that began with the strike of the forty cutters on Monday and was followed by a general strike in the entire factory Tuesday, was amicably settled between the firm and its striking workmen by president Elihu B. Hayes of the Lynn board of trade and R. P. Barry of the state board of arbitration and conciliation last evening. The men returned to work this morning. Concessions were made by both sides.

Appointment To Be Left for McKinley.

Washington, Feb. 18. — President Cleveland will not make nominations to fill vacancies in the government service which may be caused by resignation occurring between now and March 4 next, but will leave such places open to be filled by President McKinley. This does not include places where the four years term of office expires, or of places that are vacated by the death of the occupant when the office still has a year or more to run.

Clevelands Preparing To Vacate.

Washington, Feb. 18.—Mrs. Cleveland will take her children to Princeton next week and return to the White House to be with the president at the close of the administration. Dr. Bryant of New York and his wife are guests at the White House. Mrs. Thurber and the children of the private secretary left for their home at Detroit last night in a special car. Mr. Thurber expects to join them in about two weeks.

All But One of Her Crew Lost.

New York, Feb. 18.—A dispatch to the Maritime exchange from London says that the German ship Baltimore, Captain Hillman, from London for New York, sprung a leak and foundered at sea. All of her crew excepting one man are supposed to have been lost.

Hobart To Reach Washington March 2.

Washington, Feb. 18. — Vice-President-elect Hobart will arrive here at 4 p. m., March 2, by the Baltimore & Ohio road. He will be accompanied by a party of twenty-five, made up of Gov. Griggs of New Jersey, his staff and their wives and friends.

MONKEYS.

Between 500 and 600 Imported Annually —Buyers and Prices.

There are imported into this country 500 or 600 monkeys annually, which come chiefly from Africa and India by way of Europe. Natives catch the monkeys and carry them down to the shipping ports, where they sell them to sailors aboard ship, or more likely to captains of vessels, or to agents of European dealers in animals. Sometimes on shipboard a rope is tied around a monkey and it is permitted within a limited space to roam the deck. Usually, however, monkeys are shipped in slatted boxes. Some monkeys are brought direct to this port, but by far the greater number go to the animal dealers in Europe, where the monkeys imported here are bought.

Occasionally a small monkey is sold for a pet, but the number now sold for that purpose is very limited. There is still some demand for monkeys to be carried by organ grinders. Though the monkey has disappeared from the city it is still carried to some extent by organ grinders in the country. But the great demand for monkeys comes from the show people. The monkey is particularly sensitive to draughts, and to changes of temperature, to which it is often subject with the constantly changing location of a circus menagerie. The average life of a monkey under such circumstances is about a year; the menagerie practically renews its stock of monkeys annually.

Under favorable conditions indoor monkeys live in captivity for, it may be, twelve or fifteen years. Monkeys rarely breed in captivity.

Forewarned, Forearmed.

Louis XIV was one day speaking of the power which a King has over his subjects. Count de Guiche ventured to remark that there are limits to this power; but this the King would not hear of, and said in a passionate tone: "If I ordered you to throw yourself into the sea, you ought to plunge in head foremost without a moment's hesitation." The count instead of replying, turned on his heel, and made for the door. The King, surprised, called after him: "Stay, where are you going?" "To learn to swim, sire," was the reply. Louis XIV laughed heartily, and there the matter ended.

A Comfort Lost.

"How's yer wife?" inquired one of the farmers who were coming in to market.

"She's perfectly well, seems like."

"You don't seem pertickler pleased about it!"

"Well, I like 'er to inj'y hers'f. An' she do seem ter git a lot o' comfort out o' takin' medicine."—Washington Star.

Old Enough to Know Better.

The family of Mrs. Mary Ragland, a widow of 83, living near Port Gibson, Miss., objected to her marriage with L. H. Lyman, a neighboring farmer of 70, who had courted her for two years. So the lovers eloped and were united in matrimony at the Court House by a supervisor.

Good

Blood is essential to health. Every nook and corner of the system is reached by the blood, and on its quality the condition of every organ depends. Truth Crushed to Earth.

A worthy colored deacon, who had early impressed upon his only son and heir the moral of the George Washington cherry tree story, was fortunate enough to find a fat 'possum recently. He bore it in triumph to his dwelling, and assisted by his son, cooked it to a juicy brown.

"Now," said he, "de bes' way ter eat a 'possum is co'; so we'll jes' let him stay in de pantry, en when mawnin' come he'll be mo' jucier den ever!"

His son seemed sadly disappointed, but he made the best of it, and both retired for the night.

The old man was up early next morning, but the boy slept on.

On opening the safe the astonished parent discovered nothing but bones in the dish that had contained the 'possum. He brought the drowsy youngster to his feet with one vigorous jerk, and dragging him to the scene of the wreck, he said:

"What does dat mean, eh?"

The boy fell on his knees and cried: "Daddy, I can't tell a lie; I got up in de night en eat it wid my little mouf!"

The old man said not a word, but dragging the boy to the front door he held him by the collar while he jerked a piece of weatherboarding from the side of the house.

"Daddy," cried the boy, "is you gwine ter lick me for tellin' de truth?"

"No! You kinky-headed debbil, you!" thundered the old man. "I gwine ter frall de hide off ye for eatin' de 'possum!"—Atlanta Constitution.

The Story of "Home, Sweet Home."

The story of the origin of "Home, Sweet Home," is short, but very pretty. The song was both written and composed by John Howard Payne, who first sung it in the Far West by the grave of a noble red Indian who, when all that made his forest wigwam "home" had gone, had died by his own hand on the grave of his loved squaw and papoose.

The people living round about the valley in which the grave was, sympathizing with the old Indian, buried him where he died, and Payne watched the ceremony in silence. At the finish, inspired by the scene he had witnessed, he sang quietly to himself the words and air of "Home, Sweet Home." He was overheard, and asked to write them down, which he did, with the result that they are familiar in every household in the civilized world to-day.

Sorry He Spoke.

"Madam, I am soliciting for some charities. We have hundreds of poor, ragged, vicious children like those at your gate, and——" "Sir, those children are mine!"—and the slamming of the door could be heard in the next street.

A GOOD LETTER.

From the Clerk of the Circuit Court.

Fernandina, Fla., Feb. 28, 1896.

Mr. J. George Suhrer, Druggist, City.

Dear George:—Please send a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. I would not feel easy if I knew there was none of this valuable Remedy in the house. I have given it a fair test and consider it one of the very best remedies for croup that I have ever foumd. One dose has always been sufficient, although I use it freely. Any cold my children contract yields very readily to this medicine. I can conscientiously recommend it for croup and colds in children. Yours respectfully, Geo. E. Wolff. Sold by T. S. Armstrong, apothecary, Park & North avenues.

SHELDON MURDER TRIAL.

The Accused Takes the Stand and Tells of His Recent Domestic Troubles.

Auburn, N. Y., Feb. 18.—Interest in the Sheldon murder trial reached a climax late yesterday afternoon when Frank N. Sheldon, the accused, was called to testify in his own behalf. The court room was packed and there was a great craning of necks when his name was called. Sheldon arose and walked to the stand with a steady step, but seemed nervous when he began relating the story of his life. He said that he was 46 years of age, a dealer in live stock. His wife's age at the time of her death was 43 years, and they were married in 1873. Her health, he said, was poor before he married her and was worse afterwards. She had curvature of the spine. The family lived together until his daughter May began teaching school. After that May never consulted him about her comings and goings or her wages. His first enstrangement from his wife, he continued, occurred in 1882, and was due to her objection to child-bearing. He left her and went west in '92, returning a year later. They occupied separate rooms, but lived in the same house until the day of her death. He usually bought supplies for the house, but his wife sometimes purchased groceries of the peddler, Powers. At this point court adjourned for the day. Sheldon will probably be on the stand all day to-day.

MAY NOT APPROVE IT

Believed That the President Will Veto the Immigration Bill.

PROVISIONS OF THE NEW MEASURE

The Clause Aimed at Canadians Employed in Detroit Not Stricken Out—Cuban Refugees Permitted To Enter While the War Continues.

Washington, Feb. 18.—The bill to amend the immigration laws, as agreed to by the senate last evening, adds to the classes of excluded aliens all persons over sixteen years of age who cannot read the English language or some other language—except that admissible immigrants may bring with them or send for illiterate parents or grandparents (over fifty years of age), wives and minor children. It also prohibits from employment on public works aliens who come regularly or habitually into the United States for the purpose of engaging in any mechanical trade or manual labor, and who have not made declaration of intention to become American citizens. The secretary of the treasury, however, may permit the entrance of aliens for the purpose of teaching new arts or industries. And the act is not to apply to persons coming here from Cuba, during the continuance of the present disorders there. Four democratic Senators, Chilton, Faulkner, Hill and Martin, voted for the report, and four republicans, Hansbrough, Hawley, Mantle and Shoup, against it. It is the general belief that the president will veto the measure.

House of Representatives.

There is little probability that the bi which provides a settlement of the indebtedness of Pacific bonded railways the government by a cabinet commission will be called up in the house at this session. Mr. Powers of Vermont, the chairman of the Pacific railways committee had a conference with Speaker Reed, but the latter informed him that in the uncertain condition of public business it would be difficult to state at this time if a day could be set aside during the remainder of the session for a consideration of the measure. It is believed that this will not be granted and that no further action will be taken upon the bill until next winter. By the very decisive vote of 96 to 28, the house affirmed its intention to abide by the policy of limiting pensions for widows of general officers to $50 a month, and grading from that sum down for widows of officers of lower rank. The question arose over the report of conferees upon the senate bill to pension the widow of Capt. J. Scott Payne. The conference report on the legislative, executive and judicial appropriation bill presented by Mr. Bingham, was agreed to. The principal changes made were in the provisions for the congressional library. As agreed upon the bill authorizes the president to appoint a librarian and superintendent, who must be confirmed by the senate, shall receive $5,000 a year each, and appoint the subordinates in their respective departments, 187 all told. The bill carries a total appropriation of $21,717,767. The bill enacting that all reservoir sites reserved or to be reserved, shall be open to use and occupation under the right of way act of March 3, 1891, which was made the special order for the day was debated two hours and passed.

Gold from San Francisco.

New York, Feb. 18.—Much gold has reached this city within the last two weeks from San Francisco. The total exceeds $2,000,000, of which the firm of J. & W. Seligman & Co. have received $1,200,000. There was a great deal of gold locked up in San Francisco prior to election day and the gold now arriving represents some of it. It was said at the office of J. & W. Seligman & Co. this morning that the shipment of the gold represented exchange between the two cities.

Mrs. Cropper Divorced in London.

London, Feb. 18.—The suit for divorce brought by Mrs. Virginia Shepherd Cropper, an American, against her husband Edward Denman Cropper, a native of this country, was decided in her favor here yesterday. The suit was instituted by Mrs. Cropper upon the ground of desertion. The couple were married in San Francisco in 1874.

Town Treasurer Short $10,000.

Plymouth, Mass., Feb. 18.—George S. Dyer, town treasurer, has been found to be a defaulter to the amount of over $10,000. Mr. Dyer has resigned, and the collector of taxes, B. F. Ward, has been appointed in his place. The books when examined on January 1 were found to be correct. A further examination is going on.

Manitoba Elevators Closed.

Montreal, Feb. 18.—It is announced that all the elevators belonging to the Ogilvies in Manitoba and the northwest will be closed at once. TEMPERANCE ESSENTIAL HERE.

The extent to which the temperance agitation has prevailed in railroad service is shown by the comments of railroad managers on a pending bill in the Minnesota Legislature. The bill, if enacted, would render a railroad company liable to a fine if it did not discharge an employee in the train department who was known to have been intoxicated. The only objection offered to the bill by the railroad officers was that it was superfluous. The Milwaukee and St. Paul Railroad has a rule which is much more stringent than the proposed law. It reads: "The use of intoxicating drinks has proved a most fruitful source of trouble to railways as well as to individuals. The company will exercise the most rigid scrutiny in reference to the habits of employes in this respect, and any employe who has been dismissed on this account will not be re-employed. Drinking when on duty or frequenting saloons will not be tolerated, and preference will be given to those who do not drink at all."

EXECUTIVE APPOINTMENTS.

Gossip concerning executive appointments still continues at Trenton. There appears to be no longer any doubt of the oppointment of William Bettle as Commissioner of Banking aud Insurance, George T. Werts has withdrawn his objection to filling the office of Secretary of State, and will accept that, leaving Lewis A. Thompson in the office of Clerk in Chancery. Joseph L. Munn, of Essex, has been tendered the position of Clerk of the Supreme Court.

A TROLLEY SUGGESTION.

There is a great need and demand for a trolley extension to Hillside cemetery. Why is not the city railway officers looking to this extension? It might touch the cycle track, which would afford much patronage and profit; thence to the Plainfield Driving Park and then to South Plainfield. This would certainly be a most profitable enterprise.

ARRANGING A DEATH BENEFIT.

Sons of Veterans to Decide an Important Question.

At the meeting of John Hand Camp, No. 28, S. of V., held on Tuesday evening, it was decided to hold a special meeting on Saturday evening for the purpose of taking action regarding the death benefit association, of which the camp is a member. It is probable that the members will decide on a plan of assessment for those who desire to join the association. Others can remain outside and they will not be assessed when a member of the order dies. This action is considered wise in view of the fact that their are members in the camp who do not pay their dues and when an assessment is made the amount comes out of those who do. It is hoped that there will be a large attendance at the meeting.

A Lesson at First Hands.

Every boy has read with interest the adventures of Dr. Kane in the in the Arctic regions. Thursday night, February 25th, every Plainfield boy will have the chance to hear a man whose exploits in the Far North have cast the adventures of Kane completely in the shade. The story Lieutenant Peary has to tell is a thrilling one, full of exciting adventure, and burning with interest that always surrounds deeds recently accomplished. The chance to hear Peary should be embraced by every student, boy or girl, for one will learn more of the geography of the extreme northern hemisphere by the hour and three-quarters spent in Peary's presence than can be gained by weeks of close attention to text-books. The low price of tickets places this opportunity within the reach of every one.

—The contract case of Barrett vs. Carman will be tried before Justice Nash this afternoon.

NEW DEPUTY FOR A LABOR UNION.

Randolph Marsh Relieved as an Officer of the Masons Union.

The members of Bricklayers and Masons Union, No. 14, met in the Elkwood Building, last evening, with president Theodore Mason in the chair. Under the head of new business Thomas Davenport was installed as deputy to succeed Randolph Marsh who has held the office successively for the past twelve years, but had now tendered his resignation for various reasons. Mr. Marsh has been a member of the organization from its birth and was for eight years its corresponding secretary. He is now placed on the honorary list of members.

The union now has 50 members in good standing, and at the meeting last night night, two appren tices were taken in.

Mr. Ward L. Smith, of Fredericks-town, Mo., was troubled with chronic diarrhœa for over thirty years. He had become fully satisfied that it was only a question of a short time until he would have to give up. He had been treated by some of the best physicians in Europe and America but got no permanent relief. One day he picked up a newspaper and chanced to read an advertisement of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhœa Remedy. He got a bottle of it, the first dose helped him and its continued use cured him. For sale by T. S. Armstrong, Apothecary, corner Park and North avenues.

PASSING COMMENT.

While nothing has been heard of the proposed new High School building of late, it is understood that the Board of Education will soon consider the question of the erection of a new building, and that the members are already discussing the ideas for the structure.

* * * *

St. Valentine's Day this year was certainly not what it used to be several years ago. Of course valentines were sent, but not in the numbers that used to crowd the mails and keep the young people in a continual state of excitement. The recent hard times may account for it in a measure, but there is evidently some change been going on among the youth of this city during the past year.

* * * *

There was considerable surprise when it became generally known that Vincent L. Frazee was elected to the Common Council in the place of Isaac Randolph, resigned. There is also some feeling among the residents of the Fourth ward in regard to the acceptance of Mr. Randolph's resignation. They think that his treatment was not of the best. At any rate, it keeps up the reputation of the present Council being the most lively one since the days of the "Big Six."

The people of Asbury Park are worried. Here is Atlantic City posing as a winter resort, and the business men and hotel keepers of that city are sharing with those of Lakewood in raking in the hard cash winter and summer, while their friends in Asbury Park have to wait for warm weather. This question has so bothered the people of Asbury Park that several days ago a special train full of the city officials and business men went to Atlantic City to learn what the attractions were that that city was offering to draw the crowds there in winter as well as summer. What the result of the trip was has not been announced, but it is very likely that in another year Asbury Park will pose before the world as a winter seaside resort.

Every heavy storm at this time of the year brings forth the question as to the probable flooding of Bound Brook again. The combination of circumstances necessary to produce a flood was fourteen years in coming the last time, so it is not likely that Bound Brook will be visited with another flood for many years to come. Then the change in one of the rail road bridges is said by those who should know will greatly lessen the chances of having another flood in that section. The continual false alarms about expected floods do not help the town any, and when there is hardly any chance of a repetition of last year's inundation, it is rather hard on the men who are trying to build up the place to have their efforts thus counteracted by the false reports.

A few months ago, Mr. Byron Every, of Woodstock, Mich., was badly afflicted with rheumatism. His right leg was swollen the full length, causing him great suffering. He was advised to try Chamberlain's Pain Balm. The first bottle of it helped him considerably and the seeond bottle effected a cure. The 25 and 50 cent sizes are for sale by T. S Armstrong, Apothecary, corner Park and North avenues.

THINGS THAT INTEREST SCOTCH PLAINS AND DUNELLEN.

Brief and Terse Observations Gathered by Alert Press Reporters to be Perused at the Supper Table at Your Leisure

DUNELLEN AND NEW MARKET.

Mr. and Mrs. Meeker Hetfield visited their daughter at Alton yesterday.

Miss Florence Jennings is able to leave the house again, after a week's illness.

James Goodwin, of Jersey City, was in town yesterday looking about the property here.

Rev. Dr. G. W. Smith will preach in the Dunellen M. E. church, Sunday, February 28th.

Michael Boyle, an employe at the roundhouse, has been ill, but is now able to walk out again.

George Trimmer is said to have staked out ground for a new house on Walnut street, yesterday.

A. S. Coriell, Jr's son, Bosworth, who has been very low with typhoid fever, is much improved.

Mrs. W. H. Kuhns, who has been in Junction attending the funeral of her father, is expected home today.

Joseph Kelly has been engaged permanently at the Greenbrook tanks in place of Lawrence Kirwin, resigned.

Rev. Frank Fletcher, of New Market, will occupy the pulpit in the M. E. church next Sunday morning.

Freeholder Gise and Thomas Todd drove over to New Brunswick, yesterday, and transacted some business pertaining to the borough's interests.

The members of the Dunellen Building and Loan Association will meet in Alvah Gray's office tonight for the transaction of some important business.

W. H. Carman has been making some decided improvements to his store. The inside of his large ice box has been torn out and a new and improved interior has been substituted.

The married and single men will contest in a bowling match at Taylor's Hotel this evening. Heretofore the matches have been about evenly contested, but the married men are going to make a desperate effort to defeat the single men tonight.

A select euchre party was held at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. John Logan last evening. Guests were present from Plainfield and Bound Brook, and during the evening refreshments were served and dainty favors were awarded to the prize winners.

William G. Holton Council, No. 55, J. O. U. A. M, met in Lincoln School Hall, Tuesday night, when in the regular rontine of business, one new member was elected and one new proposition received. The council now has some eighty members in good standing, and its membership is rapidly increasing.

The Presbyterian church people, who are noted for their whole-souled endeavors to please, are arranging for a church benefit in the shape of a supper, which is to take place at the home of Alvah Gray, on Washington avenue, the evening of the 22d inst. Being a benefit for the cause of Christianity, it is to be hoped that the attendance will be large.

It is quite likely that at the next meeting of the borough commissioners a motion will be made to furnish the members with individual desks, where they can keep their documents, pens, ink, etc. The cost, it is said, would not be great, and would add a great deal to the fine appearance of the new Council chamber and also to the convenience of the commissioners.

The boys who habitually gather at the postoffice corner every week day from 4 to 6 o'clock, are becoming very obnoxious, and it is hardly safe for a woman or child to pass there, for they are in danger of being hit by flying snowballs. The boys do not mean to injure anyone, but they should be compelled to keep away from the postoffice, where so many people are going to and returning from during the afternoons.

The many friends of Rev. S. F. Custard, whose serious illness has been the cause for much alarm, had their hopes and anticipations bright ened yesterday when the attending physicians held a consultation and came to the conclusion that another surgical operation would probably not be necessary. Ten days ago Rev. Mr. Custard was successfully operated upon and it was then thought that if he could survive the operation for ten days another one might be found necessary. But the reverend gentleman is doing remarkably well, and another operation has been decided unnecessary.

Mrs. Samuel Moffett went before Justice Collins yesterday and lodged a complaint against her husband, charging his liege lord with extreme cruelty and abuse. Moffett was at one time very wealthy and is highly connected, but he managed to run through with his money, and now his wife has to work hard to support herself and children. Moffett has served a jail sentence for a similar offense. He has not yet been arrested for this complaint.

Charlie Perrine and Jack Kelley, two of Westfield's hardest customers, the former a frequent offender, were in town yesterday, and suffering intense thirst they sought the amber fluid, but no where could they find a saloon that would sell them anything to drink, so they finally took themselves to Cammunia Collucci's place on Central avenue. But as Collucci has had enough trouble of late, he refused to sell to them. Then they became wrath and would have done up the beer vender had not some of his lodgers came to his rescue. The thirsty and angry men were thrown out into the street.

SOUTH PLAINFIELD.

On account of the recent storm, the dance at Higgins' Hotel was post poned to the evening of the 26th inst.

Morris Higgins intends to erect a large dancing pavilion on his property early in the spring, and during the summer he will give occasional band concerts and dances.

The Lehigh Valley Railroad Company, it is said, will make some decided improvements about the station the coming spring. The grounds are to be beautifully laid out and the approaches to the station more thoroughly macadamized. This would seem to indicate that the Lehigh Valley Company intends to cater to some of the Central's passenger traffic from Plainfield. During the warm summer months a number of commuters from Plainfield have been in the habit of taking a morning drive and catching their train at either Fanwood, Westfield or Cranford, and if the accommodations at South Plainfield are increased, many of them may decide to change their route and drive over to this place.

Beware of Ointments for Catarrh that Contain Mercury,

as mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completly derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is ten fold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., contains no mercury, and is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. In buying Hall's Catarrh Cure be sure you get the genuine. It is taken internally, and made in Toledo, Ohio, by F. J. Cheney & Co. Testimonials free. Sold by druggists, price 75c. per bottle. THEATRICAL.

Pete Baker, the genial German comedian, is announced to appear at Music Hall in this city for three nights, commencing Washington's Birthday matinee, presenting his three famous comedies, "Chris and Lena," "The Emigrant" and "Bismarck," at popular prices, 10, 20 and 30 cents. This is rather startling in view of the fact that Mr. Baker is, and always has been one of the most prominent stars of the theatrical world. A successful rival of the late J. K. Emmet, he occupies the field alone, since that clever actor's death, as America's representative German dialect comedian. This drop in prices does not indicate any deterioration of his performances, but merely to meet the demand for less expensive amusements, and it is far better to play to packed houses at popular prices than to a select few at high prices.

A FREAK OF NATURE.

A Wonderful Growth of Hair Known as the Plica Palonica.

The plica palonica is as rare a freak as any that Mother Nature has ever perpetrated.

It is the most remarkable growth and arrangement of human hair that ever was seen, and gets its name from the fact that it has been found almost exclusively among the natives of Poland.

A specimen at Dresden is the most famous. It is over twelve feet long, and about six inches thick a foot from the head. It does not taper much, either, for the hair as it has grown has in an inexplicable fashion matted and interwoven itself so that it makes a solid and inseparable mass.

No plica palonica is ever cut from the head of the owner, for the people of those northern countries are slaves to superstitition. They consider the plica a mark of divine favor, and everybody in Poland believes that it is in some way intimately associated with the vital spark. They think that if the plica were cut off the life would pass out at the several ends of the strands. So, even though the whole family be half starving, they would as soon think of eating up their grandfather as of cutting off the plica and selling it for money to buy bread with.—New York Journal.

WATER RICH IN COPPER.

The Outflow from the Anaconda Mine Worth a Fortune Every Year.

One of the most interesting sights in the great mining town of Butte is the process by which copper is caught from the emerald-colored water that flows from the Anaconda and St. Lawrence mines. It is estimated that this water, which for four or five years went to waste, is now bringing the Anaconda Company $30,000 a month, at a cost of about $1,000 a month.

It is only within the present year that the company undertook to handle this water. Heretofore it was worked under lease. An old German named Mueller was the first man to save copper from the water.

At the present time several acres of ground are covered with wooden vats. These are filled with all the old scrap iron they can hold.

It is said for every pound of iron put into a vat a pound of copper is produced. Where the water first attacks the iron the copper absorbs the iron completely within three weeks.—Anaconda Record.

Unable to Please Anyone.

A dealer was induced to dispense with his sign, "Fresh Fish for Sale Here."

"Why do you say 'fresh?'" asked a friend. "Nobody believes you would sell stale fish."

"The word 'here' is superfluous," said the other. "You wouldn't have the sign if you were not the dealer."

"Why do you say 'for sale?'" queried another. "Nobody believes you are giving it away."

The sign was altered to read simply "Fish," when a little Irishman, passing, said: "Take down that fool sign. Faith nobody thinks ye are sellin' cigars."—New York Journal.

A Tremendous Risk.

A Scotch journal tells of two impecunious Scotchmen who, having only a "saxpence" between them, ordered one "nip o' whiskey." They were hesitating who should have the first drink, when an acquaintance joined them. Pretending that they had just drunk, one of them handed the newcomer the whiskey, requesting him to join them in a drink. He drank, and, after a few minutes of painful and silent suspense, said, "Now, boys, you'll have one with me?" "Wasna that weel managed, mon?" said one to his pal afterward. "Ay, it was," said the other, solemnly, "but it was a dreadfu' risk!"

His Replies Equal to the Questions.

The driver of a prison-van, known for his ready wit, was one day conveying his victims to durance vile, when a would-be wag on the footpath hailed him with: "Got any room inside yer carriage, Rubbert?"

"There's room for a sma ane," returned the driver. "We kept it for you."

Nowise disconcerted, the wag made another shot: "What's fare, Rub?" he asked.

And Rub wiped him out with: "Bread and water; same as ye had before!"

The One Point of Recogition.

A certain farmer who lives in Northern New York, and who is by no means noted for his resemblance to Apollo, has a son of seven who has more wit than pedigree. One day a stranger came to the farm, and, seeing the lad, asked, "Sonny, where's your father?" "In the pig-pen," was the reply. "In the pig-pen? Thanks!" And, as the man moved in the direction indicated, the enfant terrible shouted. "I say! You'll know him 'cause he's got his hat on!"

Rider Haggard.

Mr. Rider Haggard belongs to an excellent Norfolk family of Danish extraction, and is a tall, slight, handsome man, with full blue eyes, fair complexion, and brown hair. From eighteen to twenty-three he lived in South Africa, and probably knows more of the country and its languages than any other living Englishman. He was a briefless barrister before he flowered into a successful novelist.—Harper's Bazar.

"De man dat ain't got nuffin' ter do," said Uncle Eben, "'ceptin' ter kill time, gen'rally needs mo' help dan de boss ob a factory."

MR. CHUNG'S QUEER BUSINESS.

He Polishes the Bones of Dead Celestials and Sends Them Home to China.

Mr. Chung is a contractor in the employ of the Chinese Six Companies of San Francisco. He entered into a contract eleven years ago to travel all over the United States and exhume the bones of Chinamen. All Chinamen who come to this country have a contract with the Six Companies that, in case of death, their bones shall be returned to the Flowery Kingdom, and Mr. Chung is the man who personally sees that the contract is carried out. He is intrusted with the task of keeping track of the dead Chinamen, taking their bones out of the grave, and shipping them to China—the only place, according to their religion, where they can find absolute rest. As he is under $30,000 bonds to do the work well, it is needless to say that he is careful. He brings two assailants from San Francisco, who do the rough work. He had with him, when he came here, the names of four Celestials, three of whom died here in 1889 and one in 1892. All of these will be exhumed and shipped, Dr. Gray, the health officer, having supplied a certificate that none died of contagious diseases.

Chung's contract says that he must not get the bones mixed; that each individual set must be cleaned, put in a white muslin bag, and then be boxed securely for shipment across the Pacific. He is not allowed to cut, saw, or break a bone, nor can he boil the bones to get the flesh off, on penalty of forfeiture of his bond. He says that three years serve to do away with the flesh, but they are generally allowed to remain in the grave longer than that, in order to make sure of a clean job when he goes at it. Each set of bones is labelled, and a record is kept of them. All are shipped to San Francisco, and when four tons have been collected they are put on a steamer and shipped. The Six Companies have a special contract with the steamship companies, and the cost of a ride across the great deep in this particular condition is only $2.50, and the company boasts that there has never been a kick on high rates!

Mr. Chung's assistants aroused the four peaceful sleepers from their long rest, polished them up according to contract, and sent them on their way—if not rejoicing, at least according to contract.—Ellensburg Register.

IT LOOKED WARLIKE.

The Spanish Minister Was Alarmed at a Senate Junket.

Some years ago, when the question of immigration and yellow fever and cholera were being looked into, a subcommittee of the Senate was appointed, consisting of Senators Proctor, Chandler and Call, to visit Havana. It was just before the Christmas holidays, and a visit to the Cuban port in the winter season is not without its attractions. The proposed trip, however, rather disturbed the Spanish Minister. He knew the belligerent propensities of Chandler and Call, and he hastened to the State Department with a despatch from Madrid, anxious to learn whether the investigation was proposed with peaceable intent.

Secretary Foster listened to the excited Minister with great suavity. "There is no occasion for alarm," he said, reassuringly. "You know that the holiday recess is approaching and these Senators are simply arranging for a pleasure trip. I am sure there is nothing else in it."

A great light of intelligence broke over the Spanish Minister's face.

"Oh," he exclaimed, "a peek-neek, a peek-neek!" And he went away much relieved.—Washington Post.

Not Safe to Think Aloud.

Baron Park, one of the most famous among a past generation of judges, was exceedingly deaf, and, like many deaf people, had contracted a habit of thinking aloud. When engaged one day in trying a man charged with stealing some firewood, he took umbrage at the prosecutor's positive identification of the stolen faggots. "How can he know that the faggots are his," soliloquized the learned judge, "when one faggot is as like another faggot as one egg is like another egg?" Counsel for the defence was quick to take advantage of this unintentional hint from the Bench. "How," he asked the prosecutor, "can you know that the faggots are yours when one faggot is as like another faggot as one egg is like another egg?" The question had a success which was probably unhoped for even by the questioner, for it led to the immediate intervention of the judge. Turning to the jury, Baron Park remarked, "Gentlemen, you will acquit the prisoner. That very thought flashed through my mind not a minute before the words were spoken by the learned counsel. It is a direct interposition of Providence.

The Fish Wouldn't Bite.

The following story is told of a celebrated novelist and a well-known critic. The critic had written a bitter attack on the novelist's work; but the latter, being a good-natured man, instead of overwhelming him with vituperation in any periodical he could find sufficiently accommodating to publish it, requested a mutual friend to bring the critic to his house to dinner some evening. When he received the invitation, this was the critic's reply—"I certainly shall not go. He simply wants to heap coals of fire on my head; and do you suppose I am fool enough to hold the scuttle for him?"

Our Beautiful Language.

"This is a great country."

"Yes, with a great language. I heard one man say of another that the only way to make him dry up was to soak him.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

THE PLAINTIFF'S POWERFUL PLEA.

The Client Won His Own Case When the Lawyer Failed.

"I went into a country district in Maryland a few days ago to try a case," said a Washington attorney.

"I appeared for the plaintiff, and it must be confessed that the evidence failed to establish his claim. I presented the matter before the Justice of the Peace in the best light I knew how, but had very little hope of securing the verdict. My client, when I finished, whispered to me that he would say a few words if I were willing, and, considering the case lost, I consented. It was the most unique speech I ever heard and it won the case. He said:

"'Squire, I brought this suit, and the evidence, except my own, is against me. I don't accuse any one of lying, Squire, but the witnesses are the most mistaken lot of fellows I ever saw. You know me, Squire. Two years ago you sold me a horse for sound that was as blind as a bat. I made the trade and stuck to it, and this is the first time I have mentioned it. When you used to buy grain, you stood on the scales when the empty wagon was weighed, but I never said a word. Now, do you think I am the kind of a man to kick up a rumpus and sue a fellow unless he has done me wrong?'

"It took just five minutes for the Justice to decide for the plaintiff."—Washington Star.

BEQUEST OF A BIRTHDAY.

A Generous Gift from a Large-Hearted and Sympathetic Friend.

The following charming story is told of the late Robert Louis Stevenson. He was visiting a friend, afterwards consul to Samoa, in Northern Vermont. This gentleman had a little daughter about eleven years old, who very speedily became a devoted friend of the novelist's. In pouring forth her joys and sorrows in existence, she confided to Mr. Stevenson the woeful fact that she was born on the 29th of February, and therefore had enjoyed only two birthdays in all her eleven years. The poet sympathized not only in comforting words, but also in action. He meditated for a few moments, then went to her writing desk and drew up the following document—"I, Robert Louis Stevenson, in a sound state of mind and body, having arrived at that age when I no longer have any use for birthdays, do give and bequeath my birthday, in the 13th of November, to Miss Adelaide Ide, to be hers from this year as long as she wishes it.—Robert Louis Stevenson." The little girl's delight at this rare and most welcome gift has shown itself regularly once a year for several years past, and now the anniversary will be doubly treasured.

COSTLY CHARCOAL THREAD.

It is the Most Expensive Product in the World.

As a matter of curiosity United States Consul Morris at Ghent reports to the State Department that the most expensive product in the world is the charcoal thread employed for incandescent lamps. It is for the most part manufactured at Paris and comes from the hands of an artist who desires his name to remain unknown in order to better protect the secret of manufacture. It is by the gramme that this product is sold at wholesale. In reducing its price to the basis of pounds, it is easily found that the filaments for lamps of twenty candles are worth $8,000 per pound, and that for lamps of thirty candles they are worth $12,000 per pound. The former have a diameter of twenty-thousandths of one millimeter, and the latter four and one-half thousandths of a millimetre. The filaments of lamps of three candles are so light that it would require nearly 1,500,000 of them to weigh a pound. As the length of each of them is ten centimetres, their total length would be 187 miles.—New York Journal.

Servants in Knickerbockers.

The women servants in the house of a titled English woman now go about their duties in knickerbockers. Lady Harberton, the noble pioneer who has accomplished this transformation, is at the head of the Rational Dress League of England. She has long been famous in that country for her divided skirts and her advanced opinions on many subjects.

Lady Harberton has favored the world with her reasons for introducing this reform into her household. In the first place, she says that bifucated garments are good for all women, but particularly so for domestic servants. The nature of their work makes skirts a peculiar form of slavery for them.

A Wonderful Lock.

Long ago a skillful craftsman brought out a singularly ingenius contrivance—a lock formed of rings. Upon each ring certain letters were inscribed. This strange piece of mechanism could be turned until the letters represented the name Jesus, and only when this had been attained could the lock be opened.

No wonder that a well-accredited man of God to whom this wonderful lock was shown exclaimed, "Oh, that I could put such a lock as this upon my heart!"—Harper's Bazar.

Love Accomplishes Much.

Admirers of Gray's "Elegy on a Country Church-yard" will read with pleasure of the mother's love and energy in providing ways and means for the boy's collegiate training. Assuring herself that her son possessed talents, her heart was so bent upon the development of his gifts that "she set up a shop," and so successfully managed its affairs that he was sent to Cambridge.—Harper's Bazar.

THE JOKE ON THE JOKER.

How Herrmann Was Taken in by the Presentation of a Ring.

At the Gilsey House, New York, Herrmann was always a welcome visitor and never failed to astonish and amuse the employes and guests whenever opportunity offered.

Herrmann was invited to perform for the benefit of an uptown club at the Standard Theatre. His performance made the hit of the evening. After the entertainment the more prominent of the clubmen invited the magician to a little supper at the Gilsey House and at the same time informed him that he would be presented with a ring.

Herrmann felt sure he would be the owner of another diamond before he went home that night. Toward the end of the supper one of the members made a little speech, thanking the guest of the evening for his valuable services, etc., at the benefit and hoped he would accept the ring which would be presented as soon as the speech was finished. The applause which followed this speech was the signal for Herrmann's own colored boy to enter the room carrying a big brass gong. Herrmann at the time said he was more taken in by that joke than he ever had been before.

CURIOUS WAYS OF OWLS.

Some See by Day as Well as Night and Others Hunt Field Mice.

There are two good reasons why the every-day hunter seldom sees an owl while he tramps. One reason is that some owls cannot see by day, and therefore select hiding places which render their discovery next to impossible as a person passes casually through the woods. The other reason is that there are some owls that see by day as well as by night. These double-sighted birds discover the intruder long before he can possibly see them, and they lose no time in seeking places of greater safety. There are owls whose eyesight does not depend on darkness to be of use. The screech owl and the long-eared owl are among the members of the family that are blinded, or partially blinded by the light of day. Others, among them the hoot owl, the snow owl, the hawk owl, and the short-eared owl, are sharp sighted, both by day and by night. The short-eared owl is a great field-mouse hunter in wheat or rye stubble. He is among the first of the family of winter owls that come down from the north to forage in this latitude.—New York Sun.

A SOVEREIGN'S COSTUME.

Hardly Capable of Being Packed in a Telescope or Steamer Trunk.

The German Emperor has twelve valets charged with keeping the imperial wardrobe, valued at £100,000. Every uniform bears precious decorations.

The uniforms of all the regiments of the German army, with their helmets, caps, shakos, rifles, swords and sabres, are shut up in immense cupboards. The uniforms of the Imperial German navy are arranged in the same way. Next to these come the uniforms of the Saxons, Bavarians, Hessians and others. Separated in other large cupboards are the Austrian, Russian, Swedish, English and Italian uniforms, all ready to accompany the Kaiser in his journeys or to be used on the occasion of princely visits. Finally must be mentioned his hunting and shooting costumes, his court dresses, his yachting and lawn tennis uniforms and his private dresses. When the Emperor travels, his uniforms and costumes fill two or three carriages.

His Majesty is very fond of jewelry and curios. He wears half a dozen rings, a large watch and chain, and a bracelet on his right arm.—Globe.

His Gentle Voice.

Our neighbor went by the name of "Whispering Dick," which was given to him in ridicule. People said he talked as if he were brought up in a mill. One cold morning he walked into a public house, and called out in his thundering voice:

"Good-morning, landlord! How are you?"

"Very well. How are you?"

"Oh, I am about frozen; I can hardly talk."

Just then a nervous traveller who was present ran up to the landlord, exclaiming:

"Please have my horse brought as soon as possible!"

"Why, what is the matter?" asked the landlord.

"Nothing. I only want to get away before that man thaws!"—Answers.

A Woman Trapper.

There is a young woman living in New York who is popular wherever she goes, but more especially in the Adirondacks, where she spends her summers and autumns. She is a good shot with a rifle, and has killed a number of deer, but hunting is not her favorite amusement, for she prefers to trap her game.

There are not many women who know how to set a trap, but this one can give almost any man points on the subject. She wears a black fur cape, trimmed with reddish fur. It is very swell, and as the fur is fine and rich it makes a very handsome garment. The cape is of otter skin, the trimming of fox. The fur was all captured in traps set by the wearer, and, what is more, the beasts were skinned and the skins stretched and then tanned with her own hands.—New York Sun.

Incorrigible.

"What did you and Smith talk about?"

"About fifteen minutes."

"I mean, what did you talk over?"

"The telephone."

SENATOR SEWELL ANGRY.

Confirmation of Jersey Postmasters During His Absence the Cause.

Washington, Feb. 18.—When Senator Sewell of New Jersey read the Record yesterday and found that the postmasters at Swedesboro, Bridgeton, Bayonne, Atlantic City, Paterson, Ocean City, Cramer Hill and Rockaway, in the state New Jersey, had been confirmed he was filled with indignation. The result was that when the senate went into executive session Mr. Sewell was in a state of mind that caused him to indulge in some criticisms of the means by which the confirmations had been secured. Mr. Smith, the democratic senator from New Jersey, resented the intimation that the report from the committee and the action of the senate had been secured in any way that was not entirely fair, and insisted that none of Mr. Sewell's rights or privileges had been imposed upon. Mr. Chandler, acting chairman of the committee, stated that the committee by a yea and nay vote, Mr. Butler, populist, having the casting vote, had decided to make a favorable report, and that the nominations came up in the ordinary course of business on the executive calender. This did not molify Mr. Sewell to any appreciable extent and he wanted the confirmations reconsidered. Mr. Smith made no objection to the adoption of a motion recalling the confirmations from the president, but he will resist a motion to reconsider the action of the senate which Mr. Sewell will make, probably to-day.

DEATH OF GEN. PLEASANTON.

The Distinguished Cavalry Leader Passes Away at Washington.

Washington, Feb. 18.—Gen. Alfred Pleasanton, the distinguished cavalry officer on the Union side during the late civil war, who died at his apartments yesterday, had for the past six years lived the life of a recluse, surrounded by his books, and enjoying the society of a few friends of his army days. Gen. Pleasanton was born June 7, 1824, graduated from West Point in 1844, and served in the Mexican and civil wars with distinction. In 1888 he was placed on the retired list of the army with the rank of colonel.

Brazil Coffee Planters' Broken Promises.

Washington, Feb. 18.—The United States vice consul at Santos, Brazil, sends a report to the state department which bristles with broken promises of coffee planters to immigrants arriving there from Canada and the United States to work in the coffee fields. The consul says the Italians make better coffee laborers than those of the Anglo-Saxon race, because of their becoming more readily acclimated and their manner of living. He also condemns the steamship companies for holding out allurements which have never been fulfiled.

SPANISH ATROCITIES

Shocking Story Told By a Refugee from Cuba.

WOMEN AND CHILDREN BUTCHERED

Peaceful Residents' Houses Burned and Fleeing Inmates Shot Down—Infants Cut in Two in Their Mothers' Presence.

Buffalo, Feb. 18.—Manuel Martinez, a Cuban cigar manufacturer, has just arrived from Pinar del Rio. Six month ago he was a prosperous and well-to-do merchant. Now he is almost penniless; nearly all of his family, peaceable people, have been killed by the Spanish troops in cold blood. He, his brother, a sister, his cousin's wife and her four little children escaped on January 11 from the island through the kindness and protection of the American consul, Gen. Fitzhugh Lee. On December 18, without any provocation, his plantation was set on fire by the Spaniards. He says: "The houses in our neighborhood were surrounded by troops. The fire was started in the rear, so that the inmates of the houses had to choose between death by fire, or by bullets. If they tried to escape by the street the Spanish soldiers would shoot them. Rather than be shot by a Spanish bullet, many remained in their houses and were burned to death. My youngest sister, Maria, 19 years of age, jumped from the third story and was instantly killed. My other sister, Louisa, 26 years of age, tried to escape by jumping from a side window on the second floor. She died eleven days after from internal injuries. Seven other families suffered as did ours. As soon as my brothers and I heard of the atrocity we came at once from Pinar del Rio. We had scarcely reached the street when a volley was fired at us. My brother Fredico and my cousin were killed. Ruiz, my youngest brother, and myself succeeded in making our escape uninjured. We went at once to Consul General Lee and through his kindness and protection I succeeded in getting my cousin's wife, her four little children and my brother and sister to Tampa, where they are now. The day my brother was shot ten little children were taken separately by the Spanish guards, held up in the air by two others while a third came along with a machete and cut them in two. Mothers, knowing that they too would be killed, begged that their deaths should come before that of their children's, but the butchers would not listen to their entreaties. The feeling in Cuba towards the people of the United States is very kindly."

WEYLER IS CONFIDENT.

Declares the Pacification of Cuba Will Soon Be Accomplished.

Havana, Feb. 18.—Gen. Weyler yesterday afternoon received the provincial authorities of Sancti Spiritus. He said that the revolution in Cuba from its very beginning had taken the character of a brigand war and that the insurgents had, whenever possible, avoided engagements with the Spanish forces. He prophesied the early ending of the revolution and declared that the pacification of the island would soon be accomplished fact, and would be due entirely to the operations of his troops. Weyler remains in the Sancti Spiritus district. A hot fight is reported to have occurred between a body of insurgents and a Spanish force in the Tigre hills, in Las Villas, resulting in numerous losses to the insurgents and the capture of the positions occupied by them. The Spaniards lost nine killed and thiry-one wounded. Among the killed was Capt. Pedroso. Gen. Linares reports that the troops of his column have seized the Cauto Baire, a rebel convoy, with a number of mules and a quantity of ammunition and supplies. Col. San Martin asserts that rebel leader Ramon Lazo has been killed in a skirmish at Sitio Anita, in the province of Pinar del Rio. Pedro Hernandez Gueraza, who for some time has been closely watched by the authorities, has been arrested as a political suspect. The death is announced of Francisco Arazoza, publisher of the Gaceta Official. Col. Alfau reports having had a three hours' battle with rebels at Colmenar, near Cuba Mocha, in the Matanzas province. The battle was hotly contested and the rebel losses in killed or wounded were heavy. The insurgent leader Raul Arango was among the killed. The Spaniards had one lieutenant and eighteen privates wounded.

CYCLING COMMENT.

Thomas B. Jeffrey, of the Gormully and Jeffrev Cycle Company, was a guest at the salesrooms of the F. L. C. Martin Cycle Company.

A full line of samples of the Columbia and Hartford wheels, except the tandems, can now be seen at the salesrooms of the Eldridge Bicycle Company, on Park avenue.

The Eldridge Bicycle Company has received a new kind of home trainer which can be arranged in connection with a wheel. It consists of a regular stand with a wooden roller in back on which the wheel turns. The necessary friction is given by two springs which keep the roller against the rear wheel. The springs can be adjusted.

A meeting of the Cleveland Cyclers was held in the club rooms on North avenue, Monday evening. John Mowry, William Leitheuser, and Charles W. Hummer were elected members of the club and three applications were received. The membership of the club now numbers thirty-six. A committee, consisting of W. J. Kiely, chairman, G. T. Sutphen and Fred Hargraves, was appointed to look after the furnishing of the club rooms.

A new line of wheels has been added to those which the F. L. C. Martin Cycle Company is now handling. It is the Barnes White Flyer, whose exhibit at the Cycle Show attracted such attention. The Barnes is best known on account of the white enamel with which the frame is usually covered. The first one to be sold in this city was sold to Frank E. Richards, who has purchased one of the racing wheels. The wheel is a fast one on the track where it was ridden last year by Eddie Bald. Richards expects to continue his work on the track this season. His record last year was a gentle one.

As the time draws near people are beginning to think about a bicycle for this year, and as the cycle show is over the trade has started off with good prospects. One of the best equipped cycle stores in the state is on North avenue, conducted by the Plainfield Cycle and Sporting Goods Company. They have received their 1897 wheels and a glance at them will convince anyone that they have a line which cannot be beat. They have several of the high grade wheels and a line of $75 wheels second to none in the country, all of which are guaranteed fully. They also have a line of juvenile wheels which are built for hard ware. In addition to the wheels, a full line of all kinds of sporting goods are kept so that the most particular can be suited. An inspection is invited and Charles Lister, the genial manager, will always be found ready attend to the wants of all.

The bowling teams from the Potter Press works and the Pond Machine Tool works will meet on the Ulrich alleys tomorrow evening.

Two games were rolled and the home team captured them both. The first game was won by 11 pins and the second by a greater margin. The best bowlers of the visiting team went all to pieces and rolled unusually low scores

The Poverty Party of the Epworth League of the First M. E. church will be held tomorrow evening in Vincent chapel. A FARCE AND A DANCE.

SUCCESSFUL ENTERTAINMENT GIVEN BY IONA COUNCIL.

"A Precious Pickle" Was the Title of the Farce and it was Given in a Funny Way—Other Part of the Programme.

The entertainment and dance given by Iona Council, Degree of Pocohontas, last evening, was one of the most successful ever held and the large rooms were not sufficient to accommodate all that attended. A great surprise was given the members of the council, for a fine new hardwood floor had been laid especially for the occasion and additional pleasure was given those who danced.

The entertainment was opened with an address of welcome by Mrs. A. J. Stiglitz, chairman of the committee, This was followed with a selection by the orchestra, which preceded some funny remarks by William A. Westphal, whose talent in this direction is well-known.

A farce entitled "A Precious Pickle" was then given by the following persons: Mrs. A. J. Stiglitz, Mrs. Fred Westphal, Mrs. Radin, Mrs. Holstein, Mrs. Dodwell, Miss Dodwell and Miss Pullin. The acting brought forth great applause, as did also the selections by the "Juvenile Quartette." W. R. Mattox gave some of his best recitations, and the programme closed with selections by jubilee singers.

The floor was then cleared for dancing which was continued until an early hour this morning. Each gentleman present was given a "pipe of peace," as a token of remembrance. Those who took part in the farce, together with Mrs. Stephany, composed the committee having charge of the affair.

MARRIED AT ST. MARY'S.

Nuptial Knot of Miss Annie Kiely and Joseph Galbraith.

The marriage of Miss Anna Kiely, of this city, and Joseph Galbraith, coachman for E. S. Hooley, of Rockview avenue, was celebrated yesterday afternoon at 4:30 at St. Mary's church. Rev. Father Murphy officiated in the presence of a large assemblage of people. Miss Mary Kiely, sister of the bride, was bridemaid, and Dennis Galbraith, brother of the groom, was best man.

After the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the groom, No. 521 South Second strret, which was attended by a large number of people. Mr. and Mrs. Galbraith received many costly presents.

Reporter Thomas Did Not Appear.

A meeting of the Consistory of the German Reformed church was held last evening, to which Rev. Mr. Hauser and H. S. Thomas, of the reportorial staff of the News, were invited. The object of the meeting was to learn who was really responsible for the erronious statements made in the News sometime ago, regarding the union of the German churches. Mr. Thomas failed to put in appearance and the meeting was then adjourned.

were then, now they are men and women. Some of them are married and are settled in life, having children of their own. If we should meditate upon this for any length of time, I fear that we should then realize that we are growing old. There is not such a perceptible change in the adult portion of the parish, a few gray hairs more or less, but you know this is not always indicative of age. However, we have had placed to our credit twenty years of time. We will not at this time dwell on the past, but we will turn our face toward the future, and endeavor to accomplish more there than in the past. We will strive to keep young and hope on and hope ever. On an occasion like this I am not going to moralize nor sermonize. There is a time for all things—this is a time for social and friendly intercourse, and I am glad to welcome you all here tonight.

"In conclusion I would say if I should talk to you for an hour I cannot express to you in words my deep appreciation and love towards you for your kindness and loyalty in the past and for your expression of it on this occasion. I shall never forget it. I not only speak for myself but for Mrs. Murphy also. Accept our thanks, and may the Lord bless and prosper you all is our sincere and earnest prayer."

As Mr. Murphy concluded his remarks the genuine applause and the sweet chimes of the clock mingled in appropriate harmony.

The guests were then served with a delightful supper, and those who assisted at the table were Miss Warman, Miss Smith, Miss Blanche Miller, Miss Fountain, Miss Western, and the Misses Long.

During the sociability which followed Mrs. William L. Saunders sang "Thou Art Like Unto a Flower," from Rubenstein, and "What the Rain is to the Rose," from Chimminaud, and this unexpected pleasure was thoroughly enjoyed.

Among the guests, which included prominent society people from the borough and city, were several from Brooklyn and New York.

Among the pleasant surprises was the presentation of a beautiful palm and some costly silverware from friends.

The committee who deserve unlimited praise for their untiring efforts in arranging the anniversary exercises consists of Mason W. Tyler, William L. Saunders, Horsley Barker, Dr. Carman, A. T. Gallup, B. R. Western, Robert S. Miller and W. A. Westphal.

The event will long be remembered by the rector, his friends and the parishoners of the Church of the Holy Cross.

EARLY INTELLIGENCE.

—You will find additional local news on the third page.

—The Ladies' Aid Society, of the Monroe Avenue M. E. church has changed the date of the coming sociable from next Tuesday evening to the next Thursday evening. The change was made so as not conflict with the lecture at the Irving school.

PARTICULAR MENTION.

Miss M. E. VanDeventer, of Central avenue, left this morning for Washington, D. C., where she will remain until March 1st.

Miss Pearl Andrews and Charles Geigler, of New York, will be the guests Saturday and Sunday of Mr. and Mrs. Abner Bartlett, of Westervelt avenue.

The announcement is made of the approaching marriage of Miss Lena Weber, of East Third street, and William A. Boe, of Pearl street. The happy event will be celebrated in April.

The most notable society event held in the borough for some time was the affair given at the Park clubhouse Tuesday evening by Miss Wilson, of "Tunlaw," in honor of Miss Nerville Chapman and Miss Sydney Wharton, of Pittsburg. The decorations were pink and white.

"I've a good notion to go and jump into the river," said Mr. N. Peck, at the end of a little domestic discussion, as he picked up his hat and started out.

"You come back here," said his wife. "If you intend any such tricks as that, just march up stairs and put on your old clothes before you start."

The Holy Terror—Say, Mr. Choker, won't you give me one of your pieces?

The New Minister—Why, my boy, what do you mean?

The Holy Terror— Well, pop said that when you preached your first sermon last Sunday, you went all to pieces, and I thought maybe you'd let me have one of them.

Mrs. A.: "My dear, one servant is not enough in the kitchen now. We must have two." Mr. A.: "Why, we have three daughters, and only yesterday I paid a big bill for their tuition in a cookery-school!" Mrs. A.: "Yes—that's what's the matter. They are all assisting at the cooking, and Bridget says she must have additional help to clean up."

DIDN'T KNOW THE ROPES.

How a Raw Recruit Was Imposed Upon by Jocular Comrades.

Gen. Morgan of Illinois, who commanded a brigade in Davis's division, was one of those men so slouchy in his appearance that a stranger would never have picked him out for an officer of high rank. One day a raw recruit of his brigade who had lost some books asked a veteran where he might be likely to find them. The veteran said the only thief in the brigade was Jim Morgan, who occupied a tent near the blue flag. The recruit hastened to Morgan's tent, shoved his head through the flaps and asked:

"Does Jim Morgan live here?"

"My name is James Morgan," answered the General.

"Then I want you to hand over those books you stole from me!"

"I have none of your books, my dear man."

"That's a lie," cried the soldier. "The boys say you are the only thief in camp. Turn out them books, or I'll grind your carcass into apple sass!"

Gen. Morgan appreciated the joke, and laughed heartily but when the recruit began pulling off his coat to make good his threats the officer informed him of his relations to the brigade.

"Waal, blast me if I'd take you for a brigadier!" said the man. "Excuse me, General, but I don't thoroughly know the ropes yet."—Harper's Round Table.

A Smart Footman.

A lady had issued invitations for a party of twelve, and, on the morning of the appointed day, when conferring with the footman, she discovered that one of the twelve silver shells in which th scalloped oysters were to be served had been misplaced. Rigid search for the missing article having proved unavailing, the lady decided that sooner than give up that particular course, she would simply decline oysters when they were handed her, and so the eleven shells would be sufficient.

It happened that when the oysters were served at dinner, the hostess was engaged in an animated conversation with one or two of her neighbors, and, forgetting her determination, took one of the shells of oysters and set it before herself.

If the servant's heart fell in consternation at this, he gave no external sign of it, but, speaking in tones distinct, though low, said, respectfully:

"Excuse me, madam, but you said I was to remind you that the doctor forbade your eating oysters."—Tid-Bits.

The Man in a Trunk.

Hermann Zeitung, the Teutonic tailor, who some years since traveled as luggage from Vienna to Paris has been repeating his pranks, says the London Telegraph. This time he reached Rome from Basil in a box. He was for six days cramped up in the case, and was unable to move when the lid was lifted by the railway porters, who had been attracted by his cries for help. He had to be conveyed to a hospital for treatment, and on recovering his consciousness, for he was nearly dazed, he said he had performed the strange and perilous journey for the purpose of drawing attention to an apparatus which he has invented for taking measures for suits of clothes. The tailor will no doubt endeavor to exhibit himself to the Italians as "The Man in a Trunk," a title by which he was known during his stay in Paris, where he was well treated after his journey from the banks of the Danube to those of the Seine.

THE WASHINGTON TEA.

SUCCESSFUL AFFAIR HELD AT GRACE M. E. CHURCH.

An Old Fashioned Concert Occupied the First Part of the Evening—Brefreshments and a Good Time Came After.

It goes without saying that whenever anything is held at Grace M. E. church it is sure to be a success, and so it was with the Martha Washington tea which was held in the church last evening. The affair attracted an audience that could hardly be accommodated, for it was very large as to numbers. The church was prettily decorated with flags and bunting.

The first part of the evening was devoted to an old-fashioned concert which was given by thirty young girls and boys under the direction of the Misses Carroll. Those who took part were dressed in the old-fashioned style and they presented an attractive appearance.

The programme consisted of the following vocal selections by the chorus: "Auld Lang Syne," "Yankee Doodle," "Old Folks at Home, "Messiah is King," "Anvil Chorus,' and "America." Among the special features were the vocal solo, "My Grandma," by Mistress Belle DeMott; vocal duett, Master Jedediah Higgins and Mistress Eva Higgins; vocal solo, "Coming Through the Rye," Ethel Noe. Every one of the numbers was well received and especially so were the special features.

Rev. H. J. Johnson announced after the concert that the women had provided a lot of good things and he hoped that all would remain and patronize the various tables. His instructions were obeyed and the women received a goodly sum from the sales.

Mrs. Valiant was the efficient chairman of the affair and those who assisted her were as follows:

Candy table—Mrs. E. E. Winckler, Mrs. Charles Hummer, Miss Clara Steiner, Miss Mamie Steiner, Miss Marguerite Schuck, Miss Alice Carroll, Miss Grace Carroll, Miss Della Voehl, Miss Agnes Tingley, Miss Carrie Tingley. Fancy table—Mrs. H. K. Carroll, Mrs. A. A. Taft Mrs. L. A. Hummer, Mrs. Andrew Lutkins, Mrs. T. W. Powell, Mrs. E. Loomis, Mrs. E. P. Stevens. Cake and ice cream—Mrs. Garey, Mrs. Force, Mrs. Vermeule, Mrs. Shepherd, Mrs. Schuck, Mrs. Higgins, Mrs. Hoagland, Mrs. Bauersachs, Mrs. Morton, Mrs. Stein. Lemonade well—Miss Hoagland, Miss Van Fleet, Miss Valiant, Miss Stevens, Miss Marsh, Miss Mary Hoagland.

Mrs. Most and the Misses Carroll had charge of the programme which was so well rendered. At the door were John Steiner and Frank Schuck who looked after the money as it came in. The decorations was the work of Miss Schuck, Miss Voehl and Mrs. Wincker.

The tea will be continued this evening and it is hoped that the attendance will be full as large as it was last evening.

TRUSTEES ELECTED.

A Step in the Direction of a Chapel for the East Third Street Mission.

The meeting held at the East Third Street Mission last evening was for the purpose of electing five trustees so that the work of erecting the new chapel could proceed.

Deacon R. K. Case, of the First Baptist church, called the meeting to order. L. W. Randolph was chosen chairman and Irving L. Brady was selected as secretary. In calling the meeting to order, Mr. Case reviewed the work of the mission since it was started sometime ago in a tent on the same street where it is now located. He complimented the workers for the able and efficient service they had accomplished for the Master, and he urged them to do still more.

The following trustees were then elected: R. K. Case, L. W. Serrell, Sr., C. W. McCutchen, Irving L. Brady and L. W. Randolph. This concluded the business of the evening, and the meeting then adjourned.

M'VEY'S HOTEL ANNEX.

Plainfield's Well-Known Boniface Seeking Larger Quarters.

J. H. McVey, of North avenue, who owns the building at 132 North avenue, has started the work of fitting it up for a hotel annex, and when it is completed it will have accommodations for thirty or forty people. This course has been adopted by Mr. McVey for the reason that he is unable to accommodate all his customers at the restaurant building. The new quarters will be fitted up in the latest style with all the modern improvements. This will allow Mr. McVey to provide for his regular boarders at the original place.

FOR FAME AND FORTUNE.

TWO NEW MARKET BOYS RUN AWAY FNOM HOME.

One Wants to be a Sailor and the Other a Circus Rider—Their Heads Full of Fancies—Their Whereabouts Unkown.

With visions of fortunes to be secured for the asking, two New Market boys have gone forth from their homes to see the world and incidentally to become rich and famous, one as a sailor and the other as a circus performer. They left yesterday morning and the parents of the missing ones are greatly disturbed over their prolonged absence.

Albert Johnson and Daniel Moody are two lads from New Market, sixteen years of age, and of reputable families. They have always been well thought of in the community although Johnson once ran away and found employment on a tug boat in New York. He tired of the life and returned home.

Of late, the boys have been coming home with their heads filled with stories of the wonderful chances to be found by a young man in New York, and how fine positions could be had for the asking.

Yesterday morning young Moody rose earlier than usual, bid his mother good-bye several times, which was unusual for him to do, and said that he was going to school. He was next seen at Johnson's house with a little rifle over his shoulder. Albert Johnson also told his mother that he was going to school, and the two lads started off. They made their way down the tracks of the Lehigh Valley Railroad, and told two other lads whom they met that they were going to runaway.

Both the lads were dressed in their school clothes and Moody wore no overcoat. He had about $6 in money with him while Johnson had about a dollar. The money they took was their savings.

Young Johnson's father is very ill with bronchitis and has just passed the critical point. The news is being kept from him. Moody's parents went to New York, last evening, to search for their son, but no trace of him was found.

GOT BLOWS, BUT NO MONEY.

THEN HAD HIS DEBTOR ARRESTED.

Theodore Glazier, Jr., Held on Charge of Assault and Battery.

Walter Coriell, of the borough, appeared before Justice Thomas yesterday afternoon and made a complaint against Theodore Glazier, Jr., charging him with assault and battery. The affair took place night before last on Somerset street, opposite Lincoln place. It appears that Coriell claims that the latter owed him some money for work and Coriell met his debtor with a demand for the same. Glazier did not like Coriell's importuning and a fight was the result. A little later Chief Wilson appeared and everything was quiet. It is said that Coriell was badly done up and that Glazier also received some hard knocks. The latter appeared before Justice Thomas yesterday afternoon and was placed under $50 bonds to appear for a hearing next Wednesday.

THE CECELIA SONGSTERS.

Under the Direction of E. J. Fitzhugh They Rehearsed.

About forty women have joined the Cecelia Club and they met yesterday afternoon at the Y. M. C. A. for the first time. E. J. Fitzhugh, the conductor, was highly gratified with the excellent attendance. It is expected that there will be about fifteen more members to come in. This is necessary that the financial part of the affair may be a success. The afternoon was devoted to the rehearsal of part songs, and those present entered into the work with a will. Another meeting will be held at an early date when the organization will be completed.

Burned Out a Flue.

DEMOCRATS ARE ALERT.

A MUNICIPAL TICKET LIKELY ACROSS THE BROOK.

A Conference of Some of the Leaders Last Night—H. P. Reynolds Mentioned for Mayor—Councilmanic Possibilities.

As exclusively stated in the Press several weeks ago, there is a strong probability that a Democratic ticket will be placed in the field for support at the approaching borough election, which is to be held March 9th. Among those who actively interest themselves in the cause of Democracy "over the brook" the idea of giving the Republicans a hustle this spring has been seriously considered, and last night the first step in that direction was taken when a private conference was held by some of the Democratic leaders.

The question of who to nominate for Mayor was first brought up and a number of prominent borough Democrats were spoken of. Though there are several who are eminently qualified to fill the position of chief executive of the smallest half of the Greater Plainfield, the demands of a business life preclude their accepting, and finally the name of H. P. Reynolds was regarded with a good deal of favor. Mr. Reynolds is living a retired life and is one who is always in the van of municipal progress and improvement. He could devote a good deal of time to the office if elected. Conservative and a thoroughgoing business man he is considered as one who would make a strong fight against any Republican that may be named.

For Councilmen the names of B. R. Western, Charles Lyman and George Kirch were mentioned

It is not yet known whether or not these gentlemen will permit their names to be used, but no doubt a good deal of influence will be brought to get them to accept.

THE YOUTHS ENTERTAIN.

EACH ONE DID THEIR PART TO MAKE A PLEASANT EVENT.

Dialogues and Recitations Formed the Principal Features of the Programme—Audience Applauded Them Vigorously.

The youthful members of the Sunday-school of the First Presbyterian church entertained their friends in the chapel of the church, last evening, in a very delightful manner. The entertainment was arranged by a committee from the Sunday-school with Superintendent Lounsbury as chairman. An enthusiastic audience filled most of the seats and applauded vigorously the different selections.

Two selections, "Through the lonely vale," and "Sweet and low," were first rendered by a Sunday-school choir composed of the Misses Mildreth Ulrich, Beatrice Miller, Grace McKean, Ethel Laing, Florence Morrison, Mary Line, Emma Line, Leah Hammond, Winnie Hammond, Ada Dunham, Clara Dunham, Nora Schenck, and Mamie Dunham. A humorous recitation was given by Miss Edna Burr. The next soloist was rather youthful but she sang her little selection very sweetly.

A recitation by ten little girls and boys was entitled "Washington," each one bringing a letter to spell the word and reciting a few lines about the "father of his country." A flag drill by the same young people followed. A violin duet was given by William McKillop and Miss Charlotte Cave.

Betsy Bobbitt's opinions on the women's suffrage question were rehearsed in a dialogue. The part of Samantha was taken by Miss Mildred Ulrich, who spoke with the decision credited to that well-known character. Betsy Bobbitt (Miss Beatrice Miner) appeared in all her array, wearing a hat of wonderful construction. Josiah Allen was represented by Harold Luckey in a most thrilling manner and he gave vent to his opinions on the subject with the required scorn. A solo was then sung by Miss Charlotte Messersmith.

The wonderful experiences of his friend Bill were told by Edward Overton in a very pleasing manner. This was Mr. Overton's first appearance on the stage. Next came a piano duet by the Misses Josephine Petrie and Margaret Abbott. After a recitation by Miss Leah Hammond, the choir sang a medley which brought the programme to a close.

CANNOT CARRY PARCELS

PERSONAL BAGGAGE DEFINED BY THE SUPREME COURT.

The Point Held That a Passenger Cannot Carry Groceries as Personal Baggage While Riding on a Commuters Ticket.

A decision rendered yesterday by the Supreme Court may have a bearing on the contention of the advocates before the Legislature of Mr. Gledhill's Bicycle Baggage bill, that bicycles are baggage. The court decided that packages of groceries are not "personal baggage." Thomas Bullock, of Dover, was riding on the Lackawanna on a commuter's ticket, indorsed as entitling the holder to personal baggage only, when his packages of groceries were taken from him by the trainmen and put in the express car. He obtained in the lower courts a verdict of $1,000 for damages.

Judge VanSyckel held that Bullock was bound by the endorsement on his ticket, and that the packages of groceries could not be considered as personal baggage. The Court held, however, that the trainmen did wrong in taking Bullock's packages away from him, and they should have put him off the train if he refused to go voluntarily. Bullock had no claim to punitive damages, however, and could only recover for actual loss. The $1,000 verdict was therefore excessive, and set aside, and a new trial ordered.

Bullock was before the Senate Railroads and Canals Committee advocating Senator Daly's bill giving passengers the right to take packages with them on the trains, provided those packages did not take up room required for other passengers. This bill has been amended by the committee to the effect that the packages must be the personal property of the passenger.

NO COMMOTION CAUSED.

EXPRESSMAN FRAZEE BOARDED A TRAIN WITHOUT ADO.

Chief Grant and Roandsman Frederickson Were at the Station to See That There Was No Dirorderly Conduct Going On

There was not and excursion to Coney Island or Asbury Park this morning, although the crowd that gathered around the North Avenue station platform looked like it. Men and boys began about 8:15 to gather on the platform and steadily increased until the place was crowded. They came to see the fun between Whitney Frazee, the package expressman, and the railroad detectives, but they were disappointed, as there was was not even the suggestion of a scrap.

Dectectives Blackford and Dougherty were on duty at the station as usual. Frazee came up a few minutes before the 8:30 express arrived, but without a package. He had distributed them among his friends who boarded the train as usual, and then Frazee collects them. He did not exhibit them from the platform this time, and the crowd finally departed very much disappointed.

Chief Grant and Roundsman Frederickson were on duty at the station, but there was no occasion for any action on their part, as everything passed off quietly. The crowd was so large, however, that it interfered with the commutors as they tried to reach the train.

BURNED BEFORE COMPLETED.

A New House Destroyed by Fire Early This Morning.

It was exactly 2 o'clock this morning when an alarm of fire was sent in from Box 28, South and Woodland avenues, by Patrolman Cash. The fire started in a new house, not quite completed, owned by Adam Hueber, and located on Leland avenue, and when the officer discovered the fire it was well under way. Considering the distance, the department arrived quickly, but owing to the condition of the streets it was almost impossible to reach the house. In addition to this hindrance there was no hydrant near enough to be of any service, and in consequence the structure was entirely consumed. The property was insured. All the apparatus responded except No. 1 hose wagon. The firemen did the best they could but were unable to save the house.

WIFE SLAYER CAUGHT.

PIVOROTTO RETURNED TO THE SCENE OF HIS CRIME.

Left a Note in the House Boasting of His Deed and Was Captured After a Chase—Now in the County Jail.

Guiseppe Pivorotto, who early Sunday morning tried to murder his wife, Leba, while she was asleep at her home in Raritan, and then escaped, was captured last evening after an exciting chase, and is now in the county jail at Somerville. His wife is in the Emergency Hospital with her skull crushed and her throat gashed in several places, and there is slight hope of her recovery.

Pivorotto returned to the house yesterday and left a note saying that he had taken eleven months to come from California to Raritan to kill his wife. He said he knew he did not succeed, and also said he would be more successful in the next attempt. Her brother, Frank Antonio, heard that Pivorotto was at the house, and he secured the assistance of a constable and others, all armed.

They came upon him late in the afternoon while he was trying to conceal himself in some underbrush. He tried to escape, and was being overtaken when he made a stand, drew a revolver and threatened to use it if he was molested. Constable Hale and Peter Coubery also drew pistols and succeeded in overawing Pivorotto. They then handcuffed him and brought him to Somerville, and Justice Sutphin committed him to jail. He admitted that he tried to kill his wife, but would not tell why.

THREE MURDERERS THERE.

MEN-KILLERS IN SOMERSET COUNTY.

County Jail Harbors a Trio of Desperate Men.

Francis Dilucci, who was arrested in Brooklyn on Saturday for the murder of a fellow-countryman in a shanty near Basking Ridge, was brought to the county jail at Somerville last night, extradition papers having been granted by Governor Black of New York. He makes the third murderer now confined in that jail. Elmer Clawson and Jacob Johnson are both under sentence of death, but their cases are under appeal to the higher courts.

Clawson is a mere boy, who called Harry Hodgetts, a farmer, to his doorway one morning and deliberately shot him dead. Johnson is the local colored preacher who was convicted of killing Ann Rogers in the woods along the Raritan river.

FRISBIE PROVED THE CHICKEN.

Laughable Mock Trial Held at Mt. Zion A. M. E. Church.

The mock trial at the Mt. Zion A. M. E. Church, last evening, proved a great success. Hank Frisbie's chicken made its first public appearance and was, by a verdict of the court, returned to its owner who conclusively proved to be Frisbie. Lemuel Perry and H. A. Freeman, the attorneys for the plaintiff, conducted his case in an able manner and succeeded in tangling up the defendant in his testimony so badly that he was unable to straighten it out again. The defendant was Charles Ward and he tried to make out that the chicken in question flew over a mile from Frisbie's house to his. His attorneys, Charles Henry and Alfred White, tried to clear him from the charge but their efforts were of no avail.

The trial was replete with exciting incidents and everybody had a good time. Frisbie did a number of tricks with the chicken to prove that it was his own. A jury of twelve men heard the testimony and soon brought in a verdict for the plaintiff and the judge, William Grobes, and his associates. Grant Cannon and George Anderson, ordered that the chicken be turned over to its rightful owner.

VERDICT FOR DAMAGES.

MISS ADELLA PHELPS AWARDED $3,000 DAMAGES.

The Action Against R. O. Howell Ended in Court This Afternoon By Jury Deciding in Favor of Plaintiff

The most important case in the Union County circuit court, yesterday was the suit for damages brought by Miss Adella Phelps, of Watchung avenue, against R. O. Howell, the North avenue grocer.

The suit was for $5,000 for injuries alleged to have been received by the plaintiff in a collision with one of Howell's delivery wagons. The claim was based on the alleged fact that Miss Phelps was negligently run into by the wagon. The defendant claimed that there was plenty of room for Miss Phelps to pass and that the accident was caused through her own carelessness and not through that of the driver.

The story of the accident was told in the Press at the time. It occurred at the corner of North and Watchung avenues one evening about 5:30 o'clock last fall. The wagon was being driven toward the store and Miss Phelps, who is the daughter of Rev. A. H. Phelps, principal of the Plainfield Business College, was riding the other way on her wheel. There was a collision and she was thrown off and seriously injured. She was confined to the house for a number of weeks and the injuries were claimed to be very painful.

Dr. M. B. Long, of this city, and Miss Mary Wright, M. D., of New York, testified as to her condition and the extent of her injuries. Rev. Mr. and Mrs. Phelps were put on the stand to tell how long she has been confined to he bed and to the house. The principal witnesses for the plaintiff were two boys, who claimed to have seen the accident. One was named Runyon and the other Arthur Whitlock. They testified that they had seen a box drop out of the wagon just before the accident occurred and that the driver was looking out of the back of the wagon for it when he ran down Miss Phelps. They also said the wagon was on the left of the road at the time. Frank Vosseller was sworn to counteract the testimony of one of the witnesses for the other side, Ralph Tolles. Vosseller said that he had heard Tolles say that he had not seen the accident at all.

Miss Phelps was represented in court by Corporation Counsel Craig A. Marsh.

Miss Phelps also told her story which was, in substance, that she had been run down by the wagon.

The witnesses for the defence were: Miss Elizabeth Dunn, Miss Gardiner, Ralph Tolles, Ernest Duffy and Thos. Robinson, the driver. All were eyewitnesses of the accident and they testified that the wagon was as far to the right as the car tracks would allow it to go. It was also claimed that Miss Phelps had struck the horse just behind the shoulder, showing that she must have run into the horse instead of being run into.

Counsellor William K. McClure was the attorney for Mr. Howell in the case.

After both lawyers had summed up, the case was adjourned until this morning when the jury was charged and retired.

The case was tried before Judge McCormick and a twelve-men jury.

The jury in the case came into court this afternoon with a verdict for $3,000.

MOTHERS IN SESSION

Flattering Success of the National Convention at Washington.

GREAT INTEREST IN THE PROCEEDINGS

Many Important Subjects Bearing on the Household Ably Discussed by Delegates from All Parts of the Country.

Washington, Feb. 19.—The National Congress of Mothers has outgrown the expectations of its most sanguine promoters in the number of delegates in attendance, and the interest manifested in its proceedings. In addition to the general meetings held in the First Baptist church special conferences are being held in different parts of the city. The programme includes many important subjects of discussion, the second day's session being as follows: Morning—Devotional, Mrs. Maud Ballington Booth; "Dietetics," Mrs. Louise E. Hogan, Germantown, Pa.; "Mother's Relations to the Sound Physical Development of Her Child," Mrs. Jenness Miller, Washington; "Reproduction and Natural Law," Miss Alice Lee Moque, Washington; "The Moral Responsibility of Woman in Heredity," Miss Helen H. Gardner, Boston. Afternoon—"The Mother's Greatest Needs," Miss Frances Newton, Chicago; "Playgrounds," Miss Constance Mackenzie, Philadelphia; "Some Practical Results of Child Study," Dr. G. Stanley Hall, Worcester, Mass.

Against Unwholesome Literature.

At last night's session the report of the press committee was prefaced by a statement from its chairman, Miss Isabella Tyson of Baltimore, regarding the impure press and its baneful influence. The following resolution, offered by Alice C. Robinson of Baltimore was adopted, practically unanimously, by rising vote: "Resolved, that we will admit into our houses only those papers which inspire to noble thought and deed, and that our influence shall go towards cultiving the public taste, until it shall demand from the press only that which elevates and refines." Mrs. Margaret K. Sangster of New York delivered an appreciated address on the subject of reading matter for mothers and children, and made a very strong plea for fairy tales children's reading during the formative period. The final address of the session was by Anthony Comstock, who cited sensational instances of his experience, showing to what extent unwholesome literature was circulated in the boarding schools and colleges for both sexes throughout the country, and the need of effective cooperation from parents and others to abolish an evil which is destroying the morals of one-half the population of the United States. In conclusion, he proposed action by the congress supporting national and state legislation to prevent publication and distribution of all kinds of literature of the dime novel variety, and to prohibit the printing of murder trials and other descriptions calculated to inform children of criminal methods.

Pleased with the Warships' Performances.

Washington, Feb. 19.—Acting Secretary McAdoo said to-day that Admiral Bunce's squadron had fared remarkably on the trip to Charleston considering the heavy weather encountered, the only loss to the ships involving an expenditure of money by the department being on account of a single whaleboat which was not recovered by the Maine after it had been used in an effort to save the lives of men washed overboard. The reports from the commanding officers of the vessels have all reached the department through Admiral Bunce, and it was gratifying to find such an excellent condition of affairs.

Bank Teller's Accounts Short.

Boston, Feb. 19.—Erving F. Chapin, teller of the Fourth National bank is short in his accounts. The exact amount is not known outside of the bank, and its officials, while saying it is small, will give no definite information. Chapin's friends promise to make good the shortage, and there will probably be no prosecution. There is no doubt as to the cause of Chapin's downfall. He told the officers of the bank that it was due to stock speculation.

DEATH OF GEN. ROBINSON.

Distinguished in Civil and Military Life---Blind for Several Years.

Binghamton, N. Y., Feb. 19.—Gen. John Cleveland Robinson died at his home in this city last night. The vitality displayed by the old veteran was most remarkable, he having lain at the point of death for over a week. General Robinson served with distinction throughout the entire period of the civil war, but his distinguished career was not ended by his retirement from the army. As a civilian he was greatly honored as he had been as a soldier. In 1872, on the republican ticket, he was elected lieutenant-governor of the state of New York, with Gov. John A. Dix. He was commander-in-chief of the Grand Army of the Republic in 1877 and 1878 and in 1887 he was elected president of the Society of the Army of the Potomac. He had been blind for several years as the indirect result of an injury received in battle.

Rocap was chosen as a committee of one to visit Carson City, Nev., on or before March 17, for the purpose of calling a meeting of the sporting writers of the United States and enlist their efforts in the ex-champion's behalf.

NOT INCLINED TO BE GULLIBLE.

He Told All About a Wonderful Creek and Got a Pointer in Return.

Perhaps the most popular man connected with the Yellowstone Park Transportation Company is Captain E. C. Culver of Gardner.

Some time ago the Captain had an experience which was too good to keep, and he gave it away to a friend in town. He was going from the Springs to Cinnabar, and there were three very bright young ladies on the coach.

Mr. Culver was asked what he considered the most remarkable thing in the Park. He said that if beauty and grandeur were to be left out of the count, he thought the most "remarkable thing" was Alum Creek, a little stream putting into the river between the falls and the lake. Originally, he said, the distance between the hotels at the lake and the falls was twenty-six miles, but when they commenced to sprinkle the road between the two places with water taken from Alum Creek some years ago, they soon found the distance between the hotels shortened by about eight miles. As the hotels were then only about eighteen miles apart and the road still shrinking, the superintendent ordered them to use no more water from Alum Creek. And then the Captain told another little legend about the creek that was quite well authenticated. Last year, he said, a party went through the Park on a tour, and a young lady with them came into the Park wearing No. 8 shoes. After camping on Alum Creek two days and bathing her feet she went home wearing a pair of No. 2 gaiters.

At this point one girl with an incredulous smile said to him:

"Don't you think it would be a good plan to bathe your head in that creek a time or two?"—Livingston Post.

WITH THE WITS.

"Now don't borrow trouble, Molly."

"No need to. You keep me well supplied, Silas."

Mrs. Mulligan: "I'd rather hev the hull family ill than you."

Mr. Mulligan: "So would I."

Said an Irishman the other day to a friend: "Arrah, where will you find a modern building that has lasted as long as the old wans?"

"I hear that drinking is one of your husband's failings?"

Pointed.—"I notice, Miss Gregory, that my very critical friend Hoskins never sits on any of your remarks. How is that?" "Because I make them too pointed for him."

At School—"Tommy Rogers, when was Rome built?" "At night, sir." "At night! Surely you must see that you are making a huge mistake." "Well, sir, you said yesterday that Rome wasn't built in a day."

"Uncle Simon, what is old-fashioned politeness?"

"It is a way people used to have of asking a man about his health and then listening until he got through replying.—Chicago Record.

Teacher: "Who helped you with this essay, James?"

Pupil: "Nobody, sir."

Teacher: "Now tell me the truth. Did not your brother?"

Pupil: "No, sir; he did it all himself."

A.: "How did your daughter pass her examination for a position as teacher?" B.: "Pass! She didn't pass at all. Maybe you won't believe it, but they asked that poor girl about things that happened before she was born!"

"How fast the train is going?" exclaimed Mrs. Trotter.

"Yes," assented her husband; "there is probably a letter in the mail-car with 'In haste' written on the northeast corner of the envelope."

"Well, Patsy, you're back from the fair early. I hope you made a good bargain."

"Deed an' I did, your honor. Sure the ould woman giv me a sixpence to buy an almanac, and I've brought her back two of lasht year for it."

"Mussy me, what barbarous things the brokers is!" quoth Mrs. Spriggins. "What's the matter now?"

"It says here that they was pluckin' the lambs for all they was worth yesterday. Lord knows it's bad enough to shear the poor things!"

A Paducah Prisoner's Chance of Freedom.

There is a prisoner in the Paducah lockup whose gastronomic capacity is somewhat wonderful: For breakfast he eats twenty-four biscuits, seven huge pieces of beef, four pints of coffee, and a pint of molasses. For dinner he usually consumes a pan of cornbread, three pans of beans, and anything else he finds handy. This leads the Paducah Sun to remark that some day he will eat the ball and chain he wears and go free.—Louisville Courier Journal.

IS IT A SUSTAINER?

How much manual labor do you think you do in a day? A post-man averages about 353 foot-tons. An ordinary laborer 350 tons. A very hard day's work would be 400 tons. A clerk or bookkeeper may fall as low as from 15 to 20 tons. In Weston's recent walk to Albany, 150 miles, in 60 hours, we calculate his work was no less than 1005 foot-tons, and his food consisted entirely of

H-O

Oatmeal. As an ideal sustainer, H-O meets every demand.

THE CLOUD WOMAN.

A Strange Apparition Formed of Clouds and Rocks on Lake Leman's Shores.

A strange freak of nature is "the lady of the lake," a combination of rocks and clouds in the form of a woman, on the shores of Lake Leman in Switzerland.

The strangest thing about this freak is that, though permanent, it is not frequently seen. Only under certain atmospheric conditions does the lady of the lake appear to her admirers. If there are no clouds, the naked rock is too plainly visible. On the other hand, it often happens that the clouds are so thick that nothing can be seen at all.

The lady of the lake is a gigantic figure 1,000 feet high. When she appears at the best her head is covered by a white veil falling down her back, the corsage of her dress is gray, and her skirt is of dark color, with large pleats and a long train.

A more majectic figure is not to be found anywhere. No human being or aggregation of human beings could ever produce a work of such dignity. The human likeness of the figure is very striking.

The apparition from a distance is grewsome, indeed, and many travelers seeing it for the first time have been given a fright from which they did not recover in many days.—New York Journal.

A Census of Words.

It is generally admitted that 5,000 expressions are amply sufficient for common use. The vocabulary of a writer seldom surpasses that number. With 7,000 words a language is acquired thoroughly. According to Brachet, the number of French words in the Dictionnaire de l' Academie is 27,000, including 6,000 primitive expressions. The Littré Dictionary contains about 60,000 words.

English, according to Johnson, contained 15,000 words; but Thommery gives to the English of the present day 87,000 words.

An ordinary German dictionary has has about 42,000 words, and a Spanish dictionary 52,000.

Chinese is composed of 41,000 known words in an imperial dictionary of the eighteenth century.

Doggies in Bracelets.

The French poodle has set the fashion for New York's swell pups in the way of fourteen-caret gold bracelets, ablaze with jewels and spangles, with which to adorn his high-born legs, and with a collar and shoulder harness to correspond.

The cost of these small trappings must, of course, vary according to size and the number of jewels used. The plainest of gold collars made with jewel settings costs not less than $100, while the jewelled ones quickly mount up to $300 and $500. The bracelets cost from $150 to $400 each, and the harness and gold chain from $150 to $500.—New York Journal.

POOR COAL

When you buy from a dealer who sells you this kind of coal and go back to him again, it is your own pocketbook you're robbing. There are many dealers—we among them—who are willing to sell you good coal at a close margin and be sure of giving you perfect satisfaction. We have a good, honest Lehigh coal at $5.50 per ton. A GOOD LETTER.

From the Clerk of the Circuit Court.

Fernandina, Fla., Feb. 28, 1896.

Mr. J. George Suhrer, Druggist, City.

Dear George:—Please send a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. I would not feel easy if I knew there was none of this valuable Remedy in the house. I have given it a fair test and consider it one of the very best remedies for croup that I have ever found. One dose has always been sufficient, although I use it freely. Any cold my children contract yields very readily to this medicine. I can conscientiously recommend it for croup and colds in children. Yours respectfully, Geo. E. Wolff. Sold by T. S. Armstrong, apothecary, Park & North avenues.

THE INAUGURATION PARADE.

Grand Marshal Porter Predicts That It Will Be Highly Successful.

New York, Feb. 19.—General Horace Porter, who is to be grand marshal of the inauguration parade, is going to Washington this afternoon to remain until March 5 and possibly longer. He will open an office in Washington as soon as he gets there, from which all the correspondence relating to the inauguration ceremonies will be conducted. General Porter said to-day that from the number of letters he has received from organized bodies all over the country he is confident that the parade will be a grand success if the weather is favorable. The programme for the ceremonies attending the inauguration will not be arranged for a week or ten days yet. It will be announced from General Porter's office in Washington when it is complete. General Porter refused to talk about the probability of his appointment as ambassador to France. He said that all information on that point would have to come from Major McKinley.

TRUST INVESTIGATION.

The Senate Lexow Committee To-day Probing Wall Paper Combine.

New York, Feb. 19.—The Lexow trust investigating committee, having finished with the sugar trust and the rubber trust, is now engaged in probing into the affairs of the wall paper trust. Henry Brun, president of the National Wall Paper company, in his testimony before the committee, said that twenty-eight companies in all were absorbed by the National company. Seventeen independent companies were still doing business. He said the combination he represented does about 65 per cent. of the business of the country. The orignal issue of stock was $14,000,000, subsequently increased to $27,000,000 or $28,000,000. President Bruns said that instead of restricting production the output of wall paper had increased about 30,000,000 rolls of wall paper per annum since the formation of the trust. He also said that more labor was now being employed than ever before.

Private Secretary Porter Recovers.

Hartford, Feb. 19.—Private secretary John Addison Porter has recovered from his illness and will leave for Washington to-morrow to call on President Cleveland and Secretary Thurber. He will write to Mr. Hobart to make a new appointment. He has declined several banquets and to the committee of the State Republican league he stated that he would decline their offer to banquet him because his time was McKinley's.

Boer Republic's Claim for Damages.

London, Feb. 19.—Rt. Hon. Joseph Chamberlain, secretary of state for the colonies, in the course of discussion in the house of commons of the claim made by the South African republic for indemnity for damage sustained by the raid of Dr. Jameson and his followers into the Transvaal, said that the Boer government claimed for material damage £677,938, and for moral and intellectual damage, £1,000,000.

Applications for Non-Existent Offices.

Washington, Feb. 19.—The flood of applications which are pouring in for offices which do not yet exist in the new congressional library building is becoming alarming. No appointments of any kind, it is declared, can be made before next July, so that it is useless to send recommendations to members of congress who are hard pressed by so many public duties at this time.

Czar Against Anti-Turkish Agitation.

Sofia, Feb. 19.—M. de Tcharykow the Russian diplomatic agent, has informed the government that the czar desires that the Bulgarians shall not help the agitation in Macedonia against the Turks, and that the Bulgarian authorities shall not allow bands to cross from their country into Macedonia to aid the malcontents there.

University Student Missing.

Ottawa, Ont., Feb. 19.—John McGuire of Worcester, Mass., a student at the Ottawa university, is missing. He left the university about a week ago, and so far all efforts to ascertain what has become of him have been fruitless. The young man's parents have been informed of his disappearance.

Ryan Must Serve His Sentence.

Trenton, Feb. 19.—The supreme court has overruled the exceptions noted for the defendant in the trial of Michael Ryan, king of the green goods men, who was tried and convicted in Bergen county. Ryan has been at liberty under $7,000 bail. Under this decision his conviction stands.

GREECE GOES AHEAD

Attitude of Powers Does Not Deter Her Campaign in Crete.

ISLAND NOW CONSIDERED ANNEXED

Two Thousand Moslems Reported To Have Been Massacred at Sitia—Turkish Garrison Beseiged—Greeks Hurrying To Aid the Rebels.

Athens, Feb. 19.—The non-concurrence of the powers in Greece's action in Crete does not appear to have had the deterrent effect that was anticipated, and Greece is going ahead as though she had the full consent of the powers to her annexation of the island. Col. Vassos, the aide de camp of the king, who is in command of the Greek troops in Crete, is already forming a local administration in the name of the king of the Hellenes. He is making preparations for the holding of municipal elections, and he will instal mayors in all the towns and villages that are not occupied by the forces of the foreign powers. It is stated that Prince Nicholas, the third son of King George, will not go with the troops to the Thessalian frontier, as it was stated yesterday he would, but that he will join the forces in Crete. All the Greek consulates in the island have lowered their flags, it being considered by the consuls that as Crete is now Greek territory their duties have ended. It was stated here last night that the Greek warship Hydra, which was conveying provisions to the Greek camp, was stopped by British and Italian torpedo boats.

TURKISH TROOPS FOR CRETE.

Greece Fully Determined to Prevent Their Landing on the Island.

Athens, Feb. 19.—It is asserted here that a Turkish force has embarked at Constantinople and sailed for Crete. They will not be permitted to land, for Greece is firmly determined to enforce her decree ordering the torpedo flotilla to prevent the debarkation of Turkish reinforcements on the island. It is stated that the commanders of the foreign squadrons in Cretan waters have induced Col. Vassos not to bombard the town of Halepa, which he was preparing to do, they promising that a solution of the whole question favorable to Greece would be soon arrived at by the powers. The situation on the frontier of Greece is very threatening and it would not be surprising to hear of actual hostilities there at any time. All the available troops are being concentrated on the frontier, whither have been dispatched strong Greek forces. In the present temper of the troops a very slight incident might bring about a serious collision. The advices received here show that the situation is daily becoming more critical.

Moslem Refugees at Canea.

Canea, Feb. 19.—Many refugees are arriving here from all parts of the island. Most or them are Moslems, who have fled from their homes fearing the vengeance of the Cretan Christians or their allies, the Greek soldiery. They all have stories to tell of the dangers from which they have escaped, and declare that the life of no Moslem is safe without the limits of the cities. A large number of Mussulmans arrived last night on board of a Turkish transport. They affirm that the Christians have killed 100 Moslems at Serakimos and 100 more in the villages adjacent to that place. The commanders of the British, French and Russian squadrons have left Canea in their flagships. The British commander goes to Sitia, the French commander to Heraklion, and the Russian commander to Retimo.

Turkish Troops Besieged.

Canea, Feb. 19.—The fort at Voucoulis, which is garrisoned by five hundred Turkish troops, has been besieged for several days by a large force of well-armed insurgents. Yesterday the commander of the besieged force called upon the Turkish commander to surrender, and promised safe conduct to any of the garrison who chose to accept it. The Turks refused to surrender on any terms. It is stated that the garrison has provisions enough to last for twenty days and a plentiful supply of ammunition. It is reported that Greek troops started for Voucoulis last night to aid the insurgents in the capture of the place.

Harcourt Favors Crete's Liberation.

London, Feb. 19.—Sir William Vernon Harcourt, the leader of the liberal party, has sent a telegram to the Liverpool Reform club in which he says: "I earnestly trust that the government will not employ the forces of the crown to prevent the liberation of Crete. Such a proceeding would be universally condemned by the British nation." The Earl of Kimberley, who was secretary of state for foreign affairs in Lord Rosebery's cabinet, sent a dispatch of similar tenor to the club.

Reported Massrere of Moslems.

Vienna, Feb. 19.—The Neue Freie Press says that 2,000 Moslems have been massacred at Sitia, a town in the eastern extremity of Crete. Of all the Mohammedan residents of the place only twenty-eight escaped. The paper adds that the Greek forces are surrounding eight Moslem villages on the island. The foregoing is officially announced in Constantinople, where the intelligence has created much excitement.

Turkish Reserves Called Out.

Constantinople, Feb. 19.—The government has called out 64,000 reserves in the provinces of Broussa and Trebizond.

Woman Suffrage Bill Defeated.

Guthrie, O. T., Feb. 19.—The bill granting women the right of suffrage in the territory was defeated in the house last night by a vote of 11 to 13.

EFFECTIVE WARFARE ON CIGARETTES

A war on the cigarette through the public schools of St. Louis is likely to be more effective than the legislation projected or accomplished in several of the states, particularly as the school officials and the parents have joined hands in the crusade. The evil effects resulting from the use of tobacco in this form, particularly by the young, are taught in the schools. Smoking on the school premises is strictly prohibited, and the children are watched on their way to and from school. More potent, however, is the enlistment of the vigilance of parents and older brothers and sisters, friends and acquaintances, so that cigarette smoking will become a burden to the public school pupil.

AN INTERESTING ISSUE.

There is said to be a strong disposition on the part those who favor the consolidation of city and borough to have the approaching borough election conducted on that issue. There is but little doubt that the present administration—so for as the sentiment of incumbent officials goes—is opposed to consolidation, and since they are the dominant power in Republican ranks and will undoubtedly control the nominations, it is hoped by many that the Democrats will select candidates who are committed to the Greater Plainfield and thus clearly define the issue.

AN IMPORTANT DECISION.

The decision of Judge VanSyckle in the Supreme Court concerning the right a commuter has to carry parcels of any kind as personal baggage is of paramount interest at the present time, while such a struggle is going on between railroad and express corporations and private individuals to establish and maintain what each consider their rights. The decision of Judge Van Syckle, holding that a commuter cannot carry any kind of a personal package that he feels inclined to, came as a bit of a surprise to most people.

Knights of Pythias Officers.

The Grand Lodge of Knights of Pythias, of this State, which convened in Masonic Hall, Trenton, Wednesday, adjourned last night. One hundred and fifty past chancellors were received. The reports of the grand chancellor, William C. Hitchcock, of Newark; grand keeper of records and seal, George Pierson, and grand master of exchequer, John Patrick, show the order to be in a flourishing condition. The following officers were elected for the ensuing year; Grand chancellor, Daniel S. Rockafellar, of Somerville; grand vice chancellor, Rev. DeWitt C. Cobb, of Medford; grand prelate, T. Champion, of Atlantic Highlands; grand keeper of records and seal, George E. Pierson, of Woodbury; grand master of exchequer, John Patrick, of Rutherford; grand master-at-arms, John P. Dexheimer, of Orange; grand inside guard, William Sanner, of Salem; supreme representative, Ralph Donath, of Jersey City.

Peary Planned the Way

Peary proved himself to be the most original navigator to sail the northern seas. The plan he laid down to solve the mystery of the North Pole is conceded by scientists and geographers to be the only plan by which actual knowledge of the North Pole will ever be obtained. The gallant U. S naval officer will tell Plainfield people next Thursday night of his experiences in northernmost Greenland. Have you secured your seats for the lecture?

"Caste" for the Hospital.

Good seats are still for sale at the box office of Music Hall for the play of 'Caste." People in Plainfield will be glad of the opportunity to contribute 50c, 75c., or $1 each year to the hospital. Here is a chance to do this and get your money's worth of fun.

—Marsh, Ayers & Co. have completed the painting of the exterior of George C. Evan's house at the corner of Washington and Mercer avenues. The house has been rented to Reuben Knox and family, of Grant avenue, who will take possession about March 1st.

Janitor Stephen Hope says that he wants to charter a sloop to take the children through the sea of mud that is to be found in the streets of the vicinity of the Bryant School where he is on duty. But while waiting for the arrival of that craft, the obliging Stephen has been carrying the smallest of the little tots over the broad rivers of mud that fill the streets in the neighborhood.

Every cyclist in the city is wishing that the weather would come so that the wheel might be brought forth from its place in the attic and once more put in use. The propects are that there will be an early spring this year and so the wheelmen will be able to go forth on their silent steeds as of old. There are a few who do not mind such little thing as snow and mud and venture forth on their wheels every day but they are comparatively few, for the majority of the riders prefer to walk in this kind of weather.

Recently, a prominent and well-to-do New York business man, who resides in this city, advertised in The Daily Press for a well educated young man for his office in the city. He received 106 replies and of that number there were only four who could be considered as applicants for the place. With the other applicants the hand writing and spelling was so bad that they could not be considered. The person who relates this incident says that the above fact does not speak well for the carefulness of the young men of this city in preparing themselves to take such positions when offered to them.

It is funny to see the gyrations through which some people pass in their efforts to stand up on the slippery pavements these days, but it is decidedly unpleasant to the one who is trying to stand up. A pedestrian is moving carefully along the icy sidewalk when suddenly his feet show a tendency to rise in the air. By an awful effort, he regains his balance, going through some wonderful movements in the meantime, and a series of cold chills go down his back as he starts off again. A cold perspiration starts out all over him and he goes though the same manœuvres again.

The collection of foreign and domestic postage stamps has been a craze with old and young for the past ten years. Many of the collections are very valuable and contain some rare stamps. There are several companies in New York and Boston who deal exclusively in the stamps and old coins which they sell to collectors. Interest in these collections seems to rise and fall at different times but the real collector does not loose interest in the plan and is all the time on the lookout for something rare. Plainfield has many collections but there is probably none more complete in this city than the collection owned by Asa Collier, of East Sixth street. The stamps in this collection number about six thousand in all and include some very rare varieties.

Fred Nelson has sold to Chris Huff the pony he won at a raffle recently.

A. R. Apgar led the prayer meeting in the M. E. church, Wednesday evening.

The condition of Rev. S. F. Custard continues to improve and yesterday he appeared to be better than at any time since his recent illness begun.

The Washington Rock stone crusher is undergoing decided improvements. The works will be ready to resume operations again in about a fortnight.

The members of the Dunellen Bowling Club had a few practice games on Taylor's alleys last evening, and the members seemed to bowl with the old-time vigor.

Danellen's "select few" will attend a reception and dance to be given by the Dunellen Athletic Association in the new Town Hall, on the evening of Friday, the 26th inst.

The missionary society of the Baptist church will give a supper in the church parlors, Saturday evening. In the evening there will be an entertainment. The admission will be fifteen cents.

Saron Stites and Miss Minnie Luckhurst were united in marriage at the Presbyterian church parsonage, Wednesday evening, by Rev. A. I. Martine. Only a select few of their friends were present at the ceremony. The couple will reside at Greenbrook.

A special meeting of the Fire Department was held in the Town Hall, last evening, to further consider the matter of incorporating the department under the State laws. Discussions favorable to incorporation were indulged in by several of the members, but no decisive action was taken.

Judge Luckey says at the forthcoming primary he shall oppose the nomination of any storekeeper for public office. This seems a rather strange assertion, and the Judge gives simply as his reason that the merchants have enough to do to look afer their individual interests, without taking much of their valuable time in the transaction of borough matters.

"What a change in business it will make all around," this spring, when three new directors of the Dunellen Building and Loan Association are to go into office; six Councilmen and a Mayor are to be elected, and besides five School Commissioners are to be voted for to fill the vacancies caused by the resignation of three and two others who have been filling unexpired terms.

SCOTCH PLAINS.

W. S. Emory went to Chester, Pa., yesterday, to visit Charles Smith, of Plainfield, who is ill there.

The dates for the Republican and Democratic primaries have not yet been made known, but it is understood they are to be held early in March.

It is reported that the Kickapoo Indian tribe which met such great success here some months ago, will return in the spring and cure all the ills contracted since their last visit.

The old Gazelle hand engine, which has done so many years of service in Plainfield, and is now at the Plains begins to show the marks of time. The engine has rendered much valuable service in years gone by and it should be both well and carefully preserved.

It may be a little premature, perhaps, to allude to the matter, but Scotch Plains intends to put a ball team in the field the coming season, which it is to be hoped will prove a credit to the town. There is enough material in the Plains for a good team, and it is thought with enclosed grounds and the advent of the proposed trolley, the enterprise may be made a paying investment.

Robert Radford, of West Front street, is 81 years old today, and he is certainly a well preserved man for one of his years. This afternoon from 12 until 9 o'clock his birthday is being celebrated at the home of the oldest daughter, Mrs. Thomas Paff, Sr. Mr. Radford has nine living children, all married, and to commemorate the event they are holding a family re-union at which there are present beside the son and daughters, grand-children and great grand-children.

Judge Clark was placed in a funny predicament on Wednesday afternoon, but the judge takes it good naturedly. He had been prevailed upon to unite in marriage a young business man of the place to a young woman from New York, who had come out for the purpose. There was a difference between the young couple, however, known only to themselves, so when the judge arrived on the scene ready to tie the nuptual knot, the groom changed his mind and declined to have the ceremony performed. So the broken hearted bride that was to be married went back to New York on an evening train and the judge was mulcted of his fees.

The Ladies Sewing Society of the Presbyterian church held its annual turkey dinner in the parlors of the church last evening. A special feature of the occassion was a Chinese corner and supper. One corner of the chapel was decorated a la de China and a real Chinese supper, cooked, served and eaten just as the Mongolian would have done it. A Chinese bill of fare was on the table, but none of the guests felt hungry after reading it. The waiter and waitresses were dressed in oriental costume and spoke Chinese. They were the Rev. Dr. Wherry, his wife and daughter, who spent a few years in China. The decorations for the occasion were all in pink and the ladies wore pink costumes. The society made quite a little money out of the affair and feel much elated over their success.

Willie Burrill, "de yellar kid," of Westfield, is a naughty boy. He is colored. His manners are likewise colored. Complaints have frequently been lodged against Willie but that is all. He always escapes. The last time he was before Justice E. R. Collins, charged by Railroad Detective Ritterbush with using obscene language in the depot, and the benevolent Judge suspended sentence on him on promise of good behavior. But Willie thought that if the Judge could suspend sentence, he could suspend his promise—at any rate he did it and has been as unseemly as possible ever since. Wednesday he amused himself by throwing stones and epithets at Mrs. Phoebe Littell and her house and declining to desist Mrs. Littell complained to Judge Collins. Willie will be given another change.

THEATRICAL.

Manager Willey, of Music Hall, announces that for three days, commencing Monday, Feb. 22d, he will have Pete Baker in his three famous plays, "Chris and Lena," "The Emigrant" and "Bismarck," in the order named. Pete Baker is the best German dialect comedian that is now on the stage. He has been before the American people for the last twenty years and is a universal favorite. His appearance here at such extremely low prices should meet with the approval of all theatre goers. 10, 20 and 30 cents is the scale of prices because his manager believes it more profitable to pack the house at a low price than to entertain a select few at high prices.

A few months ago, Mr. Byron Every, of Woodstock, Mich., was badly afflicted with rheumatism. His right leg was swollen the full length, causing him great suffering. He was advised to try Chamberlain's Pain Balm. The first bottle of it helped him considerably and the second bottle effected a cure. The 25 and 50 cent sizes are for sale by T. S. Armstrong, Apothecary, corner Park and North avenues.

THE SUNDAY LESSON.

INTERNATIONAL SERIES, WITH COMMENTARY BY DR. STEARNS.

Subject for Feb. 21—The First Christian Martyr. Acts vi., 8-15; vii., 54-60. Golden Text: "Be Thou Faithful Unto Death and I Will Give Thee a Crown of Life." Rev. ii., 10.

8. "And Stephen, full of faith and power, did great wonders and miracles among the people." As days passed on and the disciples increased satan increased his zeal in disturbing the peace. There is murmuring because some thought they were neglected in the daily ministration. This leads to the appointment of a committee of seven Spirit filled men to see specially to the distribution of alms, leaving the others free to give themselves to the word and prayer. The seven were set apart by prayer and the laying on of hands. Disciples multiplied greatly, and many people believed. Stephen, full of faith and the Holy Spirit, content to do the humble work of the committee, was led by the Spirit into greater things.

9, 10. "And they were not able to resist he wisdom and the Spirit by which he spake." This was in accordance with the promise of the Lord. "I will give you a mouth and wisdom, which all your adversaries shall not be able to gainsay or resist" (Luke xxi, 15). There is a power in the word of God, even through a weak earthen vessel, which can be accounted for only by the fact that God is in his word, and it is the same word by which He made the heavens and all their host (Ps. xxxiii, 6). His word is like a fire and a hammer to break rocks in pieces.

11, 12. "We have heard him speak blasphemous words against Moses and against God." The things that are farthest from our thoughts and that we would be most unlikely to be guilty of are just those which the devil through his agents is apt to accuse us of. Think of his calling Christ a glutton, and of his accusing Him of being in league with Himself and of His being crucified as an evil-doer. Imagine Stephen, filled with the Spirit of God, being guilty of blaspheming God. Yet Christ was accused of the same. When such treatment comes our way, let us be thankful for fellowship with Christ (I Pet. ii, 20.

13, 14. "We have heard him say that this Jesus of Nazareth shall destroy this place." Such was some of the testimony which the false witnesses bore against Stephen. The false witnesses said of Christ that He said He was able to destroy the temple of God and build it in three days. (Math. xxvi, 61).

15. "And all that sat in the council, looking steadfastly on him, saw his face, as it had been the face of an angel." His Lord was with him and in him, and made something of His glory to be seen in him. Perhaps it was somewhat as when the face of Moses so shone that the people could not look upon him (Ex. xxxiv, 30, 35).

Chapter vii, 54. "When they heard these things they were cut to the heart, and they gnashed on him with their teeth." When these false witnesses made their false accusation, the high priest said to Stephen: "Are these things so?" (vii, 1). In reply to this he began at the appearance of God to Abraham and traced the goodness of God to Israel down to David and Solomon; then made the nation guilty of the persecution of the prophets, and of the murder of Christ, and of not keeping the law of God. This cut them and led to their gnashing their teeth at Stephen.

55. "But he, being full of the Holy Ghost, looked up steadfastly into heaven and saw the glory of God and Jesus standing on the right hand of God." Thus he was unmoved by their anger and heeded not their gnashing teeth. The way of peace is to see Jesus only and always. Look steadfastly upward, and never within nor around. See Isa. xii, 10, R. V. margin.

56. "And said, Behold I see the heavens opened and the Son of Man standing on the right hand of God." Heaven opened always shows us Christ or His church either in glory or tribulation. The phrase is found only seven times in Scripture; the other six places being in the following chapters: Ezek. i, Math. iii, John i, Acts x, Rev. iv and xix. We are saved by beholding Jesus Christ as the Lamb of God taking away our sins. We run with patience and grow in grace only as we look constantly to Him, and when we see Him as He is we shall then be forever like Him.

57, 58. "And the witnesses laid down their clothes at a young man's feet, whose name was Saul." This is our first introduction to one who figures so largely in the rest of this book and in most of the epistles to the churches. How little he dreamed that day as he minded the clothes of those who stoned Stephen that he would ever be a most devoted follower of Him whom Stephen said he saw at God's right hand! In after days he must often have thought of this day and its events. God had a plan for him to be revealed in due time. See Isa. xlvi, 9, 10; Gal. i, 15, 16. In His own way and in His own time God humbled Saul and brought him to Himself.

59. "And they stoned Stephen calling upon God and saying, Lord Jesus, receive my spirit." In Ps. xxxi, 5, it is written, "Into Thine hand I commit my spirit." These very words said Jesus to His Father when He died on Calvary, and similar words says Stephen when he dies. It is asked, Where is the spirit after death? Jesus' spirit—that is, Jesus Himself out of the body—was with the Father. Stephen's spirit—that is, Stephen himself out of his body—was with the Lord Jesus in glory. Jesus taught in Luke xvi, 22-28, the conscious existence of those who pass out of the body by death. The same is clearly taught in Rev. vi, 9-11, and in Phil. i, 21, 23. II Cor. v, 8. The body sleeps but not the soul. The non-existence of a person between death and resurrection or the annihilation of the wicked is not taught in the Scriptures and cannot be taught from them without violent perversion of these passages.

HERMANN'S WONDERFUL HANDS.

The Great Magician Had Remarkable Control of the Palm Muscles.

Herrmann, the great magician, had the most remarkable hands of any man of his generation. He had devoted many years to the development of every single muscle in the palm of each hand, with the result that he could control the tiniest of them as thoroughly as the ordinary man controls his biceps.

His hands were covered with a network of muscles so perfectly developed that he was able to make any particular spot take separate action and do surprising things on its own account. For instance, he could make the muscle of the ball of his thumb move by itself as easily as the ordinary man could move his whole thumb. It was to these wonderful hands as much as anything else that he owed the skill which enabled him to deceive the quickest eye.

The development of these muscles was the result of nearly forty years of incessant practice, during which the care of those hands was the chief object of Herrmann's life. No work or sport which could in any way harden or distort them was done.

The hands were naturally suited for the profession, but the work of perfecting them was one of infinite toil. The exercises caused an ache which spread from the finger tips to the shoulders.—New York Journal.

HUNTING WITH A MIRROR

Effect of Reflected Light Upon Birds and Rabbits in the Woods.

A taxidermist at Northwood, N. Y., has been making experiments as to the effects of light reflected in a bird's eyes. A glass seven or eight inches in diameter has been found most serviceable. The antics of blue jays are remarkable when the light strikes them as they sit in the shadow of an evergreen tree. They jump to another branch and try to look into the light, but they have to run away, as the light dazzles them. Then they fly around the reflector but after practice one is able to keep the light always on them, and the birds not infrequently come within reach of a man's hand.

A ruffled grouse gives a startled look when the light strikes it. Then it jumps, and away it goes. Hawks, too, are usually startled or annoyed so that they fly off. Woodpeckers don't seem to mind it at all.

Rabbits blink and stare at a glass for a while, then go around a stump, and sit up again, as if waiting for the light to play tag with them.—New York Sun.

Washington Old-Time Card Customs.

"There is hardly any observance now of what was a time-honored custom in the matter of Congressional calls," said an old employe of the Senate. "On the first day of every session every Senator sent his personal card to every other Senator as well as to the Representatives of his own State, to the members of the Cabinet, the Supreme Court, and the heads of the army and navy. So also Representatives sent their cards to every other Representative, and to the Senators from their own State. In this way they indicated that they were ready to receive callers. The custom, as far as general observance is concerned, died out about ten or fifteen years ago, and probably would have died out sooner had it not been for the persistent efforts of the late Major Ben Perley Poore, long connected with the Senate, who did all he could to have it kept up. After he passed away the custom died out, though probably a half dozen of the older Senators and representatives remembered and observed it on Monday last."—Washington Star.

Origin of the Phrase "To Eat Crow."

The following is given as the origin of the saying "to eat crow": During the Civil War, or shortly after its close, a United States soldier shot a tame crow, the owner of which came upon him before he had time to reload his piece, and compelled him to eat a mouthful of the bird. This satisfied the owner of the bird, who walked away, but before he had gone a great distance he was overhauled by the soldier, who had loaded up again, and compelled him to return and eat a mouthful or two of the crow. The owner the next day complained at the post. The commander sent for the soldier complained of and asked him: "Do you know this gentleman?" The soldier drawled out: "Ya-as; we dined together yesterday." In everyday conversation "to eat crow" is understood to mean that an individual takes back all he previously said in regard to a certain matter.

Punishment in Belgium.

There is no death penalty in Belgium, but few criminals would choose the punishment substituted for it, if they had a choice. The condemned man is placed in a dungeon so constructed that from the moment he enters it he will never hear the sound of human voices nor see a human being. His food is passed in through a sliding panel in the door of his cell. Not one prisoner has ever been known to survive this punishment more than three years. The authorities have striven in vain to prolong their lives by varying their food as much as possible, but those who are moderately or lightly nourished gradually waste away, while those who are fed generously go mad and die raving maniacs.—Pittsburg Dispatch.

"Johnny," asked the teacher, "what must we do before our sins can be forgiven?"

"Sin," replied Johnny.—Philadelphia American.

THE OPAL.

And the Silly Superstition Regarding It that Some People Have.

The absurd superstition held by so many that the opal brings ill-luck to its owner, as if there were a compelling power or genius residing in stones, would not seem to be shared by those who rate the two opals belonging to the French crown jewels at fifteen thousand dollars, or the famous one sent from Hungary to the first World's Exhibition at twenty housand dollars, or by those who protect the delicate and friable edges of very brilliant specimens by a thin lamina of quartz. The Hungarian merchants who take the pains to export the opal to the East by means of Greek and Turkish agents from whence they return to European markets as Oriental gems, are hardly intimated by the existence of this superstition; nor could Humboldt greatly have regarded it when he brought to the polite world the first specimens of the superb stone known as the Mexican fire-opal, too precious to be owned, with its red and flame-colored splendors, by many with less than imperial purses.—Harper's Bazar.

His Honor Had Been There, Too.

There was a certain Georgia Judge, not Judge Fish, however, yet one who believed in upholding the dignity of the bench, and, as well, was tenacious of his own personal honor.

A divorce suit, in which a gray-haired veteran of the late war was plaintiff, came up before him while he was on the circuit out in a back county. The rude court room was filled with spectators, and the old man seemed unwilling to go on the stand in his own defence.

"I am not going to grant divorces without good reasons," announced the Court, and the plaintiff went to the chair that served as a witness box.

"Now," said he attorney, "tell us just what your wife did to make you leave her."

The witness looked appealingly at the Judge

"Answer the question," was the order.

"Well, she called me names."

"That is not ground enough for a divorce," said the Court sternly.

"And she neglected me."

"Is that all?"

"And she said that I was a coward and a sneak because I went to the war and came back alive. She said that all the brave and worthy men died in battle, and only the traitors and cowards came home, and——'

"That will do sir; the decree prayed for in your petition is granted," broke in the Judge. "I want you to understand, sir, that this Court went to that war and spent four years there—and the Court came back, too."—Montezeuna Record.

The Clock of the Dead Kings.

Perhaps the most peculiar clock in the world is that in a tower in the court-yard of the Palace of Versailles. It has but a single hand, and is known as "L'Horloge de la Mort du Roi" to the French people, and to all other Europeans by the words which signify Clock of the Dead Kings. It has no works, but consists merely of a face and a single hand; the face being an imitation of the sun. Upon the death of a king in any part of Europe the hand is set at the moment of his demise, and remains in that position until another king passes away. This curious custom is said to have originated in the time of Louis XIII. The "Clock of the Dead Kings" is about the only relic of royalty in Versailles that escaped the furious mobs of the time of the French Revolution.

He Had Confidence in His Son.

When Mr. Rudyard Kipling was twelve, he went on a sea-voyage with his father. The elder Kipling became sea-sick, it is related, and went below, leaving the youngster to himself. Presently there was a great commotion overhead, and one of the ship's officers rushed down and banged at Mr. Kipling's door. "Mr. Kipling," he called out, "your boy has crawled out on the yard-arm, and if he lets go he'll drown!" "Yes," said Mr. Kipling, glad to know that nothing was the matter; "but he won't let go."

Odd Name for a Town.

A post-office town in Pennsylvania was strangely named. It is called "Aitch"; and this is the way it came by that title. There are in that part of Huntingdon County five prosperous farmers, respectively named Anderson, Isenberg, Taylor Crum, and Henderson. Each of them wished the town to be named after himself, but they could not come to an agreement; and finally, as a compromise, the first letter from each name was taken and placed together, and thereby originated the old name "Aitch."

The Horrid Brother.

Clare's little brother heard the barber say something about her beau's beard being a la mode. Running in to her as she was seated with the family at the dinner table, he exclaimed, "Clare, it won't be fun for you to kiss Mr. Mouser any more, 'cause he's had his beard all mowed."—Boston Courier.

Her Aimless Way.

"I hardly think," said the lawyer, "that you can get a separation from your wife on account of her making a practice of throwing things at you."

"But," said the man with the haggard look and the black eye, "every time she throws at the dog she hits me!"

A lady having remarked in company that she thought there should be a tax on "the single state," "Yes, madam," rejoined an obstinate bachelor, "as on all other luxuries."

THE SHAKERS' IDEAS of MEDICINE.

Now a days when a man goes to his doctor, he is usually told that he has some unheard of disease with a long name, and when he leaves the office he does not know whether it is St. Vitus Dance or consumption that is gradually undermining his health.

It is, therefore, refreshing to talk with the Shakers, for their very simplicity commands confidence and respect, and we have the further satisfaction of knowing that they have devoted themselves to the study of disease and its cure for more than a hundred years.

The venerable old man whom the writer saw was only too glad to discuss his pet subject. He said that as strange as it might seem, very few doctors realized that three-quarters of the most prevalent diseases were all attributable to faulty digestion.

He went on to say that a child of average intelligence knows that putrid meat or decaying vegetables are poisonous, and must be avoided, and yet these same foods, even if taken into the stomach in the freshest possible condition soon decompose unless digested and absorbed.

In such cases the resulting poisons enter the system, when aches and pains, weakness and debility soon follow as a natural consequence.

It was recognition of this that led the Shakers to devote their energies to the perfection of a product which would stimulate the digestive organs and assist them to perform their proper work.

The first symptom of disordered digestion is loss of appetite, and the Shaker Digestive Cordial is wonderfully efficient in supplying any deficiency in this respect, at the same time it relieves all distresses after eating. Furthermore, as was carefully explained by our venerable friend, it is absolutely harmless.

Better evidence of the Shakers' confidence in it could not be found, than in the fact that they have placed 10 cent sample bottles in the hands of all druggists, assured that if once tried it will produce such immediate and marked benefit that it will be continued.

NOT TO VISIT CLEVELAND.

Hanna Says McKinley Will Not Leave Canton Until He Goes to Washington.

Cleveland, Feb. 19.—Chairman Hanna reports that, while President-elect McKinley has improved slightly from his attack of la grippe, still it has been determined that he will not be able to come to Cleveland this week to visit at Windemere as originally intended. "In fact, Mr. McKinley has decided," Mr. Hanna said, "not to leave Canton until March 2, when he starts for Washington on the inaugural train. In the meantime, Major McKinley will recuperate from his fatiguing labors of the past year, in order that he may enjoy the best of health on March 4." Chairman Hanna has decided to leave Cleveland via the Pennsylvania railroad for Washington on the morning of Feb. 25. He will be accompanied by his family.

OHIO SENATORSHIP.

Ex-Governor Foraker Absolutely Declines To Discuss the Matter.

Cincinnati, Feb. 19.—Senator Foraker was asked the question last night point blank—"Whom do you favor for the senate to succeed Senator Sherman?" "I must decline to be interviewed on the subject. The fact is I am too busy these days to discuss a matter that it must be allowed does not necessarily concern me. I expect to start for Washington to assume my senatorial duties March 1. I am engaged wholly at present in the practice of the law and the matter you refer to is certainly not one for me to waste my time in discussing."

Arbor Day Agitation in England.

P., urges the establishment of Arbor Day in Great Britain and warmly seconding the proposition that this Arbor Day should be adopted as one means of celebrating the queen's long reign.

Henry at Duncannon, is in better physical condition than at any time since his incarceration. He accepted his sentence in a philosophical manner.

THE PEACE TREATY

Senate Expected To Reach Fina Action of Some Sort To-day.

MR. SHERMAN IS AGAIN CONFIDENT

Looks for Favorable Action, But Does Not Believe Ratification of the Treaty Will Be Accomplished Until the Special Session.

Washington, Feb. 19.—This afternoon the senate will go into executiv session on the general arbitration treaty and remain in session until final action of some sort is taken, so far as this session is concerned. Senator Sherman appears to have again become confident that some favorable action may be taken before adjournment to-night, although he scarcely hopes for the ratification of the treaty until the special session to be called by President McKinley about March 15. The senate passed, without a word of explanation, a bill which, if it becomes a law, will introduce a new postal card system. Its purpose is to allow the circulation by mail of the postal cards and envelopes with coupons attached patented and owned by a West Virginia corporation, at the regular postal card and letter rates "paid on presentation of the coupons from the said cards and envelopes when detached at the office of delivery." The postmaster-general is to test the practical operation of the plan in one or more cities, and to suspend its operation if the tests prove unfavorable. The senate also passed, without amendment, house bill for the admission of needlework imported by the New York association of sewing schools for exhibition purposes.

House of Representatives.

In the contested case of Hopkins, rep., vs. Kendall, dem., from the Tenth Kentucky district, the house for the first time this session, on a direct issue of fact, reversed the decision of its committee on elections and seated a contestant whom the committee had declared not elected. On the only previous occasion in this congress where the election committee received a set back, William H. Moody of Massachusetts, who led the forlorn hope in yesterday's debate in support of the majority report, was the successful assailant. In the division yesterday of the ten republicans who voted to sustain the majority of the committee, three were from Massachusetts, which led Mr. Hardy to remark that Massachusetts "had slobbered over too much," an insult to Massachusetts which Mr. Moody indignantly resented. The rest of the session was given up to passage of bills by consent.

It is the regulation badge of the fraternity surrounded by sixteen specially selected large blue-white diamonds. The convention of the Sigma Alpha Epsilon fraternity, which was held in St. Louis Christmas week, decided to present Mr. McKinley with the fraternity badge, and a special committee was appointed to look after the matter. A delegation of the fraternity will attend the inauguration, when President McKinley will wear the gift of the fraternity.

Benedict's Invitation to Cleveland.

New York, Feb. 19.—E. C. Benedict when asked to-day about a report that he and President Cleveland were going on a long yachting trip after March 4, said: "I am slowly placing my yacht, the Oneida, in commission. She is at my place at Greenwich, Conn., and will be ready in about a month. I am going to take a cruise somewhere on her. I have as yet received no answer to an invitation to the president to accompany me. As to whether the president will practice law after he leaves Washington I cannot say. I am not informed as to his future plans."

BIG FIRM'S SPRING OPENING.

Handsome Souvenirs to Be Distributed at Amos H. Van Horn's.

Few New Jersey business concerns dare boast of a bigger share of pluck and enterprise than that possessed by the Newark firm of Amos. H. Van Horn, Ltd., at 73 Market street. For the past year hardly a month has gone by without some material improvements in their already capacious store, which contains over 21½ acres of floor space, well covered with reliable and latest styles of furniture, carpetings and stoves.

To make their thirty-seventh spring opening (beginning week of February 23d) of unusual interest, the Messrs. Van Horn have not only added an unusual number of new designs to their various stocks, but have made extensive alterations from top floor to basement. The basement itself has been transformed into the handsomest sales rooms in the city. It is brilliantly illuminated by electric light, and both walls and ceiling are painted white. Exceptionally handsome souvenirs will be presented on the occasion of the opening, to which, it seems, everyone is cordially invited.

Rheumatism Cured in 24 Hours.

T. J. Blackmore, of Haller & Blackmore, Pittsburg, Pa., says: "A short time since I procured a bottle of 'Mystic Cure.' It got me out of the house in twenty-four hours. I took to my bed with Rheumatism nine months ago and the 'Mystic Cure' is the only medicine that did me any good. I had five of the best physicians in the city, but I received very little relief from them. I know the 'Mystic Cure' to be what it is represented and take pleasure in recommending it to other poor sufferers." Sold by T. S. Armstrong, druggist, corner Park and North avenues, Plainfield.

Wagon Upset, Driver Thrown Out

Car No. 15 of the street railway had just rounded the curve at Watchung avenue and East Front street, yesterday afternoon, when it struck H. S. Thatcher's builder's wagon, which was crossing the track directly in front of the car. The wagon was completely overturned and the driver was thrown heavily into the roadway. Fortunately he was driving a gentle horse or the result might have been more disastrous. Willing hands soon righted the wagon again and it was found to be put little injured.

Mr. McKinley Will See Only Close Friends Until After March 4.

VISIT TO MARK HANNA ABANDONED

The President-elect Not Yet Entirely Recovered from His Illness, and Needs the Few Days Before Inauguration To Recuperate.

Canton, O., Feb. 19.—Major McKinley continues to improve, but he has by no means recovered his former robust health. The contemplated tript to Cleveland has been abandoned, and it is not likely he will leave here until the 1st of March, when he starts for Washington. The public reception to have been tendered President-elect McKinley next Monday afternoon, under the auspices of the Business Mens' association, has been abandoned. The rush of politicians to Canton is at an end. President-elect McKinley will receive no more callers in Canton, save the few who come by appointment. This edict has gone forth to-day. The balance of the time till March 1, alloted nim in his home in Canton, will be spent as that of a private citizen, who needs and seeks rest, and the doors are to be closed to all, except, of course, personal friends and neighbors. Dr. Phillips, the physician of the president-elect, said this morning: "Major McKinley should not give his time to visitors any more before he goes to Washington. He must have absolute and perfect rest for the very short period of the ten days intervening until his departure, in order that he may be in the proper condition to undergo the strain consequent to his inauguration." There was not a caller of the office-seeking class at the home this morning and none are expected to-day. If the weather continues pleasant the president-elect and Mrs. McKinley will take a short carriage ride this afternoon.

Wagon Upset.

A wagon in which was seated Mr. Bowers, of East Front street, was upset yesterday afternoon in front of Caspar's Hotel, by car No. 15 of the street railway. The occupant of the wagon was thrown out and received a mud bath. There was not the slightest damage done to anything. The cause of the accident was that Mr. Bowers was attempting to turn his wagon around and the fifth wheel caught just as the car appeared and striking the wagon upset it.

Gashed His Forehead.

Edson Davis, of New Market, a young lad of fifteen years, while cutting wood this morning at his home caught the ax in a clothes line and cut a deep gash in his forehead. While the wound is very painful no dangerous results are anticipated.

ANNUAL REPORT OF TAX COLLECTOR AND CLERK.

Shows the Condition of the Municipality to be First-Rate—Auditing Committee Found the Accounts to be Correct.

Outside of the receiving of the annual reports there was very little business transacted at the adjourned meeting of the borough council held last night. Previous to the session the Auditing and Finance Committee met and examined the books and accounts for the past year, and later they offered a resolution that they had performed such work and that they had found everything correct.

In the absence of the Mayor and the President of the council, Councilman Valiant called the meeting to order. The first thing presented was the report of Tax Collector H. N. Spencer, which was as follows:

Total collections reported to February 5th, $34,886.49; same to February 19th, $2,785.67; total $37,672.16; from February 15th to date, $2,785.67, less Board of Health, $40.21; account of school, $697.20; $737.41, total $2,048.26. County tax, $722.97; state school, $348.53; borough, $160.86; lights, $321.72; roads, $187.67; fire department, $201.08; poor, $80.43; polls, $15; dogs, $10; total, $2,048.26.

The report of the borough clerk was as follows:

Borough, $1,930.81; fire department, $1,651.46; lights, $1,499.32; roads, $126.78; poor deficit, $406.11; total, $4,802.26; state and county tax due collector for 1896-7, $4,238.55; balance due from the collector, $563.71; total unpaid taxes for 1896, $2,818.09.

Chief Marshal Wilson reported that during the year there had been eighty-nine arrests, sentence suspended on twelve, twenty-seven were sent to jail, one to the asylum and twenty-nine were fined.

A bill for $448 from E. and J. H. Pope, for work done on the Prideville hose house, was received and after being certified as correct it was ordered paid.

Mr. Woolston reported the work done on the streets during the past year. The report showed that there had been laid 350 feet of crosswalk and 4,750 feet of sidewalk. In all there had been expended on the streets $3,697.09. The report gave in detail the work done and it showed that there had been a wise expenditure of money. As this report will be printed in pamphlet form it is not given in full at this time.

Mr. Valiant stated that he could report progress in the matter of compiling the borough laws and ordinances, and that the next Council would have them in their hands. On a motion offered by Mr. Valiant 300 copies of the borough reports and accounts, together with a list of the delinquent taxes, were ordered published in pamphlet form.

It was also stated by Mr. Valiant that a list of the back taxes had been compiled and that it was found that there was about $10,000 due to the credit of the borough. This, he said, with the balance left to the credit of the borough, placed the borough in a good financial condition.

The report of Overseer of the Poor David R. Weaver showed that $1,302.35 had been expended in his department during the past year.

This finished up the business for the evening and the Council adjourned. The next meeting will be held the first Friday evening in March, which will be the last meeting of the Council as it now stands.

DIED VERY SUDDENLY.

George L. Taynor Succumbed to Heart Trouble Last Night.

The death of George L. Taynor occurred very suddenly last evening at his home, No. 36 Warren street. For some time past he had not been very well but nothing serious was thought of his condition. At 9 o'clock he was sitting by the stove and was feeling quite well. One hour later he went to bed and three-quarters of an hour after he died, the cause of which is attributed to heart disease.

Mr. Taynor was born in Washingtonville seventy years ago, and for many years he carried on the blacksmith businesss. He was well known in this vicinity and was considered a good citizen. During the past few years he had done very little and lived in retirement at his home. The funeral services will be held next Monday afternoon from the house at 2:30.

Improvement Association to Meet.

The regular meeting of the Town Improvement Association will be held in Y. M. C. A. hall on Tuesday afternoon at 3 o'clock. Miss Fannie E. Bates, president of the Cranford Village Improvement Association, will address the meeting. The attractive park seen from the car windows at Cranford is the work of that association.

PLACE FOR PLAINFIELD.

A LOCAL TEAM CAN ENTER THE STATE BALL LEAGUE IF SO DISPOSED.

The Outlook Appears to be Bright for a Good Season With the League.—A Trenton Man to Be The President.

New Jersey is going to see some good baseball this season if the New Jersey State League fulfills the predictions of its promoters. Another meeting has been held and the preliminaries arranged. Whether Plainfield will be in the league remains to be seen. A place is being left for her but the local management has not been taken as yet, although there is some talk of giving it to an out-of-town party. Two applications have been received from clubs outside the State and they will be acted upon at the next meeting.

The outlook appears to be very bright in the State and the league promises to fill a long felt want of giving the people of New Jersey a good game of professional baseball. Ted Sullivan and President Powers of the Eastern League were the originators of the league and they have now come to the conclusion that the league will be a success.

In Atlantic City a little difficulty was found at first in securing suitable grounds, but that has been arranged and a prominent capitalist has taken the franchise.

Peter E. Wurfflein, of Trenton, has been selected as president, secretary and treasurer of the league. Now that the league has been put under the protection of the National Agreement, the work of signing the teams has commenced and a number of promising players have been discovered by the different managers besides some of the well-known players of the State.

The question of umpires was brought up and it was decided that a majority of the managers could ask for the release of an umpire who became obnoxious to the teams. They passed a very good rule regarding teams leaving the field. The rule read:

"Any club refusing to play within five minutes, contrary to umpire's decision, shall be fined $75, the said fine to be paid to the secretary of the league within five days."

Postponed games were protected by a guarantee and to be played off on a date mutually agreed upon by the managers of the contesting teams.

CLUB TO MAKE GOOD MEN

YOUNG BOYS WHO SEEK TO DISCOURAGE ALL UNMANLY HABITS.

The Crystal Club is Its Title and the Members Are Youngsters Who Want to See Playmates Free From all Vice.

One of the most novel organizations in this locality has just been organized in the borough by several boys. They have chosen the name of "Crystal Club," and the objects of the club is to discourage the habit of drinking, smoking, swearing and all unmanly habits. Those between the ages of eleven and sixteen years can become members on application if the officers think they are all right. At present the club meets in ex-Judge Sperry's office, 65 Grandview avenue, the first Tuesday of every month. Harry Woodland, Albert and Christopher Utzinger, compose the committee on rooms, and they will arrange to have a suitable place of meeting. The following officers have been elected: President, Raymond Stevens; vice president, Harry Woodland; secretary, Ernest Volkman; treasurer, Arthur Jeffrey. The constitution committee, consisting of Raymond Stevens, Arthur Jeffrey and Frank Sheppard, presented a constitution at the last meeting and the same was adopted by the members.

Donations have been received from E. L. Hyde, of Massachusetts, and Mrs. Schermerhorn, of this city, and the amounts will be used to purchase badges for the members. The club will meet again next Tuesday evening at 7:30 when important business will be transacted.

Progressive Heart Party.

A progressive heart party was given at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harry C. Runyon, in the Jackson building, last evening. The first prizes were won by Mrs. George Firstbrook and H. Drapton. There were three tables. The game occupied most of the evening and was followed by a social time.

A Patriotic Sermon.

Tomorrow evening at the Park Avenue Baptist church the pastor, Rev. J. W. Richardson will preach a patriotic sermon before the Jr. O. U. A. M., Daughters of America and Daughters of Liberty, who will attend the service in a body.

FINE CLOTHES TAXED.

POVERTY AND RECOGNITION SOCIABLE AT VINCENT CHAPEL.

Most of the Attendants Were Nicely Attired and as a Consequence They Had to Pay Tribute—Tracing Out Baby Lines.

The interior of Vincent chapel and the occupants thereof, last evening, did not present a particularly poverty stricken appearance even if the Epworth League of the First M. E. church did hold a poverty party and recognition sociable there. Some of the member did follow the spirit of the affair and appeared in as unconventional garb as possible. Most of the guests came all arrayed in their best and the treasury of the League grew in consequence.

The guests were captured on their arrival by the committee and carefully examined them for articles for which they could be fined. The women were examined by the men of the committee, who were Arthur Crone and James A. Stafford. D. S. Dunavan looked after the door and collected the admittance fees. The men were examined by the Misses Ida Angleman, Elsie Horne, Madeline Day, Ametia Day, and Bessie Day.

The fines were made according to the following lists:

Ladies:—Silks 5 cents, shoes, fancy tips 3 cents, gloves 5 cents, velvets 5 cents, ribbons 5 cents, lace 2 cents, hair, curled, 2 cents, ruffles 1 cent, satins 5 cents, sash 2 cents, flowers, artificial or real, 5 cents, jewelry 5 cents.

Gentlemen:—Silk or satin ties 5 cents, collars and cuffs 4 cents, shoes shined 3 cents, shoes, russet or patent leather, 4 cents, starch goods 5 cents, hair, dude style, 5 cents, jewelry, each article, 5 cents, coats, cutaway or Prince Alberts, 5 cents, flowers 5 cents, moustache or without 5 cents.

The costumes were varied. Some of the young women wore sun-bonnets and calico dresses, others wore old clothes of some queer style, but the majority were not prepared for that kind of an event. Miss Lucie Palmer Davis wore one of the most appropriate gowns. A big sun-bonnet completed the costume. Miss Eva Jenkins and Miss Alice Jenkins were also dressed in the same manner. Several of the guests looked very youthful with their hair hanging in a braid.

Robert Davis and Charles W. Sprague divided the honors among the young men. Davis looked as tough as might be wished. His clothes were old and ragged and he had an old bandana knotted at the throat while a soft felt hat which appeared to date back from the middle ages completed the equipment. Sprague wore an old suit and low-crowned dilapidated derby. Long whiskers almost disguised his identity. A number of the young men wore their sweaters in honor of the occasion but as many of them had a new appearance, their owners did not look particularly poverty stricken.

A feature of the sociable was the collection of juvenile pictures of the different members of the congregation. It was difficult to trace the resemblance in many cases between the extremely youthful figure in the picture and the original in the room. Some of them were easy to guess and there was lots of fun in comparing them. Everybody was supplied with a card on which they wrote their guesses as to the originals of the pictures.

The principal part of the programme was a number of selections on the programme under the direction of Donald McGee. Some of the selections were humorous and caused much laughter. A short story, "Goliath," was read in a pleasing manner by Miss Susie Davies. The selection was an exciting one and the conclusion was very humorous.

After the programme, the refreshments, which consisted of coffee and crackers, were passed and a social time followed. Everybody pronounced the sociable a delightful affair and the committee was congratulated on its success. The sociable was arranged by the social committee of the League of which Miss Elsie Horne is the chairman.

PLACED IN A PECULIAR POSITION.

Councilmen, who are Endeavorers, asked Not to Vote for Licenses.

At the Christian Endeavor society meeting at the First Baptist church last evening a resolution was passed to the effect that Councilmen Serrell and W. N. Runyon, who are members of the society, be requested to vote against the granting of licenses, and the secretary was instructed to send the two councilmen a copy of the resolution.

Said to Have Fled.

There are rumors current concerning the disappearance of a borough business man, who is said to have become heavily in debt.

PARK'S SHARE IS DEFEAT

INGLORIOUS ENDING OF THE BOWLING SEASON FOR THEM.

Started Out With a Rosey View of Being Victorious But Finish by Losing Two Games on Their Own Club Alleys

It was a sorrowful ending for the bowling season for the Park Clubites. At the start the prospects had been so rosey and the chances of getting the trophy was so good that the final ending of the league was something of a disappointment to those who took an interest in the work. The Park's are considered almost invincible on their own alleys but the team from the New Jersey Athletic Club came up to the Park's alleys last evening and won two victories from the home team.

Neither team did anything brilliant in the first game. The visitors took the lead at the start and kept it until the end although the Park's were not very far behind. The latter made several efforts to catch them but failed and the Jersey boys won by 23 pins. The second game was one of the best that has been bowled on the Park alleys this season. The home team woke up to the necessity that they must, at least, win the last game of the tournament, if not the trophy. Both teams set a lively pace from the start and the home club took the lead. The fight was close but still the Park's maintained their lead by a small margin. On the eighth frame, the visitors moved ahead by three pins and then they made a windup that even the Park's couldn't equal. The Jersey team won by the high score of 915 pins, 45 pins ahead of their opponents.

POND'S WON IN TWO GAMES.

Defeated the Potter Press Works Bowlers Again Last Night.

The Pond and Potter bowling teams contested in another friendly game on the Ulrich alleys last evening, and the employes of each shop and their friends turned out in large numbers to witness the sport. The match was more or less exciting from start to finish, and at the end of the game both the victors and the defeated cheered each other in true brotherhood style. Pond's had won the first game rolled some three weeks ago on the same alleys by 66 pins, and this fact enthused that team to greater energy and the players went in to win—and they did win to the tune of 1260 to 1173. The individual score follows:

Ponds.		Potters.
Millington	132	Gallagher	114
Wilcox	121	Symmons	148
Owens	130	Muir	136
Craig, W.	86	Whalen	112
Brown	102	Nicholas	106
Reagan	135	Shirley	106

Shepherd	159	Squires	117
Guinee	137	Babcock	144
Leland	127	Matthews	91
	1260		1173

Thus it will be seen that the Pond team won by 87 points, and having won two straight matches the third game is unnecessary. Some of the more prominent bowlers are, however, advocating another series of games, and they may be arranged before the warm weather sets in, when outdoor sports will take the place of indoor amusements.

Second Anniversary of Marriage.

Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Williams celebrated the second anniversary of their marriage at their home on Madison avenue, last evening, in company with a few of their friends and relatives. The evening passed enjoyably with games and a social time. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Hall, Mr. and Mrs. Fred S. Smalley, Mr. and Mrs. Will F. Williams, Mrs. A. M. Runyon, Mrs. Julia L. Force, Miss Ada Chandler, Miss Mabelle Force, Miss Lottie Montrose, Miss Clara Williams and Miss Florence Williams.

Second Night of the Tea a Success.

The attendance at the Martha Washington tea at Grace M. E. church last evening was much larger than on the previous evening, and nearly everything on sale was disposed of. The chorus of girls and boys rendered a programme the same as that given the night before with the exception of the following selections: "Three Old Maids of Lee," "The Old Oaken Bucket," solo, "No Sir," Penelope Carroll; "Aunt Dinah's Quilting Party" and "Gossip."

Died This Noon.

The death of Mrs. C. L. Treat occurred this noon at her home, 311 East Fourth street, after a long illness. She leaves a husband.

SUNDAY-SCHOOL TEACHERS HEAR REPORTS AND PLANS.

Congregational and Trinity Reformed Church Teachers Held Meetings Yesterday, After Which Sociability Was Enjoyed

A new feature in the duties of the Sunday-school teachers of the Congregational church is the quarterly meeting at which the work of the school is talked over and a social hour spent. One of these quarterly meetings was held last evening at the home of the superintendent, Joseph A. Robinson, of East Fifth street. The meeting was a very enjoyable one. Short reports were made by the officers and chairmen of the committees which showed the Sunday-school to be in even better condition than a year ago, both financially and numerically. The average attendance has been steadily increasing and it was evident that the hard work of the teachers and officers had not been in vain.

After a conference on the work and spiritual condition of the school, an hour was spent socially. An informal programme was given. There was a bass solo by Stacy Reynolds, "The Mighty Deep," and an alto solo, "There, little girl don't cry," by Miss Julia Belknap. A duet by Miss M. G. Morse and Stacy Reynolds, entitled "I would that my love," ended the programme.

The officers and teachers of Trinity Reformed Sunday school met in quarterly session in the lecture room, last evening, and listened to the reports from the several departments, all showing the school to be in a most excellent condition. The reports are to be embodied into one general report, which Superintendent E. E. Anthony will make known later on. During the evening prayer and thanksgiving were offered by the superintendent and others, after which the meeting turned into a social gathering and coffee and cake was served in abundance and everybody was made to feel at home.

The entertainment committee, consisting of Miss Kreitling, chairman, Miss Steiglitz, Miss Lance and Frank Wikoff, desire to thank all who contributed and assisted at the gathering of the Sunday-school workers.

PARTOOK OF CHOP SUI.

A CHINESE TEA PARTY GIVEN BY CONGREGATIONAL ENDEAVORERS.

Chinese Customs Dwelt Upon in an Interesting Manner by Those Who Lead—Chop Sticks Were in Use There.

The members of the Junior Endeovor Society of the Congregational church entertained their friends, yesterday afternoon, in the church parlors with a Chinese tea party. It was a novel affair and was greatly enjoyed by the children and their friends who came to watch. Several short articles were first read by some of the members. Miss Hattie Messersmith read "Helpless Gods," and Harold Nomer read "The Ride of the Rain God." "Hog worship" was the title of the one read by Miss Cornelia Lance. Edward Suffren read a poem entitled "Who, Why, and How Long." The articles all referred to life and worship in China.

Rev. C. L. Goodrich, who arranged the affair, had two of the Chinese idols which he exhibited and explained the method of worship. He also had a Chinese praying stick on which he burned incense. The programme ended with a Chinese motion song by four little girls in costume. They were the Misses Carrie Fuller, Enid Fonda, Ethel Weseman and Fannie Condon, all members of the missionary committee of the society. They were accompanied on an autoharp by Miss M. G. Morse, who was also dressed in Chinese costume.

Clarence Steiner and Miss May Serrell were also in costume. The latter were a native costume brought from the islands east of China.

The refreshments ended the afternoon's pleasure and the young folks gathered in a circle on the floor with paper napkins in front of them. They tried to partake of boiled rice with chop-sticks. Tea, crackers and rats were also served. It might be added that the rats were made of chocolate.

Cadets to Drill.

At the Y. M. C. A. Star Course entertainment Monday night, Captain Edwards will appear with a detail of the Plainfield High School cadets who will execute a few movements in the manual of arms. Of course this will greatly add to the rendering of the entertainment, "A Soldier's Story," as recited and sung by Alfred E Pearsall.

HOLIDAY ATTRACTIONS.

EVENTS WHICH MAY BE ATTENDED ON WASHINGTON'S BIRTHDAY.

A 'Coon Hunt and a Live Bird Shoot for Sportsmen — Social Events Are Numerous in the Afternoon and Evening.

Monday will be an unusually quiet day for a holiday in Plainfield until evening arrives and then the city will assume quite a gala appearance. Everybody knows that it is Washington's birthday, the anniversary of the the birth of the "father of his country." Of course all the stores will be closed as well as the banks and offices in the city. The two holidays, Sunday and Washington's Birthday, coming close together will make things lively in the stores together. The grocers and markets will be specially rushed in supplying their customers with provisions for the next two days.

There will be few out-door attractions in the city. A 'coon hunt will be conducted at Avon Park in the afternoon to which all are invited and there will also be a shoot at live birds at the same place. The Dunellen Gun Club will also hold a shoot. If the roads are in good condition, the cyclists will be out for an opening spin while the owners of fast horses, and other kinds also, will be out providing the weather is nice.

Two big social events will be held in the evening. The last of the series of three subscription dances, which take the place of the Assemblies this season, will be held in the Casino of the Union County Country Club. At the Park Club a Bal Poudre will be given by the club to the members and their friends, which promises to be a very successful affair.

In the way of entertainments, there will be one at the Y. M. C. A. Hall of an appropriate character. Alfred E. Pearsall, of Westfield, will deliver his war monologue, "A Soldier's Story. A delightful entertainment will also be given in the North Plainfield public school for the benefit of the piano fund.

At Music Hall Pete Baker and his company will entertain afternoon and evening.

The grocery stores in this city will keep open Monday until noon, as will some of the other stores.

BECKER HELD FOR THE JURY

HE WAIVED EXAMINATION IN COURT.

Released in the Sum of $50 on his Own Recognizance.

The last step in the trouble between Becker and the Hobbies is the holding of Becker for the Grand Jury. It will be remembered that while young Hobbie and Simon were arrested on the charge of assault and battery on a warrant issued by Justice Newcorn, another warrant was issued by Justice Nash for the arrest of Becker on the same charge. He was arrested and his hearing adjourned until this morning.

This morning Becker appeared before Nash, accompanied by his counsel ex-Councilman Walter L. Hetfield. The complainants in the case, Willie Hobbie and George Simon, were also there as was their lawyer, Corporation Counsel Craig A. Marsh. Becker waived examination and was held on his own recognizance in the sum of $50 to appear before the Grand Jury. No testimony was given and the matter is now at a standstill until the Grand Jury meets again.

NO VOTE ON TREATY

Plainly Evident That It Will Go Over to the Special Session.

SHERMAN MAY MAKE ONE MORE EFFORT

Filibustering in Old-Time Vigor Indulged in by Senators Opposed to Speedy Action---Several Spirited Speeches.

Washington, Feb. 20.—When the senate adjourned at 8 o'clock last night, after a secret session of seven and a half hours, it was apparent to the most sanguine friends of the general treaty of arbitration with Great Britain that no vote could be secured at this session of the senate. The fact that a motion to postpone until March 5 had been defeated by a vote of 30 to 20 afforded no satisfaction. On the contrary, it emphasized the fact that those fighting the treaty intended there should be affirmative action of no kind. Filibustering was indulged in in old time vigor, and when, after two hours of this sort of thing, the call of the senate failed to establish the presence of a quorum, a motion to adjourn prevailed, and the treaty was left hanging in the balance. It is not improbable that Mr. Sherman may make one more effort to secure a vote, not to-day, however. Senator Nelson, rep., Minn., opened the discussion with an earnest appeal for the adoption of his motion to postpone the treaty until March 5. He said that he spoke as a friend of the treaty. He was convinced from what he had seen and heard since the consideration of the subject was begun that final action was out of the question at the present session. He admitted that his special interest in having the treaty go over was to give time for the consideration of the bankruptcy bill, for the passage of which, he said, there was a crying demand from all parts of the country. Senators Teller, silver rep., Col., and Stewart, pop., Nev., supported the motion to postpone in brief speeches. Senator Platt, rep., Conn., took the opposite view, urging prompt action. He said that, while the treaty was new, the subject was old, and the country was fully prepared to accept with favor the senate's ratification of the present document. Senator Lodge followed Mr. Platt in a five-minute speech, in which he appealed to the advocates of postponement to withdraw their opposition to a vote on ratification, and receiving no favorable response to this indirect inquiry put the question direct whether they meant to permit a vote. To this inquiry Senator Teller responded, saying that there was no intention on the part of the advocates of postponement to permit an immediate vote. He did not think a vote could be secured at present, for he did not think there was time to discuss the subject sufficiently to bring out all the points of the treaty. He thereupon proceeded to make a speech on the merits of the treaty.

Bungled, said Teller.

In the course of his argument Mr. Teller said that he was not prepared to say that he should not vote for the arbitration treaty. He favored the principle of arbitration, but the treaty had been bungled and badly drawn, and he believed there should be ample time for its consideration. The more the treaty was discussed the more prominent became the objections that had been made to it. The senate, Mr. Teller said, ought not to be called upon to vote upon so important a question at this late day in the session. The state department had been four years in framing a treaty which it believed to be now perfect, but which the majority of the senate knew did not protect the interests of the American people. If the state department with its men skilled in diplomatic procedure had been four years preparing a treaty why, Mr. Teller asked, should the administration and the country be so insistent that the senate should deal finally with the subject in a few weeks.

Daniel's Forcible Argument.

Mr. Daniel of Virginia made one of those speeches, finished in oratory and rhetoric for which he is noted. He addressed the senate for upwards of two hours and made a powerful impression. He was against the treaty and advanced some of the strongest arguments that have yet been heard. War was not a bad thing, Mr. Daniel said, when the nation that went to war had the right on its side and was upholding the honor and integrity of its people. The United States was the only country that Great Britain feared, and if she could put up bonds to keep the peace, Great Britain would go ahead with her policy of aggression and agrandizement and laugh at any protests that we might make or defy any position we might assume against her oppression of the people of the western hemisphere. The congress of the United States had never declared war unless such war was justifiable; the United States had never acquired any territory by war unless as the result of a war that was of defense or necessary for the perpetuation of the republic. "I love the blood of the revolution," said Mr. Daniel in one of his impassioned utterances. "It is full of all that is great and noble in the history of this country." Mr. Daniel then proceeded to show that the lessons of the revolution ought not to be forgotten and that the people of the United States should be wary of any overtures made to them by her traditional enemy, Great Britain, speaking, though they do, the same tongue. Of all the powers England was the one the United States should refuse blindly to follow.

THE COMING BIG FIGHT.

Movements of the Sporting Fraternity Now Centered at Carson.

Carson, Nev., Feb. 20.—Corbett's training quarters were completed last evening, and the entire Corbett party moved to Shaws Springs this morning. Behind a quieter horse than the animal which ran away with him Thursday evening and compelled him to walk two miles in the snow three feet deep, Julian drove out to Crook's ranch. This morning he reported that Fitzsimmons' quarters will be in shape before evening. Director General Stuart is considerably better to-day. In response to the resolution of Representative Rebo, in the Missouri legislature, Stuart wired that gentleman last evening, tendering him a box for the use of the Jefferson City delegation and extending a cordial welcome to the committee. The sporting fraternity is delighted at the prospect of a revival of athletics in Missouri, and the Carson politicians are naturally elated over having set the pace for their eastern brethren. Last night's trains brought in no less than eight representatives of eastern newspapers, and a larger number is expected to-day. The reporters' headquarters in the hall leased by the Western Union is being hurried to completion, and all are confident that they will be comfortable by Monday. Nothwithstanding the unfavorable conditions, the company is moving 30,000 words a night with excellent facility. Hundreds of telegrams addressed to Stuart requesting him to reserve seats for visitors from distant points continue to arrive daily. Regarding these messages, Mr. Wheelock said: "It is impossible for us to make any reservations. Where cash accompanies the order the buyers will receive the best seats available at the time the message reaches Carson. This is absolutely necessary to avoid confusion. All will be treated alike."

BRYAN TO SPEAK ON "MONEY."

Will Deliver an Address in New York Next Friday Night.

New York, Feb. 20.—W. J. Bryan is to make a speech at Carnegie hall next Friday night under the auspices of the Bimetallic association, just formed, the object of which is to elect the president in 1900 on the recent democratic platform. For the purpose of accomplishing this a series of bimetallic educational lectures has been arranged. Those to be held at Carnegie hall will begin with Mr. Bryan's lecture on "Money." On Saturday evening Mr. Bryan will deliver a speech on "Free Coinage." The other speeches of the series will be "The Famine of Gold" by Francis Newlands on March 5; the "Theory and Practice of Bimetallism" by Chas. A. Towne of Minnesota on March 11, and "Money and Commonwealth" by George Fred Williams of Massachusetts on March 19.

Statue of St. Patrick from Rome.

Montreal, Feb. 20.—A statue of St. Patrick, a present from his holiness the pope, was delivered at St. Patrick's church last evening, having come here via New York. It will be unveiled shortly on the occasion of the celebration of the diamond jubilee of St. Patrick's church. In the right arm of the statue have been inserted the right arm bones of St. Patrick himself, which have been preserved at Rome.

The New Zinc Combine.

Bethlehem, Pa., Feb. 20.—It is announced here that the Lehigh Zinc & Iron company, whose mammoth plant is in South Bethlehem, and the Florence Zinc works, located at Freemansburg, three miles from here, are in the zinc combine, the capital of which is $10,000,000. S. S. Palmer, formerly president of the New Jersey Zinc & Iron company, will be president of the new company.

Paying for Battleships.

Washington, Feb. 20.—The navy department has made the first of thirty payments on account of the construction of the battleship Alabama at Cramps' shipyard, Philadelphia, which amounts to $88,3[illegible] also the twenty-sixth payment of $90,300 for the Iowa at the same yards, making next to the last payment on that vessel before she is delivered to the government.

The Lampson Bequest to Yale.

New Haven, Conn., Feb. 20.—At the treasurer's office of Yale university it is stated that, while the telegraphed reports of the Lampson bequest have been exaggerated, it will be a very handsome sum. It will be the largest bequest ever made to the university and exceeded only by one bequest of any kind, that of Mr. Sheffield to the Sheffield Scientific school.

BOOKS READ AT SING SING.

"Never Too Late to Mend" is Most Popular Among Convict Readers.

Many records have been made among different people to obtain "the favorite author," None has revealed more astonishing results than a two months' record kept by the librarian of Sing Sing Prison.

The most popular author in Sing Sing year in and year out is Charles Reade, and the most popular book is "Never Too Late to Mend." There are about thirteen hundred convicts in the prison, and in two months 463 of them read this book, which has been responsible for many reforms in prisons. Next on the list comes "Put Yourself in His Place," with 436 readers.

Charles Lever's "Charles O'Malley" comes next in favor, with the same author's "Tom Burke of Our's" following, which is pushed hard by Bulwer Lytton's "Paul Clifford."

Samuel Lover's "Rory O'More" is next. Duma's "Monte Cristo" is his most popular book. Dickens ranks next with "David Copperfield" in the lead, and "The Tale of the Two Cities," with its wonderful convict pictures, third in favor.

Conan Doyle, with Sherlock Holmes, is the first modern author who is at all in favor. Capt. Kink's "Deserter" comes next. Capt. Marryatt's "Mr. Midshipman Easy" leads the sea tales. Wilkie Collins's "Moonstone" and Black's "Shandon Bells" are next in demand. Then come "Lorna Doone" and "Vanity Fair." The only woman's book that is popular is "Uncle Tom's Cabin." Love stories are not wanted. —New York World.

The Contractor Was Discharged.

Franklin W. Smith, a Boston contractor, was tried by court-martial and found guilty of pocketing a thousand or two dollars out of a contract with the Navy department for supplies. The report of the court-martial was sent to President Lincoln for his examination, who returned it with this characteristic endorsement:

"Whereas, Franklin W. Smith had transactions with the United States Navy Department to a million and a quarter of dollars, and had the chance to steal a quarter of a million; and whereas, he was charged with stealing only ten thousand dollars, and from the final revision of the testimony it is only claimed that he stole one hundred dollars, I don't believe he stole anything at all.

Therefore, the records of the court-martial, together with the finding and sentence, are disapproved, declared null and void, and the defendant is fully discharged.

Author: "Here are some thoughts that burn."

Editor: "Well, hold on to them, and I'll see that you both get fired."

Dobson: "Shakespeare never repeated. He was original in everything."

Smiley: "Guess that's so. He didn't even spell his own name twice alike."

Cures Talk

"Cures talk" in favor of Hood's Sarsaparilla, as for no other medicine. Its great cures recorded in truthful, convincing language of grateful men and women, constitute its most effective advertising. Many of these cures are marvelous. They have won the confidence of the people; have given Hood's Sarsaparilla the largest sales in the world, and have made necessary for its manufacture the greatest laboratory on earth. Hood's Sarsaparilla is known by the cures it has made—cures of scrofula, salt rheum and eczema, cures of rheumatism, neuralgia and weak nerves, cures of dyspepsia, liver and kidney troubles, catarrh and malaria.

Such Cures as This Prove Merit.

"My little nephew was a plump and healthy baby until a year and a half old, then sores broke out behind his ears and spread rapidly over his head, hands and body. A physician said the trouble was scrofula humor in the blood. The child became one complete sore. We had to restrain his hands to keep him from scratching the sores. We were induced to try Hood's Sarsaparilla, and in a short time he had more life. He improved rapidly, his skin became entirely clear of sores and he is now a healthy child." MRS. FLORENCE ANDREWS, Clearfield, Iowa.

POOR COAL

can consume more money and waste more patience than anything you can put your money into. When you buy from a dealer who sells you this kind of coal and go back to him again, it is your own pocketbook you're robbing. There are many dealers—we among them—who are willing to sell you good coal at a close margin and be sure of giving you perfect satisfaction. We have a good, honest Lehigh coal at $5.50 per ton. You won't want to go elsewhere after you have tried it.

Some gowns are so dainty in the weave, so delicate in tint, that they seem to soil by being looked at—one or two wearings making them unpresentable, NOT USELESS. We make a specialty of cleaning fine fabrics, the more delicate the material, the better the results. Sometimes an accident will ruin a gown, without injuring the texture. We dye them then, sometimes we get a prettier effect than the original color. Fine goods stand redyeing. The finer the material the better the new color. We charge so little for cleaning or dyeing, that even if you are in doubt as to the result, it's worth while to experiment. Want a new evening gown for a dollar or two? Something to Know.

It may be worth something to know that the very best medicine for restoring the tired out nervous system to a healthy vigor is Electric Bitters. This medicine is purely vegetable, acts by giving tone to the nerve centres in the stomach, gently stimulates the Liver and Kidneys, and aids these organs in throwing off impurities in the blood. He had become fully satisfied that it was only a question of a short time until he would have to give up. He had been treated by some of the best physicians in Europe and America but got no permanent relief. One day he picked up a newspaper and chanced to read an advertisement of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhœa Remedy. A GOOD LETTER.

From the Clerk of the Circuit Court.

Fernandina, Fla., Feb. 28, 1896.

Mr. J. George Suhrer, Druggist, City.

Dear George:—Please send a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. I would not feel easy if I knew there was none of this valuable Remedy in the house. I have given it a fair test and consider it one of the very best remedies for croup that I have ever foumd. One dose has always been sufficient, although I use it freely. Any cold my children contract yields very readily to this medicine. I can conscientiously recommend it for croup and colds in children. Yours respectfully, Geo. E. Wolff. Sold by T. S. Armstrong, apothecary, Park & North avenues.

—Justice Newcorn will take possession of his new offices in the Serrell building, No. 204 West Front street, March 1st.

A few months ago, Mr. Byron Every, of Woodstock, Mich., was badly afflicted with rheumatism. His right leg was swollen the full length, causing him great suffering. He was advised to try Chamberlain's Pain Balm. The first bottle of it helped him considerably and the second bottle effected a cure. The 25 and 50 cent sizes are for sale by T. S. Armstrong, Apothecary, corner Park and North avenues.

ONE PORTFOLIO OPEN

The Rumor at Canton Regarding McCook Is Premature.

HIS NAME UNDER CONSIDERATION

The Report That James H. Gary of Baltimore Has Been Offered and Accepted a Cabinet Position Probably True.

Canton, O., Feb. 20.—The report that James A. Gary of Baltimore has been offered and has accepted a position in Major McKinley's cabinet is probably true. The other rumor, that J. J. McCook of New York has been offered and accepted a portfolio is premature. Mr. McCook is being favorably considered by Major McKinley in connection with a cabinet position, but has not been offered a portfolio, nor has Mr. McCook been definitely determined upon for a cabinet position. If he does become a member of the cabinet it is not absolutely certain that he will be the attorney-general or that Mr. Gary will be the postmaster-general. This is upon high authority. When the final cast of the cabinet is made it may seem well to the president-elect to transfer ex-Gov. Long, whom he has fixed upon for the navy department, to the department of justice, leaving the navy portfolio for a New York man or for Mr. Gary, in case it is decided to give New York the postoffice department. Mr. Gary has been an active republican worker in Maryland for fifteen years and was for a long period the member of the republican national committee from that state. Major McKinley has known him for fifteen years and has long deemed him one of the foremost business men in the south. There is still one place in the cabinet to be filled, and the general belief is that it will be given to a New York republican. Major McKinley is improving rapidly in health, but adheres strictly to his resolution to see no visitors.

The Report That He Has Been Selected Believed in Maryland.

Baltimore, Feb. 20.—A special from Canton, O., to the American says: 'Jas. A. Gary of Baltimore has been selected for postmaster general in the cabinet of the next administration. This information, though not yet publicly announced, is authoritative. It has transpired that at the last moment Major McKinley, unable to persuade Mr. Hanna to enter the cabinet as postmaster general, has determined to send for the Marylander, whose appointment to membership in the next president's official family has been urged upon Major McKinley by many southern republicans. The president-elect hesitated long before abandoning the hope of securing Mr. Hanna's consent to accept the office, but, after the latter's positive refusal, Major McKinley determined to appoint a southerner, and Mr. Gary has been decided upon as the man for the place. The statement that Mr. Gary has been selected for a position in Mr. McKinley's cabinet is generally believed here. It is known that he left town yesterday, presumably for Canton, although he declined to give his destination. The American's dispatch also asserts that Col. John J. McCook of New York has been definitely selected for the position of attorney general. "The public announcement of this fact," the American correspondent says, "will not probably be made for several days, possibly not until Major McKinley reaches Washington." Provided the selections given by the American are correct Major McKinley's cabinet is now complete, and is made up as follows: Secretary of State—John Sherman of Ohio. Secretary of the Treasury—Lyman J. Gage of Illinois. Secretary of War—Gen. Russell A. Alger of Michigan. Secretary of the Navy—J. D. Long of Massachusetts. Secretary of the Interior—Joseph McKenna of California. Postmaster-General—James A. Gary of Maryland. Attorney-General—John J. McCook of New York. Secretary of Agriculture—James Wilson of Iowa.

The Report Credited in Washington.

Washington, Feb. 20.—It is generally understood here among those who are closest to President-elect McKinley that the statements published as to the two last selected members of the cabinet, Gary of Maryland and McCook of New York, are accurate, and that the cabinet of the new president is now completed.

Nominated by the President.

Washington, Feb. 20.—The president has sent to the senate the following postmaster nominations: Connecticut—W. B. Markham, East Hampton. New Hampshire—Adelia M. Barrows, Hinsdale. New York—Charles H. McGuirk, New Rochelle. Pennsylvania—Wm. R. Criss, New Wilmington.

To Read Washington's Farewell Address.

Washington, Feb. 20.—Senator Daniel, dem., Va., has been designated as the reader in the senate of Washington's farewell address next Monday—an observance introduced by Mr. Hoar, rep., Mass., some years ago, when Senator Ingalls of Kansas was presiding officer.

Held in $100,000 Bail.

OUTLOOK IS BRIGHT

Numerous Encouraging Signs in Business This Week.

LARGE INCREASE IN INDUSTRIAL LINES

Every Branch of the Iron and Steel Trade Improved---Enormous Orders for Rails---Decrease in Business Failures.

New York, Feb. 20.—Dun's weekly review of the state of trade for the week just closing will, to-day, say: A large increase in the iron and steel business, on account of sales covering eight to twelve months' production of the largest works, a better demand for woolen goods, and slightly better for cottons, a gain which may prove lasting in boots and shoes, slightly better prices for wheat, cotton, wool and iron and a money market well adapted to encourage liberal purchases against future improvement in business, have rendered the past week more hopeful than any other since early in November. The heavy excess of merchandise exports over imports in January, the continuance of exchange rates showing that Europe is still largely indebted to this country on current account, and the prospect that congress will adjourn without any disturbing action, all have their favorable influence upon the money market and upon future undertakings. In nearly every branch, the great iron and steel industry feels the upward impulse supplied by purchases of steel rails, said to be half a million tons each from the Illinois Steel company and from the Carnegie company, besides some from other companies and about 100,000 to foreign purchasers. Nearly all the great railroads of the country have seized the opportunity to supply themselves with rails for one or two years' requirements. These enormous orders have advanced Bessemer pig at Pittsburg only 15 cents per ton, with Grey forge a shade lower there, and no considerable change appears in finished products. Although plates are unchanged in price with good demand, and nails are held at recent prices. Structual forms are steady, although 100,000 to 150,000 tons are said to be required in New York alone this year, and American tin plates are still selling at less than the price for foreign.

Other Industries Also Gaining.

Other industries are gaining also, though less conspicuously. The shipments of boots and shoes in February have been about 3,000 cases larger than in any previous year to date, and the increasing orders have enabled some works to start, although very many buyers still hesitate to pay the advanced prices demanded. But leather is well supported at the recent advance in prices by larger purchases, and is a shade stronger, while hides, although irregular and peculiarly sensitive at Chicago, are also a shade stronger in quotations. The recent decline and subsequent rise in raw cotton have not materially affected the manufacture, which is gradually getting rid of its accumulated surplus, though there seems to be but little increase as yet in the demand for goods. The sales of wool has sharply declined. The larger mills have acquired full supplies for the present and at any advance of prices they appear ready to drop out of the market. The demand for woolen goods does not seem to have expanded materially, and no quotable change in prices has appeared during the week. The heavy exports in January, following the unprecedented excess of exports over imports of merchandise in the four previous months, are largely due to the fact that neither the wheat nor the cotton markets have been materially controlled by speculation. The western receipts of wheat are still small. The western receipts of corn have been well nigh double last year's. Evidently this movement is displacing many million bushels of wheat in foreign consumption. Figures at this season do not count for much in cotton, though large supplies and diminishing domestic demand on account of the partial closing of many mills have materially influenced the market.

Volume of Business.

The volume of business is not accurately represented by clearing house exchanges owing to the extra holiday this year at some of the commercial centres. But the daily average appears to be about 3.4 per cent. smaller than last year. The railroad earnings begin to show improvement. The fuller returns for January now show a decrease of only 6.9 per cent. from last year and 6.6 per cent. from 1892. There is a noteworthy stubbornness in the stock market, which has declined but little, although foreign and domestic influences have favored decline, and the average of railroad stocks has fallen but 10 cents per share and trust stocks 50 cents. It is encouraging that failures are running smaller than a year ago. Liabilities in two weeks past have been $6,661,535, against $7,680,393 last year. Failures for the past week have been 303 in the United States, against 280 last year.

Death of a California Pioneer.

Newburg, N. Y., Feb. 20.—William Wait died here yesterday afternoon aged 78 years. He was one of the California forty-niners. Afterwards he invested his money in lands in Chicago and Lincoln, Neb., and leaves a fortune estimated at $200,000. A parcel of bonds and securities amounting to $100,000 was found in his room after his death. He was unmarried.

Last of "Unreconstructed Rebels."

Washington, Feb. 20.—Possibly the last of the "unreconstructed rebels" has been pardoned in the person of Col. D. E. Simms of Kentucky, the senate passing a bill to remove his political disabilities.

AGAINST CONCENTRATION OF TRADE.

Agitation is widespread in the west over the subject of department stores. Following the action of the Minnesota Legislature in ordering an investigation of the matter, a bill for a graduated tax or license on the branches of business in such stores was introduced in the Missouri Legislature. Similar action has been asked of the Illinois Legislature in a series of resolutions adopted by the Chicago Aldermen, which, after reciting what the Aldermen regard as the "evils" of this concentration of trade, ask that power be conferred upon cities to prohibit such stores or to establish a graduated sale of licenses to be paid by merchants vending more than one line of merchandise. Without awaiting legislative action, Ohio, Michigan and Wisconsin retail hardware men may try to see what can be done with a boycott. Organizations of these dealers have adopted resolutions requesting manufacturers and jobbers of hardware to confine their sales to the "legitimate" channels of trade.

DEATH OF JUDGE BEASLEY.

By the death of Chief Justice Mercer Beasley New Jersey loses one of its truly great men—great not because of his office, but by reason of his character and ability. Thirty-three years ago Gov. Joel Parker appointed him Chief Justice, and he was reappointed by Governors Randolph, McClellan and Abbett. Though a Democrat, the Chief Justice never made partisanship paramount to the interests of justice, and he was honored as an upright Judge.—New York Tribune.

PETITION TO CONGRESS.

Senator Sewell of New Jersey has presented a petition signed by William Lunger and fifty-two other residents of Plainfield, praying for the enactment of legislation prohibiting the sale of intoxicating liquors in the Capitol building; which was ordered to lie on the table.

A POLITICAL JOKE.

The name of John Kean, of Union county, is mentioned for Postmaster General. Well, the office is one that requires the services of a thorough business man, and Mr. Kean is just that kind of a man.—New Brunswick Home News.

That is the best political joke we have heard in many a day.

NO PRESS MONDAY.

The Daily Press will not be issued Monday on account of its being Washington's birthday anniversary. Several columns of readiug matter appropriate to the day are published in The Press today.

The following committees were appointed: Music, Horace J. Martin; Correspondence, J. M. Hawkins; Good Citizenship, Irving L. Brady; Evangelistic, Miss F. G. Hawkins; Inter-Society Visitation, Irving L. Brady.

THEATRICAL.

"This is the age of the man who laughs, and this is the man who makes you laugh."

This is the lettering on the lithograph of Pete Baker, our German dialect comedian who is to present his his earliest success, "Chris and Lena," at Music Hall for three nights and matinee next week, beginning Monday, February 22d. It rather makes one think of "This is the House that Jack built," etc., but there is a whole lot of truth in that short "catch line." It is certain that the public likes to laugh and it is just a certain that Pete Baker makes them laugh. As the New York Herald once said of him, "You must laugh. It is a matter of compulsion, not inclination."

The Grandest Remedy.

Mr. R. B. Greeve, merchant, of Chilhowie, Va., certifies that he had consumption, was given up to die, sought all medical treatment that money could procure, tried all cough remedies he could hear of, but got no relief; spent many nights sitting up in a chair; was induced to try Dr. King's New Discovery, and was cured by use of two bottles. For past three years has been attending to business, and says Dr. King's New Discovery is the grandest remedy ever made, as it has done so much for him and also for others in his community. Dr. King's New Discovery is guaranteed for Coughs, Colds and Consumption. It don't fail. Trial bottles free at L. W. Randolph's drug store. Regular size 50 cents and $1.00.

On Monday the country will celebrate the anniversary of the birth of George Washington, "the father of his country." While everybody knows what the holiday is, there are comparatively few that appreciate the fact. The magazines and newspapers are all publishing articles appropriate to the day, and all good citizens should give a little time to the realization of the event.

The recent plumbing ordinance has not found favor with all of the older plumbers of the city. They claim that by registering, men who know but little of the business are put on an equal footing with those who have spent years in studying the subject. They claim that under the new ordinance it is possible for almost anyone to go into the business without a long apprenticeship, as was customary in their time.

There has been another change in the police force. There is a new acting roundsman, new in appearance if not in name. Acting Boundsman Flynn has had his moustache shaved off and a great change it makes. Some people thought that the Board was going to have all the officers follow his example, but the mere imagination of some of the force without such an article is enough to assure all that such a step is not contemplated.

Rev J. B. L'Hommedion, of the Clinton avenue Baptist church, Newark, will preach in the Baptist church tomorrow forenoon

The rhetorical exercises in the schools were yesterday devoted to patriotism and especially to the life and acts of George Washington.

Miss Georgie Bogart began her dancing class in the rooms of the Social Club, Thursday evening, for the benefit of the members of the club.

Thirty pigeons were all that could be procured yesterday for a match-shoot and sweepstakes. C. P. Wilcox took first money. W. Chamberlain and W. Burtis divided first money in the second sweepstakes, and C. P. Wilcox and Charles Burtis divided second money in the second sweepstakes.

The Advance Club met last evening at the residence of Rev. Dr. A. R. S. Green, on the Boulevard, but owing to the banquet given by the Woman's Club there were not so many present as there usually is. The programme was on "The American People, (not the Indians) Their Life and Characteristics." "Hotel and Restaurant Life" was the topic allotted to one member, while another discoursed on "How We Fall in Love, and How We Marry." The programme was arranged by Rev. N. W. Cadwell.

The Woman's Club gave its annual dinner and social last evening in the hall of the Westfield Athletic Club. The vast auditorium was beautifully decorated with potted plants and draperies for the occasion. At eight o'clock an elaborate collation was served to the 200 ladies present, which was followed by after-dinner speeches. The principal speaker was Miss Annie Beaston, of Camden, N. J., whose topic was, "Neibel Lungen Leid." Miss Beaston was followed by the president of the club, Miss Emma L. Bridges, in a few choice remarks. Mrs. Celia Whitehead and Miss Cowperthwaite and others. There were ladies present from Elizabeth, Newark and Cranford. After the speech-making there was a social hour enjoyed by all.

The school trustees are somewhat puzzled over a matter of law relative to the matter of legal holidays. The law requires that the exercises of the Friday preceding the holiday shall be of a patriotic nature, consisting of the reading of the Declaration of Independence, etc., and inflicts a penalty, in case of such omission, of the revoking of the teachers' and principals' license and withholding the State school appropriation from the school so neglecting to comply with the act. This act was passed in 1894 and approved April 3, 1894, but in the category of holidays Lincoln's birthday is not mentioned, not having become a law until 1896. This year Lincoln's birthday came on Friday and the patriotic exercises are said to have been omitted and this is why some of the patriotic people of Westfield are puzzled. Does the same provision apply to Lincoln's birthday, that is what they would like to know. It is probable that the patriotic societies will secure some legal opinion on the matter.

The beautiful Stars and Stripes floated the Scotch Plains schoolhouse all yesterday and today. Closing exercises were held in the school yesterday afternoon, which included vocal and instrumental music, recitations and an address by the Principal. Included in the exercises was a most neatly executed flag drill by several scholars of the school and dumb-bell exercises. Miss Josie Marsh presided at the piano.

Except in a few places the roads have either frozen up or dried up, but two hay carters from the vicinity of Somerville came to grief near here last night while on their way to Newark. In turning out to pass a couple of light carriages, both run into mud almost hub deep. There was two hours hard work and a general quotation from the revised edition before the hay carters could proceed. In short the drivers were very mad.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Paff, Sr., was the scene of much enthusiasm yesterday afternoon, for it was the eighty-first anniversary of Robert Radford, father of Mrs Paff, his oldest child. The children, grandchildren and great-grandchildren gathered at the house and wished both Mr. and Mrs. Radford health and longevity in their trials and pleasures through life. Some of the children were so far away from home that it was impossible to get here in time for the anniversary, so they telegraphed most beautiful greetings to Mr. and Mrs. Radford. Among these was a most tender greeting from a daughter at Astoria, L. I. Two other daughters, Mrs. Thomas Mead and Mrs. Charles Westervelt, of Spring Valley, N. Y., were also unable to come. Mrs. Radford, who shared the honors of the anniversary with her husband, is 76 years of age. The couple were married in Montreal, Canada, fifty-two years ago next month. They settled in Plainfield at the close of the war in 1865, and purchased from the late Augustus Dunham the property on West Front street adjoining the entrance to Music Hall. Here the family lived for about sixteen years, and later they took up their residence in Scotch Plains, where they remained for some seven months and then they took up their residence again in Plainfield, residing on West Front street at the corner of Elmwood place. May it be said to their credit both Mr. and Mrs. Radford are in remarkably good health, and at the anniversary yesterday they were showered with unmistakable tokens of love and esteem.

WASHINGTON LORE.

STORIES ABOUT THE GREAT GENERAL AND PRESIDENT.

His Great Love and Respect for His Mother—How the Observance of His Birthday Originated—Washington's Slaves—Other Stories of Interest.

Late in the year 1781, on the return of the combined armies from Yorktown, the mother of Washington was permitted again to see and embrace her illustrious son, the first time in almost seven years. As soon as he had dismounted, in the midst of a numerous and brilliant suite, after reaching Fredericksburg, he sent to apprize her of his arrival, and to know when it would be her pleasure to receive him. No pageantry of war proclaimed his coming, no trumpets sounded, no banners waved. Alone and on foot, the general-in-chief of the combined armies of France and America, the deliverer of his country, the hero of the age, repaired to pay his humble duty to her whom he venerated as the author of his being—the founder of his fortunes and his fame; for full well he knew that the matron was made of sterner stuff than to be moved by all the pride that glory ever gave, and all "the pomp and circumstances" of power.

WASHINGTON'S LAST PORTRAIT.

She was alone, her aged hands employed in the works of domestic industry, when the good news was announced, and it was further told, that the victor-chief was in waiting at the threshold. She bid him welcome by a warm embrace, and by the well remembered and endearing name of George—the familiar name of his childhood; she inquired as to his health, remarked the lines which mighty cares and toils had made in his countenance, spoke much of old times and old friends but of his glory not one word.

Meantime, in the village of Fredericksburg, all was joy and revelry; the town was crowded with the officers of the French and American armies, and with gentlemen for many miles around, who hastened to welcome the conquerors of Cornwallis. The citizens got up a splendid ball, to which the matron was specially invited. She observed, that although her dancing days were pretty well over, she could feel happy in contributing to the general festivity, and consented to attend.

The foreign officers were anxious to see the mother of their chief. They had heard indistinct rumors touching her remarkable life and character, but forming their judgments from European examples, they were prepared to expect in the mother, the glitter and show which would have been attached to the parents of the great, in the countries of the old world. How were they surprised, when leaning on the arm of her son, she entered the room, dressed in the very plain, yet becoming garb, worn by the Virginia lady of the old time. Her address always dignified and imposing, was courteous, though reserved. She perceived the complimentary attentions which were paid to her without evincing the slightest elevation, and at an early hour, wishing the company much enjoyment of their pleasures, observed, that it was high time for old folks to be in bed, and retired, leaning as before on the arm of her son.

WASHINGTON'S HORSEMANSHIP.

How He Broke the Temper and the Heart of a Thoroughbred.

The blooded horse was the Virginian favorite of those days as well as these. Washington's mother, fond of the animal to which her deceased husband had been particularly attached, had preserved the race in its greatest purity, and at the time of our story possessed several young horses of superior promise.

One there was, a sorrel, of a fierce and ungovernable nature, and resisted all attempts to subject him to the rein. He had reached his fullest size and vigor, unconscious of a rider; he ranged free in the air, which he snuffed in triumph, tossing his mane to the winds, and spurning the earth in the pride of his freedom. It was a matter of common remark, that a man never would be found hardy enough to back and ride this vicious horse. Several had essayed, but deterred by the fury of the animal, they had desisted from their attempts, and the steed remined unbroken.

The young Washington proposed to his companions that if they would assist him in confining the steed, he would endeavor to curb this terror of the parish. Accordingly, early the ensuing morning, the associates decoyed the horse into an inclosure, where they secured him, and forced a bit into his mouth. Bold, vigorous, and young, the daring youth sprang to his unenvied seat, and bidding his comrades remove their tackle, the indignant horse rushed to the plain.

As if disdaining his burden, he at first attempted to fly, but soon felt the power of an arm which could have tamed his Arab grandsires, in their wildest course on their native deserts. The struggle now became terrific to the beholders, who almost wished that they had not joined in an enterprise so likely to be fatal to their daring associate. But the youthful hero clung to the furious steed, till centaur-like he appeared to make part of the animal itself. Long was the conflict, and the fear of his associates became more relieved as, with matchless skill the rider preserved his seat, and with unyielding force controlled the courser's rage, when the gallant horse, summoning all his powers to one mighty effort, reared and plunged with tremendous violence, burst his noble heart, and died in an instant.

REVOLUTIONARY SECRET SERVICE.

Rivington, the King's Printer, Furnished Information to Washington.

Of all the mysteries that occurred in the American Revolution, the employment of Rivington, editor of the Royal Gazette, in the secret service of the American commander is the most astounding.

James Rivington was a native of London, well educated, and of pleasing deportment. He came to America in the year 1760, and established a bookstore in Philadelphia. The following year he opened one near the foot of Wall street, in New York, where he established a paper called the Royal Gazetteer in 1773. It was afterwards entitled the Royal Gazette. He took the ministerial side in politics when the Revolution broke out, and became very obnoxious to the Republicans, whom he abused without stint. In the autumn of 1775, a company of Connecticut light-horse, led by Captain Isaac Sears of New York, entered the city at noonday, proceeded to the Rivington's printing establishment, placed a guard with fixed bayonets around it, put all his types into bags, destroyed his press and other apparatus, and then in the same order, cheered by the shouts of the pleased populace, and the tune of Yankee Doodle, left the city. Rivington then went to England. When, the following year, the British took posession of New York, Rivington returned. In October, 1777, he was appointed "king's printer" in that city, and resumed the publication of his paper, semi-weekly.

The time that this remarkable connection took place is of course unknown. There is much probability that it may have commenced as early as the closing of the campaign of 1776, as it is known that about that period Robert Morris borrowed of a Quaker five hundred guineas in gold for the secret service of Washington's army, and that intelligence of vital and vast importance was obtained from the disbursement of the Quaker loan.

WASHINGTON BEING NOTIFIED OF HIS ELECTION.

The wealthy Quaker said to Morris: "How can I, friend Robert, who am a man of peace, lend thee money for the purposes of war? Friend George is, I believe, a good man and fighting in a good cause; but I am opposed to fighting of any sort." Morris, however, soon managed to quiet old broadbrim's scruples; the gold was dug up from his garden and handed over to the commander-in-chief, whose application of it to the secret service produced the happiest effects upon the cause of the Revolution in that critical period of our destiny.

Rivington proved faithful to his bargain, and often would intelligence of great importance, gleaned in convivial moments at Sir William Howe's or Sir Henry Clinton's table, be in the American camp before the convivialists had slept off the effects of their wine.

The busines of the secret service was so well managed that even a suspicion never arose as to the medium through which intelligence of vast importance was continually being received in the American camp from the very headquarters of the British army; and, had suspicion arose, the king's printer would probably have been the last man suspected, for during the whole of his connection with the secret service his Royal Gazette literally piled abuse of every sort upon the American general and the cause of America.

Rivington's method of conveying intelligence to Washington was ingenious. He published books of various kinds, and by means of these he carried on his treasonable correspondence. He wrote his secret billets upon thin paper, and bound them in the cover of the book, which he always managed to sell to those spies of Washington, who were constantly visiting New York, and who, he knew, would carry the volumes directly to the headquarters of the army. The men employed in this special service were ignorant of the peculiar nature of it.

WASHINGTON'S BIRTHDAY.

The Observance of the Anniversary Began Immediately After the Revolution.

The birth-night ball was instituted at the close of the Revolutionary war and its first celebration was held in Alexandria. Celebrations of the birth-night soon became general in all the towns and cities, the twenty-second of February, like the fourth of July, being considered a national festival, while the peculiarity attending the former was, that its parade and ceremonies always closed with the birth-night ball. In the larger cities, where public balls were customary, the birth-night, in the olden times, as now, was the gala assembly of the season. It was attended by all the beauty and fashion, and at the seat of government, by the foreign ambassadors, and by strangers of distinction. The first president always attended on the birth-night. The etiquette was, not to open the ball until the arrival of him in whose honor it was given; but so remarkable was the punctuality of Washington in all his engagements, whether for business or pleasure, that he was never waited for a moment in appointments for either. Among the brilliant illustrations of a birth-night of five-and-thirty years ago, the most unique and imposing was the groups of young and beautiful ladies, wearing in their hair bandeaux or scrolls, having embroidered thereon, in language both ancient and modern, the motto of "Long live the president!"

THE STEWART PORTRAIT.

The French officers who served in America during the Revolution, appear to have celebrated the birthday of Washington immediately after the war. This fact is indicated by the following paragraph in a letter written by Washington to the Count de Rochambeau, in the spring of 1784. He says, "The flattering distinction paid to the anniversary of my birthday, is an honor for which I dare not attempt to express my gratitude. I confide in your excellency's sensibility to interpret my feelings for this, and for the obliging manner in which you are pleased to announce it."

The birthday of Washington was early celebrated among the masses of the people. They had been accustomed to do honor to the birthday of King George, on the fourth of June; now they more delighted to do honor to a nobler George, on the twenty-second of February. Popular songs often enliven the occasion, and expressed the sentiments of the people. One of these, written about the close of the last century, is preserved, from which these stanzas are quoted as a specimen of its spirit:

"Come boys, close the windows and make a good fire,
Wife, children, sit snug all around:
'Tis the day that gave birth to our country's blessed sire.
Then let it with pleasure be crowned.
Dear wife, bring your wine, and, in spite of hard times,
On this day at least we'll be merry:
Come fill every glass till it pours o'er
the brim,
If not with Madeira—then Sherry.

WASHINGTON'S SLAVES.

A Recital Which Sounds Strange Enough Now.

A member of Washington's family, writing in 1826, gives the following account of the slaves who belonged to the General, who followed, in that respect, the practice of his time. It should be borne in mind that this account was written nearly forty years before Abraham Lincoln signed the Emancipation Proclamation. It reads strangely enough in these closing years of the nineteenth century:

As a master of slaves, General Washington was consistent, as in every other relation of his meritorious life. They were comfortably lodged, fed, and clothed; required to do a full and fair share of duty; well cared for in sickness and old age, and kept in strict and proper discipline. These, we humbly conceive, comprise all the charities of slavery. To his old servants, where long and faithful services rendered them worthy of attachment and esteem, he was most kind. His huntsmen and Revolutionary attendant, Will Lee, commonly called Billy, was especially provided for, and survived his master a good many years. Will had been a stout active man, and a famous horseman, but, from accident, was a cripple for many years before his death, which occurred at a very advanced age. This ancient follower, both in the chase and war, formed a most interesting relic of the chief, and received considerable largesses from the numerous visitors to Mount Vernon. The slaves were left to be emancipated at the death of Mrs. Washington; but it was found necessary (for prudential reasons) to give them their freedom in one year after the general's decease. Although many of them, with a view to their liberation, had been instructed in mechanic trades, yet they succeeded very badly as freemen; so true is the axiom, "that hour which makes man a slave, takes half his worth away."

DID WASHINGTON SWEAR?

General Scott, of Revolutionary Fame, Says that He Did.

Charles Scott was a native of Cumberland county, in Virginia. He raised the first company of volunteers in that state, south of the James river, that actually entered into the continental service. So much was he appreciated that, in 1777, the shire town of Powhatan county was named in honor of him. Congress appointed him a brigadier in the continental army on the first of April, 1777. He served with distinction during the war, and at its termination he went to Kentucky. He settled in Woodford county, in that state, in 1785. He was with St. Clair at his defeat in 1791; and in 1794 he commanded a portion of Wayne's army at the battle of the Fallen Timber. He was governor of Kentucky form 1808 to 1812.

General Scott had a most inveterate habit of swearing; whether in private or public society, on the farm, or the field of battle, every other word was an oath. On the night preceding the battle of Princeton, Scott received an order from the commander-in-chief in person to defend a bridge to the last extremity. "To the last man, your excellency," replied Scott; and forgetting the presence of his chief, accompanied the words with tremendous oaths. The general, as may be well supposed, had but little time, on that eventful evening, to notice or chide this want of decorum in his brave and well-tried soldier. After the war, a friend of the gallant general, anxious to reform his evil habits, asked him whether it was possible that the man so much beloved, the admired Washington, ever swore? Scott reflected for a moment, and then exclaimed, "Yes, once. It was at Monmouth, and on a day that would have made any man swear. Yes, sir, he swore on that day, till the leaves shook on the trees, charming, delightful. Never have I enjoyed such swearing before, or since. Sir, on that ever-memorable day he swore like an angel from Heaven." The reformer abandoned the general in despair.

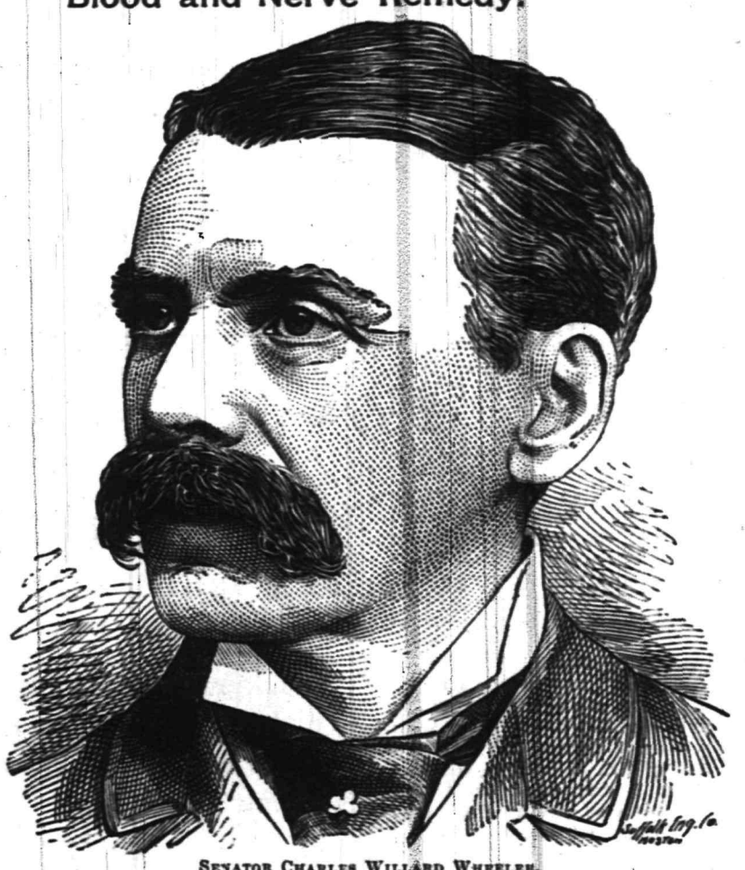
SENATOR WHEELER SPEAKS.

Nearly Broken Down in Health—Dr. Greene's Nervura Saved Him.

Spring Is the Best Time of Year to Get Well. Everybody Needs Now This Grandest of Spring Medicines, Dr. Greene's Nervura Blood and Nerve Remedy.



SENATOR CHARLES WILLARD WHEELER.

Spring is the best time to get well. People need a spring medicine to purify the blood and strengthen the nerves. The best spring medicine the world has ever known is Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy. It is the people's great remedy, the sure cure on which the people know they can always depend to get back their lost health, the medicine which makes the sick well, and keeps the system in sound and perfect strength and vigor. It is the remedy above all others to take now, for thousands upon thousands of people always use it during the spring months to get their systems in perfect condition, and pure blood, strong nerves and robust and vigorous health in all cases follow its use.

Hon. C. W. Wheeler of Irasburgh, Vt., widely known and highly honored, who has been Representative in the Vermont Legislature, Senator, and for 16 years Treasurer of Irasburgh, pays the highest tribute to the wonderful curative powers of Dr. Greene's Nervura. He says:—"I have been for about eight years in a condition which seemed to me to be approaching nervous breaking down, or nervous prostration. I used to be able to work night and day almost, but found my strength began to be less. I heeded the note of alarm and tried to find re-inforcement in Dr. Greene's Nervura. Before I began to take Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy, I had a very bad headache twice a week, which used me up entirely, so that I could not work at all, but since I began the use of the Nervura, I have not had them at all. If I felt them coming on, a dose of Dr. Greene's Nervura drove them entirely away. I think it has been very beneficial to me in my nervous condition. That sore feeling which I had in my head (which always came on by overwork and prostrated me) has not appeared at all since I took Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy." Get Dr. Greene's Nervura now, and use it this spring. Dr. Greene's Cathartic Pills are the most perfect pills for biliousness and constipation. Little, sugar-coated and sure. Dr. Greene, 35 West 14th St., New York City, the most successful physician in curing diseases, can be consulted free, in person or by letter.

THE LATE JUSTICE BEASLEY.

Brief Sketch of a Brilliant and Famous Career Just Closed.

Trenton, Feb. 20.—Chief Justice Mercer Beasley of the supreme court of New Jersey, who died of bronchial pneumonia yesterday, was born in Mercer county, N. J., in 1815. His father was Rev. Frederick Beasley, for many years president of the University of Pennsylvania. His mother was Maria Williamson, daughter of Matthias Williamson, who was a brother of ex-Gov. Isaac Williamson. He entered and remained in the junior class of Princeton College when but a lad for one year after which he came to Trenton to study with his father, at the same time reading law under the tutelage of Samuel L. Southard, and later in the office of ex-chancellor Isaac H. Williamson at Elizabeth. He was admitted to practice at the September term of the supreme court in 1833, and became a counsellor in February, 1842. As a young man at the bar he was noted as a special pleader and famous for his accuracy and discernment. Upon his elevation to the bench the advocates lost from among their number one of the brightest in the state and the judiciary gained a member whose name is now known in all the courts of the land, who was excelled in knowledge of the law by few, if any, of the eminent jurists of America, and whose decisions are quoted before foreign as well as home tribunals. Mr. Beasley in his young days served as city solicitor of Trenton when that office paid only $15 a year. In 1851, he was the whig candidate for mayor of Trenton, but was defeated by William Napton, democrat. In 1864 he was appointed by Governor Parker, chief justice of the supreme court. He was reappointed by Gov. Randolph in 1871 by Gov. McClelland in 1878, and by Gov. Abbeet in 1885 and 1892. In politics he was a democrat. His term would have expired March 8, 1899.

GREATER NEW YORK CHARTER.

Will Not Be Made Public Until Next Monday Night.

Albany, Feb. 20.—The Greater New York charter was delivered last evening to deputy clerk Charles A. Ball of the senate and deputy clerk William L. Hawley of the assembly. The charter was brought here by Geo. M. Pinney, secretary of the Greater New York commission and ex-mayor Thos. F. Gilroy, both members of the commission. The charter and the report of the commission accompanying the charter will not be made public until it is presented to the legislature on Monday night.

Woman Fire Bug's Sanity Doubted.

Boston, Feb. 20.—Lulu Mullins, who has confessed to setting the mysterious fires at 994 Tremont street on Wednesday, was arraigned in the Roxbury municipal court. She pleaded guilty and was held in $1,000 for the superior criminal court the first Monday in March. It was her intention to have waived examination and she did not seem to understand what kind of a plea she was making. Judge Bolster says the case is a peculiar one and as there are grounds for a belief that she may not at all times be mentally sound, she will be examined by a specialist as to her mental condition.

Naval Appropriation Bill.

Washington, Feb. 20.—The naval affairs committee has completed the naval appropriation bill, and Chairman Boutelle will probably report it to the house to-day. The increase recommended is two vessels—one battleship and one composite sailing ship. The cost of the first named vessel is limited to $3,750,000, including hull, machinery and armor. The cost of the sailing vessel, which is for the use of the naval academy, is placed at $250,000. For armament and armor for vessels authorized from 1890 to and including 1896 the sum of $7,720,796 is recommended.

Big Purchase of C. H. & H. Bonds.

Boston, Feb. 20.—The Boston News Bureau says: Messrs. Kidder, Peadody & Co., R. L. Day & Co. and Estabrook & Co. have bought of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad company a large block of bonds, the proceeds of which will clear up the floating debt of the whole system. We understand that in the block of bonds sold to the Boston bankers are the $5,000,000 New York & New England consolidated 5 per cent. bonds, stamped with the New York & New Haven's guarantee.

AUTONOMY TO CRETE

British Plan for Ending the Greco-Turkish Trouble.

A GREEK PRINCE TO GOVERN

King George Appeals for a Great National Loan — War Preparations Continue — Reported That Russia May Call a Halt.

Constantinople, Feb. 20.—The report that Lord Salisbury, the British prime minister, has sent a circular note to the powers favoring the granting of autonomy to Crete, with a prince of Greece to administer the affairs of the island, is confirmed.

Athens, Feb. 20.—A dispatch from Canea states that three of the great powers are in favor of a union between Crete and Greece. It is reported that King George will appeal to the Hellenic race for a great national loan to meet the expenses of the military and naval preparations. The report that a British ironclad prevented the steamer Junon from debarking provisions intended for the use of the Greek troops in Crete is confirmed and has caused the greatest indignation throughout Greece. The military preparations on the part of Greece continue. Two more classes of the reserves have been called out. The king openly favors resistance to the demands of the great powers.

Plan of the Powers.

London, Feb. 20.—In the house of commons George N. Curzon, under foreign secretary, said in answer to questions that the porte had not announced any intention to send troops to Crete. The general advice of the powers to Turkey was to abstain from precipitate action. Detachments of marines from the foreign warships, Mr. Curzon said, were now occupying Canea, Sitia and Retimo and it was probable that they would soon occupy the other Cretan ports. In addition to this, the British, Russian and Italian consuls had gone to Selino for the purpose of preventing further outrages there and to relieve the suffering Moslem families. James Lowther, conservative member for the Thanet division of Kent, asked what steps had been taken to relieve the Moslems in the interior. Mr. Curzon replied that the powers were doing all that they possibly could to relieve them.

Students and Paris Police Clash.

Paris, Feb. 20.—Fifteen hundred students took part last night in a philo-Greek procession, which ended in a conflict with the gendarmes. The procession, which was held at a late hour, was a disorderly one and when the gendarmes attempted to make the students behave themselves a fight occurred in which two of the gendarmes were wounded. Eighty of the students were arrested.

Russia May Call a Halt.

St. Petersburg, Feb. 20.—Russia, it is said, is prepared to bring about the forcible expulsion of the Greek torpedo flotilla from Cretan waters, the disarmament of the Greek troops in Crete, and a blockade of the Greek coasts if the Hellenic government persists in its imprudent attitude. If Greece goes to war with Turkey she will be left to fight her battles alone.

Accused of Discourtesy.

New York, Feb. 20.—Police Commissioner Roosevelt has received the following communication from Postmaster Dayton: "I am in receipt of your letter of the 18th reporting the lack of proper courtesy on the part of letter carrier No. 1,626, in refusing to remove his uniform cap on entering the trial room of your department while official proceedings were pending. I regret such an act of disrespect on his part. He will be cautioned against its repetition." The letter carrier contended that his cap was part of his uniform. He refused to remove his cap when delivering a parcel to the commissioner in the trial room at police headquarters.

Princeton, N. J., Feb. 20.—C. H. Kilpatrick, '99, one of Princeton's crack athletes and the world's champion half mile runner, has decided to enter the ranks of the professionals. The events will be of 600, 880 and 1,000 yards respectively. The first race will take place in England about May 1, another in Ireland and the last in Scotland.

HAS 36,000 EYES.

Tremendous Visual Powers of the Deadly Enemy of the Mosquito.

Argus, whom mythology alleged to have a hundred eyes, has been entirely eclipsed in this respect by a creature discovered by modern scientists. This is the common dragon fly or mosquito hawk.

A question which puzzles scientists is whether the insect sees as many images of the objects as he has eyes or faces.

Up to a certain point these multitudinous eyes may be compared to windows fitted with innumerable panes of glass. The panes, however, are of different forms. Some, like those of the bee and ant, are six-sided, suggestive of the patterns so common in Gothic architecture. Some again are diamond-shaped, and others square.

His specialty is the mosquito. Indeed, he has so succeeded in terrorizing the little pests that his lifeless form still fills them with alarm. In localities where mesquitoes are troublesome, an effectual mode of ridding the place of them consists in suspending a dead dragon fly from the ceiling by a piece of thread. Those who have tried it say it has never been known to fail.—New York Journal.

"Is that report true about the cashier of the Confidence Bank committing suicide?"

"It is, poor fellow. He was caught when he had embezzled only $1,200. The disgrace was more than he could bear."—Indianapolis Journal.

Nerve Strain—"It must be a good deal of a strain to run a trolley-car," said the talkative man on the platform.

"You bet it is," said the motorman. "W'y, when I go along fer two or t'ree weeks without runnin' over anybody I git so nervous I can't eat nor sleep."—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Priscilla—Jack is the oddest fellow. He took me driving yesterday, and when we were seven miles from home he said if I wouldn't promise to marry him he'd make me get out and walk back.

Penelope—Did you walk back?

Priscilla—No, but the horse did.

TRYING IT ON THE TYPEWRITER.

Jo Jefferson's Little Scheme to Try How His Book Would Work.

A young Chicago matron who presides over a charming home on the north side told me a characteristic story about Joseph Jefferson the other evening which deserves to be embalmed in print.

"Several years ago," said she, "when Mr. Jefferson was preparing his autobiography he was obliged to do a great deal of the work while on tour. A publishing house with which I was connected at one time recommended me to him as an amanuensis who had considerable experience in the preparation of manuscript for publication and I joined the actor in St. Louis.

"Mr. Jefferson would spend several hours every night after the play in making notes of what he wanted to say. The next afternoon he would dictate to me. Usually he would bring in a great collection of memoranda jotted down on envelopes and scraps of paper, and sometimes he would appear with a newspaper whose margins would be literally covered with queer figures and hen-tracks. Walking up and down the floor, he would dictate to me slowly in that cracked Rip Van-Winkle voice of his and I could follow him easily on the typewriter.

One day when we met as usual for work at the Southern Hotel he seemed to have prepared more elaborate notes than usual, and instead of walking about the room he sat down, quite a distance away from me, and began to dictate the chapter treating of his closing Australian experiences. There was a pathetic quiver in his voice as he spoke of the many happy days he had spent in that far-away land, among comparative strangers, and added that he hoped his book would come to them as a sort of handclasp between friends who would never meet again in this life.

"It was very affecting. My eyes grew misty and I had to stop writing. Suddenly I felt a kindly hand on my head and Mr. Jefferson's voice said: "That's what I wanted. Cry all you want to, my girl. I cried myself last night when I wrote that, but I was afraid no one else would. I guess it will do.'"—Chicago Times-Herald.

YOU WOULDN'T THINK OF IT.

The Fierceness With Which Ordinarily Inoffensive Animals Can Fight.

You would hardly believe that moles, clumsy, almost blind, little beasts as they are, become perfect demons when they quarrel. No one knows what they quarerl about, but if they once start fighting one has to die. They will keep on in the presence of any number of spectators, hanging on to one another like bulldogs, and burying their enormously strong jaws and teeth in one another's flesh.

Hedgehogs, another type of the quiet, inoffensive animal, not only fight, but always to the death, and when one is killed the other generally devours him.

Hares, on the other hand, are proverbially the most timid of creatures. Yet they can fight. A fight between two hares is a ludicrous sight, as they skip and jump over one another. But a blow from the hind leg of a hare is no joke to his opponent.

Amongst birds, robins are the most pugnacious. More than one case could be quoted of two cock-robins so frantically set on killing one another as to have allowed themselves to be picked up in the hands of a looker-on, and there have lain, with beak and claws deep buried in one another's plumage.—Answers.

Why She Takes His Name.

The practice of a woman changing her name on marriage originated from a Roman custom, and came into use after the Roman occupation, says a writer in "The Commercial Tribune." Thus, Julia and Octavia, married to Pompey and Cicero, were called by the Romans Julia of Pompey, Octavia of Cicero, and in later times women in most European countries signed their names in the same way, but omitted the "of." On the other hand, at the beginning of the seventeenth century, the usage seems doubtful, since we find Catherine Barr so signing herself after she had twice married, and we always hear of Lady Jane Grey (not Dudley), Arabella Stuart (not Seymour), etc.

The custom, however, is not universal. In Spain and Portugal married women do not take the names of their husbands, but continue to be known by their own. In many parts of the United States a woman never relinquishes her maiden name, and is called by it as often as by that of her husband. Even in the rural parts of England one often finds a married woman called by her maiden name, and in country districts of Scotland it is sometimes found that both names are used. In many parts of France and Belgium the husband's and wife's names are used together when either of them is mentioned.—New York Tribune.

The Printer's Translation.

A gentleman once delivered an address which he sent to the printers. He had used the well-known phrase "No cross, no crown." The gentleman's handwriting not being legible the printer mistook the phrase, and on the address appearing in print, to the author's disgust, it read, "No cows, no cream."—Twinkles.

A RAT OF TASTE AND TALENT.

The Tale of the Tail of a Rat and the Manner in Which Tail Obtained the Living.

A story is told of a recently deceased rat who obtained oil from a narrow-necked bottle by dipping his tail therein. Then he licked the oil from his long and well-oiled tail, and waxed fat. The truth of the story is certified by reputable men.

Tht rat had the misfortune to be born in a machine shop, where only metal was used, and there was, consequently little good food for his kind.

It happened that the men always kept a bottle of oil uncorked, and fastened by a wire to a certain part of the machinery. It was in constant use. One evening the thoughtful rat betook himself to a study of this bottle.

Could he not get at the oil? He had a tail—what use was he making of it? This tail was an opportunity, and he had been wasting it, but now he could use it.

Immediately he inserted the long tail as far as it would go into the narrow neck of the bottle, and soaked it thoroughly in oil. Then he withdrew it, and licked the oil carefully off from it. After that he repeated the same process as often as he felt hungry.

One day he was taking a copious meal of oil when he realized that he had forgotten his hereditary caution, and that a man was watching him. The man showed no sign of attacking him, but rather a pleased curiosity, and the rat therefore stayed. The result of this meeting was that in time the rat got into the habit of taking his meals in the presence of the workmen, and that to have killed so clever a creature would have been regarded as a crime. He led a happy life, and died of oil and years.—New York Journal.

TO PROHIBIT FOOTBINDING.

It is Strongly Denounced by Some of the Finest Scholars in China.

Women's craving for a small foot has run mad in China, and they willingly submit themselves to tortures as horrible as any to which prisoners in the jails are subjected rather than be exposed to ridicule because their feet are large.

Now the custom is assailed from a powerful source—from a group of progressive scholars whom the Chinese people hold in the greatest reverence. The anti-foot binding agitation, which is now spreading all over China, was recently started by a prominent member of the Chinese literati in Suifu, which is a great city of Szechuan.

The leader of the movement is Chon, a literary graduate and a scholar of wealth and influence. While the literary examinations were being held at Suifu recently, every one was amazed at the appearance of large posters on all the dead walls containing an appeal to educated Chinese to abandon the torture of their young daughters by foot-binding.

It contained many quotations from Confucius, but its main point was directed to the edict of Emperor Shun Chih in 1662 pronouncing the binding of girls' feet to be illegal. Chon declared that this edict had been obeyed for a time, and then ignored.

He describes the tortures which young Chinese girls of the better class are forced to endure, and the misery and tears that are their portion for months and years. Even the worst convicts, he says, are never called upon to endure what a foolish custom imposes upon the tender frame of young girls, who are beloved by their fathers.—New York Journal.

GROOM FROM DIXEY LAND

A MARYLANDER TAKES A PLAINFIELD BELLE FOR A WIFE.

The Wedding Solemnized in Grace P. E. Church Yesterday Afternoon—Informal Reception at the Bride's Home

It was a charming wedding that was witnessed at Grace P. E. church yesterday afternoon at 4 o'clock, when Miss Ametia Rogers Dryden, third daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Meredith Dryden, of West Seventh street, and William Popplein Hall, son of Captain Hall, of Baltimore, were united in marriage by Rev. C. M. Dunham, of Metuchen, assisted by Rev. E. M. Rodman, rector of the church.

The edifice was thronged with Plainfield's society people, also a large number from Baltimore, who were relatives and friends of the bride and groom. The decorations were chiefly arranged about the chancel, and they consisted of beautiful palms and roses in profusion.

Previous to the arrival of the bridal party, Mrs. Freeman, organist, rendered the following selections: "Roude des Archers," Nuyens; "Nuptial Grand March," D'Haenens; "Scherzo," Damm; "Sortie," Wely; "Festal March," Clark; "Sortie," Leybach; "Overtoire," Leybach.

While the Lohengrin wedding march was being played, the bride entered the church accompanied by her father, who gave her away. They were met at the altar by the groom and the best man, Edwin L. Hall, brother of the groom, and the officiating clergymen. The bride was charming in a light brown cloth travelling gown trimmed with braid, and she was unattended with the customary bridemaid.

After the ceremony, which was in accordance with the Episcopal church, the bridal party retired from the church while the Mendelssohn wedding march was being rendered. As the bride and groom were passing down the aisle they bowed graciously to their admiring friends.

An informal reception followed at the home of the bride, which was attended by only the relatives and near friends of the two families. After congratulations and a superb wedding supper, the bride and groom left for an extended tour. On their return they will reside at St. Michaels, Talbot county, Maryland, where the groom has a country-seat.

They were the recipients of costly and useful presents, and among them was a branch of an orange tree bearing two large oranges. Each orange was beautiful incribed with the initials of the contracting parties.

The ushers were Alfred C. Hall, Frank M. Hall, brothers of groom, Robert W. Dryden and Meredith Dryden, brothers of the bride.

The gift of the groom to the bride was a diamond tira, and he presented the ushers with diamond scarf pins.

BIBLE IN THE CRUCIBLE.

Rev. Cornelius Schenck, Ph.D., Refers to Recent Attacks on its Infallibility.

"The Bible in the Crucible" is the subject of a series of sermons, the first of which Rev. Cornelius Schenck, Ph.D., preached in the Trinity Reformed church, Sunday evening. He took his text from Hebrews first chapter, first and second verses. He referred to the recent criticisms of the Bible, especially those of Dr. Abbott, and said that the believers in the book need have no fear, for the Bible had been placed in the crucible of higher investigation and criticism and it had always come out unharmed, as it would this time. He spoke of the difference between revelation and inspiration and said that it was in this that Dr. Abbott was careless.

Revelation he defined as any species of knowledge of which God was the source or the author. There are two definitions of revelation, he said, the natural or unwritten revelation which is not infallible as it is affected by sin, and the more restrictive meaning, the written revelation, the Bible, which is of greater certainty and free from erroneous elements. Inspiration, he said, was the preservation of the truth from error. There is no such thing as progressive inspiration. Some say that the older writers in the Bible were partially inspired. That lays the book open to the entering wedge of error. All the writers in the Bible have not both revelation and inspiration.

Lecture by Rev. Father Kelly.

Rev. Charles J. Kelly, of Hoboken, will lecture in St. Mary's church, Sunday evening, March 14th, on "Christ, the Beloved." The lecture will be interspersed with stereopticon views. There will also be some fine singing. What will tend to make the lecture more interesting is the fact that Father Kelly is a Plainfielder by birth and one of the most eloquent speakers in the diocese of Newark.

Says That the Organization Owes Allegiance Only to God and the Country—Its Influence is Felt at Washington

The members of the J. O. U. A. M. of this city and vicinity attended divine service at the Park Avenue Baptist church last Sunday evening, at which time the pastor, Rev. J. W. Richardson, delivered a patriotic discourse. He said that he was glad to see an organization before him that owed allegiance to God only and His beautiful country. He considered that it had been raised providentially by God for a great work. Of course, the members must expect to be criticised, but, he said, you are on God's side and the side of humanity, and it is the duty of every member to stand true. During the past twenty-six years the order has increased at the rate of 1,000 a year, and the present membership is between 26,000 and 28,000. At Washington there are twenty-eight Congressmen and eight Senators who are members of the organization. The grand work of your organization has just commenced.

We sneer at Germany and England with her kings and queens, but we have railroad, cattle and sugar kings, and we feel the iron heel of trusts and monopolies. We talk of liberty and patriotism when in fact we wear the political collar and vote as the machine direct. Has the time come when trade-unions is greater than the Constitution of the United States? the speaker said; if it is we are certainly not American.

CONCERT BY REAL TALENT.

GIVEN FOR BENEFIT OF A SCHOOL.

All of the Selections Given in a Manner to Win Appreciation.

The many other attractions and the unpromising weather combined to keep many from the concert at the North Plainfield Public School, but it was a very enjoyable affair, however, and the audience, which nearly filled the room, realized the fact. The concert was given by professional talent, who kindly contributed their services. The concert was for the benefit of the piano fund, and a good sum was realized.

The opening selection on the programme was a reading by Maxwell Bingham. It was entitled "Lights Out." It was really funny and he gave it in a way that added much to the effect. "A Modern Martyr" was the title of his encore. His other selection, "McGrath's Trial," was of a different order. He gave it with a dramatic skill of a high order and the silence that was kept during his selections was a tribute to his excellence. Hermann Hoveman, the baritone, had a voice of great range and power that he used very effectively in the songs he selected. He was accompanied by Richard Menzel. Mr. Menzel gave two compositions of Chopin, which were rendered in an artistic manner. W. Paulding Denike, the violoncellist, rendered his part of the programme with credit and was well received by the audience. Master Seth Bingham, brother of the reader, sang several songs. His sweet contralto voice greatly pleased his hearers.

The participants in the concert were introduced by a few words from S. St John McCutchen, of the Board of Education.

NOT ON THE SALOON SIDE

Rev. Dr. Yerkes Wants Council Not to Grant Licenses.

The sermon preached by Rev Dr. Yerkes, at the First Baptist church last Sunday morning, was along the line of temperance and toward the latter part of the discourse the doctor spoke very plainly regarding the granting of the licenses in this city by the City Council. He said that he felt as though he must speak on the subject so that all responsibility might be placed just where it belongs. He wanted the people to know that the granting of the licenses, if such should be done, was not in accordance with the wish or desire on his part or the thousands of people in the city who discountenance such action. He hoped that the Councilmen would act in this matter as conscientiously as possible, knowing that God was never on the side of the saloon.

A Practical Gift to the Hospital.

W. L. Saunders has just presented to Muhlenberg Hospital a reference library for the use of the medical staff and the Training School for Nurses. The gift comprises about thirty-five valuable and mostly large volumes, all of recent date and by distinguished authorities on medical and surgical subjects. The doctors are very much delighted with this useful and convenient addition to the hospital equipment.

THE PARK'S BAL POUDRE

COLONIAL DRESSES AND POWDERED HAIR PREDOMINATED.

One of the Most Delightful Events Ever Given in That Cosy Little House—Names of Guests and Those Who Wore Costume.

If George Washington had entered the ball room of the Park clubhouse last night he would have been reminded of the good times that held sway while he was host and master at Mount Vernon, for the costumes of the Bal Poudre were decidedly colonial while the air of sociability was in every way in keeping with the hospitality that was characteristic of the colonial masters and dames.

The spirit of the ball had been carried out quite generally, especially among the ladies, and the old custom of powdering the hair was followed by nearly all of the dancers. Some of the ladies wore the old-fashioned gowns of a century ago and their hair was arranged after the manner of Martha Washington's, in great puffs at the back of the head. The gentlemen of the club did not, with a few exceptions, dress after the fashion of their ancestors of a century ago. Their hair was powdered, however, and a great change it made in many familiar faces.

While the rain came down in torrents outside, there was a far different scene within. Some maid of the eighteenth century wandered about on the arm of some very modern young man. The inspiring strains of waltz and two step were almost continual and the gay couples glided about the waxed floor with ease and grace. The dancing began at about nine o'clock and continued until Washington's Birthday, 1897, was a thing of the past.

The patronesses for this delightful affair were Mrs. Charles A. Reed, Mrs. J. H. Howell, Mrs. George T. Rogers and Mrs. George Hallock.

It was arranged by the regular entertainment committee of the club which is composed of S. St. John McCutchen, Walter McGee, Laurens H. VanBuren, F. O. Ball, A. L. C. Marsh and William N. Runyon.

Among the ladies present dressed in Colonial style were the Misses Laura Long, Marion Henderson, Helen Hasbrouck, Ethel Holmes, Alice Barlow, May L. Hull, Elizabeth C. Hull, Alice Thompson, Adeliade Elsburg, Edith Clapp and Annie Murphy. Edmund Rushmore, Henry C. Wells and Alfred E. Holmes were also gotten up like the gallants of a hundred years ago.

Among the others present during the evening were Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Howell, Mrs. F. H. Ball, Mr. and Mrs. George T. Rogers, Mr. and Mrs. Chas. H. Lyman, Mr. and Mrs. Robert W. Dryden, Mr. and Mrs. George O. Stevens, Dr. and Mrs. Charles R. Thiers, Mr. and Mrs. George Hallock, the Misses Dryden, Marie Dryden, Ethel C. Green, Edith Gilbert, Sarah Douglass, Sadie Howell, Bessie Taylor, Sarah Long, Adelaide Ball, Mabel VanDeventer, Halla VanDeventer, Eleanor T. VanDeventer, Anna L. Smith, Agnes D. Smith, Delphine L. C. Fred G. Smith, Volney F. Green, Henry W. Brower, Percy Sandford, Bert Ball, F. O. Ball, Frank E. Richards, Clarence B. Peck, Meredith Dryden, Alfred Stearn, of New York, Thomas McDonald, of Long Island, Frank Hallock, Chas. Faber, Arthur Murphy, William N. Runyon, Fred P. Taylor, Carl Stedman Brown, Elston M. Debated Government.

The Holy Name Society of the St. Joseph's R. C. church, of North Plainfield, held a regular monthly meeting in the basement of the church on Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock. After the regular routine business was transacted a debate was held on the subject: "Resolved, That the Republican form of Government conduces more to the welfare of the people than a Monarchial form." Among those who participated in the debate were James Nolan and Arthur Phillips for the affirmattve, and the negative side was representated by R. A. Boyce and Mr. Zeller.

Their Fifth Anniversary

On Sunday afternoon last the Sunday-school of Grace M. E. church celebrated the fifth anniversary of its existence. The feature of the event was the address delivered by Rev. H. F. Randolph, a former pastor of the church. He spoke in a congratulatory manner and complimented the school for its excellent condition and able management.

KILLED BY A MISSTEP.

FATAL FALL OF MICHAEL M'CARTY AT THE ACKERMAN HOUSE

Found at 8 o'Clock This Morning by Carpenters Who Were Repairing the House.—Death Was Purely Accidental.

Bathed in his own blood and with the base of his skull crushed in, Michael McCarthy, the faithful gardener of Mrs. J. H. Ackerman, was found by the horrified carpenters as they returned to work this morning. He had evidently made a misstep while descending the cellar stairs and had fallen on the hard cement floor, for there he lay at the foot of the stairs. He was dead when they found him although his body was still warm.

The residence owned by Mrs. J. H. Ackerman is on the north-east corner of Central avenue and West Seventh street. Some extensive alterations are being made in the house and John Bodine, the carpenter, and his assistants have been busy there for several days. The house was not occupied except by Michael McCarty, the gardener, who slept on the second story to look after the house at night.

He usually rises about five or six o'clock in the morning and goes down cellar to look at the furnace. That is what is supposed he did this morning. In descending the cellar steps he fell. Whether he made a misstep or was taken with a fainting spell will never be known. He fell and struck the base of his skull against the hard cement floor. The bones of the skull were crushed by the force of the fall, and he was instantly killed. He lay as he fell with his head on the floor in front of the furnace and his feet lying on the lower steps.

Bodine and his assistants began work this morning at the usual time. It happened that one of them found it necessary to go down the cellar stairs. There he found the corpse of the old gardner. The others were called and one of the men was sent down to notify Chief Grant.

It was first thought that he had been murdered in attempting to oppose some burglar and that he had been killed by a blow on the skull but careful investigation showed that he had fallen and that his skull had been crushed by the contact with the floor. The body was not yet cold when it was discovered by the carpenters, which was about 8 o'clock.

Chief Grant went to the house at once and City Physician Simpson was called. Word was sent to the county physician of the accident and until his arrival the body was left as it was found.

MacCarty was an old employe in the service of the Ackerman family. He lived at 645 South Second street. He left a wife and two children. The son was employed in the office of Ernest R. Ackerman as a stenographer. MacCarty was fifty years old.

INDIVIDUAL PAYMENT.

Sons of Veterans Can Become Members of Death Benefit by Paying Dues.

A meeting of the Sons of Veterans was held last Saturday evening, at which time the question of remaining in the Death Benefit Association was discussed by the members and decided. It was agreed that all who so desire can become members of the above association by paying the assessment when due. Heretofore the camp has paid the assessment when it was due and some of the members have failed to settle. This method was a means of drawing very heavily on the treasury, and it was found necessary to make a change. With the change there are only ten members about whom there is any doubt as to whether they will remain in the association. According to the new plan, if a member does not pay his assessment within thirty days his name is dropped from the roll of the association and no benefits are due him.

Unmitigated Gall.

There have been exhibitions of unmitigated gall but the climax of all was reached last evening at the subscription dance in the Casino. Albert Price Simmonds, of the reportorial staff of the News, went to the dance in his business capacity. He wore his dress suit and mixed with the guests as if he were one of them. He went into supper, then came out and started to join in the dance. The committee was informed of his actions and the uninvited guest was promptly requested to take his hat and coat and depart. He left.

This X Means Ten Cents.

A Sunday-school sociable will be held in the parlors of the Congregational church, Friday evening. It will be an X-rays (raise) affair, the required X to be deposited in the basket at entering. It will be 10 cents, not $10, in this case. The programme will be something of a novel order and some wonderful X ray pictures will be shown.

THRILLING STORY TOLD

ALFRED E. PEARSALL STRUCK THE HEARERS SYMPATHETIC CHORDS.

"The Soldier's Story" Related in a Most Realistic Manner by the Westfield Editor—Frequent Applause Greeted Him.

The Y. M. C. A. hall was filled with a large and appreciative audience last night, when Alfred E. Pearsall, editor of the Westfield Standard, gave "A Soldiers Story." Previous to the lecture, a detachment from the Plainfield High School cadets, under the direction of Captain George Edwards and Cadet Captain George Proctor Smith, appeared on the platform and executed several movements with their usual skill and grace. At the close Mr. Pearsall entered dressed as a soldier. The reception given to him by the audience was most flattering. The soldier's story was then related, and for almost two hours the audience was spell-bound. The ease with which the speaker touched the sympathetic chords of nature as well as the humerous side, was a source of genuine pleasure. The lecturer interspersed his thrilling story with sad and jolly songs. He was accompanied on the piano by Miss Marie C. Budworth, of Westfield, whose playing was one of the features. Mr. Pearsall has a rich and pleasing voice, and at times it became so strong that the audience was completely carried along with the popular songs. During the lecture frequent bursts of applause interrupted the speaker and it was sometime before he could continue.

PATRIOTIC DECORATIONS.

LAST OF SUBSCRIPTION DANCES.

Two Hundred Guests Participated in the Evening Pleasures.

The last subscription dance of the season held at the Casino last evening was attended with all the patriotic features one could desire. The favorite assembly hall was prettily decorated with the national colors, while over the balcony there was a pleasing arrangement of the red, white and blue surrounding a picture of the immortal George Washington. At the other end of the hall there was a profusion of the above colors.

There were fully two hundred guests present including a large number of out of town people and there were many new faces which was a slight change from the usual assemblage.

The patronesses who received were Mrs. James T. Scott, Mrs. William Journeay Roome, Mrs. J. Evarts Tracy, Mrs. Clifton Wharton, Jr., Mrs. Marion S. Ackerman, Mrs. John T. Baker, Mrs. John B. Dumont and Mrs. O. T. Waring.

The following compose the committee who have so successfully arranged and conducted the dances for this season: H. W. Beebe, O. G. Waring, Howard Huntington, H. V. Borden and Clifton Wharton, Jr.

A TROLLEY INVASION.

BEING CONSIDERED BY PISCATAWAY PEOPLE.

Hearing Being Given by Township Committee Today to Traction Company and Property Owners Along the Line.

A conference is being held today at Nelson's hotel, New Market, between the Piscataway Township Committee and the representatives of the Brunswick Traction Company with reference to the granting of a franchise by the committee to the railway people to build their road from Bound Brook to New Brunswick over a portion of a highway in the township. The hearing is being attended by a large concourse of people from the surrounding country and along the line of the proposed trolley road.

The committee is presided over by Joseph Field, chairman, while Frederick Weigel represents the railway company. The latter presented the arguments for the granting of the franchise which he said would increase the value of all land in the vicinity and generally tend to build up the vicinity into a progressive community by the fact that it would be easy of access.

A number of farmers along the proposed line were heard and while none were positively opposed to the granting of the franchise yet they expressed some timidity as to what the effect would be as comparing the benefits with the damages that might ensue in some instances. Some farmers thought that the trolley might frighten their horses and make it dangerous for women to drive alone and thus ruin the road for ordinary traffic; and it was such reasons as this that were raised principally in opposition.

It seems to be the opinion, however, that the company will be granted the franchise. The people are not opposed to the road itself but are undecided as to the policy of permitting it to be built on a much-used highway.

Everybody present was given a chance to be heard and at 12:30 o'clock the committee adjourned to reconvene again at 1:30 o'clock.

Assemblyman Hicks, of New Brunswick, represented the people who had the remonstrances to make.

SUPPER, THEN A CAKE WALK.

A Pleasant Affair Given by the Woman's Relief Corps.

The New England supper held last Saturday evening under the auspices of the Woman's Relief Corps was a great success, and the members were agreeably surprised.

The tables were prettily arranged with flowers and lighted candles presenting an attractive scene. The part of Martha Washington was taken by Mrs. M. C. Dobbins and she was gowned in colonial style. Those who assisted were Mrs. Smalley, Mrs. Radin, Mrs. Bowman, Mrs. Leland, Miss Nash, Miss Clark, Mrs. Cox, Mrs. Nash, Mrs. Stephens, Mrs. Westphal, Mrs. Doud, Mrs. Mattox, Mrs. Riker, Mrs. Bolsterli. After all the good things had been disposed of those present adjourned to the upper floor where a cake walk was enjoyed. The first cake was secured by Mrs. Bowman while Mrs. Thatcher was awarded the second cake. It is thought that the Corps will make about $25 as a result of their efforts.

Surprised Their Co-Worker.

Mrs. Cornelius Schenck was tendered a pleasant surprise last night when the primary teachers of the Sunday-school of Trinity Reformed church made an unexpected visitation in honor of her birthday, which was the day before. The event was arranged by Miss Wikoff and Miss Berkaw and was complete in every way. Those who attended were: Mrs. J. M. Tier, Mrs. G. Reynolds, Mrs. Milton Barkalew, Miss Grace Smith, Miss Mary Berkaw, Miss Olive Wikoff, Miss Eva Lance, Miss Fenner, Miss J. Kissam, Miss Minnie Berg and Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Anthony.

Phelps-Howell Case to be Appealed.

Counselor W. K. McClure, of Crescent avenue, left town yesterday for Portland, Me., on important business. In consequence he was unable to appear before the Supreme Court today and apply for a rule to show why a new trial should not be granted in the case of Phelps against Howell. The application will be made, however, by a legal friend of Mr. McClure. There seems to be very little doubt but what the application will be granted. There seems to be an opinion that the verdict was excessive.

Received a Death Benefit.

The family of the late John Pearson, Jr., have received from Somerset Council, J. O. U. A. M., a check for $250 as the death benefit for the loss of their son. The departed had been a member of the lodge just twenty-nine days.

HANNA IS GRATEFUL

Pleased To Learn That He Is To Be Appointed to the Senate.

THANKS BUSHNELL AND HIS FRIENDS

Says the Governor's Determination Was Brought About by the Preponderance of Sentiment in His Favor and Not by Any Deal.

Cleveland, Feb. 23.—Chairman Hanna did not observe Washington's birthday. It was the busiest day that he has had for weeks. Relative to Gov. Bushnell's ultimatum that he intended to appointed Hanna as Sherman's successor, Mr. Hanna said to the United Associated Pressess representative: "Gov. Bushnell sent me a letter Monday morning notifying me of his intention to appoint me to the senate to serve the unexpired term of Senator Sherman. It is with a great deal of appreciation that I received the news. I am deeply gratified at Gov. Bushnell's action; glad that it will work for the interests of the people of Ohio, and that his determination was brought about by the preponderous sentiment that existed that I should receive the appointment. Bushnell's action was voluntary and not brought about by any deal. Gov. Bushnell showed wisdom in waiting until he was thoroughly satisfied that Sherman intended to resign before making known what his notion would be in filling the vacancy. I thank Gov. Bushnell for the honor, and all my friends for their kind wishes and support in the matter."

OTHER NAMES CONSIDERED.

Bushnell Did Not Decide Upon Hanna for the Senate Hastily.

Cincinnati, Feb. 23.—Gov. Asa S. Bushnell, who attended the sessions of the Sons of the Revolution yesterday, was asked last night to say something about his announcement concerning Marcus A. Hanna. "Well, I had really determined upon the appointment of Mr. Hanna some time ago," he said, "but I could not appoint him as there was no vacancy, but the interest in the matter becoming so great I considered that it would ease the public mind and be in the interest of harmony in the republican party to make the announcement of my intention. I have not heard from Mr. Hanna. Mr. Hanna has been my personal friend for many years, and I make the announcement of his coming appointment with great satisfaction. Yes, Mr. Kurtz has been considered as had several others, probably a half dozen names. But Mr. Kurtz never announced himself as a candidate. What was done for him was done entirely by his friends who wanted to see him go to the senate. Lieut.-Gov. Jones was also considered, but he asked that his name be withdrawn from consideration. So it is a mistake to say that only Mr. Hanna and Mr. Kurtz had been considered. There was no deal and there are no factional differences."

PROFESSIONAL EDUCATION.

Report of New York State Board of Regents for the Year 1896.

Albany, Feb. 23.—The report of the examination department of the state board of regents for the year 1896 shows that 913,500 question papers were printed for use in the examinations and that 5,000 bulletins containing 363 different papers or 1,815,000 question papers were also required, making a total of 2,718,500. Statistics in the report of 1896 show a greater volume of work than for any other year in the history of the examination department. Nearly 400,000 answer papers were written and nearly 300,000 were received at the department and rated by the university examiners. An examination of the statistics shows an astonishing growth in the number of those taking classical studies. In the first-year Latin alone there was an increase in 1896 of 1,304. The increase in Latin and Greek subjects shows conclusively that the present system of electives, with balanced courses, leads inevitably to an increase in the popularity of classical studies. New York state, according to the report, has about 21 per cent. of all the law students in the United States. Since 1895 there has been an increase of 480 or nearly 15 per cent. in the number of medical students in New York state. In 1895 there were 22,887 medical students in the United States. New York therefore, according to these figures, has nearly 17 per cent. of such students.

BENINITES DEFEATED

British Expedition Captures the "City of Blood."

KING DRUNAMI IS A FUGITIVE

Revolting State of Affairs Discovered in the Town---Many Victims of the Fetish Priests Found Crucified---Ju Ju Houses Reeking with Blood.

Brass, Niger Coast Protectorate, Feb. 23.—The expedition which was formed to punish Drunami, king of Benin, for the murder of the members of a peaceable British expedition which was attempting to reach Benin City, has been entirely successful. The expedition has captured Benin City, and the king is a fugitive. He fled northward, but a part of the expedition is in pursuit of him, and it is expected that he will be taken a prisoner. When the expedition entered the town it was found that it well deserved the name of the "City of Blood." Many victims of the Ju Ju, or Fetish priests, were found crucified, they having been sacrificed to the various gods. The Ju Ju houses and their compounds were reeking with the blood of those who had recently been beheaded in the religious ceremonies. In the fighting that took place before the town was captured seventeen European and twenty-three native members of the expedition were killed or wounded. No trace of Mr. Campbell, a consular official, who was captured by the Beninites at the time of the massacre, can be found, and it is supposed that he was killed by his captors shortly after he was made a prisoner.

Early in January news reached Bonny and Brass, on the Niger coast, of the massacre by natives of Benin, of a British expedition under command of Acting Consul Philips. The other European members of the expedition were Major Copeland-Crawford, of the 7th battalion King's Royal rifles, who was deputy commissioner and vice-consul in the Niger Coast Protectorate; Capt. Boisragon, commandant of the constabulary of the Protectorate; Capt. Maling, wing officer of the same force; Messrs. Locke and Campbell of the consular staff; Dr. Elliott, medical officer, and Messrs. Powis and Gordon, civilians, representatives of British trading firms. Besides these there were 250 Kroomen and native carriers. The expedition was unarmed, a fact that has never been satisfactorily explained, as it was well known that the king of Benin had threatened to kill any European who attempted to visit his capital. Everything went well until the expedition was within a few miles of Benin City, when it was ambushed and all the Europeans except Capt. Boisragon and Mr. Locke, who escaped in the bush, and Mr. Campbell, who was captured, were massacred, together with nearly all the Kroomen and carriers. A few days after the news of the disaster was received preparations for the formation of an expedition to punish the king of Benin began and were rapidly pushed to completion. The forces were assembled at New Benin and taken in boats to Sapele, whence they marched across country to Givato and then to Benin City.

No Wonder He Liked the Sermon.

The chapel of a northern fishing village used to depend for its services on the occasional help of the clergy of the nearest town. One very wet Sunday the clergyman who volunteered to do the duty drove over in a fly.

Tolling the chapel bell himself, he announced his arrival to the natives, but for a long time no one appeared.

At last one solitary person came in and took a seat at the very back of the chapel. The clergyman then found his surplice, and conducted the service. That ended, he remarked to his audience of one that perhaps a sermon was superfluous.

"Oh! please go on, sir," was the flattering reply, and the clergyman mounted the pulpit.

In the course of his address he expressed the fear that he was wearying his hearer, and was gratified to be told that he could not be too long. The sermon consequently was lengthened out to some forty minutes.

When it was ended, the preacher expressed a desire to shake hands with a gentleman who had listened to him with such evident appreciation. Imagine his consternation at discovering on a nearer view (for he was somewhat short-sighted), that he had been preaching to the driver of his fly, who was all the while charging overtime!—Tid-Bits.

Mrs. Cleveland and the Wheelmen.

A young man on a bike was confidently riding up F street when a heavy carriage drawn by two prancing bays came spinning up the street at the same time. The young man was fairly run into the gutter by the turnout, and to save himself from being crushed he jumped off his wheel. The bays were drawn up to the curb in great style and the lady occupant of the carriage stepped out to go into a store. She instantly took in the catastrophe. The wheel was almost a wreck and the rider was looking around for his hat. She stepped right up to him and inquired if he was hurt. Being assured that he was not, she took out a card and wrote a few lines on it and gave it to him, saying:

"Have your wheel repaired and send the bill to Mr. Thurber with this card. I am very glad you were not hurt."

The signature on the card was "Frances Folsom Cleveland."—Washington Capital.

Mr. Gladstone is King.

In a recently published book Reginald Brett, of England, says that Queen Victoria once impatiently remarked: "I am no longer Queen. Mr. Gladstone is King." The grand old man always had an air of aloofness about him, even when he was in the presence of royalty. Beaconsfield, on the other hand, was always welcome at Windsor. The Queen didn't like him at first, it is true, but he gradually won her over. How? Mr. Brett puts it pithily and wittily. "In trifles Disraeli never forgot the sex of the sovereign. In great affairs he never appeared to remember it."

With Hood's Sarsaparilla, "Sales Talk," and show that this medicine has enjoyed public confidence and patronage to a greater extent than any other proprietary medicine. This is because it possesses greater medicinal merit and produces greater cures than any other. It is not what we say, but what Hood's Sarsaparilla does, that Tells the Story.

All advertisements of Hood's Sarsaparilla, like Hood's Sarsaparilla itself, are honest. We have never deceived the public, and this with its superlative medicinal merit, is why the people have abiding confidence in it, and buy Hood's Sarsaparilla almost to the exclusion of all others.

Customers Want Hood's.

"We order Hood's Sarsaparilla in large quantities and it is the only blood purifier which a druggist can buy in large quantities without risk. It is selling very rapidly and customers who buy it once are sure to call for Hood's the next time. We believe Hood's Sarsaparilla must possess true merit in order to retain its popularity. Its sales exceed all similar preparations and its praises are often heard." L. SOMMER & SON, Springfield, Illinois.

Thousands of druggists say the same.

HALE'S HONEY OF HOREHOUND AND TAR

Hale's Honey of Horehound and Tar isn't claimed to cure consumption, but it will often prevent it. A positive cure for a cough. Sold by druggists.

Shake it off

The general belief among doctors is that consumption itself is very rarely inherited. But the belief is becoming stronger that the tendency to consumption is very generally transmitted from parent to child. If there has been consumption in the family, each member should take special care to prepare the system against it. Live out doors; keep the body well nourished; and treat the first indication of failing health.

Scott's Emulsion

of Cod-liver Oil, with Hypophosphites, is a fat-producing food and nerve-tonic. Its use is followed by improved nutrition, richer blood, stronger nerves and a more healthy action of all the organs. It strengthens the power of the body to resist disease. If you have inherited a tendency to weak lungs, shake it off.

SCOTT'S EMULSION has been indorsed by the medical profession for twenty years. (Ask your doctor.) This is because it is always palatable—always uniform—always contains the purest Norwegian Cod-liver Oil and Hypophosphites.

Put up in 50 cent and $1.00 sizes. The small size may be enough to cure your cough or help your baby. All druggists.

JUST AS GOOD IS NOT SCOTT'S EMULSION.

Cemeteries of Elephants.

The ivory trade with Africa is conducted on a scale of far greater dimensions than most people have any idea of.

Elephants would soon become killed off, were not the largest part of the importation taken from the stores which have been laid up by nature, as if in anticipation of the requirements of modern people.

These stores are practically the cemeteries of the elephant world for centuries and centuries, and the ivory is fetched from them by the natives, and sold to the traders, to be by them exported with comparatively little trouble, and without incurring any risk to their lives.—Pearson's Weekly.

Grown Rich Off Tips.

A Boston man who dines regularly at a prominent hotel was interested to discover that his waiter, whom he has been tipping liberally all along, owns five tenement houses in the Hub, all clear of mortgages, and that his tax bill is considerably larger than his patron's.—Springfield Republican.

"When I was your age," said Mr. Cumrox sternly, "I earned my own living."

His son looked uneasy, but was silent.

"Well, have you nothing to say for yourself in that connection?"

"N—nothing, sir, except that I sympathize with you and congratulate you on the fact that it's all over with."—Washington Star.

"The Green Bag" tells this story of Judge Wilson, of Ohio: "Several lawyers gathered in Judge Wilson's room after adjournment of court, and were discussing the retirement of a member of the bar. Among them was one whose practice is worth $25,000 a year. He said: 'I have been practising several years, and am well fixed. I have thought I should like to retire and devote my remaining years to studies I have neglected. 'Study law,' said Judge Wilson."

can consume more money and waste more patience than anything you can put your money into. When you buy from a dealer who sells you this kind of coal and go back to him again, it is your own pocketbook you're robbing. There are many dealers—we among them—who are willing to sell you good coal at a close margin and be sure of giving you perfect satisfaction. We have a good, honest Lehigh coal at $5.50 per ton. Some gowns are so dainty in the weave, so delicate in tint, that they seem to soil by being looked at—one or two wearings making them unpresentable, NOT USELESS. We make a specialty of cleaning fine fabrics, the more delicate the material, the better the results. Sometimes an accident will ruin a gown, without injuring the texture. We dye them then, sometimes we get a prettier effect than the original color. Fine goods stand redyeing. The finer the material the better the new color. We charge so little for cleaning or dyeing, that even if you are in doubt as to the result, it's worth while to experiment. Want a new evening gown for a dollar or two? Inflammatory Rheumatism Cured in 3 Days

Morton L. Hill, of Lebanon, Ind., says: "My wife had Inflammatory Rheumatism in every muscle and joint, her suffering was terribe and her body and face were swollen almost beyond recognition; had been in bed for six weeks and had eight physicians but received no benefit until she tried the Mystic Cure for Rheumatism. It gave immediate relief and she was able to walk about in three days. I am sure it saved her life." Sold by T. S. Armstrong, druggist, cor. Park and North avenue, Plainfield.

Mr. Ward L. Smith, of Fredericks-town, Mo., was troubled with chronic diarrhœa for over thirty years. He had become fully satisfied that it was only a question of a short time until he would have to give up. He had been treated by some of the best physicians in Europe and America but got no permanent relief. One day he picked up a newspaper and chanced to read an advertisement of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhœa Remedy. He got a bottle of it, the first dose helped him and its continued use cured him. For sale by T. S. Armstrong, Apothecary, corner Park and North avenues.

A GOOD LETTER.

From the Clerk of the Circuit Court.

Fernandina, Fla., Feb. 28, 1896.

Mr. J. George Suhrer, Druggist, City.

Dear George:—Please send a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. I would not feel easy if I knew there was none of this valuable Remedy in the house. I have given it a fair test and consider it one of the very best remedies for croup that I have ever foumd. One dose has always been sufficient, although I use it freely. Any cold my children contract yields very readily to this medicine. I can conscientiously recommend it for croup and colds in children. Yours respectfully, Geo. E. Wolff. Sold by T. S. Armstrong, apothecary, Park & North avenues.

—There was no evening service of the Christian Endeavor Society in the Congregational church Sunday. The Endeavor service was held in the afternoon at the close of the Sunday school.

A few months ago, Mr. Byron Every, of Woodstock, Mich., was badly afflicted with rheumatism. His right leg was swollen the full length, causing him great suffering. He was advised to try Chamberlain's Pain Balm. The first bottle of it helped him considerably and the second bottle effected a cure. The 25 and 50 cent sizes are for sale by T. S. Armstrong, Apothecary, corner Park and North avenues.

ADMIRAL BUNCE'S FLEET.

Although Dispersed It Could Be Reassembled in a Few Days.

Washington, Feb. 23.—According to advices at the navy department Admiral Bunce's fleet is now practically dispersed, though so advantageously distributed that it could be assembled in a few days if an emergency arose. The admiral, with the New York, Indiana and Columbia is at Hampton Roads, where his ships will be coaled and held in reserve until after the inauguration, the Massachusetts will be at Tompkinsville, N. Y., in the next day or two, ready for the first docking she has had since her completion, and the Puritan will probably leave Charleston directly for the New York navy yard to test the new dock there, the largest on the Atlantic coast. The Amphitrite and Terror will remain at Charleston for some time, the Marblehead takes station at Key West and the Vesuvius at Jacksonville, to prevent infractions of the neutrality laws, while next week is to be spent by the Montgomery at Mobile, and by the Maine and Texas at New Orleans in attendance on the Mardi Gras festivities of those cities. While the fleet is so disposed as to be nearer Cuba than ever before, it is explained that this is merely due to the necessities of the service, and the administration forsees no contingency under which the vessels could be placed in a position at all offensive to the amicable relations existing with Spain.

OLNEY AND SHERMAN.

The Present and Prospective Secretaries of State Talk Over Cuban Affairs.

Washington, Feb. 23.—Secretary Olney spent another hour in his office this morning assorting his private papers which are being boxed for transportation to Boston. Senator Sherman, his successor expectant, spent a few moments in private conference with Mr. Olney, and learned that nothing unusually aggravating had occurred in regard to our relations with Spain. After the routine method of the department, considerable cablegraphic correspondence has been had with Minister Taylor in the past few days concerning the Ruiz and Scott cases, it being the invariable custom for all inquiries of the Spanish authorities originating here or in Havana, to be formally presented in Madrid. During Capt.-Gen. Weyler's absence from Havana in the field, this manner of upholding Gen. Lee's efforts has been unusually full and complete. In regard to the Ruiz case it is said at this department that his naturalization was not wholly incontestible; that his naturalization papers, as a matter of fact, have not yet been found, and to this circumstance is attributed his long imprisonment without trial.

PORTER IN WASHINGTON.

Major McKinley's Private Secretary Takes Lessons of Mr. Thurber.

Washington, Feb. 23.—J. Addison Porter of Hartford, Conn., who is to be secretary to President McKinley, is spending the day at the White House with Private Secretary Thurber, who is giving him many of the results of his experience in the delicate duties of the position and of the intricate routine of executive matters. Mr. Porter was yesterday introduced to President Cleveland and afterwards met the members of the executive staff, whose positions have been considered independent of administration changes. Mr. Porter will go to Canton, probably to-morrow, to return next week with Maj. McKinley.

To Arrest Gov. Leedy and Staff.

Kansas City, Mo., Feb. 23.—"I am going to Topeka this afternoon, and one of the first things I will do when I arrive will be to cause the arrest of Gov. Leedy and his associates in the executive council for violating the eight hour law," said labor commissioner William G. Bird this morning. "They are violating the law by allowing the firemen and engineers of the state house to work twelve hours a day. The law provides that no employe of the state house shall be compelled or allowed to perform more than eight hours' work a day."

NEW CABINET OFFICE

Frye's Bill for a Department of Commerce Will Be Passed.

SO SAYS A TRUSTWORTHY AUTHORITY

Also Stated That John A. Converse of the Baldwin Locomotive Works Has Been Tendered the Place by Maj. McKinley.

Washington, Feb. 23.—George Johnson of New York, a member of the resolutions committee of the National Association of Manufacturers, who is in this city for a few days, is authority for the statement that Senator Frye's bill to establish a department of commerce and manufactures, now pending in the United States senate, will be passed by congress, and that the additional member of President-elect McKinley's cabinet has already been chosen. The head of the new department, it is said, will be John H. Converse, president of the Baldwin Locomotive works of Philadelphia. He has been tendered the place by Major McKinley, it is asserted, contingent, of course, on the passage and approval of the bill. Considerable pressure was brought to bear upon Mark Hanna, it is stated, to accept the new portfolio, but that, like that of the postoffice department, was not to his liking. Senator Frye of Maine, W. Elroy Curtis of the Bureau of American Republics, and Theodore C. Search, president of the National Association of Mannfacturers, were named and each had strong backing for the place. Mr. Search, it is said, withdrew in favor of Mr. Converse, who then received the undivided support of the Manufacturers' association. The association insisted from the beginning that the department be entirely free of politics, and that a thorough business man be placed in charge. Mr. Search probably realized that if he remained in the contest the ends of the association, of which he is the head, would be defeated, and when the proper time came he announced himself in favor of Mr. Converse. Mr. Johnson says he has positive assurances that the bill authorizing the new department will pass both houses and will be approved by the president.

WOLCOTT'S MISSION RIDICULED

An English Newspaper Attacks the Senator's European Tour.

London, Feb. 23.—The mission of United States Senator Wolcott to Europe in the interest of bimetallism is the subject of a long article in the Pall Mall Gazette, in which the paper says there is not a shred of evidence that Mr. McKinley is in sympathy with Mr. Wolcott's mission, nor is there the slightest indication that his visit to Europe had even unofficial sanction. In conclusion the Gazette says: "Senator Wolcott came as a private advocate of a cause discredited by a majority of his fellow countrymen. Under such circumstances, to expect he would receive official support from the foreign opponents of such a cause required a degree of childlike simplicity rare anywhere, and which no one would expect to find in Colorado. On his return Senator Wolcott will find that the newspapers alone will display any anxiety regarding the result of his personally conducted European tour. He has met many distinguished people in England, France and Germany; but in not one of these countries did he find that bimetallism was considered necessary to its welfare. Though this mission was absolutely fruitless, it was quite as successful as it deserved to be."

Railroad Commission Bill.

Washington, Feb. 23.—The commis- bill, to settle the indebtedness of all bond-aided railways to the government, except the Union Pacific road, against which foreclosure proceedings have already been instituted, is dead for this session. It will not be given a day in the house. If the similar bill now on the senate calendar should pass the senate bill might be considered by the house, but this contingency is outside of probability.

U. S. Minister Ransom Loses $50,000.

City of Mexico, Feb. 23.—United States Minister Ransom, who was selected some time ago as referee in the Guatemala-Mexico boundary dispute, has resigned, owing to the illness of his wife and the improbability of his remaining much longer in the country, and the two governments will select his successor at an early date. He was to have received a fee of $50,000 in gold for his labor.

PASSING COMMENT.

Plainfield enjoys with Mr. and Mrs. Charles Wyckoff, of No. 441 West Front street, the proud distinction of having one of the prettiest babies. Mabel Aileen Wyckoff, for that is the name of the one year old beauty, was one of a number selected from over a thousand babies by the New York Journal, and in recognition of the fact the little one received a handsome solid silver mug bearing her name. The announcement was made in the Journal last Saturday evening.

A yelping, frothing, rabid cur set the town in commotion Saturday forenoon and men, women and boys ran, screaming, "mad dog! mad dog!" for places of safety. The mad canine dashed at every dog in sight and bit eight of them. A crowd soon gathered and with sticks, stones and guns the dog was finally overtaken and Cy Wilcox, Westfield's crack shot, let him have a charge of shot and his mad career was over. Later in the day a little black dog owned by Mr. Burtis had to be killed as it had been badly bitten and was thought to have rabies.

The second grand fair of Central Council, No. 131, Jr. O. U. A. M., began yesterday in Gale's clubhouse. The long hall and bowling alley were beautifully decorated with bunting, flags and patriotic emblems for the occasion, and the booths were attended by the prettiest ladies the Mechanics could secure, which apparently is the main attraction. Across the front end of the hall is located the fancy goods booth. Those in charge are: Mrs. L. E. Wooley, Mrs. Martin Snyder, Miss Hulse, Miss Lizzie Sandford, Miss Woidt and Miss Hetfield. One is then led to the confectionery booth which is presided over by three of Westfield's fairest, Miss Beamer, Mrs. Flagg and Miss Burley. From the candy the guest is led to a lemonade well where the Misses Crosby and Elliott serve the refreshing drink. Mrs. John C. Hall has an art gallery which is one of the attractions. The principle attraction for the men is the bowling alleys where nothing but head pins are played, and the one making the highest score during the fair will receive an onyx top table, and the one making the next best score will get a rocking chair, while a beautiful banquet lamp goes to the third. The special prizes to be contested for are a lady's gold watch, a gentleman's silk hat, a thirty-two cone fireman's hat, a gavel and also a prize in a bean guessing contest. The committee in charge is composed of the following gentleman: W. H. Ward, chairman; A. S. Flagg, vice-chairman; E. S. Hall, secretary; Martin Snyder, treasurer; J. C. Hall, Frank Welles, Samuel Knapp and Lindsley Wooley. The fair will be open every afternoon and evening during the week. The attendance yesterday and last evening was very gratifying.

WASHINGTON NOTES.

No President-elect has ever taken the people into his confidence while making up his Cabinet with the exceeding frankness that has characterized Major McKinley. Astute correspondents have sometimes, by picking up hints here and there, managed to make close guesses as to what the make-up would be, but they have rarely obtained information from the incoming President himself. Gen. Grant was the most sphinx-like of all of them. Not a soul outside his most intimate circle knew whom he would appoint until the names were sent to the Senate. Grant commenced his Presidency by holding aloof from the politicians. At its close he had surrendered to them altogether. His first Cabinet was a surprise to everybody. E. B. Washburne, Secretary of State; A. T. Stewart, Secretary of the Treasury; Adolph E. Borie, Secretary of the Navy, were the chief wonders. They were all confirmed instantly, and then it was discovered that Stewart was ineligible because he was an importer. Grant, instead of withdrawing his name, sent in a request to Congress that the statute making Mr. Stewart ineligible be suspended in his favor. Of course the Senate would not consent, and Stewart resigned.

CHAUNCEY DEPEW.
(Mentioned as Minister to Great Britain.)

There seems to be a great deal more in the movement to create a new department and a new Cabinet officer than was at first supposed. The Labor people have been agitating the scheme to create a Department of Labor, and now that there is some chance of a new department of Commerce and Manufactures, they are willing to consolidate their talked-of department with this one and let it be known as the Department of Commerce, Labor and Manufactures. The The bill for the new department has been before the Senate about a year, for it was introduced by Senator Frye last March. It provides for a Cabinet officer, with one assistant, and the usual number of clerical assistants. The department is to have general jurisdiction over the foreign and internal commerce of the country, except in the collection of revenues and the administration of customs and internal revenue laws. But it will include all matters relating to manufacturing industries in the United States, and the extension of our foreign markets.

Another interesting figure in Washington life passed away yesterday, when Dr. James P. Hambleton died. He was a type of the class known the world over as the "Majahs" and "Jedges" of the capital city. Educated far in advance of those who in later years were his friends and companions, and possessing, moreover, as but few of them do, both blood and breeding, Dr. Hambleton was, none the less, for the past fifteen years, a conspicuous and interesting soldier in the army of disappointed politicians and office-seekers who infest the hotel lobbies of Washington and live altogether on the memories of the past. Intensely scornful of the interest and importance of modern happenings, they delight only in recounting the achievements of themselves and their contemporaries during and "jest aftah the wah." After the war Dr. Hambleton came to Washington to prosecute a claim against the Government, which he held as administrator of an estate. He entered Government service and held office for several years, but the extreme bias of his opinions and the fact that he never lost an opportunity of declaring his continued belief in and adherence to the principles of secession finally lost him his place, and he never held another, with the exception of one day as clerk to the Committee on Ways and Means. His claim was never allowed.

An interesting photograph has recently been taken in Washington of Mrs. Cleveland and the wives of the Cabinet officers. It will be a memento of Mrs. Cleveland's last year as "first lady of the land." Miss Johnson was the artist, and the picture was taken in her studio. The group was posed in one corner of the studio. Mrs. Cleveland was the central figure. At her right was Mrs. Olney with Miss Herbert just beyond. Mrs. Carlisle, Mrs. Harmon, and Mrs. Wilson were at Mrs. Cleveland's left. Mrs. Lamont, Mrs. Francis, and Miss Morton stood at the back. The ladies all wore the gowns in which they appeared at the New Year's reception at the White House. After the group had been taken Mrs. Cleveland posed for a portrait of herself alone, the first she has had taken in Washington since 1894. Ex-Secretary John W. Foster is teaching a Bible class in the New York Avenue Presbyterian Church of Washington, which is attended by about sixty people, including several public men.

SENATOR

THE HUMOR OF THE BIBLE.

Recent Criticism Leads Dr. Lyman Abbott to Make a Statement.

Dr. Abbott's recent sermon on "Jonah and the Whale" excited widespread comment, and no small amount of criticism from his ministerial brethren. By way of contributing to the discussion, Dr. Abbott has made this explanation:

The Bible is not a book of pleasantry. It contains nothing jocular, and nothing written merely to entertain or amuse.

The notion that it can contain nothing humorous is due to a narrow conception of humor as being incompatible with seriousness of aim and spirit. In fact, the best humor is generally the scintillation of a serious mind. Carlyle's "Sartor Resartus" is at once profoundly serious and characteristically humorous.

DR. LYMAN ABBOTT.

The humor of the Bible is of this conception. It is of the product of a serious purpose. It is generally, though not always, irony or satire. It would be difficult to find in any literature a keener satire on ecclesiastical narrowness, or a more truly humorous picture of a false pietism, than that which the Hebrew satirist has afforded of the petulant prophet Jonah complaining to Jehovah because the latter has pared Nineveh, and saying: —"Therefore, I hasted to flee unto Tarshish, because I knew that Thou art a gracious God and full of compassion, slow to anger and plenteous in mercy, and repentest thee of the evil." Nothing in Erasmus' famous "Praise of Folly" surpasses in satirical humor this picture.

Finally, the Bible will mean a great deal more, will be, in the best sense, a grander, diviner book, and a truer revelation of God and righteousness to him who perceives that God speaks in it through many voices than to him who thinks He speaks always in monotone; to him who sees in the Bible poetry, philosophy, history, law, fiction, satire, odes and apothegms, than to him who thinks it is all of one tone, color, form and literary spirit.

GIRL LIFE IN MEXICO.

She Has Considerable Freedom, but of the Right Kind.

Mexican home life is unique; it differs very essentially from the domestic life of the Anglo-Saxon race, for it is founded on respect for parents. The influence of the Catholic Church is powerful in maintaining a high grade of family behavior. There is a sweetness and a charm about a well-ordered Mexican home which is a revelation to Northern people who have imbibed a false idea of matters here. The women of the best Mexican families are naturally of a gentle disposition, but they command obedience, and rarely spoil their sons, whom they idolize. There are exceptions, but they are not enough to break down the general social discipline.

As for the girls, no reputable Mexican father or mother would allow for a moment the thought of permitting a girl of any age to be on the streets after dark unless accompanied by an older person, a trusted servant or elder brother. So, even among girls of the humbler class, there is no street strolling in the evening. They may, in warm weather, go to the alameda, or public park, when there is a band concert, but always under escort. They may go to a tertulia, or evening party, but with some competent person. They may dance, mildly flirt, on such occasions, but they are always under the watchful eye of a relative. There is plenty of proper freedom for young girls, and a larger liberty in the cities than formerly, but they are not allowed to run about without an escort, and a very careful eye is kept upon them by parents and relatives, even to distant male cousins. Such a thing as a young girl, or young woman, of any character or family, being upon the streets at night, alone and unattended, is unknown. Your daughter goes to visit a friend in the afternoon and stays to tea; then the gentleman and lady of the house, the gentleman alone, or an old servant, brings her home.

The etiquette regarding the protection of women from molestation and insult is such as prevails in the Southern States of the American Union. There is no fooling on the streets, in the theatres and public places with respectable women. There is something left here of the old Spanish idea of the sacredness of womanhood, and the line is sharply drawn between honest women and the other kind.—Boston Herald.

BAREGE IMPRIME," A NEW FABRIC

A Departure in Shirt Waists Regarding Fullness.

(By Special Arrangement with the N. Y. Sun.)

Each week brings something in materials for summer dress, and among the prettiest novelties there are all wool and silk-and-wool canvas fabrics which bid fair to be very popular, if variety in weave and the soft blending of colors can be set forth as a recommendation.

The material which is to supersede crepon is a silk and wool barege, and one quality, which is very thin, almost like a silk grenadine, is called "barege imprime." It is soft and pliable like challie, and especially charming in the light colors. The new challies are patterned very nearly like the China silks, and the prettiest designs show a satin stripe the color of the ground.

The variety in bodice decoration has no limit, but just at the moment crossed over and one-sided effects are very popular, and this is a very acceptable change from the vests which have prevailed so long, except when it is applied to the back, where it is not such a happy hit, as it spoils the lines of the figure. Surplice effects in chiffon are especially pretty for low-cut evening dresses, and the addition of a short lace bolero will transform this bodice into a very desirable dinner waist. Boleros of lace or combinations of lace embroidery and beads are a good investment for summer gowns.

The tailor-made costume is a very important one in an early spring outfit, and in its new guise, with black braiding in Persian design on a color, and the use of colored silks to brighten the effect of black cloth gowns, it is more attractive than ever. A pretty gown of the latter sort is made with an Eton coat, braided with black, and a full accordion-plaited vest of green silk. The sleeves are very close fitting, with small puffs at the top, which are slashed to show the plaited silk underneath. Accordion plaiting is revived again, and is used in every manner imaginable, and accordion-plaited skirts in all the thin materials will be very much in evidence later on. Stitched bands of cloth appear as trimming on some of the tailor gowns, and a profusion of tiny gold buttons are a pretty addition.

In color effects among the new materials there is every conceivable tint, but it is prophesied that red will take the lead throughout the spring. There is a pink shade of red which is very soft and pretty, and all the purple tints will be worn as well. Gray will be very popular, and every shade of green is sure to have a place on the list. Navy blue, pale green, and pale blue, in combination with white are favorite colors in China silks, dimities, and organdies, and a plum blue is the newest tint among the foulards. It is simply a navy blue with a rich tinge of purple, and is very effective as a background for the white pattern, which is usually a large scroll or a whirl of white lines. Black gowns are to be very much the fashion this coming season, and black barege made over a color forms a charming dress.

Shirt waists have a very positive place among the early spring fashions. The principal difference between the new ones and those of last season is that they have crosswise tucked yokes and the fullness distributed across the front instead of bunched in the centre. The sleeves are smaller, and the shirts all have the detachable linen collars and cuffs.

The Automatic Postman.

The automatic postman is a new invention in Post-office work. A pneumatic tube is laid underground so as to pass directly below letter boxes. By his means letters are automatically repelled to the head office as soon as posted. Tid Bits.

PAT CAMPED IN THE HALL.

Humorous Incident of the Call of an Old Soldier on Washington.

During the first presidency, the door of the mansion gathered but little rust on its hinges, while its latch was often lifted by the "broken soldier." Scarce a day passed that some veteran of the heroic time did not present himself at headquarters. The most tattered of these types of the days of privation and trial were "kindly bid to stay," were offered refreshment, and a glass of something to their old general's health, and then dismissed with lighter hearts, and heavier pouches. So passed the many but not so with one of Erin's sons. It was about the hour of the Tuesday's levee, when German John, the porter opened to a hearty rap, expecting to admit at least a dignitary of the land or foreign ambassador, when who should march into the hall but an old fellow, whose weather-beaten countenance, and well-worn apparel, showed him to be "no carpet knight." His introduction was short, but to the purpose. He had "come to headquarters to see his honor's excellence, God bless him." He was on old soldier. In vain the porter assured him that it would be impossible to see the president at that time; a great company was momently expected—the hall was not a fitting place—would he go to the Steward's apartment and get something to drink? To all which Pat replied, that he was in no hurry; that he would wait his honor's leisure; and, taking a chair, composed and made himself comfortable. And now passed ministers of state and foreign ministers senators, judges; the great and the gay. Meanwhile, poor Pat maintained his post, gazing on the crowd, till the levee having ended, and the president about to retire to his library, he was informed that an obstinate Irishman had taken possession of the hall, and would be satisfied with nothing short of an interview with the president himself. The chief good-natured ly turned into the hall. So soon as the veteran saw his old commander, he roared out: "Long life to your honor's excellence," and at the same time hurling his hat to the floor, and erecting himself with military precision. "Your honor will not remember me, though many's the day that I have marched under your orders, and many's the hard knocks I've had, too. I belonged to Wayne's brigade—Mad Antony, the British called him, and, by the power, he was always mad enough for them. I was wounded in the battle of Germantown. Hurrah for America! and it does my heart good to see your honor; and how is the dear lady and all the little ones?" Here the usually grave temperament of Washington gave way, as, with a smile, he replied, he was well, as was Mrs. Washington, but they were unfortunate in having no children; then pressing a token into the soldier's hand, he ascended the staircase to his library. The Irishman followed with his eyes the retiring general, then looked again and again upon the token, which he had received from his honor's own hand, pouched it, recovered his hat, which he placed with military exactness a little on one side, then took up his line of march, and as he passed the porter, called out, "There now, you Hessian fellow, you see that his honor's excellence has not forgotten an ould soldier."

IS THE EARTH FLAT?

Enthusiasts Who Will Attempt to Prove That It is.

Experiments are soon to be made on the coast of Florida for the purpose of demonstrating that the earth is not round, but flat. Strange as it may seem, there are still a great many people on this terrestrial ball who deny that it is a ball of any sort. The celebrated Professor William Carpenter, who died in Baltimore, last September, was by no means the last of his faith.

In a picture of the earth as these unique theorists believe it to be—or some of them, for they do not all agree, the "South Pole" is seen as a wall of ice surrounding the circular earth. This conception certainly fits well with the idea of the vastness of the Southern wastes of ice which have turned back all explorers.

The hardy searchers for glory have come much nearer to the North Pole, and have made the region around it seem small and familiar compared to that at the South, which is the true "terra incognita." In the flat earth picture, the North polar region is seen to be a small region of eternal cold in the centre of the circular world.

The principal arguments advanced by the flat earth theorists are that a ship might seem to sail around a ball when it merely sailed around a circle; that all the effects of day and night could be produced by a fixed sun shining down upon a circular earth revolving like a card on a pin, and that the longest rivers have a descent of only a few feet.

They say that the phenomenon at sea of the ship "rising" or disappearing is to be explained by refraction, and that if the earth were spherical the compass would not point north and south.

These theorists assert that Sir Isaac Newton was crazy, and Galileo and Columbus mistaken; that if the earth were a revolving globe, a projectile thrown vertically upward would not fall on the spot from which it was hurled.

And all of these propositions are backed up by copious quotations from the Bible, such as the four angles, at the four corners of the earth, the four winds of heaven, the angels that ascended and descended, etc. The underside of the earth having no sun is, say these dreamers, the place of darkness and damnation, and that it is reached only through the bottomless pit.

NERVES ALL ON EDGE.
"So Nervous it Seems You Would Fly to Pieces."
You Are Weak, Tired Out, Discouraged. You are losing Health and Strength.
You Must Have Help. Dr. Greene's Nervura Will Make You Well.

How nervous you are! Your nerves are unstrung and seem all on edge. The sudden, shrill singing of a bird, or the slightest unusual sound sets your nerves quivering and you feel as if you would fly to pieces.

Or perhaps you have attacks of nervous weakness, faint feelings, with sense of extreme weariness and prostration. Possibly your heart palpitates, your limbs tremble and you feel a sinking, with sense of anxiety or foreboding. Your nerves are weak and unstrung and the vitality of your blood is low. That is why you do not sleep well nights and wake mornings feeling so tired and dragged out, why you have no appetite for breakfast and are without energy and ambition. You need the right spring medicine—Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy.

Mrs. D. O. Furnald of Manchester, N. H., writes:—"I have used several bottles of Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy for nervousness. Loss of sleep and appetite were the principal troubles caused by my condition. The ringing of a bell or any sudden sound, no matter if trifling, would cause me to start and it would greatly affect my nerves. I took Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy and I could sleep beautifully and my appetite has returned. I feel so much better that I have now stopped taking the Nervura."

Use this grand remedy. It will cure you. Dr. Greene's Cathartic Pills, are the perfect pills for biliousness and constipation. Dr. Greene, 35 West 14th St., New York City, the most successful physician in curing diseases, can be consulted free, personally or by letter.

PRESSED FOR TIME.

The Senate Hurrying Work on the Appropriation Bills.

Washington, Feb. 23.—The Indian appropriation bill is the unfinished business of the senate to-day, and owing to the limited time remaining to the present congress will undoubtedly be passed to-day. Another of President Cleveland's vetoes of private pension bills drew out from several senators a rather virulent condemnation of the president—Mr. Morgan contrasting the small aggregate amount of all the private pension bills passed at this congress with the large sum placed to the "bond syndicate," and Mr. Gallinger characterizing such vetoes as "trivial and foolish." The veto was referred to the committee on pensions. The Loud bill (to amend the postal laws) was reported back from the post-office committee by Mr. Chandler with amendments, including one for one-cent letter postage. This bill and report were antagonized by two populist senators—Butler and Stewart. There is no chance of definite action upon it during this congress. A resolution was adopted, fixing the daily hour of meeting on and and after to-morrow at 11 a. m.

House of Representatives.

A few weeks ago only the house was the scene of a prolonged debate full of bitterness and personal accusation concerning the Pacific railroad funding bill. Another opportunity for a display of temper and recrimination on the same subject was given in the consideration of a paragraph in the deficiency bill appropriating $1,300,000 to pay a judgment of the court of claims in favor of the Southern Pacific, but the matter was considered in a rather dignified manner with merely a suggestion of feeling. The deficiency bill was passed with few changes in its provisions. The appropriation of $12,000 to refund to members sums deducted from their salaries for absence, was eliminated, as were likewise items providing for the payment of annual salaries to the special employes conceded the democrats by the majority.

OFFICE SEEKERS AT CANTON.

A Score of Them at the Hotels Awaiting an Opportunity To See Maj. McKinley.

Canton, O., Feb. 23.—Inclement weather is keeping the president-elect indoors to-day and the doctor's orders have so far kept visitors away, although there are a score of them at the hotels this morning awaiting an opportunity to tell Maj. McKinley what they want and why they want it. Maj. McKinley is still somewhat indisposed. Mr. Hanna will be here this afternoon, and Col. J. J. McCook of New York is also expected. The report that Col. John Hay of Washington is to be appointed ambassador to Great Britain is on the tongue of politicians here to-day, but it cannot be verified. Col. Hay is a personal friend of the president-elect, and it is known that Major McKinley entertains a high opinion of his ability and fitness for an important diplomatic station. Dr. J. A. Enander of Chicago, who is an applicant for the consul-generalship at Cairo, Egypt, and Wilbur F. Wakeman of New York, paid their respects to the president-elect.

London, Feb. 23.—Blondin, the celebrated tight rope walker, who was the first person to cross Niagara Falls on a tight rope, which feat he performed on Aug. 17, 1859, died from diabetes yesterday at Ealing, a suburb of London.

The Murderous Assault on Mrs. Rolf.

Salem, Mass., Feb. 23.—The police are still at work on the case of the assault committed on Mrs. J. Franklin Rolf on the Willows road Saturday night, and last night arrested Charles Greenlaw, an inmate of the almshouse, on suspicion of being the guilty party. His description tallies with that given by Mrs. Rolf, and he acknowledges he was in the vicinity early in the afternoon, but denies all knowledge of the crime. The club with which she was struck down is found to be a surveyor's stake and came from the almshouse field. Mrs. Rolf is suffering severely from the shock to her nervous system, and her head is badly swollen from the blows, but it is thought she will recover without any serious effects.

Steamer Bermuda at Bermuda.

Halifax, Feb. 23.—A special cable from Bermuda states that the steamer Bermuda of filibustering notoriety arrived there Sunday from Philadelphia with a cargo of coal. Her trip is suspected to be the first step in the direction of a filibustering expedition and she is being closely watched by the military authorities. It is reported that the officers in command of the forts have received orders to fire on the Bermuda should she attempt to leave the harbor without proper clearance papers.

Naval Appropriation Bill.

Washington, Feb. 23.—The report of Chairman Boutelle of the house naval affairs committee on the naval appropriation bill shows an appropriation of $32,168,234, which is $1,602,573 more than the amount for the current year and $2,050,702 below the estimate of the navy department.

WILL FIGHT TO END

Efforts To Negotiate with Combatants in Crete Fail.

BOTH SIDES MASSACRE PRISONERS

Foreign Consuls Who Went to the Interior with Peace Terms and Carrying White Flags Report That They Were Fired Upon by Christians.

Canea, Feb. 23.—The British, Italian and Russian consuls, who recently went to Selino to inquire into the situation there, returned last evening, bringing with them 170 Mussulmans who feared to remain in the town. The consuls state that they were unable to negotiate with the combatants, who were resolved to fight to the end. Both sides, Moslems and Christians, refused to be hampered with prisoners, and, therefore, massacred all their enemies who fell into their hands. Two thousand civilians and 250 Turkish troops, with three guns, are still holding Selino against the Christians, but their position is critical. When attempting to approach Cadano the consuls were fired upon by the Christians, despite the fact that they were bearing a white flag. The Christians had been advised of their arrival, and this made their firing on them all the more inexcusable, as they could not plead that they thought the carrying of the white flag was a trick on the part of the Moslems. As they returned to Selino the Christians there fired on their boats. Nobody is reported to have been injured.

Greek Troops Protect Moslems.

Greek troops have saved the lives of a number of Mussulmans who were captured by the insurgents at Kisamo Kastele. Sixty Turkish soldiers who escaped from Voukoulis, which place is now in the hands of the Christians, have arrived here. Their account of the capture of the place agrees with the report already cabled by the representative of the United Associated Presses. The insurgents at Halepa have again hoisted the Greek flag, but have not renewed their fire on the Turkish posts, which are about 1,600 yards distant from the town.

Indignation at Athens.

Athens, Feb. 23.—The indignation caused by the bombardment of the insurgent position near Canea by the foreign warships has increased, and the action of the powers is denounced on every hand as a gross outrage and a wanton disregard of the rights of Greece. A very largely attended indignation meeting was held last night, at which strong protests were made against the interference of the powers, who, it was declared, were pitting their might against Greek right. Prime Minister Delgannio addressed the meeting. He declared that the cabinet was in perfect accord with the nation. The government knew its duty fully and would perform it in the face of every obstacle. It is stated that several Christians were killed or wounded by the shells fired by the foreign warships, and that great havoc was done to property.

Reforms Necessary in the Entire East.

Paris, Feb. 23.—Replying to an interpellation in the chamber of deputies, M. Hanotaux, minister of foreign affairs, read the obligation of France to co-operate with the other nations of Europe. Crete, he declared, had been placed in the hands of the powers, who would not restore the authority of the sultan in the island, but who would not infringe the integrity of Turkey. The will of Europe would be forcibly imposed upon Greece and also upon Turkey. Greece's intervention in Crete was capable of exciting a general war. The powers would know how to check such ambition. In conclusion, M. Hanotaux said that it would be necessary to effect reforms in the entire east, with the co-operation of the sultan.

27,000 Moslems Killed in Crete.

London, Feb. 23.—A dispatch to the Central News from Constantinople says that official reports from Crete say that the total number of Moslems, men, women and children, who have been killed during the present troubles in that island is over 27,000 and that twenty-five Moslem villages have been pillaged and burned.

Greeks Did No Fighting.

London, Feb. 23.—The Greek charge d'affaires here gives out the statement that no regular Greek troops took part in the attack which was made upon Canea Sunday. The Greek troops, in obedience to orders, he says, abstained and will continue to abstain from all hostilities toward foreigners in Crete.

Ex-Senator Walsh Deprecates War.

New York, Feb. 23.—Ex-United States Senator Walsh of Georgia, who is sojourning here for a few days, predicts a revival of commercial industry in the near future. With regard to the possibility of war with Spain, he deprecated war with any country, but was of the opinion that the time was ripe to notify other nations that the United States is powerful enough to look after itself.

Paper Mills To Be Sold at Auction.

Saratoga, N. Y., Feb. 23.—The Kilmer paper mills at Rock City Falls will be sold here at public auction on March 27 in foreclosure of two mortgages against the Rock City Falls Paper Mills company and Leon F. Blanchard of New York city, president of the company, and others.

To Revise the Statutes.

Washington, Feb. 23.—From the committee on patents Mr. Platt has made a favorable report on the bill to appoint a commission to revise the statutes relative to patents and trade marks.

A DEVOTED MOTHER DEAD.

Death of Mrs. Abby Chase After a Life of Exemplary Conduct.

A devoted mother and a loving friend was lost when Mrs. Abby Chase passed away at her home on Jackson avenue, Saturday afternoon. She was in her sixty-fifth year. Mrs. Chase was ill for some time and it was known that the end was not far off but it came unexpectedly Saturday afternoon as she had seemed much stronger in the morning. She had been suffering with an acute attack of bronchitis but the cause of her death was heart trouble.

Mrs. Chase lived in North Plainfield about ten years, coming there from Clayton, N. J., where she resided for eighteen years. Her husband owned a pharmacy there and was the postmaster of that place. He died in Clayton, where Mrs. Chase's remains were taken this morning for interment. She was a member of the Congregational church and attended regularly when her health permitted. She left two daughters, Effie and Mary.

The funeral was held from her late home, last evening. The simple service was conducted by Rev. C. L Goodrich, who made a few remarks about the departed one. A duet, "Rock of Ages," was sung by Mrs. J. E. Morse add Miss M. G. Morse.

Seats For "Caste."

About twenty of the one dollar and sixty of the seventy-five cent seats remain unsold for the play of "Caste" at Music Hall next Saturday evening. Ladies of the auxiliary board of the hospital who sell seventy-five cent and one dollar tickets should not promise persons who purchase them that they can get them exchanged for reserved seats at the box office unless they are taken there at once. After all one dollar and seventy-five cent seats are taken persons should return their tickets, get their money back, and purchase fifty cent seats. No extra charge is made when tickets are exchanged for seats. The box office is open every day. But few fifty cent seats are sold yet the seats are most of them in good positions.

Day of All Days for Them.

The entertainment and dance given by Martha Washington Council, No. 23, Daughters of America, last evening in Skandia Hall, was very largely attended and in every way a success. The first part of the evening was devoted to a programme, which consisted of recitations by Miss Gerhold, Miss Monfort, Miss Higgins, Miss Lillie Haberle, Miss Anna Haffner; piano solos by Miss Cortright, Miss Laura Radin; and vocal solos by Miss May Bellis, William Bellis, Eli Odam and Charles Case. The committee in charge of the affair consisted of G. S. Martin, Mrs. Mattis, Mrs. Bunn, Mrs. Radin, Mrs. Riker, Mrs. Page, Mrs. McComas, Mrs. Higgins and Garry Mattis.

Leaves a Family to Mourn.

Mrs. Moore, wife of Louis Moore, died at her home on Westervelt avenue yesterday, after a lingering illness from consumption. She had been confined to the house for sometime and her death was not wholly unexpected. She leaves a husband and four children. The funeral services will be held tomorrow evening at 8 o'clock from the house. Interment will be made at Basking Ridge on Thursday morning.

Won a Cup for Fine Drilling.

Cypress Commandery, of this city, met St. John's Commandery, of New York, last evening in a competitive drill for a handsome and costly silver cup. The former Commandery under the command of William J. Douglass, were highly praised for the superb manner in which they executed the drill and for the able way in which they secured the cup, which was awarded to them unanimously. The cup will be placed on exhibition in a few days.

Went in Summer Garb.

The Misses Rocap, of Central avenue, entertained a few friends at their home last evening in a most novel way. The affair was called a picnic and the amusing part of it was that the guests were present in costumes and attire suitable for summer weather. The evening was spent in playing games appropriate to the season represented. The novelty of the programme afforded considerable amusement for all.

Funeral of George L. Taynor.

The funeral services of the late George L. Taynor were held yesterday afternoon from the house at 2:30. Rev. Cornelius Schenck officiated. Those who served as pall-bearers were the following nephews of the departed: L. C. VanNest, Charles Taynor, Samuel Taynor, Grant Taynor, Edward Devine and Horace Adams. Interment was made in the North Plainfield cemetery.

FUNERAL OF MRS. BURROWS.

Services Held in the First Baptist Church Saturday.

The funeral services of Mrs. Martha Halloweli Burrows were held Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock from the First Baptist church. Rev. Dr. D. J. Yerkes, the pastor of the church, conducted the services and directed the thoughts of his listeners to the comforting assurance that the children of the Heavenly King when in the body were absent from the Lord, and to such the going out of life was going home with all the attendant blessedness of beholding the King in His beauty. He spoke with deep feeling of the impression made by Mrs. Burrows, who possessed great force of character, much intellectual strength and Christian devotion. Her wonderful memory, charm of manner, cultured attainments, endurance of affliction and conquering faith, were elements in a life that commanded the respect and admiration of those who knew her. Interment was made in Hillside cemetery.

THEATRICAL.

Those who sought holiday pleasure at Music Hall yesterday afternoon and last night by witnessing the production of "Chris and Lena" by Pete Baker and company, found plenty of amusement of a light and refreshing brand. Though somewhat of a stranger to the local stage, Mr. Baker has made a widespread reputation as a refined German comedian, and his performances yesterday well sustained that idea of his abilities. There is magnetism in his acting for the little folks especially, and the big people—well, they were just as pleased as were their juvenile companions. Mr. Baker's singing is one of the best features of his show. Tonight "The Emigrant" will be produced with plenty of funny situations, in which the German good nature will be shown. A matinee will be given tomorrow afternoon.

No play play within memory tells in such a vivid manner the old story of right and justice as Tompkins' sumptuous revival of "Black Crook." It is a wonderfull realistic sermon, and in it are extolled the virtues of "Stalacta," the Queen, and the bravery of the mortal "Rudolph." The Black Crook (Hertzog) sells his soul for eternal life, and endeavorers to drag Rudolph into perdiction so that he (Hertzog) may longer live. Virtue triumphs in the efforts of Stalacta, and vice, in the person of Hertzog, is punished. It is a remarkably impressve story told in in dramatic form, and with its wealth of gorgeous scenery, magnificent costumes, grand ballets and startling effects, it is ranked among the high-class theatrical offerings for the last thirty years. It will be seen here at Music Hall, Monday, March 1st.

Death of a Rathbone Sister.

The death of Mrs. Hugh Nichols, of 106 West Second street, occurred yesterday after a short illness from the grip. A few days ago she seemed to be getting well and then a turn for the worse retarded the healing hand. She was a member of Minerva Temple, Rathbone Sisters, and the lodge will conduct the service. She was also a member of Hope Chapel. The funeral services will be held tomorrow afternoon at 2:30 from the house. Members of the above lodge are requested to meet at their rooms at 1 o'clock for the purpose of attending the service in a body.

A Small Fire.

Prompt use of a garden hose and the city water extinguished a lively little blaze in the cellar of the residence of Willard M. Miner, of 428 East Sixth street, yesterday afternoon. The hot ashes heated the metal plate under the furnace and set fire to the wood floor underneath. Mr. Miner extinguished it with the stream from the garden hose before the department arrived. An alarm was sent in from box 23 by Ralph K. Miner. The damage was fully covered by insurance. The house is owned by J. T. Vail.

Death of Mrs. Mellick.

The death of Mrs. Andrew D. Mellick, of LaGrande avenue, occurred this morning after an illness of two weeks. She was in her seventy-sixth year. She leaves four daughters, Mrs. Harriet A. Schuyler and Miss Mary A. Mellick, of this city, Mrs. Joseph Tweedy, of Texas, Mrs. L. Duncan Buckley, of New York, and one son, George D. Mellick, of this city.

YOUR PALATE IS YOUR STOMACH'S CONSCIENCE.

YOUR STOMACH KNOWS WHAT IS GOOD FOR YOU.

Thin people are thin because the food they eat is not absorbed. Reasons, eit er wrong food or right food undigested.

Fat, oils and grease will not make any one fat. This is because they are indigestable. Thin people find it hard to digest their food. Fatty foods make it still harder.

Have you ever noticed that almost without exception, thin, pale, dyspeptic, anæmic people have an aversion to fat? This is of itself proof enough that such foods are bad for them.

Let your palate tell you what to eat. Nature makes very few mistakes and we should listen to what she says.

Thin people may become fatter, and dyspeptics more comfortable by taking the Shaker Digestive Cordial It agrees with the weakest stomach. It helps the weak stomach digest other food. It is fattening and invigorating in itself, for it contains artificially digested food.

The Mount Lebanon Shakers have made a great many interesting discoveries within the past hundred years, but none more important than this ingenious cure for all diseases which are traceable to faulty digestion. A single 10 cent bottle will tell whether it is adapted to your case, and can be had through any druggist.

LONE STAR SHINES YET.

Vincent L. Frazee Will Not Be a Republican Councilman.

After all, there is a probability that Vincent L. Frazee will not accept the Councilmanic honor from the Fourth ward tendered him by the Council at its meeting last Monday night. It is understood that Mr. Frazee feels a delicacy as to accepting the place, since he asserts that he has not gone over entirely to the Republican party, as has been claimed by the G. O. P. leaders.

In a letter to the Council tonight it is understood he will suggest that it would have been proper to have elected Arthur T. Gallup to succeed Isaac Randolph, in view of the fact that he was the second choice of the people at the polls on election day.

Why Plainfield is Fortunate.

Early in the season Lieutenant Peary was obliged to withdraw from the lecture platform on account of the necessity of his presence in the Brooklyn Navy Yard. He has been allowed, however, to make a limited number of engagements for the month of February, and one of these was fortunately made for Plainfield. His appearance, therefore, in Music Hall, next week Thursday, is one of the half dozen lectures which he is able to deliver this year. The seats are rapidly being sold, which is a fair criterion of the fact that Plainfield appreciate the privilege extended them.

Inspected and Admired

The Nurses' Home, in connection with the Muhlenberg Hospital, was opened to the public again yesterday afternoon. There were a number of visitors present and all were highly delighted with the new building. The "open house" was an entirely informal affair but some of the ladies of the Auxiliary were present and served tea. Those present of the Auxiliary Board were Mrs. T. D. Van Buren-Miss Schipper, Mrs. Carl Pfeiffer, Miss Cock, Mrs. R. M. Stover, Mrs. Hugh Hastings, Mrs. Emil Woltman.

A Decade Married.

A pleasant holiday event was the tenth wedding anniversary celebrated by Mr. and Mrs. Berkham, of Watchung and Fairview avenues, last evening. There were about twenty people present who joined in the festivities of the occasion. Mr. and Mrs. Berkham received many presents from their friends. The social features of the event were marked.

NOVEL PRESENT FOR THE SULTAN.

A Statue of an Indian Chief as Typical of the Early Life of This Country.

The Smithsonian Institution has decided to make the Sultan of Turkey a present of a life-size figure of a Sioux Indian chief. The figure will represent a chief arrayed for a war dance in war blanket and moccasins with his costume decorated with a profusion of beads. If the Sultan had picked a war chief at the height of his glory from the band in Dakota he would have a more realistic specimen than the one prepared for him at the Smithsonian Institution.

When Secretary Langley of this institute made a trip to Turkey in the summer of 1895, he was accompanied by Dr. Cyrus Adler, the famous Orientalist. The Sultan presented them with several albums of magnificent photographs, and intimated that he would be only too glad to send a contribution to the National Museum.

It was naturally thought proper that these courtesies should be reciprocated, and Secretary Langley came to the conclusion that there could be no more appropriate gift than one that would be typical of the aboriginal life of this country. Orders were given to construct the figure of a Sioux chief, and this, after long care and study, has been completed.—Washington correspondence of The Chicago Times-Herald.

The Punishment of the Bagno.

In former times the punishment of the Bagno (bath), one of the most cleverly cruel inflictions ever devised, by an official of the torture chamber, was administered in Italy, probably in Venice, where the water of the lagoons played so prominent a part in its penal system. The punishment was as follows:

The prisoner was placed in a vat, the sides of which were slightly in excess of the average height of a man. In order to hold in check the rising tide of a supply of water which ran into the vat in a constant stream, the criminal was furnished with a scoop with which to bale out the water as fast as it came in.

The respite from death by immersion thus obtained was more or less prolonged, according to the powers of endurance possessed by the victim. But imagine the moral torture, the exhausting and even hideously grotesque efforts, the incessant and pitiless toil by night and day to stave off the dread moment fast approaching, when, overcome by sleep and fatigue, he was unable to struggle any longer against his fate!

Perpetual Motion.

"So they have discovered perpetual motion out in your State, Colonel Blue," said Major Pickler to the Representative-at-Large from Kansas, as they took seats in the House restaurant for an oyster feast.

"They have discovered all the other crankisms out there, so I am prepared for any new allegations. Elucidate!" replied the Colonel, sententiously.

"Why, a man from Kansas has just been telling me that a firm composed of moneyed men has bought a lot of land in Kansas, and will stock it with 1,000 black cats and 5,000 rats. It is estimated that the cats will increase to 15,000 in a year or two, and black cat skins are worth $1. The rats, he says, will multiply five times as fast as the cats. The rats will be used to feed the cats, and the skinned cats to feed the rats, and if that isn't mighty near perpetual motion I don't know what is."—Washington Star.

FENCE OF ELK HORNS.

J. F. Haynes Has Three Hundred Enclosing His Studio in Yellowstone Park.

More than three hundred elks have unwillingly contributed their magnificent antlers to beautify the enclosure around the studio of F. Jay Haynes, at Mammoth Hot Springs, in Yellowstone Park. It is believed to be the only fence made of elk horns in the world. Mr. Haynes, with three of his men, collected and carefully selected these trophies. They all have twelve points, and many have the royal fourteen.

From twenty to twenty-five thousand elks winter in Yellowstone Park, and the greater per centage of these are males. About April 1 is shedding time, and it is easy enough to gather the shed horns, if one but ascertains the whereabouts of the animals at that time. Their usual habitat is amid the deep snows of the mountains, but an unusually heavy snowfall or a late spring often brings them to lower altitudes.

It is most interesting to note the habits of these fine creatures at this shedding period. When the first horn drops the animal immediately starts in search of the nearest tree or rock to rid himself of the burden of the remaining one. The weight of each branch is from fifteen to thirty pounds. Although thus eager to get rid of his antlers, the elk after losing them becomes for a time a recluse, shunning the company of his kind as much as possible.

In a month's time the new horns begin to appear, and after the expiration of two months they have attained their full size and are covered with a growth of fur. Great is the caution of the animal at this time, as the least bruise causes the horn to flow, the result being the curiously deformed horns so often seen. As the new horns mature the elk rubs off the fur from their surface, and by September they are hard and glossy.

The price of the shed horns is from seven dollars and fifty cents to ten dollars a pair. No one is allowed to remove these specimens from the Park, as it is a national reservation, unless permission is granted by the superintendent. Mr. Hayes obtained a permission for the collection used for his fence, with the proviso that they are to be kept within the Park. Although there are now three hundred horns in this unique fence, as many more will have to be added to complete it around the enclosure.—New York Herald.

Correctly Informed.

"Yassir," said Rastus, "da shore was some shootin' at de club las' night, Mr. Munro. You has not been at all disinformed. Mistah Washington Bates he shot seven an' eleben nine times in procession. Pete Johnson shot out de lights, and I shot ober de fence."—Indianapolis Journal.

Disease Lurks in Dyed Fur.

The latest medical discovery reveals the fact that almost all furs are propagators of disease, because of the dyes with which they are stained, and that the wearer of a fur cape or collar or any piece of fur that touches her skin is subjecting herself to perils that she does not dream of. The soft, beautifully shaded fur conceals poisons that are always injurious, sometimes even deadly in their effects. In dyeing seal, the chief chemicals are sulphate of copper, copper dust and antimony. Sables are dyed with arsenic, orpiment, sulphate of copper and sulphate of iron. Alaska marten is colored by verdigris, sulphate of iron and logwood.

One instance of these effects is afforded by the case of a New York woman whose physicians traced a severe case of erysipelas to a new sealskin coat, which she had worn but a few times. The friction of the fur produced a lesion in the skin of the neck which afforded entrance for the poisonous dyes in the fur, and, because of the condition brought about by these poisons, for the entrance of the erysipelas bacilli. The eruption characteristic of the disease covered the entire neck and ear, or the portion exposed to the action of the fur dyes.

A Plea for the Apple.

A Brooklyn physician translates the following from a German writer: "The apple is such a common fruit that few persons are familiar with its remarkably efficacious medicinal properties. Everybody ought to know that the very best thing he can do is to eat apples just before going to bed. The apple is excellent brain food, because it has more phosphoric acid, in an easily digestible state, than any other fruit known. It excites the action of the liver, promotes sound and healthy sleep, and thoroughly disinfects the mouth. It also agglutinates the surplus acids of the stomach, helps the kidney secretions and prevents calculus growth, while it obviates indigestion and is one of the best preventives of diseases of the throat. Next to lemon and orange, it is also the best antidote for the thirst and craving of persons addicted to the alcohol and opium habit."

A Concise Receipt.

A story from a town not a thousand miles from Bar Harbor, Me., quite equals the celebrated note story of Hans and Fritz. It runs as follows: Dan and Mose, neither of whom was noted for his erudition, were partners in an enterprise which it is needless to specify. One morning Mr. —— called to settle a small bill that was due to them, and, after paying, asked for a receipt. Mose retired to the privacy of his office, and, after a long wait, returned with the following: "We've got our pay. Me and Dan."—Boston Herald.

TWO LICENSES REFUSED

COUNCIL THINKS THAT THERE IS TOO MUCH LIQUOR TRAFFIC.

J. J. Sullivan and William Willis Fail to Have Applications Granted—Alfred H. Leivers Councilman From Fourth Ward.

Now that the liquor licenses have been granted and a successor has been found to fill the place of ex-Councilman Randolph, it can reasonably be expected that the Council will settle down to some solid work. Previous to the meeting of the Council last evening one member remarked: "This is the meeting of the year when the Councilmen would rather stay home than to attend." And that remark was true.

It was confidently expected that the session would be a short one, but this was the time when all signs failed, for it was 11 o'clock when the meeting adjourned. In the absence of President Dumont, Councilman Westphal was chosen president pro tem. Immediately after the Council was called to order Councilman Barrows moved that a recess of ten minutes be taken. It was taken, with forty minutes added to it.

Of course it is not known exactly what the recess was for, but it is fair to presume that the members were looking for a man to take the place of Mr. Frazee, who was elected a member one week ago, and who refused to serve, and that the question of granting the licenses was discussed.

When the members reconvened Mr. Barrows called up the resignation of Councilman Frazee, which was read. No reason was given for the action, and on a motion it was accepted. Mr. Serrell then offered the name of Alfred H. Leivers to fill the vacancy. On a motion the clerk cast the ballot and Mr. Leivers was elected. The new Councilman is an expert tool maker at the Pond Tool Works, and resides at No. 70 Jefferson avenue. He was recommended by several of the political leaders. Soon after he was elected he appeared and took his seat.

The regular order of business was then taken up and a petition was received from the Town Improvement Association asking the Council to put suitable street signs where needed. The matter was referred to the proper committee and it will receive attention later.

Residents of Madison avenue asked that the electric lighting be extended to Randolph road, and residents of West Front street asked that a crosswalk be placed on the southwest side of Albert street. Both petitions were referred.

Michael Powers presented a bill of $175, together with an explanation to the effect that he had been ordered to lay certain stone walks on West Front street, and that after he had secured the material for doing the work he was informed that the property owners had been given the privilege of securing whoever they pleased to do it. He thought that the Council should re-imburse him to the amount of $175 which he claimed was due him. On motion of Mr. Frost the matter was referred to the Corporation Counsel.

At this time a number of petitions were received from different people and organizations protesting against the granting of liquor licenses. One petition was from the Woman's Temperance Aid Association signed by Mrs. G. F. Opdyke. Another was from the members of the Mt. Olive Baptist church asking that no saloon be located in the vicinity of their church. Ethan Lanphear presented a petition as did also the Society of Friends. Mr. Frost presented one from the members of the W. C. T. U., signed by 1,268 names, and on his motion a number of the names were read. Mr. Frost stated that a great deal of time had been spent in getting the signers, and he thought the petition should receive careful attention. Mr. Barrows moved that all the petitions be received and filed.

The usual batch of hack and cart licenses were granted with the exception of the applications of Peter Seader, C. Guinee, John Kennedy, H. DeMott and Charles Barry.

Mr. Baker stated that the bond certificates would be ready within ten days, as it would require that much time to finish them.

Mr. Barrows made a motion that the petition of the Plainfield Sanitary Company be granted on the following conditions: That the company deposit $1,000 as an evidence of good faith that the work will be done right, within five days after the adoption of the motion. Further that the Council reserves the right to give others the permission to establish a similar plant; that the city is not obligated in any way; that the contract has to be approved by the Corporation Counsel; that the company has to defend all litigation that may be brought against them, and

SEEKING RIGHT OF WAY.

TROLLEY ROAD MAY GET THROUGH PISCATAWAY TOWNSHIP.

The Hearing Given by the Township Committee Continued Yesterday—Railway People Ask Those Interested to Inspect.

The conference between the Piscataway Township committee and the representatives of the Brunswick Traction Company at Nelson's Hotel, New Market, was continued yesterday afternoon, when several farmers were heard in the matter. None of them really disapproved of the proposed route or the introduction of the trolley. Some of the farmers, however, wanted the committee to go so far as to compel the traction company to lay its track or tracks as the case may be on either side of the centre driveway. The company agrees to make its own road bed and keep the same in repair, build its own bridges and keep the gutter next to its track open and in repair.

The trolley people kindly invited the property owners to accompany them in stages over the proposed route on Friday of this week, so that the objective points, if any exist, may be pointed out and noted. The proposed route as laid out is from New Brunswick direct to Bound Brook, thence through centennial road laid out in 1876 through New Market to Centre street, in Dunellen.

An ordinance relating to the matter was introduced, and it will now become necessary to have it advertised for a certain length of time before final action can be taken. Meanwhile adjournment was made to Friday next, when another meeting will be held at Judge Cowenhaven's farm near Piscataway.

Another Trolley Petition.

Dunellen and New Market seem just at this time to be the scene of much contention among the several trolley companies which are trying to pass through their quiet precincts. The latest company to apply for a franchise is the New York and Philadelphia Traction Company and representatives of the company will be granted an audience with the Piscataway Township committee at L. B. Nelson's hotel on Thursday of this week, when application will formally be made asking for a franchise to construct and maintain a trolley system from Bound Brook to Dunellen and to the Borough line on the east. The proposed route is along North avenue, the road recently laid out by the surveyors of highways, and passing directly through the new town of Lincoln.

WHERE NOBLE MEN FOUGHT

MONUMENT TO MARK THE SPOT.

Battle Ground of Bound Brook to be Made Prominent.

At a meeting of Washington Camp Ground Association at Bound Brook yesterday it was decided to spend $150 to erect a monument to mark the spot where the battle of Bound Brook was fought.

Although very little is heard concerning this battle, yet it was perhaps the most decisive defeat which the Americans experienced in New Jersey. It was fought on April 13th, 1777, between 500 Americans under General Lincoln and over 4,000 British under Cornwallis, and resulted in the Americans being dislodged and routed after stoutly contesting every inch of ground. The monument is to be a boulder found near by, when the excavation for the Delaware and Raritan canal was made in 1832. It weighs several tons and will mark the exact position of the battle, just north of the new undergrade crossing. Upon one side will be a shield and upon the other a tablet with suitable inscriptions. The unveiling will take place upon the 13th of April next, the one hundred and twentieth anniversary of the engagement.

Dr. "Tom's" Prediction.

The lecture by Lieutenant Peary will be given tomorrow night in Music Hall, instead of a week from tomorrow night as was inadvertently stated yesterday in these columns. Dr. T. S. Armstrong, who is selling the tickets at his pharmacy, says that when the famous explorer makes his bow to a Plainfield audience there will not be a vacant seat in the house, and Dr. "Tom" is a veteran prognosticator in the size of lecture audiences in Plainfield.

COLONIAL DAMES WERE HERE IMPERSONATED.

MARTHA WASHINGTON TEAS GIVEN BY TWO CHURCH SOCIETIES LAST EVENING THAT WERE SUCCESSFUL.

One in the Park Avenue Baptist Church and the Other in Trinity Reformed Church, Where Sociability Was the Most Pleasant Feature—The Programmes and the Participants in Both of the Entertainments.

Martha Washington fairly owned the city last evening, to judge from the numerous affairs given in her honor. There was none, had she been present, that she would have more enjoyed than the entertainmnet given in the chapel of the Park Avenue Baptist church by the members of the Whatsoever Circle of King's Daughters. It was something out of the natural run of church entertainmens and was pleasing to all promoters and spectators.

The programme opened with a selection by the Ladies' Orchestra, rendered in their usual satisfactory manner. A regular little stage with all the necessary adjuncts, including footlights, had been built at the front of the room. On this was acted out a proverb, which the audience was required to guess. The proverb was: "There's many a slip 'tween the cup and the lip."

The story as acted out was exciting. Wesley Brokaw was the crabbed old man, Peppergrass, who was determined that his ward, (Mrs. Jennie Smalley), should not marry the man of her choice, Harry Coleman, (Thomas A. Cuming). The ward and the persistent lover were equally determined that the wedding should take place. Old Peppergrass hurried his ward off and they traveled afar while Coleman followed them. They happened to stop at an inn during their travels and here the principal scene of the farce was laid. They were received by the smiling proprietor, (Joseph M Hawkins), and they sat down in the dining room. Peppergrass went out to see about some of their affairs and Coleman appeared at the other door. Peppergrass returned and the bold lover hid beneath the table for safe keeping. Peppergrass and his ward ate their dinner, while the latter quietly passed choice bits to her lover under the table. The maid, (Miss Adelaide Runyon), appeared to tell Peppergrass that there was some trouble over the baggage and he went out to investigate. Meanwhile the ward and Coleman departed by the back door for the nearest clergyman's house and were married. Then they returned to brave the displeasure of Peppergrass, who finally relented and all ended happily.

A recitation was delightfully rendered by Miss Rita Pond. Then the orchestra gave another selection. The tableau, "The Explanatory Letter," was given by Charles Hayes. The only character in the tableau was a college boy, who had written home for money to buy a wheel. He received an answer that the crops were poor but that his mother sent her spinning wheel so he might take his wheel and go out for a spin.

Mrs. Jennie Smalley was the principal figure in the next tableau, "The Old Oaken Bucket," and a quartette, composed of Mrs. W. S. Lowry, Miss Adeline Runyon, W. S. Lowry and Thos. A. Cuming, sang the selection of that name from behind the scenes.

The next part of the entertainment was a charade. The word acted out was "antidote." George Eckhardt appeared as the invalid and Miss Elma Runyon as his aunt, who was keeping house for him. His cousin, (Mrs. W. S. Lowry), came to visit them and finally proved that the illness of the invalid was nervousness, and her lively actions completely drove it out of his mind. G. W. V. Moy was the doctor.

A recitation by Miss Pond followed, and then another selection by the orchestra. The programme closed with the tableau, "Where is My Wandering Boy Tonight?" The old couple of the tableau were represented by Wesley R. Brokaw and Miss Myra Runyon. The quartette sang the song of that name.

Everybody then adjourned to the parlors where ice cream and cake were served and a period of sociability was spent.

The committee from the Circle that arranged this delightful affair consisted of Mrs. W. S. Lowry, Mrs. Jennie Smalley and Miss Jennie Jeffers. They were greatly assisted in their efforts by J. M. Hawkins and Thomas A. Cuming, who made themselves generally useful in the preparation of the entertainment.

Many of the waitresses were in the costume of the eighteenth century and wore their hair powdered.

The Ladies' Opportunity.

VanEmburgh & Son place on sale tomorrow a complete line of ladies' muslin underwear, the entire stock marked as special. All fine goods —Additional locals on page 3.

It was a national affair and Dame Martha Washington was the reigning heroine of the hour. It is the custom of the Christian Endeavor Society of the Trinity Reformed church to hold a sociable once a month. Last evening the sociable for this month was held and it was made a Martha Washington tea in honor of the holiday just past.

The first part of the evening was spent in enjoying the intellectual tea in the shape of a programme of recitations and instrumental and vocal selections. The members of the reception committee were on duty near the door and the new comers were cordially welcomed.

At the opening of the programme all united in singing several stanzas of "America." Then followed a duet by Miss Nellie Winckler on the piano and Dyckman Winckler on the violin. Miss Hoagland, dressed in the costume of a century ago, recited "When I First Learned to Skate." Miss Grane sang a soprano solo and was followed by Miss Mary A. Luckey who gave a very enjoyable recitation. Horace J. Martin and his two sons gave a vocal trio. Miss Hoagland recited again and Miss Grant also sang. Another recitation by Miss Luckey was next on the programme which concluded with a violin and piano duet by Dyckman Winckler and Miss Nellie Winckler. All the numbers on the programme were well rendered and thoroughly enjoyed by those in attendance as was shown by their hearty applause.

Then, while the guests gathered in groups for a social chat, tea crullers and other old-fashioned refreshments were served by members of the society in eighteenth century costume. The ladies assisting were Miss Alice Ross, Mrs. F. C. Adams, Miss Lillian A. Force, Mrs. David Richards, Miss Helen Bogert, Miss Crissie Smalley and Miss Nellie Fenner. On the tea table, which was arranged in one of the alcoves to the basement where the sociable was held, were many relics of the time of Washington or before.

The room was decorated for the occasion with many American flags of all sizes. The table was somewhat decorated also.

The sociable was arranged by the social committee of the society which consists of Miss Alice Ross, chairman, Miss Crissie M. Smalley, Mrs. F C. Adams, Miss Edith DuBois and Elmer Garretson. The reception committee was also on duty. It is composed of the following: E. E. Anthony, H. W. Marshal, Mrs. A. J. Moore, Miss Mary Van Fleet and Miss Viola Huff.

KNIGHTS WERE BUT PIRATES

Dr. Riggs Thus Characterizes the Chivalrous Men of Mediæval Times.

University Extension has hitherto been confined to the east side of the town, the lectures being given in the chapel of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church, but last night there was begun a series of University Extension lectures in the chapel of Irving School, West Fourth street and Monroe avenue, especially meant for the dwellers on the westside.

The first lecture was delivered by Dr. James F. Riggs, of Rutgers College, so well known to all Plainfield University Extension students, and dealt with "Chivalry and the Crusades." Dr. Riggs was seen at his best in this lecture; his style, always brilliant, entertaining and racy, was on this occasion often witty and humorous, and full of bright illustrative anecdotes.

In beginning his lecture, Dr. Riggs described the mediæval knight and the strange condition of society which was necessary for the existence of such a remarkable institution as chivalry, an institution which would not be tolerated six months in one of strong modern governments. In those early times when society was rough and brutal enough, the best of it was represented by the knights and the priests.

KICKED INTO A FEED-BOX.

A Woman's Miraculous Escape From Serious Injury by a Horse.

Mrs. Somerset, of Sycamore street, was kicked by Dr. Berg's horse this morning while she was performing some work about the stable. The blow threw Mrs. Somerset a considerable distance and when she alighted she found herself in a feed-box. As soon as she learned that she was not injured she arose from her position and returned to her house. She escaped with a slight scratch on the head.

WHAT WOMEN HAVE DONE

TO BEAUTIFY AND MAKE DESIRABLE THE TOWN OF CRANFORD.

Mrs. Bates, President of the Cranford Association, Tells Plainfield Women the Secret of Their Success in the Work.

The regular meeting of the Town Improvement Association was held at the Y. M. C. A. building yesterday afternoon. In the absence of the president, Mrs. Pierre Malli, the secretary, Mrs. S R. Krom was chosen to fill the position temporarily. The report of the treasurer showed that there is at present $30.23 in the treasury, and that during the past month $55 had been expended.

Mrs. Bates, the president of the Village Improvement Association, of Cranford, gave an informal talk in which she told some very interesting things concerning the work accomplished in her town. She said that the disposal of garbage, postoffice idlers, the condition of the sidewalks and the state of things in general about the railroad station, were the four principal reasons for the formation of the association, and since the organization the members had succeeded in making an improvement in whatever they undertook. At present they have a membership of eighty women and twelve men, while they have an auxiliary composed of school children with a membership of seventy-five. Among the things which the association is trying to do at present is to secure a new station at the railroad, a new school house with all the modern improvements, and many other things of smaller importance.

Mrs. Smith, a member of the Montclair Association, was present and related some of the interesting things about the work of that association.

Before the meeting closed the members decided to invite Miss Griffen, the president of the Children's Association, of Cranford, also the vice-president, to address a meeting of children to be held in this city at an early date.

The committee on trees and parks would like to receive contributions of flowers, and they desired the city papers to make a plea for them. The flowers will be used at convenient places to beautify unsightly spots about town.

MORE LAWYERS.

Two Plainfield Students Successful in Passing Examinations.

Another batch of attorneys-at-law was turned out at the Trenton court, yesterday, and two Plainfield law students were included in the list. They were Walter G. Williams, of the law offices of S. S. Swacknamer, and Isaac P. Runyon, of the law offices of Harry C. Runyon. Williams was admitted under the five counselors act and had to take seven examinations, while the others only took two. Williams will probably remain in the law offices of Mr. Swackhamer for the present. He will try his first case this afternoon in Justice Thomas' court at the hearing of Glazier for assault and battery. Williams will represent the complainant, Coriell. The lawyer for the other side will be City Judge DeMeza.

Mr. Runyon will go to Somerville, where he will go into partnership with Fred A. Pope.

S. S. Swackhamer took his examinations for counselorship and was successful.

A Farewell Reception.

It is the custom of the Temperance Cadets of the St. Mary's Parochial School to give a farewell reception to each of their members as he becomes old enough so that he has to leave the school. A farewell reception was given to John Butscher Monday evening in the school building. A programme was given in the first part of the evening and consisted of a temperance song, a recitation "Taste It Not" by John Barry, a solo and chorus "God Bless You," violin and piano selection by John Madden and Tom Mack. All present than partook of a bountiful repast that had been prepared. At the conclusion of which John Butscher made his valedictory address, Edward Lynch one of the oldest of the alumni of the society, made a few remarks, song by Thomas Flynn, John McCoy and Theodore Shirley and dances by Joseph and John Conway were then given. Father Smyth brought the reception to a close with a few appropriate remarks.

Glad to Get Back Home.

The two New Market runaway boys, Albert Johnson and Daniel Moody, the account of whose disappearance was exclusively told in The Press, have returned. They set forth with flying colors to find fame and fortune in the great city of New York but they returned quietly Saturday evening, glad enough to enjoy the comforts of home again. They were willing to remain at home and attend school as usual and have had all they want of that kind of adventure for the present.

CORPSE LAID ALL NIGHT.

NOW THOUGHT THAT MICHAEL MCCARTY WAS KILLED MONDAY NIGHT.

Did Not go Home at Night as Was His Custom and His Family Did Not Know His Whereabouts Until Word Came of Death.

Certain facts have come to light which go to prove that Michael MacCarty, who was found dead in the cellar of the residence of Mrs. J. H. Ackerman, on West Seventh street, with his skull crushed, did not meet his death yesterday morning as was thought at that time. The accident evidently happened the evening before.

The last seen of MacCarty was when he went into the residence of Marion S. Ackerman, of West Seventh street, to look after the fire and then went over to the other house to look after the fire there. It is his custom to look after the fires and then go home for supper. His family awaited him but he did not come and somebody went to the house to see if he was there. The house was locked and no one came to the door when the bell was rung. It was therefore supposed that he had left the house. His family waited anxiously for him but he did not appear. In the morning came the news of the finding of his body.

It would thus seem that he met his death Monday evening, and that his body lay there all night until found by the plumbers in the morning. The doctors say that death was instantaneous and that his proximity to the furnace probably accounted for the warmth of the body when it was found.

County Physician Westcott came to Plainfield yesterday and granted permission to have the body removed and interred. There seems to be no doubt but that he met his death through a false step when going down the stairs in the dark.

A POST-LENTEN WEDDING.

John Hillier Hart to Take a Wife at Orange Next Tuesday.

One of the notable weddings of the post-Lenten season will take place in Trinity church, Newark, Tuesday afternoon, March 2d, at 5:30, when John Hillier Hart, a member of the firm of Hillier & Co., and Miss Adeline Corie Martin, of Orange, will be united in marriage.

The bride is a well known public school instructor, while the groom is considered to be one of Newark's best business men. He is also well known in this vicinity where he has a host of friends.

The wedding will no doubt be one of the most largely attended in Newark for sometime past, as there has been ninteen hundred invitations issued. Receptions will be held on Wednesdays, April 21st and 28th, at No. 58 Carnegie avenue, East Orange, from 5. to 9 p. m.

FOUGHT ABOUT A TICKET.

A Dispute on the Tracks Ends in Arrest and Punishment.

The trouble was over a ticket. VanNest said that it was his and that Kearns tried to take it away, while Kearns claimed that he only wanted to look at it. They quarreled. Detective Blackford saw them fighting on the North avenue station platform last evening and promptly arrested them both. They were locked up and arraigned before the City Judge this morning. Both culprits were young men. One was Joseph and the other Henry Van Nest. They admitted that they had been scrapping over the cause already mentioned. Kearn has been up in the city court three times already. He was sent to the county jail for twenty days as he could not pay the $5 fine. VanNest paid a $3 fine.

Commencing With Children.

"An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure" is surely true in temperance work, as in everything else. The Loyal Temperance Legion, the children's temperance society organized some time ago by the Woman's Christian Temperance Union of this city, has been doing unusually good work this winter, under the efficient direction of Miss Eda Beekman as leader and Mickham Beekman as secretary. The meeting this week was held yesterday instead of Monday, the latter day being a holiday, and a special programme was arranged. Rev. A. M. Phelps, of the Plainfield Business College, gave a very interesting talk on "The effects of alcohol on the stomach," illustrated by charts showing the condition of the stomach in health and under the effects of alcoholic drinks.

—The jury in the Davison trial at Elizabeth, yesterday, brought in a verdict for acquittal. Davison was accused of breaking into cars at Cranford and the case was tried sometime ago, the jury failing to agree. The case was tried again with the result above mentioned.

FIGHTING IN CRETE

Christians and Turks Renew Hostilities in the Suburbs of Canea.

TURKISH WARSHIP FIRES ON REBELS

White Flag Flying Over the Christians Position at the Time---Formal Protest Against the Recent Bombardment by Foreign Warships.

Canea, Feb. 24.—Great excitement was caused here last night by smart rifle firing to the westward of the town. It was soon learned that the firing was taking place between the Turkish outposts and Christian insurgents, and the report spread that the outposts had been driven back and the insurgents were approaching the town. Crowds of residents went to the ramparts of the city and anxiously watched the outcome of the fighting. The firing ceased in a short time without either side having gained any material advantage or, so far as known, causing any casualties. A Turkish warship in Suda bay and the soldiers in the arsenal there fired repeatedly at the village which was shelled Sunday by the foreign fleets. There was absolutely no reason for this attack except that the Turks were desirous of provoking an occasion for further intervention on the part of the European powers. A white flag was flying over the position occupied by the insurgents, but this did not prevent the firing. The insurgents, probably understanding the motives of the Turks, did not reply to the fire. The leaders of the insurgents who were shelled Sunday have made through the Greek commodore a formal protest against the action of the foreign admirals. They declare in their protest that, acting in obedience to the powers, they refrained from actual hostilities against the Moslems as long as it was possible.

Crete Thoroughly Blockaded.

Athens, Feb. 24.—A dispatch to the Asty from Canea says that the foreign warships are now thoroughly blockading the coast of Crete. The British torpedo boats are especially active, rapidly steaming along the coast and keeping a sharp lookout to prevent the landing of troops, provisions or munitions of war. Many vessels have been stopped by the blockading fleet and were not allowed to proceed until they had satisfactorily proved that they were engaged in legitimate business. So strict is the blockade that the carrying of letters to the Piraeus from the force of Col. Vassos, the commander of the Greek army of occupation, is prohibited.

Peace Story Unconfirmed.

Constantinople, Feb. 24.—The report that the Cretan difficulties have been settled upon the basis of autonomy for the island, the porte nominating the governor of Crete under the assent and approval of the powers, cannot be authoritatively confirmed. The report that large quantities of munitions of war are being hurried to the Greek frontier and that the Turkish troops there are being rapidly reinforced in view of opposition by the Greeks also lacks confirmation.

Instructions to British Admiral Secret.

London, Feb. 24.—In the house of commons Right Hon. A. J. Balfour, first lord of the treasury, replying to the request made by Sir William Harcourt that the instructions given to the British admiral at Canea be laid before the house, said that he was compelled to decline to comply with the demand as it would be impolitic to do so.

Combatants Agree to an Armistice.

Canea, Feb. 24.—The foreign consuls have persuaded the Moslem and Christian combatants in the Selinos district to agree to a week's armistice.

A Purely Negro Enterprise.

Charlotte, N. C., Feb. 24.—A cotton mill company, to be operated entirely by colored labor, has been organized at Concord in this state. Warren Coleman, the originator of the idea and a wealthy colored man, is secretary and treasurer. All the officers are colored and the capital was subscribed by colored people.

James Marshall Must Stand Trial.

Chester, Pa., Feb. 24.—James T. Marshall, the self confessed murderer of the stranger at Cobbs Creek, who has since contradicted himself, will have to stand trial at court. A prima facie case has been made out, and Marshall committed to jail without bail.

OF NO SIGNIFICANCE

Gen. Lee's Resignation at This Time is in Order.

SENSATIONAL CUBAN TALE EXPLAINED

Customary for All Our Representatives Abroad To Place Their Resignations with the State Department on the Eve of a Change of Government.

Washington, Feb. 24.—The incoming mails of the past few days received at the state department have been burdened with resignations of diplomatic and high consular officers abroad. It is a custom which has developed the force of an unwritten law for all our diplomatic officers to place their resignations in the hands of the secretary of state of the outgoing administration, when the change of administration, as in this case, involves a change of political parties. Mr. Bayard's resignation as ambassador to England, it is understood, was received some time since, as was also Mr. Eustis' as ambassador to France, and Mr. Uhl's as ambassador to Germany. The consuls general in London, Paris and Liverpool, these being regarded as positions more important than many of the minor diplomatic posts, have also intimated that they await the nomination and qualification of their successors. By the urgent insistence of our state department, when Ramon O. Williams was consul-general at Havana and Martinez Campos was captain-general of Cuba, Mr. Williams was accorded semi-diplomatic rights, representations directly from the government of Cuba, instead of forwarding his remonstrances to the state department at Washington to be in this way transmitted to Madrid and referred back to the captain-general, thus insuring interminable delay. Our consul-general thus occupying so important a position, the state department officials entertain no doubt that he has forwarded his resignation in the same manner as other officials of like rank, so as to place the appointment of his successor at the disposal of Mr. McKinley, if he should choose to act upon the resignation. The sensational report from Havana that Consul Lee had forwarded his resignation is thus explained.

Further Denial of the Cuban Sensation.

At the state department this morning it was again positively denied that Consul-General Lee has resigned because the state department had declined to authorize him to demand the release of American prisoners, and also because our government failed to send warships to Cuba in compliance with his request. The Virginia members of congress have no information concerning the intentions of Gen. Lee. Mr. Otey said to-day: "I place no credence in the report that Gen. Lee has resigned because of any disagreement with the administration. Gen. Lee's friendship for the president is very strong and I believe that would restrain him from taking such a step even if he felt disposed to do so." Mr. Tyler said: "I have no information of Gen. Lee's opinions on the Cuban question, but it would be due him to resign if he thought the administration was failing properly to protect American citizens."

Drowned While Attending Trawls.

Gloucester, Mass., Feb. 24.—Schooner Edward A. Perkins, from the Grand Banks, reports that Norman Jodrey and Harry Olsen, both unmarried, members of the crew, were drowned by the capsizing of a dory while attending trawls.

Connecticut Senate and House at Odds.

Hartford, Feb. 24.—The house, by a vote of 55 to 31, yesterday afternoon passed a resolution inviting Wm. J. Bryan to visit the capitol during his stay in this state. In the senate the resolution was rejected by an emphatic yea and nay vote.

Greater New York Charter Hearing.

Albany, Feb. 24.—The cities committees of the senate and assembly will give a joint hearing on the Greater New York charter to the Greater New York commissioners to-morrow evening.

Silver Dollars and Fractional Coin.

Washington, Feb. 24.—The issue of standard silver dollars from the mints and treasury offices for the week ending Feb. 20 was $331,649. The shipment of fractional silver coin from Feb. 1 to 20 aggregated $460,598.

COSTLY ECCENTRICITY.

He Earned the Second Copy In Order to Possess the Only One in Existence.

A certain servant, noted for his eccentricities, had a mania for collecting rare and curious old books, which absorbed the greater part of his not inconsiderable fortune.

Among other rarities he possessed a volume which he prized most highly, as he believed it to be the only one extant. Learning one day that there existed in Paris another copy of the same work, he stuffed his pockets full of bank-notes, and set out for the French capital, where he drove straight to the address of his "rival."

After the usual preliminaries, the following conversation took place:

"Sir, you possess a copy of such and such a work?"

"Quite right. The book is in my library. You wish to look at it, here it is."

"Very good. I'll give you 1,000 fr. for it."

"Sir, I am not a dealer in books."

"Five thousand francs?"

"I repeat——"

"Ten thousand francs?"

"Really, sir, I am not justified in refusing such an offer. Here, the book is yours."

Our savant paid down the money and received the volume. The scene of the interview was a large library, where a blazing fire was burning. Having attentively examined his newly acquired treasure, our savant suddenly threw it into the fire with a satisfaction which he made no attempt to conceal. The Frenchman, in the belief that he had to deal with a madman, tried to snatch the book out of the flames, but was stopped by his visitor, who calmly observed:

"Sir, I also posses a copy of this work. It is now the only one that exists in the world. I wish you a very good morning."—Tid-Bits.

USES OF OLD SHOES.

The Manner in Which They are Treated in This Country and in France.

Old shoes are not lost by any means. In this country they are dissected and subjected to a course of manipulations by which they are converted into a kind of artificial leather, which is made to look very fine, and may be elegantly ornamented. In France they go through a less elaborate transformation. At the military prison in Montpellier the shoes, the majority of which come from Spain, are ripped apart and the nails are drawn out. The parts are softened in water, and are then cut up by a machine into vamps for children's or little girls' shoes. The soles are likewise utilized. The smallest pieces are used to make the Louis XIV. toes which were in fashion a few years ago. Pieces a little larger and thinner are made into the soles of babies' shoes. The nails of iron are separated by means of a magnet from copper nails, and the latter are sold for a higher price than the others. The manager of the prison represents that the returns from this manufacture nearly equal the cost of the old shoes.—Twinkles.

A Railroad Without Cars.

"There is a railroad out in Oregon which has no cars," said J. W. Cooper, Jr., the railway man. "This does not mean that the railway is deserted, for it does a very good business. The railroad of which I speak is in the forest of the Bridal Veil Lumbering Company, near The Dalles. The trains in use by the railway consist of an ordinary locomotive, such as is in common use on logging railways, and a string of logs, each log being as large in diameter or larger than the boiler of the engine. The sleepers between the rails have boards nailed to them, and on these boards the logs slide. The boards are greased except on descending grades, and the train moves at a pretty fast rate of speed.

"When the end of the road is reached the logs are run into a flume and carried two miles to the mill, where they are manufactured into boards, which are shipped by another flume two miles further to the planing mill."—Chicago Times-Herald.

McKinley Garten School.

Up in the North Carolina mountains an old man has a cabin which is a resort for hunters. He has a grandchild of whom he is very proud. She is a pretty, golden-haired girl and a pet of the hunters, who warm the cockles of the old man's heart by singing her praises.

On a recent trip one of the hunters, after a little skirmish with the child, went out to the old man, who was doing some work about the cabin, and said:

"I say, grandpop, Nellie is smarter than ever."

"Yes," responded the old man, proudly. "When she was in the city a visitin' of her aunt she went to one of those McKinley garten schools and learned a heap."—Washington Star.

Dobson: "Shakespeare never repeated. He was original in everything."

Smiley: "Guess that's so. He didn't even spell his own name twice alike."

out in the rain

A good drenching in a cold rain is often the beginning of consumption. Yet no one claims that the germs of this disease exist in the rainwater. Then how was this brought about? The exposure was followed by a cold; the vitality was lowered; the cough continued for some weeks; the throat and lungs became congested; and thus all the conditions were favorable for the consumption germs.

Scott's Emulsion

of Cod-liver Oil, with Hypophosphites, does not directly attack these germs and kill them. But it does tone up the whole system and restores the body to health before serious harm is done. The germs of consumption thrive best when the system is weakened and the throat and lungs congested. Do not delay until it is too late, but treat your cough early. Cod-liver oil and the hypophosphites, in the form of Scott's Emulsion, are the very best remedies.

"JUST AS GOOD" IS NOT SCOTT'S EMULSION.

THE CURLS WERE MISSING.

Mean Advantage Doris Took When the Satchels Were Exchanged.

"How did you enjoy the Suburban Club ball?" asked the girl in the picture hat.

"Not at all," replied the girl in the empire jacket; "it was perfectly horrid."

"Why, I heard that the decorations, music and supper were perfectly lovely and—"

"O, yes, they were nice enough. But my faith in human nature had just received such a shock that I couldn't enjoy anything. You know Doris and I went out in the afternoon together, we were to stop at Mrs. Brownsmith's, and go to the ball under her chaperonage, you know."

"Why, I didn't know that you needed a chaperon, dear."

"I don't. I—I have always known how to behave properly in society without any advice. Of course if I was like——"

"Of course; that was what I meant," said the girl in the picture hat, hastily. "Well, were Doris' cheeks as pink as ever at the ball?"

"Pinker. We took our evening gowns out with us and, oddly enough, our satchels were just alike. In taking them up to our rooms they were exchanged, and as soon as I opened the one sent up to me I knew it belonged to Doris!"

"Oh, pshaw, you need only ring for a servant and get your own."

"I know. But I determined then and there to do Doris a real, unselfish service. I hate to see her with those unnatural pink cheeks, so I decided, while I had a chance, to go through her satchel, find her box of rouge and hide it; then, as she could get no more out there in the country, she must appear without it, and it might be the means of causing her to give up its use!"

"Well, but that——"

"I couldn't find it anywhere, and then I remembered the little bag hanging from her belt, and I knew it was there. I had just gotten her things put back when one of the maids fetched me my satchel and took hers away."

"Oh, well, she will never know that you hunted——"

"No. I had to dress in a great hurry then, for I was late, and what do you think? Those lovely short curls that I twist in my back hair, and which everybody admires so much, were missing, though I knew I had packed them myself!"

"My goodness, you don't think that Doris had——"

"I don't think; I know it. She returned them to me the next morning, saying they must have slipped out of my satchel as the maid carried it to me. Did you think there was a girl living who would do such a mean thing?"

can consume more money and waste more patience than anything you can put your money into. When you buy from a dealer who sells you this kind of coal and go back to him again, it is your own pocketbook you're robbing. There are many dealers—we among them—who are willing to sell you good coal at a close margin and be sure of giving you perfect satisfaction. We have a good, honest Lehigh coal at $5.50 per ton. You won't want to go elsewhere after you have tried it.

Some gowns are so dainty in the weave, so delicate in tint, that they seem to soil by being looked at—one or two wearings making them unpresentable, NOT USELESS. We make a specialty of cleaning fine fabrics, the more delicate the material, the better the results. Sometimes an accident will ruin a gown, without injuring the texture. We dye them then, sometimes we get a prettier effect than the original color. Fine goods stand redyeing. The finer the material the better the new color. We charge so little for cleaning or dyeing, that even if you are in doubt as to the result, it's worth while to experiment. Want a new evening gown for a dollar or two? Beware of Ointments for Catarrh that Contain Mercury, as mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completly derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is ten fold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., contains no mercury, and is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. In buying Hall's Catarrh Cure be sure you get the genuine. It is taken internally, and made in Toledo, Ohio, by F. J. Cheney & Co. Testimonials free. Sold by druggists, price 75c. per bottle. Hall's Family Pills are the best.

—The women of Monroe Avenue church will hold an entertainment in the church on Friday evening.

—If someone is not injured as a result of the wretched condition of the board walk in front of the First Church of Christ building on Grove street, it will be a miracle. The borough authorities decided sometime ago to lay a stone walk at that place and why it is not put down is a great mystery.

Mr. Ward L. Smith, of Fredericks-town, Mo., was troubled with chronic diarrhœa for over thirty years. He had become fully satisfied that it was only a question of a short time until he would have to give up. He had been treated by some of the best physicians in Europe and America but got no permanent relief. One day he picked up a newspaper and chanced to read an advertisement of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhœa Remedy. He got a bottle of it, the first dose helped him and its continued use cured him. For sale by T. S. Armstrong, Apothecary, corner Park and North avenues.

David Ryno, of East Second street, is confined at home with the grip and muscular rheumatism.

From everywhere come words of praise for Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. "Allow me to congratulate you on the merits of your Remedy. It cured me of chronic bronchitis when the doctor could do nothing for me." —Chas. F. Hemel, Toledo, O. For sale by T. S. Armstrong, Apothecary, corner Park and North avenues.

—Woodhull & Martin, of Hackettstown, have taken possession of their new store formerly conducted by Edsall, and they will at once prepare to open the same with a full and complete line of goods.

—The Ladies' Aid Society of the Monroe Avenue M. E. church will give a sociable on Friday evening. The sociable was to have been held last evening, but was postponed on account of the Riggs lecture at the Irving School.

A GOOD LETTER.

From the Clerk of the Circuit Court.

Fernandina, Fla., Feb. 28, 1896.

Mr. J. George Suhrer, Druggist, City.

Dear George:—Please send a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. I would not feel easy if I knew there was none of this valuable Remedy in the house. I have given it a fair test and consider it one of the very best remedies for croup that I have ever found. One dose has always been sufficient, although I use it freely. Any cold my children contract yields very readily to this medicine. I can conscientiously recommend it for croup and colds in children. Yours respectfully, Geo. E. Wolff. Sold by T. S. Armstrong, apothecary, Park & North avenues.

—VanSickle, the North avenue butcher, has just received a fine line of spring chickens which he is selling at prices that are right.

—A Martha Washington supper will be conducted at Vincent chapel on Thursday and Friday evenings of this week by the Ladies' Aid Society of the First M. E. church.

A few months ago, Mr. Byron Every, of Woodstock, Mich., was badly afflicted with rheumatism. His right leg was swollen the full length, causing him great suffering. He was advised to try Chamberlain's Pain Balm. The first bottle of it helped him considerably and the seeond bottle effected a cure. The 25 and 50 cent sizes are for sale by T. S. Armstrong, Apothecary, corner Park and North avenues.

THE NEW TARIFF BILL.

Restoration of McKinley Fruit Schedules the Latest Change.

Washington, Feb. 24.—A material increase in the rate of duty on certain tropical fruits raised in this country is the latest addition to the new tariff measure now being framed by the republican members of the ways and means committee. A duty of 25 cents a cubic foot was placed on oranges, lemons and limes, whether imported in bulk or in packages. The provision in the McKinley law as to barrels or packages that contain these articles and which places the duty at 30 per cent. ad valorem was restored. The present duty on the foregoing articles is 8 cents a cubic foot. In the McKinley law it was less than 12 cents, inasmuch as in packages of a capacity of one and one-fourth cubic feet the duty was 13 cents. To-day's increase was made in compliance with the appeals of the California fruit producers, who claimed that the present rate was ruinous and that the McKinley duty was not nearly sufficient. The committee was influenced by these considerations, and after a careful investigation satisfied themselves that while the new rate was practically prohibitory, it would not increase the cost of such fruits a quarter of a cent in each case and that the retail price would remain practically unchanged, at the same time giving the American grower a monopoly of the home market. The fruit importing interests of New York and other cities protested vigorously against any material increase in the duty, their argument being that foreign fruits do not compete to any extent with the American product, inasmuch as they are placed on sale at a different season of the year. During the interim following the adjournment of congress on March 4 the republican members of the committee will work continuously on the measure, which it is now thought cannot be completed before congress convenes in extra session. The woolen schedule will be the last to be fully considered. Its consideration will develope considerable opposition from the manufacturing interests, and it is in order that it may be fully discussed that the committee will not agree upon tentative rates until the last moment consistent with a prompt reporting of the measure.

YALE-HARVARD-CORNELL RACE.

Probability That It Will Be Rowed on the Thames at New London.

New Haven, Conn., Feb. 24.—The Yale navy has received a communication from the New London board of trade asking if Yale will consent to row the Yale-Harvard-Cornell race on the Thames, provided the consent of Harvard and Cornell can be obtained. Yale has answered that she will be glad to row there. It is stated unofficially here that Harvard has also consented, and that there is a chance that the place of the triangular race may be shifted from Poughkeepsie to New London. The matter now rests with Cornell, and a representative of the New London board of trade is now in Ithaca to gain the consent of the Cornell crew to the change.

A Labor Law Unconstitutional.

Binghamton, N. Y., Feb. 24.—Justice Lyon of the supreme court has rendered his decision in the case of the people vs. Samuel E. Hawkins, holding that the law under which Hawkins was indicted is unconstitutional. At the November session of the grand jury Hawkins was indicted for selling prison made goods to a Binghamton firm without attaching a label, contrary to a provision of the penal code passed last winter. District Attorney Perkins, acting under instructions from the labor commissioner, will carry the case to the appellate division of the supreme court, and it will be argued at Albany.

MR. HART'S TROUBLE

The Steamship Owner's Conviction a Surprise to His Friends.

HE SPENT LAST NIGHT IN PRISON

Was Unable To Secure the $7,000 Bail Bond Demanded for His Release Pending Hearing for a New Trial.

Philadelphia, Feb. 24.—The conviction yesterday of John D. Hart, the steamship owner, on the charge of aiding in a Cuban filibustering expedition on the steamer Laurada in August last, in the United States district court, was a complete surprise to all who followed the proceedings and is probably a severe blow to the patriots in Cuba who are struggling to throw off the Spanish yoke. It is understood that the jury took but one ballot and was unanimous as to Mr. Hart's guilt. The argument for the new trial will be heard next Tuesday. In his application for admission to bail Mr. Hart stated that his daughter, Ada L. Hart, was dangerously ill; that he had a a number of persons in his employ and his business would require time to adjust; that he was not guilty of the charge of which he was convicted, and that he had discovered testimony of which he had no knowledge at the time of his trial and which he believed was material to his defense; and that if he was imprisoned now "without opportunity afforded by a little time his financial ruin would be worked." Judge Butler then fixed the bail at $7,000. Mr. Hart was unable to secure bail last evening and was compelled to spend last night in prison. This morning, however, having obtained bondsmen, he was released. When the court was convened to hear the application for bail the room was crowded with friends of Mr. Hart. The latter held a sort of levee in the corridor before he entered the court. Men and women shook hands with him, and a delegation of ladies representing the Marti society, an organization having for its object the success of the Cuban insurgents, was in the room and remained until the end of the proceedings was reached.

GLORIOUS "OLD IRONSIDES."

Congressman Fitzgerald Eulogizes Her, Her Builders and They Who Sailed Her.

Washington, Feb. 24.—Speaking of the unanimous vote in the house yesterday upon the naval appropriation bill, which contained the provision, inserted by the committee upon his request, appropriating $8,000 for the care of the famous old frigate Constitution, Mr. Fitzgerald, dem., Mass., dwelt on the fact that Old Ironsides was built in his district and expressed the pleasure that he felt as a son of Massachusetts in calling attention to the glorious achievements of the grand old vessel. "The people of Massachusetts," he said, "are justly proud of the history of that grand old commonwealth and of the deeds of patriotism and valor that have been performed by her illustrious sons, but no pages in all that history excite their regard and admiration more than those which tell of the gallant victories won by Massachusetts men, commanded by a Massachusetts man, on a vessel built by Massachusetts mechanics, in a Massachusetts yard, the grand old Constitution, Old Ironsides."

Mrs. Parnell in Absolute Want.

Dublin, Feb. 24.—In a speech delivered in this city last night Timothy Harrington, M. P. for the Harbor division of Dublin, declared that it was absurd to say that the Parnellite cause was prospering when the mother of Charles Stewart Parnell was in absolute want in the house in which the dead Irish leader was born. Mr. Harrington is himself a member of the Parnellite section of the Irish parliamentary party, but his speech is held to foreshadow his separation from Redmond, the leader of that section.

Sensational Rumor About the Texas.

Galveston, Tex., Feb. 24.—Some sensationalists here are trying to create the impression that Capt. Glass, who has remained aboard the Texas since Saturday has received orders to proceed to Havana, but the thoughtful-minded put no credence in the matter. The sailors of the revenue cutter Galveston were entertained at an oyster roast last evening.

Mrs. Cleveland at Princeton.

Princeton, N. J., Feb. 24.—Mrs. Cleveland, who is in Princeton, accompanied by her mother and three children, will remain here only a few days at present. After getting the house in order she will go to Washington in time for the inaugural ball, and later will return to the new home with Mr. Cleveland.

For a Transpacific Cable.

Washington, Feb. 24.—The senate committee on naval affairs has recommended the incorporation in the naval bill of Senator Lodge's a proposition to appropriate $25,000 to take soundings for a telegraph cable between the Hawaiian islands and Japan.

Allowed Three Weeks To Raise His Fine.

THE NEW COUNCILMAN.

It is a queer condition of things in a political way when the Councilmanic honor of the Fourth ward has to go almost begging. Just how capable an official Alfred H. Leivers will make as a successor of Isaac Randolph it is impossible to say, judging from any work of the past in a public way, but since he is a first-class workman at his trade and of the best type of an American mechanic, it is probable that he will attend to the duties of the office in at least an honorable and conscientious manner.

THE BOROUGH LEFT OUT.

There has been surprise expressed over the conditions which the Common Council imposed in the granting of a franchise to the Plainfield Sanitary Company to build a garbage crematory, especially with reference to the restriction that the company can not dispose of garbage from any other municipality than the city of Plainfield. This excludes the borough from whatever benefits the proposed system will afford to those who want to use it.

LESS MONEY FROM LICENSES

The sum which will be paid to the city this year for liquor licenses will be $2,100 less than last year, and possibly $2,800 if the application of Patrick O'Keffe, for the Rising Sun Brewing Company's place on Park avenue should be refused. But it is a safe venture that just as many people will drink old John Barleycorn.

On to the Inauguration.

One of the greatest events of the year of 1897 will be the inauguration of President William McKinley at Washington, March 4th. The crowd there will be the greatest for many years and those who are able to go with the certainty of having a comfortable place to spend the night are lucky indeed. That is only one of the advantages offered by Honeyman's private tours excursion to Washington at that time. The party will go on March 3d and may return March 4th, 5th or 6th. They will leave on the Blue Line train leaving Plainfield at 2:17 o'clock in the afternoon. The party will put up at one of the best equipped hotels in the city. The terms will be $17.

THINGS THAT INTEREST SCOTCH PLAINS AND DUNELLEN.

Brief and Terse Observations Gathered by Alert Press Reporters to be Perused at the Supper Table at Your Leisure

DUNELLEN AND NEW MARKET.

Thomas J. Cady spent Washington's Birthday at his home in Trenton.

The Borough Council will meet in regular session next Tuesday evening.

Miss Ethel Gray, of Union avenue, Irvington, is visiting among relatives here.

Mrs. S. Z. Dixon is visiting among friends at Deer Park, Me., for a few weeks.

Contractor John P. Apgar is about to begin the erection of a fine new dwelling house for W. H. Kuhns, on Washington avenue.

The roads for bicycling were anything but good, yesterday, but a few enthusiastic wheelmen were seen in town on their wheels.

The public schools opened again yesterday morning and the children—or rather many of them—went into ecstacies over the event.

The many friends of Rev. S. F. Custard will be pained to hear that he suffered a relapse yesterday, and where a few days ago their hopes were brightened they again fear for the worst.

The members of the Dunellen Checker Club devoted much of their time in W. H. Coles office, playing checkers, yesterday, and adjournment was only made when the dinner and supper hours arrived.

Neat and natty invites are out for the fourth reception of the Dunellen Athletic Association, which is to take place in the "Borough Building" on the evening of Friday, the 26th instant. Prof. Eugene O'Reilly, of Plainfield, will furnish the music.

The regular monthly business meeting of the Ladies Aid Society of the Seventh-Day Baptist church, of New Market, will be held at the residence of Mrs. L. T. Titsworth, Prospect avenue, Thursday afternoon. After the business session supper will be served from 6 to 8 o'clock when the men folks of the church will be entertained.

Real estate agents here report that the coming spring will probably witness a general moving time. This of course, does not refer to persons who own their own homes. A great many applications are being received daily from people in New York and other places, concerning the rental of small cottages, but there seems to be few or none in the market. Dunellen capitalists should wake up to the emergency call and erect more cottages.

According to the statement of a boroughite, politics in Dunellen and in the township this year, are mighty uncertain, and unless a "deal" is soon made there is likely to be four tickets in the field at the forthcoming borough election, viz: Republican, Prohibition and Citizens'. In fact a citizens' caucus has been called for March 1st in the Town Hall to consider the advisability of running an independent ticket and it is believed that if a good ticket is made up it may be the means of drawing to its support the Republican and Prohibition votes. At any rate it is to be hoped that the best men will be elected irrespective of their political creed.

NEW MARKET.

The masons are at work on the cellar of Baggagemaster Trimmer's new house on Walnut street.

The Republican primaries will be held this evening to nominate candidates for the county offices for the coming election.

The Democratic primaries will be held in Nelson's hotel next Monday evening at 8 o'clock for the nomination of candidates and appropriations for the coming election.

The funeral of David Roantree, who died Sunday morning from hemorrhage of the lungs, took place at his mother's home yesterday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. Friendship Council, No. 81, J. O. U. A. M., of which he was a member, had charge of the services. Rev. Frank Fletcher made the address and spoke very tenderly to the bereaved ones. The pall bearers were Chas. Day, Phillip Mitz, Joseph Maitland, Win Waglow and David Lawson. Interment was at Samptown cemetery.

THE TOWNSHIP REPORT.

MAKES INTERESTING READ NG TO MANY WESTFIELDERS.

People Who Live on the "Flats" Are Not Much Struck With the Apportionment That They Have to Pay in Taxes.

Westfielders who desire to have The Daily Press left at their house or place of business every afternoon by trustworthy and gentlemanly carrier boys can be accommodated by leaving an order with either Percy Clark or Willie Foster. The Press will also be on sale every afternoon after 4 o'clock at the Union News Company's stand at the Central Railroad station, and at the news stand of C. F. W. Wittke.

F. Wherry returned from abroad yesterday.

Miss Minnie MacQuoid is still confined to her room.

Mrs. Woodward went to Elizabeth yesterday morning.

The Town Committee will hold a meeting next Friday evening.

The sewer has a few dangerous cave-ins; the one on Park avenue is the worst.

The attendance at the J. O. U. A. M. fair is beyond expectation and the committee are elated over it. Monday's receipts were $45.

The Woman's Club held a business meeting yesterday afternoon in the rooms of the Social Club, at 3:30 o'clock. The affairs relating to the recent banquet were cleared up and a few other matters were attended to.

Chicken thieves are about once more. John Steele, of Willow Grove, reports that some one broke into his hennery Monday night and stole over 100 chickens, leaving only four decrepid old hens and two aged roosters. Steele thinks he knows who the miscreants are and expects to have them "nailed" before many sunsets.

Westfield is nothing if not "sporty." Everyone here is proficient, if not an expert, in some branch. The latest aspirants for fame are two well-known young men. It is alleged that they had a "mill," Monday, without signing articles, consuming columns of space in the papers, or blackguarding each other. Together with a crowd of friends they adjourned to a barn, where a ring was improvised. It was to have been a friendly twenty-round "go,' the winner to take all the glory and the other fellow—well, he was to take the blame and the arnica. Things were lively from the start, neither being afraid to mix things, or of getting much punishment. One played for the heart and face, but the other was too shifty and scientific and would repeatedly land hard punches on the wind and left-hand jabs in the face. At the seventh round the former began to get "groggy;" in the eighth round he worse, and in the first half of the ninth round his opponent got in a "homer" and he was counted out.

The 103d annual report of the officers of Westfield Township for the year ending February 16th, 1897, including a list of delinquent tax-payers, judging from the list, it would appear that some, who have derived the greatest benefit from the town, in the way of improvements and work done for the town, are the greatest delinquents. The committee devotes the first page of the report to congratulating itself for the work it has done and promise to put the "roads into such condition that our citizens will point to them with pride." The same committee recommends the following appropriations for the ensuing year: For roads, $5,000; street lighting, $2,700; for the poor, $500; Fire Deparment, $600; for hydrants, $700; maintenance of sewer system, $1,500; for township expenses, $2,500. Some of the items and facts shown in the report are the subject of much comment. An instance showing how well off the town used to be and might be now, if people paid their taxes. In 1893 the delinquent tax amounted to $72.98, while at the present time it foots up to $5,631.22. Last July the fire department bought 500 feet of rubber hose at $1 a foot, and to make the selection and purchase it a committee consisting of H. B. Kurzhals, James P. English and Eugene Wilcox were paid $3 a piece. 500 feet of hose at $1 a foot cost the town $509. Some of the other items read as follows: "Repairs and fixing gong, $27.25;" "services, $1;" "repairs, $5.50;" "repairs, $1.50;" "repairs, $1.40;" "six new hats, $22 50;" "horse hire to fire $1;" "horse hire to fire, $2;" "new stove, $36.12;" "cleaning stove, $1.50;" "putting up stove and furnishing repairs, $5.87." Some of the people are satisfied with the condition of things—those directly benefited, but on the other hand there are rumors that a Democrat will get into the committee in March. The people of the upper part of the town, known as "the flats," are loud in their complaint that they have nothing but a part of a sewer and one hundred feet of plank walk and no fire plugs, while in another section stone flagging was laid. "The flats" claim that they got their one hundred feet of board walk only as a result of the efforts of a plucky woman. The primaries will be held in a few days, and then cometh the tale.

SCOTCH PLAINS.

The Board of Registration will sit in Excelsior Hall on Tuesday next. There can be but a few additional names added to the original list.

The sun is drying up the mud in the roadways here, and it will only require a day or two more before bicycling can be resumed.

A regular meeting of the Royal Arcanum Council met in Arcanum Hall, last evening, but the business transacted was only of a routine nature.

On next Sunday evening, February 28th, the rector of All Saints church will deliver a special lecture on "The Life of St. Paul," illustrated with stereopticon slides through the courtesy of Messrs. Hall of Fanwood, to which all are cordially invited. The order for Lent service will be announced this week; and it is purposed to make them of more than usual interest this season.

Mistakes of Moses.

An appreciative audience gathered in the Y. M. C. A. Hall last evening to listen to a lecture by Mr. Hastings, of Boston. The lecturer took for his text "The Mistakes of Moses," and his remarks dealt almost entirely with Biblical times.

A Message of Help for Sick Children.

It is a fact that our people have heretofore not had the same opportunity for having their children who suffer from chronic or lingering complaints treated and cured by eminent specialists in children's diseases as do the residents of the great cities where such skilled physicians reside. Dr. Greene of 35 West 14th St., New York City, who is beyond doubt the most successful specialist in curing diseases of children, offers to give free consultation by mail in all cases of children's complaints. Write Dr. Greene immediately about your child. I certainly can be cured.

SILAS MARSTON.

I.

Among all who knew him, Silas Marston bore the character of a stern, hard man. But a stranger might have read his nature in his face—in the cold, grey eyes, thin, closely-compressed lips, and severe aspect.

In one characteristic he took the greatest pride. Never in his recollection had he willingly broken his word. Perfectly straightforward in all his dealings, scrupulously honest, he had marked out for himself a line of conduct from which he never diverged, and he expected his family to walk along the same rigid chalk-mark with steps as unfaltering as his own.

The severe home discipline galled his only son terribly. When a lad is forbidden any amusement more exciting than an occasional lecture at the assembly-rooms, it would be strange if he did not rebel. Tom Marston revolted, and the consequences were serious.

He visited the theatre. Some busybody saw him and told his father. Silas Marston did not storm, desperately angry though he was. That was not his way.

"Theatres are catchpits," he said. "If you go again I will turn you out of doors."

Tom knew—none better—that his father would most assuredly do as he said, and for nearly twelve months he avoided the banned building on Bardsley Green. But one morning a comrade jeered at him and dared him to go. That night he broke Silas Marston's law for the second time, and again he was found out. On his return his father met him at the door.

"You have been to the theatre," he said, in the calm, cold, equable voice which he habitually used, whether angry or pleased. "What money have you?"

In fear and trembling Tom produced his purse and counted its contents with nervous fingers.

"Sev-seven-and-sixpence, father," he faltered.

Silas Marston placed two sovereigns in the boy's shaking hand.

"Take these and go," he said. "I disown you."

He opened the door. Next moment the motherless boy was in the street—without a home.

If Silas Marston were in any way disturbed by his son's absence, he gave no outward sign of it. He went to his business just as regularly as before, and was as constant in his attendance at church.

II.

Seven months had passed. It was the last day of the Leeds Winter Assizes. Silas Marston had been summoned on the jury. The last case on the calendar was one of forgery. The clerk called out the name of "Joseph Taylor," and the gaoler brought up the prisoner, a lad of seventeen, poorly clad, and apparently half-starved. He trembled as he stepped to the front of the dock, and his face, as he glanced furtively about, was deathly pale.

Suddenly as his gaze rested on the jury-box, he staggered, clutched at the dock railings and clung convulsively, while his face alternately paled and crimsoned. So he remained, with eyes cast down.

Had a curious spectator been watching Silas Marston closely he might have seen that juryman's cold eyes dilate, and his mouth part slightly, while an ashen pallor overspread his features. But those signs of agitation were only momentary.

Counsel for the prosecution opened the case against the wretched lad. The accused, he said, had been in the employment of Messrs. Clifford and Rice as errand boy; it was also his duty to sweep up the counting-house. A forged cheque for £75, in favor of Mr. Darley, with whom the firm had dealings, had been presented at Clifford and Rice's bankers and cashed. When it was discovered that several forms were missing from a cheque-book, suspicion fell upon the prisoner, who had access to the drawer where the book was kept, and had been seen in the company of a notorious criminal—not in custody. He was accused and searched, when three blank forms, next in sequence to that which had been cashed, were found upon him. The body of the cheque had not been filled up by the accused, nor did he present it, but he was charged with forging Messrs. Clifford and Rice's signature and the endorsement, both of which were excellent imitations and must have been copied from genuine signatures.

The boy was asked to plead. He stammered something unintelligible and burst into tears. The gentleman who had been requested by the Court to defend him rose hastily and pleaded "not guilty" on his behalf.

Silas Marston frowned.

"It's a waste of time," he muttered to his neighbor on the left, the foreman of the jury.

"I think it is," rejoined that gentleman; "but let the boy have a chance."

Counsel for the prosecution called witness after witness, whose evidence made it abundantly clear that the accused was guilty, but that he had been the dupe of an older criminal, who had escaped with the plunder.

Counsel for the defence, finding himself unable to contest the evidence, appealed to the Court.

"I understand," he said, "that the prisoner was sent away from home only a few months ago to sink or swim. He had disobeyed his father, a man of considerable means, who turned him out of doors. I do not envy that man's feelings when he learns the consequences of his unnatural conduct, and I maintain, gentlemen of the jury, that it is he who should be standing in the dock and not his son."

Silas Marston cast down his eyes.

"The prisoner," continued the learned gentleman, "when on the brink of starvation fell in with a man, whose name has been mentioned, and who may yet have to answer for his share in this crime. For motives of his own this man took pity on and fed him. It was he who induced him to apply to the prosecutors for the situation of errand-boy under an alias, and it was in obedience to his command that the accused obtained blank cheques and letters bearing the necessary signatures. The prisoner could not refuse; his gratitude forbade.

"That the boy's nature is honorable and scrupulous I have proof. His father turned him out of dors to starve, yet I have failed to persuade him to reveal that stony-hearted father's name or address. He has refused to bring disgrace upon his unnatural parent by revealing his own name to his counsel. I have nothing more to add, gentlemen, except to ask you to take into account all the circumstances of this case. If the accused's father—the real criminal—could be called as a witness, it would relieve my feelings to examine him."

He sat down. The judge summed up in a sentence, and turned to the jury, as if expecting an immediate verdict of "guilty."

III.

It was not forthcoming. Whispers passed to and fro in the jury-box. Silas Marston took no part in the discussion. He had written his verdict on a slip of paper and handed it to the foreman. It was "guilty." Having done his duty, he had apparently no further interest in the matter.

"Well, gentlemen?" exclaimed the judge, in some surprise.

"We can't agree," said the foreman.

"Then you had better retire," was the curt rejoinder.

The jury at once filed out of the box and followed an official to the room set apart for them.

"Come, Mr. Maydue," said the foreman, addressing an elderly gentleman of benevolent appearance, "you are the only dissentient. We can add a rider recommending the boy to mercy, but on the evidence we must find him guilty."

"Certainly," added Silas Marston, in his most severe tone. "The prisoner has broken the law, and he must suffer the penalty. He ought to consider himself fortunate that he is living at the end of the nineteenth century. It is not so long since the penalty of forgery was death."

Mr. Maydue turned upon him in great indignation.

"For shame, sir! I thank God that those horrible days are past. And you, sir, ought to thank your Maker for giving you a different father to the brute who brought this poor boy into the world. I say he ought not to be made responsible, and I refuse to convict him. Gentlemen," he went on, adressing the jury generally, for Silas Marston avoided his gaze, "I ask you to acquit the prisoner in mercy to the miserable wretch who turned him adrift, or if you do not, nothing will save that man from condemnation when he stands before the Great Judge on the Last Day." Pausing, he laid his hand on Silas Marston's shoulder, and again addressed him: "Are you a father, sir?"

"Yes," faltered the wretched man. He was not prepared for Mr. Maydue's sudden attack, and the armor of cold self-righteousness and self-approval in which he had so long incased himself was anything but proof.

"I find it hard to believe you," Mr. Maydue rejoined. "But if you really have a child, picture it in the prisoner's place and let your heart incline to mercy."

Silas Marston sat down and covered his face with his hands. He was beginning to awake.

"Friends," Mr. Maydue resumed, turning to his fellow-jurymen, "I ask you to find this boy not guilty. Let him have another chance. Be more merciful than his miserable father. Let that wretch answer for his neglect and cruelty himself. Don't let us do anything that may constrain us to stand beside him when he is called to account. Temper justice with mercy and let the boy go."

"You plead well, sir," answered the foreman, 'but I am of Mr. Marston's opinion. The boy is guilty, and it is our duty to find him so. Mercy is the judge's prerogative. The most we can do is to recommend it. Are you ill, sir?"

The question was addressed to Silas Marston. He lifted his head; his mouth and eyelids were twitching—he could not answer. At last he was able to speak.

"Mr. Marston is ill," the foreman went on. "Come! Let us settle this matter and go home. Now, Mr. Maydue, eleven of us are in favor of a conviction——"

"No, no!" interrupted Silas Marston, in great agitation.

"What! Has he won you over?"

"Yes. God help and forgive me! I am the boy's father. All Mr. Maydue has said is true. I drove him from home. I failed in my duty. Let him go, I implore you!"

The tears were streaming down Silas Marston's face now. His stubborn will was broken. Mr. Maydue broke the long silence which followed that amazing appeal.

"What is the verdict to be?" he asked.

"Not guilty," answered the foreman, in a husky voice.

Five minutes afterwards Tom Marston was free. The judge discharged him without comment. He had long ceased to be surprised at the vagaries of jurymen. It is almost needless to add that the newly-awakened father took his son home.

A STRANGE TOMB.

THE LAST RESTING PLACE OF JULIA HASDEN, THE AUTHORESS.

The Vault is Adorned With Articles that She Enjoyed in Life—Nothing Grewsome About the Place, and is Visited Daily by the Father and Mother.

Bucharest has perhaps the strangest tomb ever erected in a civilized land. It stands over the embalmed body of Julia Hasden, a young authoress. Her father, Professor Hasden, of the University of Bucharest, believes he is able to communicate with his lost child.

The tomb is constructed, so it is claimed, in accordance with plans outlined to the father by the daughter after death. It is in the Greek Cemetery. The structure is of marble. Over the entrance and under the name "Julia Hasden" is a niche filled with her well-worn schoolbooks. As one enters he is greeted by strains of unearthly melody. At the entrance a huge slab of black marble bears an inscription which may be translated as follows: "Let those who seek not knowledge pass by this grave, but those who fain would learn the secret of life in death descend!"

The vault is paved with black and white marble, with inscriptions in letters of gold. These, according to Professor Hasden, are remarks culled from the conversations he has had with his daughter since her death. Here and there are quaint little triangular stools. Close to the stairway stand two handsomely decorated mirrors, which formerly adorned Julia Hasden's bourdoir. At the further end of the vault, behind a white marble balustrade, is an exquisitely carved sarcophagus containing the body of the young girl. The coffin is so arranged that by drawing back a slide the broken-hearted parents may still gaze on the face of their child. Two colored lamps burn continually at either end of the sarcophagus.

In the centre of the balustrade stands a beautiful bust of the young Rumanian woman. It represents her as a handsome, clever-looking girl, attired in modern evening dress. A white veil is drawn over it to preserve it from dust, and at the waist nestle a few faded roses, held in place by long satin ribbons that float to the ground. They are the flowers and ribbons which Julia Hasden wore at her last ball.

On the walls hang photographs of her at various ages. One small water-color sketch, entitled "Son Dernier Jour Terreste" (Her last day on earth), represents her tossing on her deathbed, with feverish cheeks and sunken eyes.

On a table to the right lies a large album, a few books and a block of black marble, on which some lines of music are engraved in gold; the title tells you they form "a melody" composed by Julia Hasden after her death, and, listening to its mysterious tones, one could almost believe it an echo from spiritland.

The mechanism which reproduces the weird music above mentioned is apparently concealed in the table. Visitors are permitted to inscribe their names in the great album, and its pages are full of touching expressions of sympathy in every language.

There is nothing grewsome in this remarkable tomb; the fresh air streams in through the open doors carrying with it the perfume of flowers and the merry song of the birds without.

Here it is that Professor Hasden passes almost all his spare time; it is no strange thing to see him taking his coffee here of a morning and smoking his cigarette beside his child's coffin. His wife comes in the afternoon and remains until late in the evening.

Little Known Mail Privileges.

Many times people would like to recall a letter after it has been mailed, says the Washington Post. This can be done, even after the letter has reached the post office at at its destination. At every post office there are what are called "withdrawal blanks." On application they will be furnished and, when a deposit is made to cover the expense, the postmaster will telegraph to the postmaster at the letter's destination asking that it be promptly returned. The applicant first signs this agreement: "It is hereby agreed that, if the letter is returned to me, I will protect you from any and all claims made against you for such return, and will finally indemnify you for any loss you may sustain by reason of such action. And I herewith deposit $— to cover all expenses incurred and will deliver to you the envelope of the letter returned."

In many cases persons have made remittances to fraudulent parties or irresponsible firms, not learning their true character until after the letter had gone, and have succeeded in recalling them. There is an instance where a Kansas City merchant had remitted a dishonest traveling man a draft for $175 and by means of a withdrawal rescued the draft just in time.

A Precious Washington Urn.

One of the valuable relics intrusted to the care of the grand master of Massachusetts Masons is "the Washington urn," a small golden urn containing a lock of General Washington's hair. Mrs. Washington presented the lock to the Grand Lodge in 1800, and Grand Master Paul Revere made the urn.—Chicago Inter-Ocean.

Submarine Telegraph Work.

It takes thirty-seven specially constructed and equipped steamers to keep the submarine telegraph cables of the world in repair.—Philadelphia Ledger.

AS OTHERS SEE US.

The Tale of an American, Two Japanese, and a Dish of Potatoes.

Even those who desire to be strictly accurate sometimes erect their story from a single instance. The fallacy of so doing is well illustrated by the following story told to the writer by one of the participants:

A few years ago two Japanese gentlemen of high standing were traveling in the United States, and, among other places, visited a large and widely known manufactory. They were afterward invited by the senior member of the firm to lunch with him. Colonel M. was also of the party. It happened that the first food placed on the table was a dish of fried potatoes, and as the manufacturer enthusiastically explained his business to his guests he unthinkingly took a piece of potato from the dish with his fingers and ate it. A second and third piece followed. The Japanese listened politely, but Colonel M. observed that they were closely watching their host's method of eating. The Colonel has a keen sense of humor, and he at once decided that he would follow his friend's example and see what the others would do. He did so, and instantly both Japanese made a dive for the dish, and thus they sat eating potatoes with their fingers, presenting, it is to be feared, the appearance of four men who had had nothing to eat for a long while, and expected never to get anything again.

Will it be surprising if in a future Japanese book on America this breach of good manners shall find a place as an American custom?—American Kitchen Magazine.

A Diving Horse.

There is a horse which has been trained to perform diving feats at Seattle, Washington, U. S. From a platform which has been constructed on the edge of the wharf the horse leaps into the waters of Lake Washington, 30 feet below, and is apparently proud of his accomplishment. At the word "Go" from his master down it goes, and the crowd of onlookers hold their breath as it descends and disappears in the water—quickly followed by a cheer, however, as it reappears and strikes out for the shore.—Tid-Bits.

An Elephant Sanctuary.

The English Government has just established a sanctuary for the African elephant in the coast area of Somaliland. Within the reserve shooting of elephants is strictly forbidden, and the observance of this rule will be an essential condition to the shooting of other animals within the prescribed area.—Chicago Record.

EDITOR M'CULLAGH OUTWITTED.

How the St. Louis Globe-Democrat Was Ridiculous.

When David D. Francis, now Secretary of the Interior, was a candidate for Governor of Missouri, his friends succeeded in using the "Globe-Democrat" to further his chances of election. Editor McCullagh had turned on "Our Dave," as the Secretary is known in St. Louis, with his short paragraphs with telling effect, and Francis' friends got together and concocted a scheme to offset the editorial work of the paper. They wrote out a display advertisement and at a late hour of the Saturday morning immediately preceding the election of 1888 took it to the counting room of the "Globe-Democrat." The clerk on duty gave the copy a casual looking over and without a word accepted it. It occupied a full page and at length and in glowing terms set forth the "great business capacity and eminent qualifications of Mr. Francis to occupy the Gubernational chair of Missouri," says a St. Louis correspondent of the Chicago "Record."

That advertisement caused the biggest row ever witnessed in a newspaper office in St. Louis. When Editor McCullagh found what had been done he raged and stormed for a week. The fast mail had distributed the paper all over Missouri before McCullagh had his attention called to it. He left his quarters at the Southern Hotel on a trot. Reaching the corner of Fourth and Pine streets he found the streets and the office of the "Globe-Democrat" jammed with people, who were clamoring to stop their subscriptions. McCullagh had filled a column on the editorial page with "squibs" strongly opposing Francis, and advocating the Republican nominee, but the big display of Francis' friends was the first thing seen on opening the paper.

Mr. McCullagh at once issued an extra, in which he deprecated the oversight by which the advertisement had found its way into the paper, but it was some time before the "Globe-Democrat" office recovered its equilibrium.

A couple of lawyers engaged in a case were recently discussing the issue. "At all events," said the younger and more enthusiastic, "we have justice on our side." To which the older and warier replied:

"Quite true; but what we want is the Chief Justice on our side."—Tid-Bits.

WATERS RECEDING.

No Further Damage by the Floods in the Monongahela Now Feared.

Pittsburg, Feb. 24.—The river this morning is falling slowly. Many industrial establishments up the Monongahela river will be forced to close down the balance of the week on account of the high water. Forty barges belonging to E. H. Brown Sons broke loose from their moorings. All the steamboats in the vicinity went to the reseue, and the barges were safely towed to shore without serious damage. Braddock was in darkness last night owing to the high water interfering with the gas and electric light plants. At Brownsville the water is from three to five feet deep in some of the houses. Railroad traffic was suspended. The rivers are now falling and no further damage is expected in this vicinity.

Ohio Still Rising.

Cincinnati, Feb. 24.—The Ohio is still rising at the rate of three inches an hour. This morning 55 feet 7 inches was the stage. Reports from all upriver points are that the heavy rains have left all the tributaries with overflowing banks and sending vast volumes into the the Ohio. Great damage is reported. Unless there is a sharp freeze to stiffen the water-soaked ground it is estimated that a sixty-foot stage is almost certain. As yet no great damage has been done on the Kentucky side. The water is standing about five feet deep over the main tracks entering the Grand Central railroad depot and all of the freight yards are flooded.

The Situation at Charleston.

Charleston, W. Va., Feb. 24.—The electric light and gas plants are under water. It is impossible to estimate the damage in the upper part of town. Business is almost entirely suspended. The postoffice now occupies an island.

Villages Submerged.

Louisville, Feb. 24.—Saliersville, East Point and Abideen are almost entirely submerged. The lower portion of Maysville is under water.

SENATE INACTIVE.

Near Approach of Adjournment Does Not Bother National Solons.

Washington, Feb. 24.—Although but a few days remain to the present congress and the appropriation bills necessary for the running expenses of the government are far behind, the senate appears to be unable to make up for lost time. At the rate of considering only one paragraph to the Indian appropriation bill per day even that bill will hardly be completed by noon of March 4. A resolution was offered by Mr. Mills, and agreed to, requesting the president to furnish a statement of the facts concerning the arrest, imprisonment and death of Dr. Ruiz, in a Cuban jail.

House of Representatives.

The house ran unexpectedly into an interesting and possibly significant discussion of the civil service law. It came about by the consideration of a bill to amend the revised statutes, so as to give the governors of territories the power to remove as well as to appoint certain territorial officers. It was participated in by a dozen members or more, nearly all of whom criticized and condemned the law, it finding its only defenders in Representatives Brosius, rep., Pa., and Walker, rep., Mass. Mr. Grosvenor denounced it as a "sinuous, infamous conspiracy upon the government," and expressed the opinion that a tide was rising in this country which would sweep bureaucracy from power. Mr. Bailey denounced the system as a humbug, and said the reason why the democratic party did not repeal the law, when it had the power, was that it did not have sense enough. Mr. Brosius deprecated the sentiments of Mr. Grosvenor and of the republican applause which the utterance evoked, saying that in view of Major McKinley's well known attitude toward the merit system, it seemed to him, "a fleshing of a sword in the heart of the president-elect." The bill was passed.

Against Portraits in Newspapers.

Albany, Feb. 24.—Senator Ellsworth, rep., Niagara county, has introduced a bill in the senate, which, if it becomes a law, will prohibit the publication of cartoons of any person in newspapers and periodicals. The bill provides that no portrait or alleged portrait of any individual shall be printed or published in any newspaper, periodical, magazine, pamphlet, or book without the written consent of such individual. A violation of the act is punishable by a fine of $1,000 and imprisonment for one year.

Yale Literary Magazine Officers.

New Haven, Conn., Feb. 24.—The annual election of officers for the Yale Literary Magazine, the oldest magazine in the world, took place last night. It resulted as follows: Gouvernor Morris, New York city; Frank A. Lord, Moorhead, Minn.; David DeForrest Burrill, New York city; E. C. Streeter, Chicago, and A. D. Baldwin, Mawai, Hawaii.

Bloomburg Carpet Failure Not a Surprise.

Bloomburg, Pa., Feb. 24.—The failure of the Bloomburg Carpet works, the Magee Carpet works and the Leader Store company, all owned by the same persons, with liabilities of $100,000 and assets not known, was not a surprise, it having been expected for some time. The plants are claimed to be the best equipped in the state.

MR. HANNA'S PLANS

He Tells What He Expects To Do While in Washington.

WILL BE A VERY BUSY MAN

As National Chairman Many Political Matters Will Come Before Him—As Senator He Will Devote Much Time to the Tariff Question.

Canton, O., Feb. 24.—Many callers have come to Canton during the past two days to see the president-elect, but only one or two with whom he had an appointment saw him. The doctor still insists that Major McKinley must not see visitors, and those who come without having been sent for are wasting time and money. Chairman Hanna of the republican national committee chatted genially last evening with the representative of the United Associated Presses. "This is my last visit to Canton before the inauguration of Major McKinley. I expect to leave for Washington Friday afternoon. I found myself in a very agreeable situation, and one which, two months ago, I never dreamed of. My understanding is that Mr. Foraker will be the senior senator from Ohio." "What do you expect to make your chief work in Washington?" was asked. "As chairman of the national committee I will have a great many political matters to look after. In congress, as I am a business man, I expect to devote a good deal of time to the consideration of the tariff question. I think that I am pretty well in touch with the business and commercial interests of the country, and I think I know what these interests want and have a right to expect. All business men and all those interested in the return of prosperity agree, I take it, that we must have a revival law that will produce revenue to pay the current expenses of the government. I want to see such a law constructed on protective tariff lines passed at the earliest possible moment and I think a great majority of the members of congress are of the same mind." Referring to the Kentucky situation Mr. Hanna said: "Gov. Bradley, who came to see me a day or two ago told me that he would appoint a senator as soon as a vacancy occurred. He will also call a special session of the legislature." Speaking of the effect of Gov. Bushnell's determination to appoint him to the senate to succeed John Sherman, Mr. Hanna said: "The so-called Ohio situation is now perfectly clear. Peace reigns. The partly is strongly consolidated and in splendid condition to go into the campaign next fall. There is no reason why a condition of harmony and good feeling should not prevail for years among the Ohio republicans and I firmly believe such will be the case." Ex-senator D. M. Sabin and ex-congressman S. P. Snyder of Minnesota were among Major McKinley's callers yesterday afternoon. Mr. McKinley's nephew and niece, Mr. and Mrs. George Morse of San Francisco, arrived last night and will accompany the presidential party to Washington.

INAUGURATION PREPARATIONS.

A Bill Providing for Participation by the West Point Cadets.

Washington, Feb. 24.—The house committee on military affairs has voted to report favorably a bill to provide for bringing the West Point and Annapolis cadets to Washington to take part in the inaugural parade and to appropriate a sufficient sum for the expenses of the trip. Secretary Lamont's report before the committee was rather non-committal on the question, while a report from Superintendent Ernst of the West Point academy was strongly against the project. There was some opposition in the committee to the bill, but the opponents were content to let it be reported, feeling confident that it would not be passed because the senate has already declared against the proposition.

Floral Decorations for McKinley's Car.

Columbus, O., Feb. 24.—A carload of potted plants and cut flowers were received from Miami, Fla., last evening with which to decorate the private car of Supt. Miller of the Pennsylvania railroad for the use of President-elect McKinley and his family on their trip to Washington next week. The car is in the shops here, being renovated and painted for this service. The car is a magnificent one and its appointments excel, it is said, any other car of the kind in the country. Its decorations for this occasion will be in keeping with its rich draperies and homelike appointments. The car will be sent to Canton next Saturday.

Major McKinley's Carriages.

Chicago, Feb. 24.—Major McKinley's new carriages will be ready for his use as soon as he reaches Washington. The outfit, including a landau, a brougham and a victoria, were shipped from this city last night. They fill a flat car, and go on in charge of a special man who will see that they are properly set up ready for use.

Kentucky Senatorship.

Frankfort, Ky., Feb. 24.—It is now said that President-elect McKinley and Gov. Bradley have agreed that the governor shall appoint a senator March 5, and call an extra session of the legislature for a later day. It is now believed that the governor will appoint either John W. Yerkes or St. John Boyle.

Sentenced To Life Imprisonment.

Fonda, N. Y., Feb. 24.—Justice Stover has sentenced "Tubby" Glynn to Dannemora prison for life for the murder of Lewis Erkenbrack. When the court asked Glynn if there was any reason why sentence should not be pronounced he replied: "I am as innocent of the crime as you are."

LONG LIST OF VICTORIES.

PARK CLUB BIG FOUR DEFEATED NEWARK WHIST PLAYERS.

The Park's, Profiting by Experience, Were on to the Tricks of the Visitors and Beat Them in Every Round Played

The Park Club challenge whist trophy still remains at the clubhouse of the Park Club. It was the turn of the North End Club from Newark to meet defeat last evening from the hands of the "big four" of the Park Club. The team from the North End Club was next on the list of challengers and they came to this city to battle for the trophy. The game was postponed from Monday to last evening on account of the holiday and the ball at the club.

The Newark team played trump showing leads and they were successful in their first match. Last night the Park's were ready for them and easily defeated them by an overwhelming score.

The visiting four consisted of Messrs. Smith, Frasee, Eagles and Reynolds. The regular team Messrs. Rogers. Townsend, Howell and McCutchen, represented the home club.

In the first round the Park's were victorious by a score of 7 to 5. They won the second round 13 to 5, and the third round 7 to 3, making a total of 27 to 13. The Park's played their regular game and their opponents followed their own system of leads. When they made weak openings they played them down.

The Park Club players will meet the the team from the Orange Whist Club on next Monday evening for another contest for the cup.

AN AMPHIBIOUS CAPTURE.

Frank L. C. Martin Returns From Florida With an Alligator.

Accompanied by an alligator, four feet long, and a small army of chameleons, Frank L. C. Martin returned to Plainfield last night. He has been on a trip to Old Point Comfort and Florida and has spent a very enjoyable week. He started in company with C. E. Pearsall and E. J. Whitehead, of Westfield, and only expected to go as far South as Richmond and then spend a few days at Old Point Comfort. The trip was such a delightful one that he changed his mind and went on with them to St. Augustine and Jacksonville.

He went swimming, picked strawberries, and enjoyed all kinds of fishing. While trolling on Lake Melrose he captured the alligator. His line became entangled in the amphibion's hind leg,as it was swimming across the lake, and Martin pulled the alligator in. It was captured alive and now reposes in a healthy condition at Mr. Martin's home on Park avenue.

Mr. Martin will now resume his duties with the company of which he is president, and install his alligator as an assistant in persuading his customers to buy wheels.

Volunteers Washington Supper.

The American Volunteers held a Martha Washington supper in the basement of Reform hall last evening. Before the supper, a meeting was held in the hall and Rev. W. C O'Donnell made a few remarks. Captain Patty Watkins was expected to be present but she was detained at the bedside of Captain Endicott, who was in a very critical condition in New York. After the meeting everybody was invited to the basement where a supper was provided for all. The supper was arranged by Mrs. Christofferson, Mrs. William Sharkey, Mrs. Pangborn, Mrs. VanNest and Mrs. VanHorn.

that the Council reserves the right to revoke the franchise in case of any failure on the part of the company, also that the business must be confined to this city. Mr. Barrows moved that the above be adopted and it was so ordered.

Mr. Frost took exceptions on the motion and stated that the city does not need such an establishment. On general principles he said that the city should own its crematory. He had not heard a single person say that there was any need for a crematory and he thought it was bringing things into politics which should not be.

Mr. Barrows said that the council was not giving a franchise to this company, and no one was compelled to let the company collect their garbage. He thought that if the city could have its garbage collected in a cleanly manner it would be preferable to the present method. As for politics entering into the matter he thought that it was an unfair reflection to cast on the councilmen.

Mr. Serrell wanted to give Mr. Smith, a member of the company, an opportunity to say a few words on the subject, but this was declared out of order. However, Mr. Serrell thought the system is a good one and favored it. He presented letters showing that it had worked successfully in other places, and immediately afterward Mr. Frost said that he had official records from the same places showing that it had been a failure and that he would oppose the motion. A vote was finally taken and Messrs. Frost, Runyon, Stebbins and Newman voted against it, while Messrs. Barrows, Baker, Tolles, Serrell, Westphal and Leivers supported the motion and it was adopted.

Mr. Westphal for the Alms committee stated that the committee had considered the plan of using the city property at the corner of West Front street and Rock avenue for an alms house and he offered a resolution that the Council appropriate $2,500 for the purpose of making the place a suitable one for the city poor. The resolution was adopted.

Mr. Barrows then introduced the question of licenses. He said personally he agreed with everyone of the petitioners against granting them, but that he was there to represent the city and not himself. He thought that the requests placed the members in a very awkward position, and that if the people of the city desired to make the place a prohibition one they should attend to that matter at the primaries.

Mr. Frost said that he agreed with Mr. Barrows that the proper time to act was at the primaries and not at this time when all the responsibility was thrown on the members. He said that he knew the character of the rum traffic and that as heretofore he would vote against the licenses on principle.

Mr. Barrows stated that he had investigated the place kept by J. J. Goff and that he had found it to be one of the best kept of all the saloons and hotels in the town and that the request from the Mt. Olive church was not warranted.

The following licenses were then granted: J. J. Goff, John Rafferty, Alex. Findlay, Henry Haurand, Jacob Blimm, J. E. Beerbower, Charles Smith, Frank Linke and Fred Casper. The application of Patrick O'Keefe was laid over for one week and those of J. J. Sullivan and William Willis were refused.

Mr. Westphal said that he did not want to be known as a crier for the liquor traffic but he thought that if any licenses were to be granted all should be. He advanced the argument that all were entitled to a license as much as one. Of his own personal knowledge he knew that those who were denied licenses kept just as orderly places as anyone in town, and so far as he knew there was no charges against them. In the case of Sullivan the business was the only support of a widow lady. He could see no reason why the Council should discriminate and he would vote for all.

Mr. Barrows in replying stated that he had nothing against those who were refused a license but three saloons on one block in a resident portion of the town he thought was too much. The policy of the city should be to confine the saloons and to have them kept as orderly and neat as possible.

Those who voted for all licenses were Messrs. Runyon, Newman, Tolles, Westphal. Messrs. Barrows, Baker, Stebbins, Leivers voted for all except Sullivan and Willis, while Mr. Frost voted against all except one hotel and Mr. Serrell voted against every license.

Mr. Frost reported that it had come to his knowledge that several inexperienced plumbers had been making connections with the sewer for a number of people in town. In some cases this had been done with serious results. He said that he would offer an amendment to the ordinance relating to that work so that it would only give practical plumbers the right. A little later Mr. Barrows offered a resolution that all permits be granted by the street commissioner and that the same be only given to boss plumbers. The resolution was adopted.

Mr. Serrell called up the matter of the re-rental of the city court room. He thought that the city should renew the lease pending the erection of the new municipal building.

Mr. Barrows stated that he had consulted Judge DeMeza in the matter and had been informed that the room was not needed as the council rooms could be used when necessary and thus the city would save $144 a year.

A motion to renew the lease was lost and the meeting then adjourned.

Reading by Mr. Underhill.

A reading, or rather a rendering, of Sheridan's "The Rivals" will be given in the chapel of the Crescent Avenue church on Thursday evening by Charles F. Underhill, of Brooklyn. The entertainment is given in connection with University Extension Course and admission will be by the regular course tickets only. It begins at 8 o'clock. The entertainment will take place on the same evening as the Peary lecture in Music Hall. The management tried to change the date but, owing to Mr. Underhill's numerous engagements, they were unable to make the change. Those who have heard Mr. Underhill before will be glad of a second opportunity of hearing him.

Primary Teachers Union.

The attendance at the Primary Teachers' Union meeting yesterday afternoon was exceedingly large. The devotional exercises were conducted by Miss Beeching, and the lesson, "The Disciples Dispersed," was taught by Miss Shinn. A very helpful discussion followed the teaching of the lesson. It was announced at the close that next Monday afternoon a business meeting would be held and on the following Monday Dr. Barnes will deliver an illustrated lecture.

A Distinguished Honor.

Jesse Lawson, formerly of this city, but now of the Pension Department, Washington, has been placed on the reception committee which will tender Vice-President Garret A. Hobart a reception on the evening of March 3d. Mr. Lawson is the only colored man who is on the committee and the honor thus conferred on him is a distinguished one. Mr. Lawson was educated in the public schools of this city.

Support of a Native Missionary.

The Sunday-school class at the First Baptist church taught by Miss Linda Butler, has formed themselves into a King's Daughters' Circle, and Miss Butler has been chosen president. The new circle has for its object the support of a native girl in Burmah, and all other efforts will be directed towards the East Third Street Mission.

Ant Philosophy.

An Eccentric Idea.

The late Charles Bramblett, of Cynthiana, Ky., whose eccentric idea of burial has been the food for a great deal of newspaper comment in Kentucky and the Ohio valley generally, left an estate of $100,000. Bramblett several years ago employed a skilled artisan to construct a sarcophagus of Kentucky blue limestone. He bought a barrel of the finest old Bourbon whiskey to be obtained, and for years has desired that at death he should be placed in the sarcophagus and the whiskey poured upon him and the receptacle hermetically sealed and placed in a grove near his residence. At his death his wishes were complied with to the letter.

Not the Lesson She Sought.

A little Somerville girl going to church with her mother last Sunday saw some men working on the street-car tracks.

"See those men breaking the Sabbath," said her mother, thinking to suggest a moral lesson.

The little girl watched them gravely. Then she looked up in her mother's face and said:

"And can't God mend it?"—Summerville Journal.

Too Much Turning Out.

"There is too much system in this school business,' growled Tommy. "Just because I snickered a little, the monitor turned me over to the teacher, the teacher turned me over to the Principal, and the Principal turned me over to Paw."

"No. Paw turned me over his knee."—Christian Advocate.

COUNCIL NOT AS A UNIT.

FOR UNEXPECTED ACTIONS IT BEATS ANY FORMER BODY.

A Resume of Some of the Events Which Have Caused All-Around Trouble in G. O. P. Ranks and May Still Keep it Up.

There is no doubt but what the city Council for 1897 has had more trouble in passing through the preliminary work than previous Councils, and one has only to look back to the beginning of the year to verify the truth of this assertion. Not even in the days of the famous "Big Six," when the Council rulings were considered high-handed, did the members have as much trouble in understanding each other, and whatever else might be said, it could not be denied that there was peace and harmony within the fold and that everything was lovely.

The present Council seems to have met with peculiar difficulties, however, which have been particularly their own, and it would certainly be hard to tell just where the difference started. The slate was supposed to have been made up and settled upon, but as time past on it was broken, not only once but several times, and after the precedent was established it seemed hard to get away from it.

When it was planned that Councilman Randolph should be the Street Commissioner, and that ex-Councilman Frazee should take his place in the Council, it was confidently believed that the slate was fixed. And here is where the trouble began, as stated at the time. It was thought that Mr. Randolph and all concerned fully understood each other but, in less than a reasonable length of time, the latter was "on the outs" with the powers that be. The Mayor not knowing of any difference sent Mr. Randolph's name in as Street Commissioner. It was then that the storm began to brew, and everybody knows the matter was finally settled by the Council accepting Mr. Randolph's resignation as a councilman. Many people thought that the action was hasty but the Councilman had stated that he did not want the position and the members thought that they were justified in their action.

To follow out the plans already made it was, of course, necessary to elect Mr. Frazee to fill the vacancy and that was done. Mr. Westphal presented the latter's name with the understanding that he would accept. The members thought that it was a mighty good thing. Mr. Frazee was a popular man and well liked by all. He had served the city in that capacity before and was thoroughly acquainted with the work of a Councilman.

In the meantime several people were kept on the anxious seat regarding the appointment of a street commissioner. It was said that certain ones were given assurances that they would capture the much-coveted plum and a lively hustle was made for the office. At the eleventh hour the announcement was made that A. J. Gavett would secure the appointment, and as he was a dark horse everyone received a surprise.

Again the slate was broken when the fact became known that Mr. Frazee would not accept the office to which he was elected. This was not made known until the last moment and not even then did the members know of it until they read the news in The Daily Press. When the Councilmen arrived at the Council rooms last Tuesday evening they expressed great surprise that Mr. Frazee's resignation had been received. They could not understand it. Confidence had been placed in Councilman Westphal that the election would be all right, hence the unanimity. Naturally, when the latter reached the rooms that evening he was looked to for an explanation. He said that Mr. Frazee had given him every assurance that if he presented his name it would be all right, and on those grounds he had done so. At the last moment Mr. Frazee told him that he had decided to decline to serve and that he was going to resign. This mystified Mr. Westphal and when he asked the latter for an explanation he was unsuccessful in getting what he wanted. Mr. Westphal claimed that the unexpected action had set him at variance with the people in his ward, and he thought that it was unjust.

The mattter being settled that Mr. Frazee would resign, the members began to look for another successor.

Mr. Serrell wanted to nominate E. E. Anthony, but he lived too near the man who proposed him, and the other members thought that the man should live at the other end of the ward. Then the name of Alfred H. Leivers was presented, and at once inquiries were made as to who he was. It was ascertained that he worked in Pond's, and the City Clerk being an employe

OLD VETS ARE COMING.

ANNUAL REUNION OF THE SECOND BRIGADE IN APRIL.

Will Meet in This City and it is Expected That They Will Be Given a Hospitable Time—G. A. R. to Act.

Early in April the Second New Jersey Brigade will come to this city, where their annual reunion will be held. It will be remembered that last year when the brigade met at Paterson, ex-Mayor Gilbert and a delegation of citizens from this city attended the gathering and extended a personal invitation to the members to come to Plainfield this year. The invitation was accepted, and now that the time for the reunion is drawing near it has been thought advisable to commence planning for the reception of the 200 members of the brigade who will be here. Among the number will be several distinguished generals of the late war who are members of this brigade. In every respect the gathering will be a notable one, and it is desired that the citizens of this city join in making the affair one long to be remembered, and it will depend largely on the citizens as to the success of the meeting.

Committees have been appointed by Commander McVoy, of Post No. 73, G. A. R., President Mrs. Stephens, of the Woman's Relief Corps, and Capt. H. C. McVoy, of the Sons of Veterans, and a meeting was held last Monday evening at the home of Wm. Hand on Park avenue, at which time the matter was discussed and preliminary plans were made.

Another meeting will be held next Monday evening in the rooms of Post No. 73, when the actual work of the committee will commence.

LAST OF MRS. VANBUREN'S TEAS.

Given at Her Central Avenue Home Yesterday Afternoon.

The third and last of a series of teas was given by Mrs. VanBuren, of Central avenue, yesterday afternoon. The prevailing colors, yellow and green, were so arranged as to present a scene of beauty.

Those who assisted in receiving were Miss Cock, Mrs. H. M. Stockton, Miss Stockton, Mrs. C. E. Brooks, Mrs. Howard Fleming, Mrs. J. W. Reinhart, of this city, and Mrs. Helfstein, of Elizabeth. The others who assisted were Mrs. Delaney, Miss Vail, the Misses Holly, Waring, Reinhart and Miss Lefferts, of New York.

There were about two hundred guests present and the usual delightful time was enjoyed by all.

Attempted to Steal Clothes.

Lawyer Robert Clark and his brother, Edward Clark, while returning home at a late hour on Tuesday night, met with an exciting experience. While they were nearing their home they could distinguish a person in the yard trying to get away with some clothes which hung on the clothes line. On the appearance of the brothers the man became frightened and started to run. The former gave chase and it was not long before the man was obliged to drop the clothes so that he could escape. A few minutes later and he would have been caught. On account of the darkness it was impossible to see who the man was, but the brothers were satisfied to get their clothes back and did not particularly care to know who the thief was.

Young Friends Surprised Her.

Miss Cora Harris, of West Fifth street, was tendered a surprise party last evening by her young friends. Miss Fanny Dodd and Miss Emma LaRue arranged the event and a very pleasant time was passed in playing games and dancing. Those present were the Misses Edna Harris, Edith Titsworth, Fanny Dodd, Emma LaRue; Hazel Keller, Courtney Keller, Daniel Mosher, George Pope, Albert Ford, Charles Dodd, Will Kennett, Charles Sebring, Fred Sebring, Will Rogers.

Funeral of Mrs. Nichols.

The funeral services of the late Mrs. Nichols, wife of Hugh Nichols, of 506 West Second street, were held yesterday afternoon from her late home at 2 o'clock. They were conducted by Rev. C. E. Herring, of the First Presbyterian church, and were well attended by a number of the friends and relatives of the departed one. The pallbearers were Herman Weber, James Patterson, Mr. Campbell and Mr. Martin.

Borough Realty Changes.

The following real estate transfers have been recorded in the Somerset County Clerk's office during the last week:

RESIDENTIAL CHANGES.

WHERE VARIOUS PEOPLE WILL RESIDE AFTER MOVING TIME.

The Time is Close Approaching For the Annual Removals and in Consequence the Real Estate Agents Are Busy.

From present indications it looks as though the coming spring will bring with it many changes in the way of removals and exchanges in property. This is evidenced by the amount of business transacted by E. C. Mulford & Son, the North avenue real estate and insurance firm. The following is a partial list of the removals arranged by the above firm:

Reuben Knox and family, from Sherman and Grant avenues, to the corner of Mercer and Washington avenues; Daniel Aller, of East Fifth street, to 624 LaGrande avenue; Tell A. CAVEAT STOPS TROLLEY.

HALT IN GRANTING ARPLICATION OF TRACTION COMPANY.

New York and Philadelphia Traction Company Want Right of Way Between Bound Brook and Dunellen—Hearing.

The Piscataway Township Committee gave a hearing today at Nelson's Hotel, New Market, to the representatives of the New York and Philadelphia Traction Company with reference to the granting the right of way for the construction of a trolley road between Bound Brook and Dunellen, to pass through a section of Piscataway township on the new county road along which is located the new town of Lincoln.

J. B. McAfee represented the railway company. The members of the committee were John Sebring, Warren Smalley and Joseph Field, with Charles Day as clerk.

A number of people were heard and the sentiment seemed to be very much in favor of the road being built, although there were a few objectors, one of whom was a man living near Lincoln, who had succeeded in having a caveat filed against the laying of the track on the county road. This matter was brought up and the Township Attorney, Mr. Bailey, said that it was binding. This necessitated a stop until the proceedings are decided. It is thought that the caveat will be disposed of because the man who had it issued is not a property owner.

This afternoon after the hearing had been resumed the committee agreed to give the railroad representatives another hearing at the court house in New Brunswick next Wednesday, when they are to meet the representatives of the Brunswick Traction Company.

It is the purpose of the ones interested in the scheme that if permission cannot be secured to build the track on the connty road to put it through over private property.

Held For the Grand Jury.

Theodore Glazer was arraigned before Justice Thomas yesterday afternoon on the charge of assault, preferred by Wallace H. Coriell. The two men had a dispute about something and Corriell alleged that Glazier struck him several times. Walter Williams represented the plaintiff and succeeded in having Glazier held for the Grand Jury. Judge DeMeza, his lawyer, went his bail for $200.

MRS. ROBERTS SET FREE

SHE WAS CHARGED WITH PERJURY BY A BROOKLYN MAN.

She Formerly Resided in This City Where She Married Frank Roberts—Claimed That She Had Blackmailed Marvin Cross.

Mrs. Frank Roberts, formerly of this city, was placed on trial in the criminal branch of the Supreme Court, Brooklyn, yesterday. Justice Gaynor presiding, on an indictment charging her with perjury. The perjury, it is alleged, was part of a scheme to collect money from former Park Commissioner Marvin Cross, of Brooklyn.

The jury was quickly secured, and Mr. Backus, lawyer for Cross, said that he intended to show that the defendant had been blackmailing Mr. Cross for years. He said that she had obtained from Mr. Cross over $12,000 by representing to him that the child was his natural son. Mr. Cross finally became tired of paying money to her, and after his wife died, and he was no longer afraid of having his old relations with the accused made public, he told Mrs. Roberts that he would not give her a cent.

Then she threatened to sue him, and did begin an action in the Supreme Court for the appointment of herself as guardian ad litem in order to compel Mr. Cross to pay for the support and education of the child.

Letters covering a period of five years were then shown to the witness and were identified by her as letters sent to her by Marvin Cross. She testified she had been married to George Roberts, who is also under indictment on the same charge, for twelve years. Her maiden name was Townsend, and she had been known as Small. When fourteen years old she married Willard Pierson, but only lived with him a year, as he threatened to strike her. She said that her brother's child was born in 1883 and that her son was born in November, 1882. She had only sent one letter to Mr. Cross since her marriage to Roberts. In all she had received about $9,800, of which amount her mother had received about $1,800.

The jury retired at 6 o'clock and returned at 9:45 o'clock with a verdict of acquittal.

THE ROAD TO BE WIDENED

AND THE TROLLEY TO THE MOUNTAIN IS ASSURED.

North Plainfield Township Committee Last Night Decided to Widen the Road—One Objector to Track Laying.

A special meeting of the Township Committee of North Plainfield was held last evening for the purpose of deciding whether to widen the roadway for the extension of the trolley. All the members were present and the discussion of the subject was interesting. Everyone was heartily in favor of the widening and a resolution was passed to the effect that the work of widening the road be commenced at once. When the work is completed the road will be thirty-two feet wide. The average width of the road, additional, will be from two to ten feet.

In connection with the above work there is one objector and that is Mrs. Olssen, of East Second street, this city. Mrs. Olssen owns some property along the proposed line of the extension, and she objects to the increased assessment of two per cent on a hundred. At a previous meeting she appeared in person and openly objected to the widening and the extension of the trolley. She also stated that if the work was started she would take legal steps to have the same stopped. As she did not appear at the meeting last evening it is not known what action she will take, but the committee is determined that the work shall go through.

Before the meeting adjourned Lawyer Charles McNabb, of this city, was appointed township attorney, and he will personally look after the interests of the township in the work of putting the trolley through to the mountain. The company agree to have the road built by May 1st.

CAR STRUCK THE WAGON

AND THE VEHICLE'S OCCUPANTS THROWN INTO THE ROAD.

Mr. and Mrs. Meeker Claim They Did Not Hear the Warning Gong—They Were Not Seriously Injured, However.

Mr. and Mrs. Meeker, of South Somerville, drove to this city yesterday afternoon and did not return until about ten o'clock last evening. Just after they had passed Clinton avenue their wagon was struck in the rear by a trolley car and upset. Both occupants were thrown out and Mrs. Meeker was bruised and considerably shaken. Mr. Meeker escaped without any injury. The horse was a gentle one and did not attempt to run away.

The motorman says that he sounded his gong but the occupants say that they did not hear it. Their wagon was astride one track and when the car struck it the blow resulted in turning the vehicle completly over. As soon as possible Mrs. Meeker was removed to the hospital for it was thought that she was badly injured. After an examination it was learned that she had received a few bruises about the body and was thoroughly frightened. She will be able to leave for home today.

It is said that the car was going pretty fast at the time and that it was impossible to stop it quick enough to escape the accident.

WOMAN KNIFED TO DEATH

STABBED IN A QUARREL WITH HER ITALIAN HUSBAND.

Then the Murderer Escaped to the Mountains—Being Hunted by a Posse of Constables—Woman Lived a Short Time.

The fourth murder within a year was committed this morning in Somerset county, when at Bound Brook an Italian plunged a long knife into the right breast of the Irish woman who lived with him as his wife, then fled to the mountainous territory back of the town, while the injured woman dragged herself to another house and soon died from the injuries. The husband was tired of life in uneventful Bound Brook, which caused a quarrel, because the woman wanted to remain, and ended in a crime that will be expiated on the gallows if the former is caught.

Guiseppe Chalbi, commonly called "Jo," and his wife came to Bound Brook about a month ago. They took up their home in the little house on Main street, about three blocks West of the station. The house belongs to John D. Voorhees and is said to have been an unluckey one for its occupants. Four men and two women who have lived there have been killed on the railroad, and a woman went crazy there at the time of last year's flood.

There has been trouble in the Chalbi household lately. Jo wanted to leave for Newark or some of the big cities but his wife steadily opposed to the plan. He sent word to her by telephone several days ago and a stormy interview occurred over the wire.

Last night, Jo went to Jerry's, an Italian resort at the corner of Main and John streets, and struck a bargain with Rocco Mancino, a Bound Brook junk dealer, for the old furniture and effects in his house. Rocco was to call for them in the morning. Bridget was at Jerry's also and called to her husband to come home as she had to get up early in the morning to go to work. She was employed about the kitchen at the Bound Brook Hotel.

"You no go to work tomorrow," growled Chalbi. "I go to Newark."

Presently she left and returned home and Jo followed soon after.

Rocco went to the fated house about 6:30 in the morning and carted away the household effects. Husband and wife were both there but in no particularly amiable temper.

"Do you want to come with me or not?" demanded Jo. He received no answer and Rocco left the house. He afterwards was called back by Jo who sold him a blanket.

A new house is being erected on the opposite side of Main street from the house where Chalbi and his spouse have been living. At about 7:30 o'clock the workmen heard sounds of a conflict in the house opposite. Voices were heard in loud and angry tones. There was a scream and Jo came rushing out the door and started off on a run in the direction of the mountains. A moment later, the woman came out also. Her dress was stained with blood on the right side.

At the gate she met an Italian lad named Megenio, and together they hurried to "Jerry's" place. The woman was in great agony. She was laid on a cot in the rear of Jerry's store.

Justice Robert J. Brampton was on his way to his office at 8:15 o'clock when some of the excited Italians told him that there was a woman in Jerry's who had been stabbed. He went in to investigate. She was screaming with pain when he found her and was unable to get a written statement from her. She managed to tell that her husband had stabbed her in the right breast and that he was gone. Dr. Wild arrived soon after and said that the woman was dying. She became unconscious in a few moments and died half an hour later in great agony.

The news of the murder spread with great rapidity, and searching parties were organized immediately and started off in the direction of Martinsville and Chimney Rock. Marshal Anderson and William Taylor made a thorough search through the houses in the neighborhood, but no trace of the escaped murderer cauld be found. Several parties thought that they had seen him, but nothing definite was learned. At 1:30 o'clock his whereabouts was still unknown.

Coroner Stillwell and Prosecutor Dungan arrived at Bound Brook several hours after the deed was done, and an inquest was held at once. The following jury was impaneled: Peter H. Smith, John Henry, James H. Fisher, A. J. Linbarger, Nelson M. Colther and Foreman VanNest. The inquest was held in the office of Justice Brampton.

There were no witnesses of the murder but it is supposed that she tried

DECORATION BEGUN

Preparations for the Inaugural Festivities on a Gorgeous Scale.

WORK ON THE TREASURY BUILDING

Thousands of Flags Distributed to Residences and Stores Along the Line of March---Decorations of the Spectators Stands To Be Uniform.

Washington, Feb. 25.—The decoration of the treasury department building for the inaugural festivities is progressing rapidly and the rest of this week and the first three days of next week will be devoted to putting the city into appropriate garb for the quadrennial occasion. Every available bit of space along the line of march marked out for the military and civic procession has been utilized for the erection of stands for spectators. For no previous event of the kind have so many of these structures been built. All the public reservations between the White House and the capitol have been turned over to the people who secured contracts from the inaugural committee to erect stands. The construction and decroation of these will be uniform and on a scale never before attempted. Some attention to artistic effect has been given so that in place of the rough board structures that met the eye at previous inaugurations, handsome covered platforms will be the order. The bases of these stands will be painted in representation of a classic stone wall, while the posts will be handsomely trimmed with green and tri-colored bunting, state shields and American flags. The display of the national ensign will be a marked feature throughout the city. Fifty thousand small flags have been distributed by the inaugural committee to persons who have dwellings or business houses along the line of parade. Every stand will have a number of flagstaffs of varying lengths, each supporting a flag of appropriate size. One big hotel on the line of parade already floats a big American flag from every window. Yellow and white bunting, representing the two principal money metals, will be used lavishly in decorating. The treasury department building is already sufficiently covered with designs in these shades to show how effectively they can be utilized together. Chairman Bell of the inaugural committee called on President Cleveland, and made arrangements for the usual ceremonial call to be made by the president-elect on the president. This will take place at 11 o'clock on the morning of March 3. President Cleveland, according to custom, will return the call the same day. The inaugural committee has information that the Second regiment of the New Jersey National guard will probably take part in the parade, notwithstanding the recent adverse action of the state legislature. A telegram received by the committee says that a detail of Black Hussars of Chicago, one hundred men and horses, will be in the parade. They will be headed by the governor of Illinois and his staff. The assignment of position in line to organizations ended with provision for the Black Hussars and no further places in the parade can be given excepting to the Second New Jersey regiment.

A WONDERFUL CRAFT.

Torpedo Boat No. 6 the Swiftest Craft in the World.

New York, Feb. 25.—The new government torpedo boat known as No. 6, said be to the swiftest craft afloat, which coaled at the Brooklyn navy yard last night and then started for Washington, made a remarkable run from Newport, R. I., where she was put in commission last Saturday. It was decided not to crowd the little craft on the trip, so she was permitted to run at about her natural draught, about 160 pound steam pressure. But two of the three boilers were used and only two-thirds of her maximum speed was maintained. Between Point Judith and Faulkners island big seas and heavy north west winds were encountered, the storm becoming so terrific that it was deemed wise to slow down until the gale abated, and one and a half hours were lost in this way. During the whole trip more or less severe seas and headwinds were encountered, but the officers say the boat behaved admirably and proved a wonder. Despite the adverse conditions she travelled the distance, about 160 miles, in 6¼ hours, making her average speed 25 knots per hour. This was the first trip No. 6 has made since her acceptance by the government. It was not in the nature of a trial. Commander Fremont says he could have made the journey in five hours without difficulty. The commander is very enthusiastic over the little vessel, and says that marvellous as have been her performances thus far, when the officers and crew become better acquainted with the boat, she will undoubtedly astound the naval world with her speed achievements. "There is no question," he said, "about her being the fastest boat in the world. Though we came through a howling gale, she gave perfect satisfaction. There was no heating of engines and no trouble of any kind.

INDECENT NEWSPAPERS.

Vigorous Language of the President in Denying a Pardon.

Washington, Feb. 22.—The president has delivered a most scathing criticism upon indecent newspaper publications in denying a pardon to James B. Wilson, sentenced in December, 1895, in Indiana, to two years' imprisonment, $250 fine and costs for mailing indecent papers. The president says: "Denied. This convict was one of the editors and proprietors and a distributor through the mails and otherwise of a disgustingly vile newspaper. His conviction and sentence was an event distinctly tending to the promotion of public morals and the protection of the sons and daughters of our land from filth and corruption at a time when indecent newspaper publications are so dangerous and common. Everybody in favor of cleanliness should encourage the punishment of such offenses and desire that it should be more frequently imposed. While I am much surprised by the number of respectable people who have joined in urging clemency in the case, my duty seems so clear that I am not in the least tempted to interfere with the just and wholesome sentence of the court."

"Cuba---Her Past, Present and Future."

Washington, Feb. 25.—Every member of congress has been presented with a neat pamphlet of sixty pages, under the title of "Cuba—Her Past, Present and Future, in Connection with Spain and the United States." It embraces a chronological review of principal events between Spain and Cuba since the year 1836 up to the present time; a statement of Cuba's grievances: the condition of the country at present; a criticism of the new plan of reform, and arguments to show that Cuba can only prosper under the American flag. It ends with an appeal to President-elect McKinley to extend over the island the protection of the American flag.

For years Mr. Thomson had been one of the largest lumber dealers in this section of the state. Mrs. Thomson, who died about a year ago in New York city, was Abbie G. Sherman, daughter of the late millionaire Augustus Sherman of Glens Falls.

Massachusetts Rivers and Harbors.

Washington, Feb. 25.—Secretary Lamont has sent to the house reports of the corps of engineers on the following examinations of rivers and harbors in Massachusetts: Col. Mansfield reports Duxbury harbor as worthy of improvement by widening and deepening. The improvement of Duxbury beach, he reports as unnecessary for the protection of the harbor. Plymouth harbor he reports as unworthy of improvement.

Canal Transportation.

Albany, Feb. 25.—The promoters of the Parshall canal bill have agreed to an amendment to do away with the opposition to the bill by the millers of Syracuse, Buffalo and Rochester. It is to establish a pro rata rate between ports, giving to any intermediate point an equal rate for an equal service, based upon the full amount for long distances.

HIS VISION IS PERVERTED.

The Remarkable Case of a Resident of North Adams, Mass.

A remarkable case of what, for want of a better name, is termed perverted vision is just now attracting much attention in North Adams, Mass.

The victim of this strange malady is John Ghidotti, a six-year-old boy who attends the public schools of that city. Physically and mentally, so far as scientists and physicians can determine, he in no way differs from other boys of his age, except that it is practically impossible for him to write in the ordinary manner. He uses his left hand, writing from right to left, forming his letters and sentences backward.

This peculiarity of the boy was noticed as soon as he began to take writing lessons. He learned the letters quickly, and wrote rapidly for one so young, but his writing was invariably in the reverse order.

Starting from the wrong side of the page he would cover his copybook with characters which looked unlike anything called writing, but if the page was held before a mirror the reflection was perfectly legible and appeared like ordinary writing. Strange to say, he makes figures in the proper manner. Yet he cannot explain the difference between writing figures from left to right and letters just the reverse. It seems impossible to teach this child that there is anything peculiar about his chirography, and he persists that his handwriting is like that of any other person.

Another peculiar feature of this perverted vision is that apparently he has no difficulty in reading the handwriting of other persons, although there is such a difference between his own and that of others.—New York Herald.

Preventing Fires.

"I heard a story while I was down in Kansas the other day," said E. G. Carlisle, the insurance agent. "There had been a fire in the town, and the fire-engines had been unable to put out the conflagration, because there was something the matter with the fire-plugs. This had made it impossible for the engines to get any water. The result was a disastrous fire, which destroyed a great deal of property.

"The condition of the fire plugs created great indignation, and at the meeting of the village Board of Trustees, or City Council, I think it was—all of those little towns are cities—the matter was discussed at great length. It was determined that precaution ought to be taken against such accidents. The best way in which it could be done was, however, a matter of dispute. At last one farmer arose and offered a resolution providing that the Town Marshal be directed to examine the fire-plugs at least three days before each fire, and put them in good condition. The suggestion met with favor, and the resolution was passed unanimously."—Chicago Times-Herald.

FREAKS OF IMPULSIVE PEOPLE.

They Find It Impossible to Resist Certain Strange Acts.

A very peculiar, and often a very expensive impulse to yield to is that of which a lady—a friend of the writer's—is an unfortunate victim. This lady, whenever she sees anyone carrying a basket or similar article upon his head, cannot resist walking up to the unsuspecting one and knocking it off. This may sound grotesque and impossible, but, nevertheless, it is perfectly true.

Since this strange freak has taken possession of her, she has knocked baskets of crockery-ware, vegetables, meat, plaster of Paris ornaments, and a host of other things from the heads of people in the streets.

Not so very long ago she met a boy who was walking on the opposite side of the road, carrying a basket of eggs upon his head. She deliberately crossed over, gave way to her unhappy impulse, and treated some astonished and amused onlookers to the sight of 10s. worth of eggs rolling on the pavement. Then, her impulse being gratified, she walked with the frightened boy to his master, and smilingly paid for the damage, which, as a matter of fact, she willingly does every time she indulges her peculiar freak.

Another strange freak to give way to is that by which a friend of the writer's is afflicted. This gentleman can never pass a dead pig hanging outside a butcher's shop without giving the inoffensive and helpless animal a smart cut with his stick or a slap with his open hand. Many are the amusing scenes he says he has with pork butchers and others whose dead pigs he thus assails. Although for years he has tried to resist the temptation, he does not remember one instance in which he was successful.—Tid-Bits.

Too Much for the Minister.

An instance of a minister's gravity being upset occurred in a west country chapel, whose congregation was chiefly composed of seafaring men. The preacher's attention was drawn to the strange behavior of a sailor in his audience. He was seated in the front row of the gallery, with his arms on the book-rest, leaning over and gazing intently to the floor. Just beneath him was a man asleep, with his head reclining on the back of the seat and his mouth wide open.

As the minister looked, he saw the sailor in the gallery deliberately take a quid from his box, and, carefully plumbing the open mouth beneath him, drop the tobacco. The effect on the sleeper was instant and alarming, while the minister, carried away by the grotesque scene, burst into a great laugh. The astonishment of the congregation was divided between the unusual spectacle in the pulpit and the consternation and contortions of the awakened sleeper.—Tid-Bits.

Some gowns are so dainty in the weave, so delicate in tint, that they seem to soil by being looked at—one or two wearings making them unpresentable, NOT USELESS. We make a specialty of cleaning fine fabrics, the more delicate the material, the better the results. Sometimes an accident will ruin a gown, without injuring the texture. We dye them then, sometimes we get a prettier effect than the original color. Fine goods stand redyeing. The finer the material the better the new color. We charge so little for cleaning or dyeing, that even if you are in doubt as to the result, it's worth while to experiment. Want a new evening gown for a dollar or two? DOWN TO HARD WORK

Senate at Last Awakens from Its Spell of Idleness.

LONG NIGHT SESSIONS NECESSARY

Appropriation Bills Will Occupy Most of the Time Remaining---One Day's Proceedings of Unusual Interest and Excitement.

Washington, Feb. 25.—After several days of almost idleness the senate seems to have awakened and the proceedings are becoming full of interest, and the remainder of the session promises to be unusually lively. The Cuban question started the ball rolling and no less than three propositions were made in relation to Cuba—one by Senator Allen, pop., Neb.; one by Senator Hill, dem., N. Y., and one by Senator Morgan, dem., Ala., as to the unanimous report of the commitee on foreign relations. It is in the form of a joint resolution demanding the immediate and unconditional release of Julio Sanguilly, and compensation from the government of Spain for his imprisonment and sufferings. Mr. Morgan gave notice, and was backed by the chairman of the foreign relations committee—Mr. Sherman—that astion on the resolution would be asked for at once. The Indian appropriation bill was taken up and two or three of the committee amendments to it provoked long and rather angry discussions. Remarkably enough, two of the temporary occupants of the chair received stinging rebuffs from senators—first, Mr. Perkins, rep., Cal., from Mr. Allen, pop., Neb., and afterwards Mr. Hill, dem., N. Y., from Mr. Pettigrew, sil., S. D. But the scene which attracted the most attention was one in which Senators Pettigrew and Hoar, rep., Mass., were the chief actors. Mr. Pettigrew had met an attack of Mr. Chandler's on a committee amendment as to the large claim on the western Cherokees' fund for legal services rendered to the Cherokees by attempting to turn into ridicule New England sympathy for the Indians, and recalling the cruelties practised in the King Philip's war and by Miles Standish. Mr. Chandler retaliated by inquiring of Mr. Pettigrew where he was born—a question which Mr. Pettigrew declined to answer, and concerning which his conflict with Senator Hill, in the chair, took place. And Senator Hoar indulged in some very scathing comments on Mr. Pettigrew as one who went "mousing" in ancient history to meet an argument; as having studied more history for the purpose of the speech than he had ever done before, and as belonging to that species of birds who "foul their own nests." Mr. Morrill, rep. Vt., withdrew the notice which he had given for a speech on the Cuban question, his reason being an unwillingness to occupy the time which should be given to appropriation bills; and Mr. Allison, rep., Iowa, chairman of the committee on appropriations, remarked upon the backward condition of the appropriation bills, and gave notice that from now on late night sessions would be absolutely necessary.

House of Representatives.

The appearance of W. J. Bryan of Nebraska, the democratic candidate for president in the last election and an ex-member, on the floor of the house, late yesterday afternoon was the most notable event of the session. On his appearance a wave of applause swept over the chamber and while he made his way to his old seat, business was suspended. Mr. Bryan's face was wreathed in smiles of the completest satisfaction at the welcome tendered him, and he responded heartily to congratulations and compliments. He then made his way to the speaker's desk and shook hands with Mr. Reed. The exchange of courtesies between Mr. Bryan and Mr. Reed was exceedingly brief, and at its close Mr. Bryan left the hall. Business was resumed and several local bills were passed.

Bryan To Stump in Ohio.

Columbus, O., Feb. 25.—Arrangements are being made for a thorough stumping tour in Ohio by William J. Bryan in the coming campaign for the election of the legislature that will choose the successor to Marcus A. Hanna in the United States senate. Mr. Bryan, if he decides to come, will work in the interest of John R. McLean, who will be the candidate of the democrats for senator.

Report of Grounding of Texas.

Galveston, Tex., Feb. 25.—The United States battleship Texas had sailed for New Orleans. She has scarcely been gone three hours when a sensational rumor gained currency that she had grounded on Sabine shoals. The shoals are sixty miles northest of this city, and are directly the reverse of the course the Texas would take for South pass.

Mary Ann Duffy's Record.

Lawrence, Mass., Feb. 25.—Mary Ann Duffy, 55 years old, who died in the police station yesterday from alcoholism, had a record of having been arrested more times than any other person in this city, the authorities say, over 100 times, covering thirty years.

Koerner To Be Sentenced Monday.

New York, Feb. 25.—William J. Koerner, the artist, convicted of the murder of his sweetheart, Rosa Redgate, on September 23 last, will be sentenced on Monday next to be electrocuted.

State Auditor Short $27,000.

Omaha, Neb., Feb. 25.—An information has been filed in court at Lincoln, charging Eugene Moore, ex-state auditor, with the embezzlement of $27,208 of state funds, which amount he is short.

THEIR RUSES FAIL

Office-Seekers Still Persist in Their Efforts To See Maj. McKinley.

ALL SORTS OF SCHEMES EMPLOYED

The Rumors That McCook Had Declined a Cabinet Portfolio Not Verified---The President-elect Is Still Indisposed.

Canton, O., Feb. 25.—Mark Hanna has returned to Cleveland and will not see Major McKinley again till he meets him in Washington on Tuesday next. Mr. Hanna will start for Washington to-morrow afternoon. Owing to the fact that the president-elect suffers from some irritation of the throat, Mr. Hanna did not have as extended a talk with him as he would otherwise have done. The rumor from New York that Col. J. J. McCook has intimated that he cannot accept the position of secretary of the interior is in no sense verified here. Notwithstanding the daily publication of the fact that McKinley can see no callers people continue to come to Canton to see him, and there are a score or more awaiting an opportunity to speak with the president-elect. All sorts of ruses are resorted to to gain an audience with Major McKinley, but they all fail.

Banquet to Newspaper Men.

A handsome banquet was given the newspaper correspondents last night who have been in Canton during and since the campaign. Major McKinley, who was prevented by illness from being present, sent an autograph letter of regret. M. A. Hanna sent the following telegram: "I offer the sentiment which requires you all to look at the gas light through the bottom of your glasses: 'To my co-workers and friends of the press a reward for ability and integrity.'"

PRIZE FIGHT GOSSIP.

Green and Smith and Hawkins and Flaherty Matched for Battles at Carson.

Carson, Nev., Feb. 25.—Gossip is plentiful around Dan Stuart's headquarters. George Green (Young Corbett) and "Mysterious" Billy Smith have been formally matched, and articles of agreement have also been signed for a finish fight for the featherweight championship and a purse of $2,500 between Dal Hawkins of San Francisco and Martin Flaherty of Boston, who recently jumped into prominence by beating champion George Dixon in a limited go. The two events will be doubled up and decided March 16 at a single price of admission. Referee George Siler visited Fitzsimmons and discussed the Australian's constructions of the Queensberry rules. When informed that Corbett had expressed a preference for clean breakaways without hitting in clinches, Fitzsimmons pondered a moment and said: "Let Corbett go ahead and practice all kinds of breaks, as I am doing. I don't say that I want to hit him with a free hand during the clinches, nor do I want it understood that I consider it advantageous to me that punching in breakaways should be allowed. I'm willing to agree to anything that is fair, but I don't propose to show my hand just now."

AMERICAN PRISONERS IN CUBA.

Gen. Lee Awaiting Instructions from Washington Regarding Their Cases.

Havana, Feb. 25.—The case of Dr. Ricardo Ruiz, the American citizen who was found dead under suspicious circumstances in his cell in the prison at Guanabacoa, where he had been confined for some time in the state of incumunicado, led to the request for the release from similar confinement of Charles Franklin Scott, which request was granted by the authorities. The cases of Dr. Ruiz and Mr. Scott gave rise to the contention on the part of United States Consul-General Lee that American citizens cannot under the treaty between the United States and Spain be imprisoned incomunicado longer than 72 hours. No instructions have been received from the Washington government by Consul-General Lee as to what steps shall be taken regarding these cases.

Swindling Saloonkeepers.

Albany, Feb. 25.—State Excise Commissioner Lyman says he has received complaints from different parts of the state against impostors who are representing themselves as special excise agents and attempting to blackmail hotel keepers and liquor dealers. Commissioner Lyman says there is no man representing his department but has his commission or appointment under the seal of his department. This he must produce when the liquor dealer demands to see it.

Invitation to Speaker Reed.

Washington, Feb. 25.—The Tennessee delegation of the house has presented Speaker Reed with resolutions passed by the centennial board of that state inviting him to attend the opening of the exposition at Nashville in May. He said he would attend if possible.

Commissioner of Lunacy Named.

Albany, Feb. 25.—The governor has nominated as a commissioner in lunacy William L. Parkhurst of Canandaigua, to succeed Henry A. Reeves, whose term of office expires in May. Mr. Parkhurst is vouched for by Senator Raines.

The Tonawanda Bank Failure.

Tonawanda, N. Y., Feb. 25.—Superintendent of State Banks Kilburn, who is in charge of the German American bank, which closed its doors yesterday, says all the depositors will be paid in full. The bank has a capital of $100,000 and deposits of $400,000.

RESTRICTING LIQUOR TRAFFIC.

Assemblyman Jones introduced a measure yesterday which is of interest to liquor dealers. It provides that all applications for licenses granted by the court shall be filed with the clerk of the court ten days before the first day of the term, and within forty eight hours the clerk must inform the court of the municipality in which the applicant lives of the filling of such application. Another liquor bill, by Mr. Van Winkle, requires all liquor sold not to be drunk on the premises to be delivered at the place licensed, except upon a written order of the purchaser.

THEATRICAL.

Manager Willey is offering the theatre-going public of this city a grand and gorgeous revival of the famous spectacular drama, Tompkins' "Black Crook." This is the same production that appeared at the New York Academy of Music and enjoyed the unparalleled run of twelve months to crowded houses. Among the grand and novel features are the three grand ballets, among which is the famous New York and Paris success, "The Ballet of Gems," which enlists the services of Europe's greatest terpsichorean premiers, Mlle. Kraskee and Mlle. Micari, and supporting coryphees. Another novelty is the Musical Marionettes, together with fin-de-siecle "Trilby Ballet," and the celebrated New Ballet International. Amid a host of European novelties may be named the Brothers Rixford, from St. Petersburg, and the great Bretoni, in his artistic changes. The Stalacta, in the person of Miss Leslie May, is the most strikingly beautiful woman on our American stage. Music Hall, Monday, March 1st.

BELIEF REWARDED.

"There are exceptions to all rules, of course," said Low, the talkative member of the club, at the other side of the room, "but I assert once more and for the last time—no, I really must go, thank you—that nine-tenths of our girls would no more think of marrying a man without money than they would of staying in New York all summer;" and amid a chorus of questions and derisive remarks, he marched out the door, as firm as ever in his opinions.

The others looked at each other and then Ames remarked slowly:

"I fear me much that Low is getting pessimistic. He never used to be so."

"Perhaps he has gone through the mill, who knows?" said Redmond.

"He has," replied Graham, "and was ground out exceeding fine. His betrothed threw him over when he failed."

"Lucky man," murmured the romantic boy; and the others smiled indulgently.

"And of course he thinks his experience the rule," said Topleys. "But why shouldn't it be the exception?"

"It might be but for the fact that Low never did an exceptional thing," returned Stratford, decisively, "and you fellows don't understand what he means, any way. He did not say it was the fault of the girls; he did not say that they do not know how to love a man as they used to when true love was the thing, the absolutely correct thing; all he asserted—and I quite agree with him—was that our girls have not the moral courage to face poverty nowadays, with the man they love, and I don't blame them. We've become so used to the so-called luxuries of life that you cannot place a finger on one of them that hasn't really become a necessity, and no man wants to drag a girl from the comforts that riches provide down to a struggling fifth-floor back existence for the mere satisfaction of seeing her three times a day in place of once."

"But love," gasped the romantic boy, "do you count it out completely?"

"My dear boy," returned Stratford, turning upon him, "you are young, exceedingly young, and you must not try to monopolize the conversation with such by-gone topics. Love is all very well in its place, but it should never interfere with business, and marriage is a business nowadays quite as much as cornering wheat."

"And about as uncertain as to profits and losses," put in Ames.

"Exactly, though when we've cornered a wife she usually stays."

"Except in Chicago," ventured Redmond—but no one heard him.

"To blame the girls for this state of affairs is nonsense and unjust," Stratford went on; "it is due to our progressive ideas, and nothing more, not to the girls, who simply do as they must. Though I deplore the fact that we are a mercenary nation, I can't see that we can lay the blame upon the shoulders of our girls and women, with any justice. They but do our biddings, and if we—that is, the fathers of the girls, understand, say 'Go, thou, and pick thyself a rich husband, lest I break and be confounded before creditors!' pray, tell me, what choice have they? None. And so long as this has been going on in one form or another, that your do not find our girls marrying poor men."

There was a pause after this outbreak on Stratford's part, and then Holland, the only man who had not as yet spoken, said:

"And yet, Stratford, Low acknowledged exceptions to this rule. You do not, do you?"

"Oh, yes!" replied Stratford, "one in ten thousand. But I do not know ten thousand girls, my dear fellow, and I never expect to meet that exception, though I should like to do so! She must truly be a remarkable girl!"

"I hope you will some day," said Holland, quietly; "I think it would do you good, and perhaps make you appreciate your sisters more."

The other flashed an angry look at the speaker, but Holland met it calmly and said nothing.

"I speak from experience, or that of Low and several others, whom I happen to know have suffered as he has," said Stratford, slowly, "and I dare say that there is not an engaged man in this club who would go to his fiancee and tell her he has suddenly failed, and keep the deception up for a week. If he did, he would find himself free again, that's all."

The small number of engaged men in the room smiled thoughtfully and said nothing. Those who were not, nodded decidedly, but Holland was still undismayed.

"Though I am not an engaged man, and therefore cannot prove or disprove your assertion," he said, "I feel sure that you are radically wrong. Though the tendency of the time is to bury our emotions and great passions, and to be iconoclastic to the last, in everything, I can't but believe that there are girls whom you and I know, who would willingly give up all their 'needful' luxuries, their social standing and their past life in society, to go, hand in hand, with poverty even, each with the man she loves—to share his fate and be the partner of his joys and sorrows, just as they did when your mother and mine were young. I am not looking at life—nor the girls of our set—through rose-tinted pince-nez, but humanity is humanity all the world over, and through ages past and ages to come; and love, after all, is 'the greatest thing in the world.'"

"Good heavens, whom have we here?" exclaimed Stratford, staring at the speaker through his own eyeglasses. "A believer in love! A believer in the most worn-out creed the world has ever known, and one that no sane man ever listens twice to! Yet the world is full of people like you, Holland, and it is just such—

"Fools that make you wise men stand out in pleasing contrast? Perhaps; and yet it is also just these fools who make life worth the living and this otherwise dreary old world a more cheerful habitation!" and Holland resumed his magazine before Stratford could finish lighting his cigar and return to the attack.

*** *** ***

It was hardly fair for Holland to declare himself an unengaged man, for, though it was literally so, he had no idea of remaining in that condition—that wretchedly, destitute condition, as the Romantic Boy would have said—any longer than fate and Katherine would have kept him there.

With his mind still on the conversation he had just had with the pessimistic member of the club, he made his way home, and while dressing for dinner he looked long and earnestly into the mirror and inquired of the reflection there whether he dared try that fate that evening.

The answer must have been in the affirmative, for when he got home, somewhat later than usual, there was a very happy light in his eyes, and the faintest possible odor of violets in the palms of his hands.

That night he was the most light-hearted man in the whole city. A week later he had lost every cent he possessed.

It has never been satisfactorily demonstrated just why one's fortune takes upon itself wings at the most inopportune time—though Stratford insists that any time is inopportune for such a performance—and flies away, but almost invariably it is when some splendid scheme is about to be put on foot, or as was the case with Holland, when one is in the seventh heaven of earthly bliss, that one's income suddenly leaves without notice, and utterly refuses to return.

This is what had happened the poor fellow who had believed in love, and for a while after the blow dim ideas of flight, of suicide, and other equally absurd things flitted through his benumbed brain, but in the end his good old blood and his own true grit came to his rescue, and he faced ruin, utter and complete ruin, with a calm face and steady nerves.

It was not for himself he had cared—not of himself had he thought, but of her; of her love, and what this downfall of his business would mean to her; and the picture of her questioning eyes and white face, as he knew it would be when he told her, made him bury his own in his hands and groan aloud. Then, shutting out this vision, he went about the work of clearing the wreck away as if it were a weekly occurrence for him to fail.

But all the time, as he worked over balance sheet after balance sheet and account after account, there were the haunting eyes before him, and the sweet face he had loved so long; and ever in his ears the cynical utterances of Low and his fellow Stratford.

Were they right? he found himself asking time and again—would she throw him over? No! A thousand times no! cried his heart. Then could he ask her to share that mere pittance he had managed to scrape together from that wrecked business—could he ask her to leave that comfortable home and the family who adored her to live with him in that fifth-floor back Stratford had mentioned? Could he ask he to do that? Could he?

His sacrifice would mean nothing—he cared nothing for society itself—but what of hers? Think of her taking care of her two or three little rooms, and wearing her life out trying to make his diminished income meet the grocer's bills; think of her getting his meals for him—actually cooking over one of those heathenish little gas stoves! Could he let the possibility of this stare him in the face and still go on—go on, and ask her to wear out her life for him thus? No; she should never begin to do so.

And so, realizing that it must come, he steeled himself and resolutely turned his steps toward her home the night after the downfall—to her home, where he expected to see the last of his hopes and ambition—to see the funeral of his own love.

"I cannot ask you to wait for me, Katharine," he concluded, speaking very slowly lest the despair he felt should show itself in his voice. "The future is all too uncertain, and it would be unfair. You—are—I—oh, darling, I cannot say it!" and with a groan he turned away with those steady eyes and stared blindly into fire.

For a moment she did not speak, and his heart beat slower and slower, for he knew the end was there. Then she came forward a step, and held out one white bare arm to him.

"Look, dear," she said gently.

Mechanically he took the pretty arm in his hand and looked at it. A long red mark, like a fresh scar, disfigured the tender flesh across the wrist.

"What is this—what does it mean?" he asked wonderingly.

"It means that I heard of your trouble last night, and this,—this is a burn."

"A burn, yes," repeated Holland dazedly, "but—"

"Why, can't you see, you dear, stupid boy," she said, half way between laughter and tears now, "I've been learning to cook!"

And then—well, then the man who believed gathered her into his arms and held her there quite as tightly as if he had fifty thousand a year.

NEW YORK LETTER.

Brooklyn has the distinction of embracing in its territory the most unique burial plot on earth. The plot is located on a beautiful slope to the right of the main entrance to Evergreen Cemetery. This plot is the property of the United States, and has been set apart as the last resting place of the sailors who die in the port of New York, friendless and far from home. The plot occupies the most desirable location in the cemetery, and now contains the remains of nearly two thousand sailors. The plot consists of three acres on the highest ground, and has been in use for upward of forty years. On the plateau is a marble monument, rising in base, pedestal, shaft and capital to the height of 60 feet. The pedestal has four panels, one bearing the inscription: "For Sailors of All Nations," while the others bear nautical emblems and the names of the first Board of Trustees. Surmounting the capital is a marble globe, on which is engraved the map of the world. Parts of the plot are allotted to Asia, South America, Oceanica and Africa, while under the head of Europe separate lots have been set aside for the benefit of all the various maritime nations of that continent, France and England being allotted the largest lots. All the American sailors are interred in the plot allotted to the United States. Canadian, Mexican and Central American sailors have separate lots. Each subdivision of the plot has a large stone, with the name of the country to which it is assigned in raised letters on its surface.

Miss Lillian Russell recently added another to the list of her experiences, and gave the prisoners spending Sunday in the Tombs a chance to do likewise. In accordance with the wish of the Rev. William Lindsay, who conducts the Protestant Episcopal service in that prison and Ludlow Street Jail (when there are enough inmates left in the latter place to hear it) Miss Russell rendered a semi-religious vocal solo for the occupants of the Tombs cells. She has sung before hundreds of larger and more fashionable houses, but few of them had looked forward with keener expectation to her coming or found more delight in the exercise of her talent. The fact that Miss Russell was to sing in the Tombs had been sufficiently advertised beforehand, and Warden Van De Carr said that he had been pestered for three days by people who wanted free passes to the Tombs for the occasion. There was, in fact a respectable scattering of visitors about the railing on the second floor of the corridors when Miss Russell climbed the stairs that lead to it with her accompanist, Paul Steindorff. She wore a jaunty hat, a black jacket richly faced with sable fur and a black skirt of brocaded satin. The prisoners trained their eyes to catch a glimpse of her through the bars of their cell doors and the backs of accommodating guests that stood between them and Miss Russell, but made no special demonstration at her appearance. She walked to the little organ that is used in the regular afternoon service, and after the clergyman had introduced her to the audience, who might be supposed not to know yet that she had come, Mr. Steindorff sat down at the instrument. Miss Russell sang James Thompson's "A Song of Thanksgiving," the words of which were written by Francis Alliston. As she finished, the hollow sound of applause echoed from the cells and down the corridor, the clapping of the hardened hands mingling with what seemed to be the sound of a tin basin. The applause grew into an encore, and Miss Russell was willing to respond, but Mr. Lindsay did not approve of that. She gave no more, therefore, but later repeated the same selection before the boys' prison, whom she smilingly declared to be the best gallery she ever sang to. She sang also for the female prisoners.

Miss Russell expressed herself pleased with her little adventure, and said that she would come down later on a week day, without announcing it beforehand, and sing some ballads to the prisoners.

There are 1,600 persons in various grades of service on the pay roll of the New York Custom House, with salaries aggregating more than $2,250,000 in a year. The number of clerks and inspectors exceeds 400 of each.

The average number of voters to a house in New York city is three. There are 110,000 houses and 330,000 voters.

The Populist vote in New York city cast at the recent election for Associate Judge of the Court of Appeals was 1,367 votes.

The Rev. Lyman Abbott and other Congregational ministers are surprised and indignant because of a new State law which, it is just discovered, is destructive of the Congregational form of church government. Each Congregational Church is not only absolutely independent of each other as regards doctrine and policy, but each member is the equal of every other member, and the pastor has no absolute authority. The new law, it is discovered, not only makes the pastor an autocrat, but puts the individual churches in larger measure under control of the association or denomination to which they belong. This, of course, is entirely contrary to Congregational and Baptist usage, and the churches will try to have the law amended so as to exempt them from its operation.

WASHINGTON NOTES.

For the first time since the civil war guns mounted on the defences of old Fort Washington, which was supposed to guard the national capital against sea attack, sounded to-day as three shots from modern steel eight-inch guns swept six miles up the Potomac River toward the city and dropped into the water just a little short of the sleepy old town of Alexandria. Fort Washington, twelve miles below Washington, some time after the war was abandoned as a fort, and since then has been in charge of an orderly sergeant; but in the past five years the authorities have been expending thousands of dollars converting it into a modern fortress, and within a very short time there will be such a formidable array of guns and mortar batteries there that no fleet entering the river could ever get above it. The new emplacements, where eight and ten inch guns are to be placed, is on a high bluff where the river makes a turn. Opposite, and not over a mile distant, will be Fort Sheridan, which will be supplemental to the main defences. Here the channel is not over 300 yards wide, and already there is a torpedo system ready to effectually prevent the passage of any ships. Every gun when in action will probably be 200 feet above the water, and commands not only a sweep of twelve miles down the river, but the entire channel up to the city, eight miles away. On the opposite shore will be Fort Sheridan, mounting probably four 12-inch guns and two or three eights. Fort Washington's battery, when completed, will comprise five 8-inch guns, several of the old 15-inch smooth-bore mortars, which are now in place, and capable, it is believed, of sinking any but heavily armored ships, besides the submarine mines to be worked from batteries well protected under the fort.

The Sayres bill, providing for the taking of the twelfth census, does away with the former separate office of Superintendent of the Census by providing that the Commissioner of Labor shall have charge of the work. It also makes the salary of the Commissioner of Labor $6,000 and gives him the power to appoint an Assistant Commissioner who will get $4,000 a year. There are to be five expert statisticians at $3,000 per year each, and many other places that the Commissioner will be at liberty to fill without consulting the wishes of the President of the Senate.

The etiquette between the outgoing and incoming Presidents is exact and rigid. Mr. McKinley will go to the White House and drive to the Capitol, simply a citizen, sitting by the side of President Cleveland. On the way to the Capitol the President lifts his hat to the cheering crowds occasionally, although the new man does most of the bowing. But coming back he keeps his hat on, having then exchanged places with the simple citizen who drove down sitting on his left, and returns sitting on his right and President of the United States. On the return to the White House a luncheon is given by the outgoing to the incoming President, at which the first-named is host and the guests are the members of the two cabinets and their families. When this is over, the outgoing President takes his leave, the incoming President escorting him to the door of the mansion. But this may not be the last time he enters it. On every ocasion that an ex-President visits Washington his first obligation is to call at the White House. He is immediately received, no matter how much engaged the President may be. The head usher acts as his escort, and he is paid more personal attention than any guest who ever enters the house.

Not a great while ago notices were put up in the House wing of the Capitol prohibiting smoking in the corridors, the public offices, statuary hall and the elevators. Employees of the House were specially prohibited from smoking. The doorkeepers and the Capitol police were instructed to rigidly enforce the order. The members of the House, of course, do not pay the slightest attention to the regulations, and some of the police say that inasmuch as the order is not signed by any one they do not believe they could rightly arrest a man or boy should he insist on smoking. "I happened to be standing at the end of one long corridor the other day," said a policeman, "and suddenly I saw a large body turn into that same corridor and come my way. I thought there was a chance to call a man down for violating the orders. He came rocking along, had an unusually big cigar in his mouth, and you would have thought it was a tugboat from the clouds puffed out. I was about to yell 'Smoking is not allowed in this building,' when to my great astonishment I discovered it was Speaker Reed himself. I felt like telling him he was breaking the rules, but on the second thought concluded he was too big and mighty for me to joke with, so I did not even pretend that I saw him."

"The heating and boiler plant of the State, War and Navy Departments building," said Commander Baird, U. S. N., superintendent of the building, "though not generally known, is the largest in the world. Indeed, there are very few heating plants in existence that even approach it in extent or power. To run it requires 5,000 tons of coal every year. By the arrangements in connection with the coal vaults, the coal goes direct to the furnaces, where it is consumed with one handling and at very little expense. In this respect the heating plant is also far superior to any other."

MERKLE'S PETRIFIED FOOT.

A Strange Case, but Vouched for as a Truthful Tale.

A hunting party from this place, but recently returned from an expedition northwest of here, tell of the marvelous discovery up in the mountain regions of what seems to be one of the greatest living wonders. The find is nothing more or less than a man, living and apparently in good health, yet having one foot completely petrified. The tale is a pretty stiff one, and would not be credited were it not vouched for by gentlemen of well-known veracity and honor, who furthermore have and are ready to exhibit the little toe from the petrified foot, which was broken off shortly before their visit, and which the owner was kind enough to give them as a souvenir.

The man with the petrified foot is an ex-cowboy, Bill Merkle by name, who has lived in the mountains nearly twenty-five years. Up to twenty years ago Merkle lived the most active of outdoor lives, but about that time, in trying to get out of the way of a stampeding drove, he was thrown from his horse right in the track of the cattle, the herd sweeping on resistlessly over his prostrate body. When picked up by his companions a few moments later not a bruise was discovered anywhere upon his body, but both bones of the left leg appeared to be broken just below the knee. No physician was called in. Merkle's friends merely using the simple means in their power to set, splint and bandage the broken limb. According to Merkle's account, in an incredibly short time the bones seemed to be knitting together, but pretty soon it became evident that the texture and color of the flesh below the fracture were undergoing a change. In the course of a month it was deemed advisable to remove the bandage, when it was discovered that while the fracture had indeed reunited the leg below had already begun to show unmistakable evidence of hardening. Since then slowly the process has continued till now the entire limb below the break is a complete petrification.—Correspondent Philadelphia Times.

A Manly Apology.

"We wish," says a Colorado editor, "to retract our statement made last week that our esteemed fellow-citizen, Hon. Mr. Plumley, never was known to keep his promise. After reading the item in question, Mr. Plumley happened to remember that during the heat of the recent political contest he promised to kick us out to the fair grounds, and he immediately came up to the office and executed his promise. In fact, he not only kicked us all the way there, but he kept it up most of the way back, and if he had not run out of breath, we think he would have been kicking us yet. Mr. Plumley is a gentleman of his word, cultured and polished, and can kick like an Asiatic elephant."

THEY ALL ASKED THAT.

Claude (earnestly)—Am I the first man you ever loved?

Maude—Why, Certainly! How very strange men are; they all ask me that.

THEATRICAL GOSSIP.

GRAND OPERA GROWING IN FAVOR IN THIS COUNTRY.

Americans Are Taking Kindly to Classical Music Which at One Time Met With Indifference—Nordica Says the Salaries of Singers Are Higher Here Than Abroad.

M. Castelmary's latest appearance in a new part was in the recent production of "Siegfried," when he sang for the first time on any stage the role of Fafner, the dragon. He sang then in German for the first time in his life, and was greatly elated at his victory over the difficult text of the part. Following the lead of his friends, the de Reszkes, he had recently become an ardent admirer of the works of Wagner, and he enjoyed his performance of the growling dragon with the spirits of a boy. In the "character" parts of grand opera he was eminently successful, and his Dancairo in "Carmen" ranked as one of the brightest buffo performances on the stage.

M. CASTLEMARY.

(Who died on the stage of the Metropolitan Opera House.)

Castelmary was born in France and was well educated. It was reported that he came of a noble family, and had the right to the title of Count, which he declined to use. In early years he took the operatic stage, and became passionately attached to his profession. He first became known in America in 1879, when he appeared in French opera in New Orleans. His next engagement was in Booth's Theatre. In 1886 he took a company to Santiago, Chile, where he lost 100,000f. at the Theatre Nacionale. His greatest success was in the character of Mephistopheles, in "Faust." He sang and acted the part with great success all over the country. He made it a rollicking, humorous part, and to such a performance, it may be remarked, he was especially adapted.

Speaking of grand opera abroad and in the United States, in a recent interview, Mme. Nordica said: The assertion that salaries are the same on the Continent as in the United States is not correct.

It is a fact that in London an artist may be paid the same per night as he is in New York, but nothing additional goes with it. He gets no percentage on the gross receipts or anything of that kind.

MME. NORDICA.

In Paris he may receive as many francs per night as he gets dollars in New York, but the difference is readily perceivable.

At the same time the demands upon the artist are greater in New York and all over the United States than on the Continent. In Europe three or four operas will be selected for the season and these only will be given. In New York a nightly change of bill is demanded, with a matinee.

It is true that the season is longer on this side of the water than on the other, and herein lies the value to the artist who comes here from Europe. He has the opportunity of making more money than on the Continent, although at the same time it is true that his expenses are much greater here. In this way it may be said the great salaries paid here are in a measure equalized by the smaller salaries paid in Europe.

I may, perhaps, be permitted to give you an instance. If I am singing in London, a shilling will pay my cab fare from my hotel to the opera house. In New York, say I am stopping at the Savoy, I pay $5 for a carriage to and from the Metropolitan Opera House. Everything else is in proportion.

You cannot wonder, then, why operatic salaries are higher in the United States than in Europe. There are long distances to travel, frequent rehearsals because of the more extensive repertoire, and more work to be done in every way. One is also expected to be proficient in three languages. There is a greater number of performances, and the participants are continuously at work.

The Macready Institute in London, was started in a small way some twenty years ago by Courthorpe Todd, who opened a clubroom for poor actresses, in the hope of saving some of them from the privations and dangers to which they are often exposed. His plans prospered, and the place was enlarged, till the house now called the Macready Institute was built.

CRETAN SITUATION

Plans of the Powers May Soon Be Made Public.

GREEK PROTECTORATE IS PROBABLE

Details of the Burning of the Palace—Goschen Upholds England's Action, and Declares She Saved the Lives of Thousands of Christians.

London, Feb. 25.—The public demand all over Europe for information as to the intentions of the powers regarding a settlement of the Cretan trouble will probably be complied with within the next twenty-four hours and an official statement is expected to be made from one of the foreign offices of the government interested in the matter. All of the semi-official announcements so far tend to the belief that the plan is to ultimately place Crete in charge of Greece, if not complete annexation a protectorate at least. Hostilities on the island must first be put down, and this is evidently no small undertaking. Little credence is given to the dispatch from Canea saying that the foreign vice-consuls at Retimo announced that the Turks had declared that they would accept the annexation of the island of Crete to Greece. The story, however, caused a great sensation at Canea and Athens.

Burning of the Palace.

The Daily News publishes a dispatch from Canea giving a vivid description of the burning of the governor's palace there Wednesday. Vice Admiral Canevaro of the Italian squadron, who is in command of the united naval forces in Cretan waters, resided in the palace, which was guarded by a strong force of Italian sailors. The energetic efforts of the British marines, who form a part of the foreign force occupying the town, which were continued for three hours, alone saved the thicky populated district in which the palace was located from destruction. Detachments of sailors from the warships in the harbor were landed and rendered valuable aid in fighting the flames. The fire destroyed the last vestige of the machinery of the Turkish government. All the records were consumed, as well as contracts and financial, legal and municipal documents. While the palace was burning the Moslem rabble set fire to several houses in the town and suburbs. The Montenegrin police who patrolled the town extinguished these fires when it was possible for them to do so, but three large houses belonging to Christian merchants who were absent were destroyed. The Moslems are much excited and more incendiarism is expected. In the event of the setting on fire of several buildings in different sections at the same time the force of sailors and marines now in the town would be found to be insufficient to cope with the fires.

DEFENDS ENGLAND'S ACTION.

Lord Goschen Tells How Great Britain Is Protecting the Cretans.

London, Feb. 25.—In the course of a speech delivered in London last evening Rt. Hon. George J. Goschen, first lord of the admiralty, defended the action taken by Great Britain in regard to Cretan affairs in terms similar to those used in the house of commons two days ago. Mr. Goschen also repudiates the assertion which has been made that the British government was acting in the interest of Turkey. The British ships' overawing the Mussulmans in the seaports of Crete, he declared, had saved thousands of Christians from massacre. Besides this, the British vessels were harboring refugees and supplying them with the necessaries of life. Lord Salisbury and Rt. Hon. A. J. Balfour, first lord of the treasury, Mr. Goschen announced, would make clear statements in parliament regarding the future of the island. Meanwhile, he declared, no one who had read the declarations of Mr. Balfour, M. Hanotaux, the French minister of foreign affairs, and Baron Marschall von Bieberstein, the German foreign minister, will believe it possible that Crete will ever return to the rule of Turkey.

More Greek Troops Land.

Constantinople, Feb. 25.—Dispatches have been received by the Turkish government saying that 600 Greek troops with three guns and a large supply of ammunition have been landed at Cheraonesus, in the province of Candia, island of Crete. The Greeks were directed by an insurgent leader.

Turks Will Accept the Loss of Crete.

Canea, Feb. 25.—The foreign vice-consuls at Retima announce that the Turks declare that they will accept the annexation of the island of Crete to Greece. The announcement has caused a great sensation.

Not of Incendiary Origin.

Canea, Feb. 25.—The fire which yesterday destroyed the governor's palace, a building constructed of wood, there is reason to believe, was not of incendiary origin, but was due to accident.

Death of Frances M. Johnston.

Baltimore, Feb. 25.—Mrs. Frances Mansfield Johnson, wife of Col. Richard Malcolm Johnson, the southern author, died yesterday at her residence in Baltimore. Death was due to a complication of diseases.

Presented to the Queen.

London, Feb. 25.—At the queen's drawing room yesterday afternoon Mrs. Wentworth of New York; Mrs. Marshall Fox of Maine and her daughter, and Miss Maynard Butler of Boston were presented by Mrs. Bayard.

Why Hale Abandoned the Race.

Chicago, Feb. 25.—It is now said that the real cause for Teddy Hale, the Irish champion, to abandon the contest in the six-days' bicycle race at Tattersalls was on account of irregular heart action.

to oppose Jo in his attempt to leave town and that a quarrel resulted. It is the general opinion that he tried to force his way out of the house and finally used the stiletto. Rocco saw him place a long narrow knife in his pocket when he was there collecting the articles he had purchased. Justice Brampton, Rocco and the Italians who had seen the woman after the stabbing had been done, were sworn and told their story. The carpenters who had heard the noise of the quarrel also testified. The jury then retired and, at 1:30 o'clock, were still out.

The post mortem examination of the remains was conducted by the County Physician and Dr. D. C. Adams, of North Plainfield.

The victim was about thirty-five years of age and was commonly known as Chalbi's wife. He was a tall, slim man of dark complexion and dark curly hair. He had a mustache slightly lighter than his hair. He was forty-five years of age, about 5 feet 10 inches in height and weighed about 170 pounds. He had high cheek bones and a distinguishing feature was a scar on one cheek, just below the eye, and unusually drooping lower eyelids. He walked very erect. He wore a dirty grey suit and a grey corduroy cap.

HOTEL WITH MANY HOSTS

SCOTCH PLAINS HOSTLERY THAT HAS EXISTED ALMOST A CENTURY.

In 1800 It Was Known as the Old Stage House, But is Now Conducted by William Emery—Other Scotch Plains Notes

The old DeBaud hotel known in the year 1800 as the old stage house between New York and Philadelphia has had many proprietors since that time. In that year statistics state that Colonel Swan kept the hotel and besides being proprietor he was auctioneer and occasionally preached at religious services held in the town. The hotel has since been under the management or ownership of Recompence Stanbury, Jacob Stanbury, Alex. Campbell, Peter Davis—who removed to Irvington, many years ago, and later returned and took up his residence on what was then known as Baltus Roll hill, and which incline bears the name to this day. Baltus Roll was found murdered one day and Peter Davis was arrested and accused of the crime. After a trial he was adjudged guilty and hung. The other proprietors of the hotel have been John Harris, Jonathan Hetfield, Joseph Darby, William Cleaver, Pyatt Drake, William Fisher, Thomas J. Barr, who was a noted politician in New York city from 1835 to 1842, Cornelius Staats, William H. Deverna, Joseph C. Moses, William Sutton, "Abe" Nelson, Antionette DeBaud, from 1852 to 1878. In that year, Thomas M. Paff assumed control of the hotel and continued the business until 1882. Since then the proprietors have been William Post, John Rowlston, Harry Illsley, Vincent J. Sisser and the present incumbent, William S. Emery. Thus it will be seen that in the past ninety-seven years the hotel, but not always the property, has changed hands many times. Mr. DeBaud, now deceased, it is said, purchased the hotel property many years ago in 1852 for $2,800, and for a long time had it in the market to sell for $16,000. But it was becoming a sort of "white elephant" on his hands, and sometime previous to his death he sold it for $6,500.

The Henry Stites property has been leased by Mrs. Chapin, who will take possession on May 1st.

W. S. Emery has been ill at home for a few days past, but he is now on the way to ultimate recovery.

Little Madaline, the two-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Blimm, is suffering from a severe cold.

Walter Mooney and a party of friends drove up from Garwood, yesterday, and spent the afternoon among friends here.

Some fellow, evidently possessing more nerve than brains, shot and killed George Stilger's house dog, during Tuesday night.

Samuel Taynor and family, of North Plainfield, have removed to the Plains, where Mr. Taynor will pursue his occupation at wheelwrighting.

The Plains seems to be a little cold toward Plainfield, which probably accounts for so much snow yet remaining along the highways and byways.

A yellow house dog, which for the past nine years has been prized highly by the family of Thomas M. Paff, Jr., has been missing since Sunday. The animal was harmless, yet it served as a good watch dog.

If it be true, and it seems reasonable to believe that it is, there is a genuine gambling joint in full operation at the Italian headquarters. No one of course, but Italians, venture near the place either day or night, but it is said that cards, dice and other gambling paraphernalia can be found there in great variety.

The main topic of general interest discussed most here by the knowing ones is the trolley extension. It is asserted that the Town Committee would readily give their consent, individually and collectively, provided the company would build a spur out to the Fanwood depot, or to a point in that vicinity. This seems like asking a good deal of the trolley people simply for the right of way to pass through the town. The proposed spur would benefit but a very few, while the advent of the trolley to and through the Plains would undoubtedly be the means of having people locate there, and by so doing would increase the population and also the property valuations. It is reasonable to suppose that ere the next decade shall have elapsed, Scotch Plains will be gobbled up by Plainfield in making a Greater Plainfield.

A GOOD LETTER.

From the Clerk of the Circuit Court.

Fernandina, Fla., Feb. 28, 1896.

Mr. J. George Suhrer, Druggist, City.

Dear George:—Please send a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. I would not feel easy if I knew there was none of this valuable Remedy in the house. I have given it a fair test and consider it one of the very best remedies for croup that I have ever foumd. One dose has always been sufficient, although I use it freely. Any cold my children contract yields very readily to this medicine. I can conscientiously recommend it for croup and colds in children. Yours respectfully, Geo. E. Wolff. Sold by T. S. COUNCIL NOT AS A UNIT.

at the same place, he was sought for the desired information, but outside of the fact that Mr. Leivers was a good mechanic, the clerk would say nothing. It was stated, however, that he was a Republican and that he was recommended by some of the political leaders. With these facts Mr. Leivers was chosen the successor of Mr. Frazee.

With all these changes the members have not had an opportunity of becoming thoroughly organized, hence the apparent differences on many important questions. It is quite likely that the Council this year will not stand as a unit, as on former occasions, for it can be seen in a general way that several members seem to have independent minds of their own. In any event a lively time may be expected in the Council throughout the year.

AS OTHERS SEE US.

The Tale of an American, Two Japanese, and a Dish of Potatoes.

Even those who desire to be strictly accurate sometimes erect their story from a single instance. The fallacy of so doing is well illustrated by the following story told to the writer by one of the participants:

A few years ago two Japanese gentlemen of high standing were traveling in the United States, and, among other places, visited a large and widely known manufactory. They were afterward invited by the senior member of the firm to lunch with him. Colonel M. was also of the party. It happened that the first food placed on the table was a dish of fried potatoes, and as the manufacturer enthusiastically explained his business to his guests he unthinkingly took a piece of potato from the dish with his fingers and ate it. A second and third piece followed. The Japanese listened politely, but Colonel M. observed that they were closely watching their host's method of eating. The Colonel has a keen sense of humor, and he at once decided that he would follow his friend's example and see what the others would do. He did so, and instantly both Japanese made a dive for the dish, and thus they sat eating potatoes with their fingers, presenting, it is to be feared, the appearance of four men who had had nothing to eat for a long while, and expected never to get anything again.

Will it be surprising if in a future Japanese book on America this breach of good manners shall find a place as an American custom?—American Kitchen Magazine.

SUPPER AND SALE GIVEN AT THE VINCENT CHAPEL.

Fancy Articles Also Afforded a Source of Revenue From the Visitors—The Chapel Was Very Nicely Decorated.

All the delights of a turkey supper were to be found at Vincent chapel, last evening. The members of the Ladies' Aid Society of the First M. E. church gave such an affair, and it proved very successful. The supper was an excellent one, and it was served in a pleasing manner which added much to the enjoyment of the repast.

The supper was not the only feature of the affair. There were several tables with an assortment of fancy articles and candy on them that found ready purchasers among those who came to the supper. The chapel was prettily arranged for the occasion with flags on the walls and the snowy white linen on the tables. Banquet lamps were used to illuminate the scene.

And now as to the ones who arranged and provided this delightful supper and sale. The commander of the army of workers was Mrs. L. M. French, who was to be found everywhere at the same time, doing several things at the same time and making herself generally useful. The different parts of the supper were furnished by different committees from the society. The turkey was looked after by Mrs. Henry A. McGee, Mrs. C. E. Horne, Mrs. Whitney, Mrs. Bergen and Mrs. Noah Pike. Potatoes were the share of Mrs. George R. Cornwell, Mrs. J. C. Peck, Mrs J. H. MacNaughton. The essential cranberry sauce was furnished by a committee composed of Miss Davies, Mrs. Ulrich and Miss Alexander. Mrs. Benj. Mills, Mrs. G. M. Bittenhouse and Mrs. J. Hervey Doane looked after the bread and butter for the rest.

Pickles, sugar and milk were the combination that Mrs. H. O. Humble, Mrs. C. H. Rugg and Mrs. Winter provided. The cakes were many and delicious. They were furnished by Miss Jackson, Mrs. D. S. Dunavan, Mrs. Anderson, Mrs. Turrell and Mrs. Williams. Pie was down on the list for Miss Mulford, Miss Chandler and Mrs. Love. Mrs. J. R. Joy was a committee of one to provide the coffee, which was, of course, delicious. Even if it was winter, there could not be a supper without ice-cream, and it was looked after by Miss Minnie Sharp, Miss Gertrude Sharp and Miss Roberts.

In the class rooms in the rear and sides of the chapel were set the tables where the hungry guests were directed on their arrival. The different tables were presided over by the following: Mrs. J. P. Homan Mrs. J. W. Jackson, Mrs. J. C. Peck, Mrs. C. C. Cokefair, Mrs. S. C. Baker, Mrs. H. A. McGee and Mrs. C. H. Lyman. The waitresses at these tables were the Misses Elizabeth Cornwell, Margaretta Barnes, Bertha Jenkins, Edna French, Lizzie Stafford, Sadee Blimm, Edna Harris, Fannie Chandler, Eva Jenkins, Bertha Whitney and Alice Roberts.

In one corner of the room was a table on which were aprons and all sorts of fancy articles were to be found. Mrs. G. Q. Packer and Mrs. J. W. Jackson were in charge. In another corner was the candy table with an assorted display of homemade candies to tempt the eye of the visitor. Mrs. Samuel Clark and Miss Louise Pangborn were the committee in charge.

The cloak room was an institution such as all regulated suppers should have where the guests might check their wraps. It was under the personal supervision of D. S. Dunavan and Robert Davis. James A. Stafford collected the tickets at the door. The room was decorated by a committe composed of Miss Elsie Horne, Miss Emma Tantum and Miss Madeline Day.

The entertainment consisted of selections on the graphophone, which was managed by Donald A. McGee.

The supper will be continued this evening and the Ladies' Orchestra will render a number of selections during the evening.

Promised to Support His Wife.

Lewis Coddington was arrested in Newark, yesterday, by private detectives. He was charged with non-support of his wife. He was brought to this city and arraigned before City Judge DeMeza, yesterday afternoon. The Judge held him in $200 bail, in default of which he was taken to the lock up. His wife then appeared before the Judge and asked that he be allowed to go as she was sure that he would support her hereafter. Coddington promised to do so and was released in his own recognizance to support her.

HAD TO RETURN THE GIFT

EX-MAYOR SAUNDERS RECEIVED A PRESENT WEIGHING TEN TONS.

It Was so Heavy That There Was No Way to Transport it and the Mayor Had to Send the Stone Back to the Donor.

As a comic opera comedian Wang had an elephant on his hands that nearly ate him out of house and home, and as a popular man ex-Mayor William L. Saunders, of the borough, has a stone on his hands that, while not putting him in quite such a predicament as the owner of the pachyderm was in, has nevertheless been the cause of much figuring and many sleepless nights in his efforts to wrestle successfully with the disposition of the boulder that friends have been good enough to present to him.

People who have had occasion to go to the North Avenue station recently have noticed a large blue stone mounted on a flat car, and have wondered to what use it would be put. The stone was the property of Mr. Saunders. When the ponderous article of concrete earth, which weighs between nine and ten tons, arrived, those in charge at the freight house telephoned to Mrs. Saunders and told her that there was a stone at the yards from King of Prussia for her husband. Mrs. Saunders replied that there must be a mistake, for they had never had any communication with the King of Prussia.

When Mr. Saunders reached home that night he was informed of the message and he solved the mystery at once. It was a fact that such a stone had been sent to him as a personal compliment by a friend who lives at King of Prussia, Pa., and it was intended for a mouument to be placed in Mr. Saunders' plot at the cemetery.

For several days Mr. Saunders had different people figuring on plans whereby the massive article could be taken from the car and erected as intended. The task had to be given up, however, for there is not a convenience in town that could do the work for anything less than a fortune. In consequence Mr. Saunders was obliged to send the stone back. It is a very handsome stone and was greatly admired by all who saw it.

The friends of Mr. Saunders claim that the stone has something to do with the annexation of the city and the borough, while others have said that the stone was intended as a corner stone for the new city hall and that Mr. Saunders desired to contribute the borough's share toward the municipal building.

JOSEPH HYLAND DEAD.

Was Well-Known in This City Where He Ran a Milk Route.

Joseph Hyland died at his home on the Rahway road, Wednesday evening, after a lingering illness. His end was a peaceful one and was not unexpected. He was twenty-five years of age.

He was well-known in this city where he had conducted a milk route several years until his poor health compelled him to give it up. The cause of his death was consumption. He was married two years ago when he was a perfect picture of health. He attended St. Mary's church in this city. He leaves a wife but no children.

The funeral will be held on Sunday afternoon at one o'clock from the house and at two o'clock from St Mary's church. The interment will be in St. Mary's cemetery.

Two Birthdays in One.

A pleasant event occurred at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Winckler, of Park place, last evening, when Mr. Winckler and his brother, Julius Winckler, of Detroit, celebrated the anniversary of their birthdays. The birthday anniversary of the former was yesterday while the anniversary of the latter is today. In order that the two might celebrate together it was arranged that the event should be carried over this morning. Those who joined in the celebration were Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Winckler and son, Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Weseman, Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Dieble, of this city, Mrs. Emerson Quick, of Brooklyn; Mrs. Julius Winckler, of Detroit. During the evening there were vocal, instrumental and violin selections.

MRS. REED'S PINK TEA.

CHARMING SOCIETY EVENT IN THE BOROUGH YESTERDAY.

Several Hundred Ladies Enjoyed the Hospitality of the Hostess Who Presided Gracefully—Those Who Assisted Her.

The charming home of Mrs. Charles A. Reed, of Washington Park, was the scene of rare beauty yesterday afternoon, when from 4 to 7 o'clock an informal reception and tea was given to nearly three hundred prominent society people of the city and borough. The grace and charm with which the hostess and her assistants received was marked, and a more thoroughly delightful event has not taken place this season.

The decorations were pink, and this color was prettily displayed through a profusion of roses and carnations of the choicest variety. The table decorations were admired the most. Here the roses and carnations were blended with perfect harmony, while a dainty arrangement of asparagus vine gave it an additional touch.

Another pretty effect was obtained by darkening the rooms and using lighted candles. This novel feature was greatly enjoyed by the guests.

Mrs. Reed was assisted in receiving by her mother, Mrs. A. A. Clark, and her sister, Mrs. A. W. Mack, of Somerville, Mrs. Robert Lowry and Mrs. F. O. Herring.

Mrs. Samuel St. John McCutchen poured the tea and Mrs. Henry McGee poured the chocolate, while those who assisted in the dining room were Mrs. J. H. Howell, Miss Sadie Howell, Miss Alice Thompson, Miss Adelaide Ball and Miss Mabel VanDeventer.

Between the stated hours the house was thronged with people who enjoyed the pleasing sociability evidenced on the part of all.

SIMPLY LOOKING FOR WORK.

But the Vigilance of Detective Blackford Landed Them in Jail.

Two residents of Bayonne came up to Plainfield last evening on a coal train, looking for work, they said, and arrived here only in time for Detective Blackford to escort them to the lock up to spend the night. They were charged with trespassing on the property of the Jersey Central Railroad.

They were arraigned before City Judge DeMeza this morning, and the judge consented to suspend sentence if they would leave town immediately, which they promised to do.

They were respectable looking men and gave their names as James Haley, silk spinner, and Michael O'Rourke, teamster.

BOROUGH G.O.P. NOMINATE TONIGHT.

At this time nominations will be made for most all of the important offices in the borough, including Mayor and Councilmen. The voters will also be called upon to decide how much money they desire to raise this year for roads, care of poor, etc.

A Fine Impersonation.

Those of the patrons of the University Extension Course who attended the rendition of Sheridan's famous comedy, "The Rivals," given by Mr. Underhill in the chapel of the Crescent Avenue church, last evening, were more than pleased that they were able to hear that great reader. He has been in Plainfield several times but never to greater advantage than last night. His vocal impersonations were excellent, while he copied the matter of the ideal Mrs. Malaprop to perfection. His other characters also were equally as good.

Somerset Street Surprise Party.

A surprise party was given to Charles Miles, of Somerset street, last evening at his home. The affair was arranged by William Morrison. Most of the evening was spent in dancing for which Guttman furnished the music. Refreshments were served at twelve o'clock.

GREENLAND'S ICY SHORE

LIEUT. PEARY MENTALLY CARRIED HIS AUDIENCE TO ARCTIC REGIONS.

One of the Most Absorbing and Impressive Lectures Ever Heard in This City—Thrilling Experiences of the Explorer.

Those who attended Lieutenant Robert E. Peary's lecture at Music Hall, last night, returned home feeling that they had actually stood upon the northern shore of Greenland and looked out over the unknown Arctic sea. Seldom, if ever, has a more absorbing and impressive lecture been given in Plainfield, and the large audience, entirely filling the hall, sat motionless and oblivious of everything but those wonderful pictures and the marvellous story told by the quiet young man upon the stage, until the last scene faded from view.

Lieutenant Peary is rather a small man, slight, and somewhat worn-looking, with dark hair and moustache. He was far from being the strong-looking, rugged sort of man one would look for in the Arctic explorer, who must face many privations, and live for months in a temperature the mere mention of which chills the unaccustomed blood. Mr. Peary has known the mercury to fall as low as minus 66 degrees F., but he said that properly clad, a well man need fear no evil results. On two of his journeys Mr. Peary has been accompanied by his wife, and, delicately nurtured woman as she was, she returned really in better health than when she started.

In beginning his lecture, Mr. Peary said that there was an indescribable charm about the Arctic regions; a man who had been there once was forever afterward possessed with a desire to go again. He then showed charts of the Arctic circle, tracing the routes of his various journeys and those of other explorers. His plan has been to go to Greenland in the summer, establish his headquarters as far north as practicable, winter there, and then during the following summer make sledge journeys across the interior ice-cap of Greenland.

Three times he has succeeded in reaching the northernmost extremity of Greenland, the last time narrowly escaping death from starvation, the supplies left by him on the previous journey being buried so deeply under the snows of the intervening winter as to be hopeless of recovery.

Mr. Peary showed photographs, taken by himself, of the ships in which he made his voyages—ships which would ram their way through the ice packs by main force; of the most northern civilized settlements of Greenland, Godhavn and Upernavik, and of the Danish and half breed inhabitants of those settlements. Then came exquisite views of Greenland scenery, the ice pack, the brown cliffs with brilliant-hued flowers nestling in every sunny sheltered valley; the magnificent glaciers—enormous rivers of ice cut through by great crevasses, and those wonderful features of the Arctic scene, the icebergs, gleaming with beautiful colors under the midnight sun.

In regard to the Arctic night, Mr. Peary said that it was enough to make persons of certain temperaments actually insane. Plants will live in the dark, but will not live a healthy life; and while the members of an Arctic expedition can live and go about their occupations through a half year without the sun, they all feel the results of it more or less.

Most interesting of all, however, was the last part of the lecture, describing Mr. Peary's last journey across the great inland ice-cap to the northern coast of Greenland, with two companions and forty Eskimo dogs, only one of which returned with him to his lodge. Only the edges of Greenland are habitable, the whole interior being covered with eternal ice and snow, thousands of feet deep, filling all the valleys and burying the highest mountains, making a desert in comparison to which that of Africa is a fertile plain. Very silent was the audience, looking at the pictures of the three men who, disappointed in their supplies, could make no new explorations, but could only turn about, and weak, worn, and nearly starved, make their way with great difficulty back to their lodge, while the faithful dogs, working till they could work no longer, dropped one by one, till at last the welcome brown cliffs came into view, and the almost despairing men and their one noble remaining dumb companion dragged themselves down from the ice to the shelter where awaited them those almost forgotten luxuries, food and rest.

TEA SIPPED BY ALL

QUITE THE PROPER THING AT ST. JOSEPH'S EVENT LAST NIGHT.

Pink Tea Given in Saengerbund Hall Where Every Drinker Was Presented With a Cup and Saucer Souvenir.

The pink tea given in Saenger and Turner Hall last night by the women of the parish of St. Joseph's church, of the borough, was eminently successful, and the large attendance was most gratyfying to those who planned the tea.

The hall, through the efforts of the women, presented an attractive appearance decorated as it was with the festive pink color. Especially about the various booths was the decorations the most striking and the several committees exhibited a spirit of rivalry in this part of the affair.

The novel part of the tea was displayed at the tea booth, where a very pretty cup and saucer was presented to each person who purchased a drink of the beverage, and nearly everyone availed themselves of the opportunity of securing a present. At this booth were Mrs. Andrew Kenney, Mrs. Neely, Mrs. David Kenney, Mrs James Bailey, Mrs. Berkhand and Mrs. Edward Ryan.

The flower booth, gaily decorated with the choicest roses and plants, was in charge of Miss Powers, Miss Hughes, Miss Smith, Miss Katy Cooley, Miss Katie Kiely and Miss Etta Blatz.

Another attractive booth was the one where ice cream and cake was served. There were several banquet lamps and pretty screens which added much to the beauty of this booth. Those in charge were Mrs. Alfred Wilkins, Mrs. Richard McCullough, Mrs. James Harper, Mrs. Walter Hamilton, Mrs. Andrew Carney and Miss Eagny.

The floor committee who had charge of the dancing was composed of the following persons: Dennis Gavin, Frank Blatz, John Powers, William Powers, Fred Huff, Garret Kiely, William Kiely and John Duffy.

The soft drinks were in charge of Richard McCullough, while James Daily presided at the ticket window and Mr. Nolen officiated at the door. The tea was given for the benefit of the church to help raise the remaining indebtness, and the generous response will be a great help in this respect.

Among the honored guests present was Rev. Father Carey, of Cateret.

Unpleasant Experience in Passing Over a Cross-Walk.

There are some places in beautiful Plainfield that are a disgrace to this city, and one of them is at the corner of Plainfield avenue and West Fourth street, where the mud is so deep that it is worth one's life to make an attempt to cross the street. It happened yesterday that a Daily Press reporter was in that vicinity when one of Plainfield's prominent women was attempting to cross at the above named place. She not only made the attempt but she succeeded, but not until her rubbers were lost from view in the mixture of dirt and water. The woman had a sufficient amount of grace to withstand the temptation of saying harsh things, but the expression on her face was a study.

Horses Were Exhausted.

A team of horses attached to a heavy load of crushed stone became so exhausted yesterday afternoon at the corner of East Fifth street and Watchung avenue that they had to stop. The wagon stood across the tracks and blocked the way of car No. 11. The roadway was very muddy, and the horses could not in their exhausted condition start the load. The conductor and motorman went to the rescue, but the wagon was not finally removed from the tracks until a force of clerks from Neuman Bros. grocery store came to the rescue.

Mayor Hegeman Out of Town.

MURDERER NO. 4 IN JAIL

GUISSEPI CHALBI CAPTURED AT SUMMIT YESTERDAY.

He Walked to Bernardsville Where He Boarded a Train and Was Recognized by the Conductor.—Denies the Murder.

Somerset county's fourth murderer is now lodged in jail at Somerville. After an exciting chase he was captured in Summit as he stepped from the platform of the mail train at the station in that place.

The news of the murder spread like wildfire through Bound Brook and the surrounding country. The Daily Press was the only afternoon paper that thorougly covered the story and the large number of papers that were sent to Bound Brook in the afternoon sold like hot cakes. Everybody was anxious to learn the details of the fatality. There was much speculation as to the chances of the murderer being captured and every strange Italian that was seen was viewed with suspicion. The police of this city were among the first to learn of the murder and they were on the alert for a glimpse of the murderer.

As soon as the murder was generally known in Bound Brook, searching parties were organized and set forth on foot and in wagons in search of Guiseppe Chalbi, the accused man. Constables Anderson, Taylor and Sebring started on the trail in a wagon. They followed Chalbi from Bound Brook to the mountains and across them to Mt. Horeb, where he stopped to warm his hands in a blacksmith's shop. From that point all traces of the fugitive were lost. The hunt was continued but without success.

In the meantime, Chalbi had walked over to Bernardsville and boarded a train there on the D. L. & W. railroad. It happened that Conductor John Rogers had heard of the murder and read a description of the man who had committed the crime. He recognized Chalbi at once and telegraphed ahead to Chief of Police Stewart, of Summit, who was waiting for the wife murderer when he left the train.

Chalbi at first vigorously denied his identity, but later confessed. He declared, however, that the wound from which his wife died was self-inflicted. He said that they had quarrelled frequently because of her relations with a member of the Bound Brook police force. She was intoxicated on Wednesday night, and yesterday morning they quarrelled again. He was about to leave the house when she grabbed a knife and plunged it into her breast, saying she had no desire to live. He declared that he remained with her for fifteen minutes endeavoring to stop the flow of blood from the wound, and then he started from the house and walked to a store across the street. He says also that the proprietor of this store advised him to run away, and that he was acting on this advice when caught.

Deputy Sheriff Barkalew, of Somerville, went to Summit in company with a constable, late last evening, and brought the prisoner to the county jail in Somerville on the one o'clock train. He is now lodged in the county jail.

The postmortem examination was conducted yesterday afternoon by County Physician Wagoner and Dr. D. C. Adams, of North Plainfield. It was found that the sharp instrument, whatever it was, pierced the subclavial vein, close to the juncture with the innominate vein. The wound was a clean cut, apparently made by some very sharp, pointed knife with a narrow blade, similar to the stiletto. The wound bled profusely internally, but very little blood flowed outside. She lived about twenty minutes after receiving the wound. There were also scratches on the right side of the face, on the neck and the right hand. There was a bruise on the left shoulder which appeared to have resulted from an attempt to bite her through the clothing.

The coroner's jury came in during the afternoon with a verdict that Bridget Chalbi had met her death at the hands of Jo Chalbi and that the death wound was inflicted with a knife.

NEW POSTMASTER AT PLAINS.

F. K. Clark, a Dark Horse, Received His Appointment Yesterday.

F. K. Clark yesterday received his commission as postmaster at Scotch Plains, in the place of James A. Baker, deceased. Mr. Clark is a Democrat and his appointment came somewhat as a surprise, as it was not known that he was a candidate. The commission expires some time in June. By many it was thought that Norman C. King, who has been looking after the office since the death of Mr. Baker, would be appointed, as there was a numerously signed petition presented by him.

M'KINLEY WALKS OUT

The President-elect Able To Take a Stroll About the Streets.

WILL SOON BE IN PERFECT HEALTH

Citizens To Escort Him to the Train Monday Night---The Rumor That McCook Is Dissatisfied with His Cabinet Assignment Still Heard.

Canton, O., Feb. 26.—Major McKinley expects to take another walk about the street to-day. His color is returning and the sparkle has come back to his eye. Both Major McKinley and his physician are confident that his health will be fully restored by Thursday next. Mrs. McKinley is also much better and the grippe has practically left her. There seems to be some unnecessary alarm in the east over the physical condition of the president-elect. Telegrams of inquiry addressed to various persons here indicate that a feeling of uneasiness exists, but there need be no apprehension. There were no visitors of consequence yesterday, and no one, with the exception of the family and a few personal friends talked with the president-elect. It is proposed by the people of Canton to form a large procession on Monday night next to escort Major McKinley to the railway station. He was to have been given a public reception on Washington's birthday, but it was abandoned on account of his illness, The proposed escort to the station is to take the place, in a measure, of the reception. The rumor that Col. J. J. McCook prefers some other post than secretary of the interior continues to prevail here.

McKinley Thanks Bushnell.

Columbus, O., Feb. 26.—Gov. Bushnell confirms the report that he has received a letter from President-elect McKinley thanking him for the appointment of Mark Hanna to succeed Mr. Sherman in the senate, which he has promised to make. Major McKinley said in the letter that he regarded the appointment as in part a special favor to him, as he had joined with Senator Sherman in asking that Chairman Hanna be appointed.

EMILE ARTON'S APPEAL.

Promises To Explain the Distribution of 2,000,000 Francs to French Deputies.

Paris, Feb. 26.—At the Seine assizes yesterday afternoon there was heard the appeal of Emile Arton from the sentence of two years' imprisonment imposed on him for bribery in connection with the Panama canal scandal. In the course of the proceedings Arton promised to explain completely the distribution of 2,000,000 francs among members of the French chamber of deputies who were bribed to support the projects of the canal company. There was much excitement in the chamber of deputies when it was learned that Arton proposed to make a full confession of his dealings with certain of the members.

Complications Over Lumber Duties.

Toronto, Feb. 26.—An Ottawa dispatch says that grave complications are expected to arise between Canada and the United States over the proposed lumber duties to be adopted by the American government. John Charlton, M. P., and an extensive lumdealer, states that if the ways and means committee reports in favor of a two-dollar duty, with a retaliatory export duty clause, consequences of the most undesirable character will result.

Lynn Shoe Strike.

Lynn, Mass., Feb. 26.—The big strike at the shoe factory of Harney Bros., on Alley street, is no nearer a settlement to-day than it has been at any time for the past thirty-six hours. There has been no great accession to the ranks of the strikers for the reason, it is said, that the Boot and Shoe Workers' union is content to rest on its oars for the present and give the firm an opportunity of making overtures for a settlement.

Wayne MacVeagh's Plans.

Rome, Feb. 26.—Hon. Wayne MacVeagh, United States ambassador to Italy, and his family have left the palace of Piobino, where they have been residing, and are staying at the Grand hotel. GOMEZ HEMMED IN Cuban Army Said To Be in a Dangerous Predicament.

DEFEATED AND RETREAT CUT OFF

A Report Received by Minister De Lome from Madrid Says the Patriots Suffered the Loss of Several Men Killed and Many Wounded.

Washington, Feb. 26.—Senor Depuy de Lome, the Spanish minister, has received the following cable message from the Duke of Tetuan, Spanish minister of foreign affairs: "The brigades of Generals Gasco, Ruiz and Segura met in succession the forces commanded by Maximo Gomez, defeating them and obliging them to disperse and retreat. Twenty dead were counted, and a great number of the rebels were wounded. Four battalions occupy all the possible passes to Mantanzas and Las Villas, and prevent the retreat of Gomez to the west. The trocha of Jucaro almost completely closed makes it very difficult for him to retreat east. Seven columns are operating between these lines in pursut of Gomez."

FIRED ON AN AMERICAN SHIP.

Schooner Haskell Mistaken for a Filibuster by a Spanish Gunboat.

Delaware Breakwater, Del., Feb. 26.—Presumably taken for a filibuster by what her captain thinks was a Spanish gunboat, the schooner S. G. Haskell, just arrived here from Cienfuegos, was thrice fired upon off the Cuban coast on the night of Feb. 7. The Haskell left Cienfuegos on Feb. 7, and, as she was beating her way out to sea that night off the mouth of the San Juan river, those on board observed two flashes and the reports of guns from somewhere in towards shore. The Haskell's people paid no particular attention to the guns, as they did not suppose that they were directed towards them, but a third report and the whistle of a solid shot passing close by and plumping into the sea beyond the shooner, speedily undeceived them. With his night glass the captain made out a steamer following close after them and showing no lights. He was able to see that the steamer had a low black hull and her upperworks were painted some light color. After the third shot and approaching quite closely, but without hailing, the steamer put about and steamed shorewards again, without further molestation of the Haskell.

DOUBT THE STORY.

Cuban Junta Officials Know Nothing of Cisneros' Alleged Death.

New York, Feb. 26.—Nothing had been heard at the offices of the Cuban junta of the alleged death of president Salvado Cisneros of the Cuban republic. The officers of the junta are inclined to doubt the story. The death of President Cisneros would be a severe blow to the Cuban cause, it was said at the junta, because he is able and patriotic and no man in Cuba possesses a more thorough knowledge of the island's resources. But it would not effect the fight for freedom any more than did the death of vice-president and Gen. Marti nearly two years ago or the more recent death of Gen. Maceo.

THE KILLING OF RUIZ.

Spain Ready To Punish Persons Proved To Be Guilty of the Crime.

Madrid, Feb. 26.—The Epoca in an article discussing the Cuban situation as affecting the relations of Spain with the United States, alludes to the killing of Ricardo Ruiz, an American citizen, in a Spanish prison in Cuba, and adds: "The Ruiz affair cannot assume the proportions of international importance. Spain is ready to punish any persons who shall be proved to have ill-treated Ruiz, and the friendly relations between Spain and the government at Washington preclude any diplomatic strain over the matter."

Barbed Wire for Spain's Trocha in Cuba.

Pittsburg, Feb. 26.—The report is confirmed that Oliver Bros. & Co. of this city have shipped to the Spanish authorities in Cuba 1,000 tons of barbed wire for the trocha. The contract calls for 2,000 tons. The balance of the order will be shipped as soon as possible. The Pittsburg firm made the contract through Senor Dupuy de Lome, the Spanish ambassador at Washington.

Express Companies Not Consolidating.

New York, Feb. 26.—A dispatch published here yesterday from Anderson, Ind., stating that the Adams and American Express companies had consolidated their offices in several cities in that state and that in all probability the National Express company would also become a party to the scheme, gave rise to rumors here that the companies named were consolidating interests there which might extend to other states. This, however, is not the case. These companies are concentrating their offices under one roof in the smaller towns in the western division, but are not consolidating interests anywhere.

Death of Mrs. Sarah Hurd.

New York, Feb. 26.—Sarah Hurd, the widow of the late Dr. William E. Brown of Brooklyn, who is dead at the age of 81, was a sister of the late Hon. Samuel H. Walley of Boston, lieutenant governor of Massachusetts, and a niece of Wendell Phillips. Six children survive.

New York State Contract Awarded.

Albany, Feb. 26.—Superintendent of Public Works Aldridge has awarded the contract for constructing a steel bridge over the Erie canal at the junction of the Erie and Champlain canal to the Hilton Bridge Construction company at Albany for $7,754.

NEW YORK LETTER.

The Bradley-Martin ball is now a brilliant memory. The personal testimony of many who attended confirms the published accounts that is was a great success. Other people achieve fame by fighting battles, making speeches, discovering scientific secrets or founding institutions, but the Bradley-Martins have achievd fame by giving a ball. Their names will long be known on both sides of the Atlantic in connection with the affair. A local newspaper correspondent in writing of the function says: "Some persons who have estimated the cost of this ball will be surprised to know what it really did cost. The Martins themselves expended only about $25,000. The actual figures will fall below that amount, if anything. When the cost of all the costumes of every guest is counted, together with what was spent in dinners given by guests before the ball, I don't believe the total cost of the affair to everybody who attended will foot up more than $100,000."

MRS. BRADLEY MARTIN.

Everybody knows that it took money to give the ball, but it is not generally known that it took nerve on the part of many of the women to attend it. There was hardly a woman of great wealth in New York known to be going to the ball, from Mrs. Martin down, who did not receive before the ball at least one letter threatening her life if she attended it. Mrs. Martin received a dozen. Two of them were written in a red liquid of some sort, which the writer said was blood, but which seemed to be paint. Some of these letters informed her that her house was to be blown to pieces on the afternoon of the ball. Others warned her that a bomb would be thrown into her carriage on the way to the Waldorf, while another told of a plot to blow up the ballroom. A force of detectives was watching the Martin house day and night. Every time Mrs. Martin left her house up to the time she left it to go to the ball detectives followed her.

Mr. Boldt, proprietor of the Waldorf, received nearly a score of letters threatening his hotel and his guests.

Between 300 and 400 of the guests at the ball sat for their photographs at Gilbert's studio from 7 o'clock Wednesday evening until 8 o'clock Thursday morning. At one time there were as many as 150 men and women, attired in the costumes of centuries ago, in the gallery awaiting their turns. Not once during the night was there a lull, and Mr. Gilbert and twenty-six assistants were kept constantly at work.

The salary of the Mayor of New York is $10,000, the salary of the Mayor of Brooklyn is $10,000, and the salary of the Mayor of Long Island is $2,500, Brooklyn Aldermen and New York Aldermen receive the same salary, $2,000 each. The Mayor's secretary in Brooklyn gets $3,000, and in New York $5,000. The Brooklyn secretary has only official matters to attend to.

The Presidents of the Union League Club have nearly all attained distinction in public life. John Jay was made Minister to Austria; Hamilton Fish was Governor, Senator and Secretary of State; William M. Evarts was Senator and Secretary of State; Chauncey M. Depew refused a tender of the State Department from Harrison, and is now regarded as a likely selection as Ambassador to England. The present President, General Porter, is supposed to be slated for Ambassador to France; Joseph H. Choate was President of the State Constitutional Convention and candidate for Senator. The Presidency of this club may, therefore, be regarded as a political stepping stone.

Should Mr. Depew go as Ambassador to England he will be obliged to resign his profitable and influential position as President of the New York Central Railroad, and naturally there is already much gossip as to his successor in that position. Among those who have been suggested are Samuel Spencer, President of the Southern Railway, and H. Walter Webb, who is now Third Vice President of the Central and in charge of the operation of the road. Mr. Webb is a brother of Dr. Seward Webb, President of the Wagner Palace Car Company, and a half brother of General A. S. Webb, President of the College of New York.

Sold from barrels or oftentimes in fancy packages (but still common oatmeal) is hard to cook, bitter in taste and overheating to the system. It overtaxes the digestive organs and the body derives no benefit from it—it injures rather than helps.

How the Polar Bear Fishes.

Bears, however free from all contact with our race, manifest many signs of reasoning pure and simple as defined against mere animal instinct. One of the most interesting of these exhibitions is afforded when an old polar bear creeps silently up to a seal hole in the ice floe and lies in wait for the reappearance of its victim.

Instinct teaches this bear to wait there and watch, but more than instinct teaches it to shade its eyes with one huge paw so that it can look down better into the depths of water below the ice and thus anticipate the return of the unhappy seal to the best advantage for its capture.—H. W. Elliott.

The Ring Finger.

The most protected and least active finger has been the one selected, from very early times, as the one for the wedding ring. It is a finger that is always attended and shielded by another in all its movements. Macrobius, a Latin writer of the fifteenth century, acknowledges these as the chief reason for its selection as the wedding-ring finger, and adds that all the other fingers had been tried. Rings, particularly those with gems, were more protected upon the ring finger, as the Germans named it, than upon any other.

A Reminiscence of General Ney.

On the 16th August, 1807, Colonel Michael Ney, Duke of Elchingen, having received orders to charge, turned to his men, and shouted to them in a voice of thunder:

"My lads, I have an income of three hundred thousand francs, and you haven't a farthing. Keep your eye on your colonel as he charges, and do as he does.

So saying, he rode off as hard as he could tear in the direction of the enemy. The whole regiment followed him as though electrified.—Le Baulois.

The Bishop and Kilts.

The late Sir John Macdonald, sometime Premier of Canada, was at a reception in the West, and a bishop from Belgium was present. As the party were being escorted by a body of men in Highland costume, the foreign bishop, seeing the bare legs and kilts, asked why these men were without trousers. "It's just a local custom," gravely replied Sir John. "In some places people take off their hats as a mark of honor to distinguished guests; here, they take off their trousers."

Some gowns are so dainty in the weave, so delicate in tint, that they seem to soil by being looked at—one or two wearings making them unpresentable, NOT USELESS. We make a specialty of cleaning fine fabrics, the more delicate the material, the better the results. Sometimes an accident will ruin a gown, without injuring the texture. We dye them then, sometimes we get a prettier effect than the origina. olor. Fine goods stand redyeing. The finer the material the better the new color. We charge so little for cleaning or dyeing, that even if you are in doubt as to the result, it's worth while to experiment. Want a new evening gown for a dollar or two? Beware of Ointments for Catarrh that Contain Mercury.

as mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completly derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is ten fold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., contains no mercury, and is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. In buying Hall's Catarrh Cure be sure you get the genuine. It is taken internally, and made in Toledo, Ohio, by F. J. Cheney & Co. Testimonials free. Sold by druggists, price 75c. per bottle. New Haven, Conn., Feb. 26.—W. J. Byran delivered a lecture on bimetallism before an audience of about a thousand persons at the Hyperion theatre here last evening. WITH THE SPORTS.

Movements of the Prizefighting Colony Now Quartered at Carson.

Carson, Nev., Feb. 26.—Fitzsimmons played a comic role yesterday for the edification of some four hundred citizens who followed him to the postoffice where he called for his mail. Cameras were planted at every corner of the building to catch the Australian as he stepped out, but Bob was wary, and tried a flying leap through a rear window, eight feet to the ground. A nimble reporter caught him in the air; another snapped him as he struck the ground, a third bore down on him in the act of sprinting away, and when the lanky pugilist tumbled headforemost into a deep ditch a dozen lenses were trained in his direction. The spectators screamed at the farce, and Bob, shaking the snow from his clothing, fled for Cook's ranch at top speed, followed by a shower of snowballs. From reliable sources it is learned that the Australian's weight is less than 165 pounds, and that he will enter the ring much lighter than most people imagine. Corbett continues his work of training with vigor. Corbett is pleased to have George Green with him again. "That boy can stand more punishment than any man in the business," remarked the champion. "He goes at me full of confidence, and I take more pleasure working with him than anybody else. Whip Billy Smith? Certainly he will whip him in a walk." Sheriff Kinney and Referee Siler met last night. "You look after the people in the ring, and I'll take care of everybody outside," exclaimed the sheriff. "That man knows his business," said Siler as the sheriff walked away. "I predict one of the most orderly gatherings in that arena that ever assembled at a prize fight. See if I aint a prophet."

STEINITZ NOT DEAD.

The Once Famous Chess Player Is a Mental Wreck, However.

London, Feb. 26.—It is now well established that the recent report of the death of Steinitz, the chess master, was erroneous. A dispatch to the Central News from Berlin says that friends of his in that city have received information from Moscow that he is alive, but suffering from an incurable ulceration of the brain. The rumor of his death probably arose from the fact that he recently swooned and was unconscious for a long time. Since then his condition has become worse. He has forgotten all about chess playing, and occupies the intervals between his attacks of delirium in writing what he imagines to be essays on philosophy, and discussing the date of his return to New York.

Venezuelan Arbitration Treaty.

Washington, Feb. 26.—There is a hitch in the ratification of the British-Venezuelan arbitration treaty. By error, due to haste only, the English copies of the treaty were sent to Caracas. These could not be laid before the legislature. Spanish copies have been prepared, and after careful comparison Sir Julian Pauncefote, the British ambassador, and Senor Andrade, the Venezuelan minister, have just been authorized by their respective governments to sign this document and it will go to Caracas by the next steamer sailing.

SUPPORTS THE TURKS

England's Policy Regarding Crete Meets with Disfavor.

UPHELD BY CONSERVATIVES ALONE

The King of Greece Astonished and Grieved at the Action of the Christian Powers in Upholding the Ottoman Empire's Outrages.

London, Feb. 26.—The British government's policy regarding the Cretan trouble, as made public by Premier Salisbury in parliament last evening, meets with general disapproval among the people of England. The conservative members of parliament, however, side with the government. During his speech in the house Lord Salisbury said it did not follow that the Turkish troops would be withdrawn from Crete immediately; nevertheless the practical withdrawal of her troops from the island was a necessary condition to the establishment of autonomy and they would therefore be withdrawn. The premier then gave as instances of autonomous administrations the form of government which now obtains in the island of Samos, a Turkish possession, and which formerly prevailed in Servia, and proceeded to say he imagined that the powers would require the Greek troops in Crete to be withdrawn at an earlier date than the Turkish troops, but he was unable to give any further details until he knew what decision had been reached by the powers. Still, it was his belief that the powers recognized the principles he announced as animating their policy. Lord Kimberley, who was minister of foreign affairs in the cabinet of Lord Rosebery, said that the statement just made by Lord Salisbury was one of great gravity, and would require careful consideration on his part before he felt prepared to make any observations thereon.

Text of the Telegram.

The following is the phraseology of the telegram sent to the British representative at the capitol of each of the combined European powers: "Inform the government to which you are accredited that her majesty's government propose to make the following declaration of the policy they intend to pursue, which they believe to be in accordance with that of their allies: First, that the establishment of administrative autonomy in Crete is necessary to the termination of international occupation of that island. Second, that, subject to such system of administrative autonomy, Crete ought to remain a portion of the Turkish empire. Third, that the governments of Turkey and Greece ought to be informed of this resolution. Fourth, that if either Turkey or Greece should persist in a refusal when required to withdraw her naval and military forces from the island the powers should impose their decision by force."

King George Grieved.

London, Feb. 26.—The Chronicle today publishes an interview with King George of Greece. His majesty declared that he was unable to express his profound astonishment and grief that the representatives of the Christian powers had permitted the Turks to employ as a military base a place in which they had taken protection, and that for the purpose of imposing neutrality and peace, also they had caused cannons to be fired on a Christian people who had been driven by outrage and massacre into a struggle for life and liberty.

"Filling the Measure of Their Dishonor."

Paris, Feb. 26.—Mr. Gladstone has written a letter to the Temps anent the Cretan situation, in which he says: "The ideas which guided me at the time of the Bulgarian atrocities still dominate my mind, but Russia appears to have made a complete volteface. I wonder what Alexander II. would have thought of Russia's conduct during the past two years and now. My feelings over the entire conduct of the powers during the past two years are sorrow and indignation. The powers are now applying themselves to filling the measure of their dishonor."

Cretan Demonstration in Vienna.

Vienna, Feb. 26.—A hundred Greek, Italian and Slav students attempted to hold a meeting yesterday to express their approval of the action of Greece and to denounce the interference of the powers in the Cretan dispute. The police, however, refused to allow it to be held owing to its not having been legally announced. The students then acted in riotous manner, with the result that three of them were arrested. Later they proceeded to the university, where they swarmed upon the staircase, hooting and yelling until they became tired of that form of amusement.

Moslems Go Aboard Warships.

Athens, Feb. 26.—It is announced here that the foreign consuls in the island of Crete have placed the plain and the Suda valley, between Akrotiri and Canea, under the protection of the united fleets. The Christians at Selino are permitting the departure of Moslems and their families and the foreign warships are taking the fugitives on board. Three foreign warships have taken positions off Platania and are watching the movements of the Greek troops under Col. Vassos.

Iron and Steel Trade Strengthened.

Pittsburg, Feb. 26.—The American Manufacturer to-day says that while the past week has developed no particularly new feature in the iron and steel trade, it has strengthened the improved feeling. The only change made in prices is toward higher figures. In the Philadelphia market some large sales of skelp were made during the present week.

A GOOD BILL.

Senator Reed has a bill pending which has for its object the protection of farmers from the fox hunters who chase across their fields without regard to the damage done. To be sure the custom is to send an adjuster around the following day to pay for such damage, but they always want to pay about half what the farmer claims and if he refuses to settle on their terms he has no redress. Under Senator Reed's bill such ruthless trespassing is made an offense punishable by fine or imprisonment. It is a bill which is much needed by the farmers in this part of the State who are likely to have an invasion of sporting men with their hounds and horses at any time. They trample grain fields, knock down fences, and there is no way to stop them. A bill like Senator Reed's would bring the relief desired. Then let the farmers see that it is enforced.—Unionist-Gazette.

LOBBING BY SHOW OF FORCE.

The L. A. W. officers are responsible for a new method of lobbying at Trenton. The bill compelling all railroads to carry bicycles as baggage is meeting with strong corporate opposition in the Assembly, but next Tuesday a hearing is to be given in the Assembly, and the wheelmen have conceived the idea of a show of forces. Notices have been sent throughout the State asking wheelmen to go to Trenton on that day and crowd the galleries, thus seeking to awe the members in such a way as to win support. The circular says:

There will be some very hot debate. The L. A. W. will have able and prominent speakers there in its behalf, and it is presumed the railroad companies will come supplied themselves. It will be hot, and it will be interesting, and it is the desire that at least one thousand wheelmen pack the galleries of the Assembly Chamber.

WHAT ADVERTISING CAN DO.

It is a sad plight for a toothless man to lose his false set of molars, but that was the rather embarrassing and disagreeable condition that a Plainfielder found himself in a day or two ago. Unable to find the lost article for mastication, he advertised for it in the columns of The Press. This morning they were returned to the owner by one who reads Press advertisements. The moral is evident without mention.

PROPOSED RAILROAD CONNECTION.

A Scheme for Conection of Morristown With Other Roads.

James F. Pidcock, of Morristown, proprietor and manager of the Rockaway Valley Railroad, which connects the Central Railroad of New Jersey at Whitehall with the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Railroad at Morristown, is negotiating with Mayer E. A. Quayle, receiver, and a number of the stockholders, concerning a scheme for the connection of the two roads at Morristown. The plan as laid out by J. E. Melick, general manager of the Whippany road, is to extend the terminal points of both railroads to the old Speedwell Iron Works, at Morristown. The cost of the improvement will approach $50,000, $10,000 of which is to be raised by the Whippany River Railroad, and the balance by J. F. Pidcock. The plan has been long talked of, but no practical steps have been taken until now. A branch will also be laid from the Chippany road to Malpardis, a distance of four miles.

KIRMESS TO BE REPEATED.

Will be Given for the Benefit of the Hospital Next November.

At a meeting of the Woman's Auxiliary of the Hospital, held last evening, it was decided to hold a kirmess during Thanksgiving week of this year for the benefit of the Muhlenberg Hospital. It will be given under the same auspices as the last one and Miss Stewart, who was the successful manager of it, will again have charge. It has not been decided just where the kirmess will be held, but probably the Cycle Academy or Music Hall will be used. This news will be a source of great pleasure to the many people who so thoroughly enjoyed the previous one.

Address to Soldiers and Their Sons.

On the evening of March 3d an entertainment will be given in the W. C. T. U. rooms on Watchung avenue. Mrs. Thatcher, national superintendent of soldier and sailor work, will be present and make an address before the G. A. R. and Sons of Veterans of this city. A programme of music will be given to be followed by a supper. The committee on soldier and sailor work in the Union have the matter in charge.

Mr. Ward L. Smith, of Fredericks-town, Mo., was troubled with chronic diarrhœa for over thirty years. He had become fully satisfied that it was only a question of a short time until he would have to give up. He had been treated by some of the best physicians in Europe and America but got no permanent relief. One day he picked up a newspaper and chanced to read an advertisement of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhœa Remedy. He got a bottle of it, the first dose helped him and its continued use cured him. For sale by T. S. Armstrong, Apothecary, corner Park and North avenues.

"You're light enough when I tackle you," said the little can of Cleveland's baking powder to the big barrel of flour.

Cleveland's is the strongest of all pure cream of tartar baking powders, yet its great merit is not its strength, but the fact that it is pure, wholesome and sure.

The world is filled with suffering people who can't seem to get well or find out what their trouble is. Some people oftentimes cannot afford the time or expense of a trip to the city, or the large fees charged by the best physicians. It is for just these people that Dr. Greene, of 35 West 14th St., New York City, who is without doubt the most successful specialist in curing diseases, makes the following offer. He invites you all to write to him about your complaints, tell him how you feel, and he will answer your letters free of charge, explaining the meaning of every symptom, telling just what your trouble is and how to get cured. Write him immediately. It will doubtless result in your cure.

THINGS THAT INTEREST SCOTCH PLAINS AND DUNELLEN.

Brief and Terse Observations Gathered by Alert Press Reporters to be Perused at the Supper Table at Your Leisure

DUNELLEN AND NEW MARKET.

Mr. and Mrs. George Beusch, of Cranford, are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Reusch.

Mrs. J. W. Griggs has returned from a pleasant visit with friends at the City Hotel, New Brunswick.

Eight members from here will join Old Glory Council, Daughters of Liberty, at the meeting in Plainfield, next Monday evening.

The condition of Rev. S. F. Custard continues to improve, and the attending physicians have decided to defer another operation for a time, at least.

Samuel Merrill is said to be aspiring for the Mayoralty. "Sam," as he is familiarly called, knows the workings of the borough to perfection.

According to the constitution and by-laws of the Dunellen Fire Department the secretary and treasurer are exempt from dues. This amounts to about $1.20 a year.

Rev. George Smith, of Plainfield, will supply the pulpit in the M. E. church, Sunday evening next, and Rev. Mr. Peterson, of New Market, will preach in the morning.

Preparations are being made for the regular shoot of the Dunellen Gun Club members tomorrow afternoon. The management have secured a lot of strong flyers, and the shooters are going in to break the record, if possible

Eugene T. Leach, of this place, was honored with the Orient Degree in Pioneer Lodge, at Bound Brook, last evening. Eugene went through the ordeal with bells on, his friends say, and the traditional goat didn't hurt him one bit.

People in Plainfield and as far east as Cranford, must not be alarmed if they hear the Dunellen fire gong go off on Saturday evening between 6:30 and 7 o'clock. The committee reported at the firemen's meeting, held last evening, that the test would be made at that time.

The Citizens' caucus, next Monday evening in the Town Hall, it is thought will bring out a large representation of the voters from all parties irrespective of political creed. Several prominent names have been advanced to lead the ticket, but there is said to be no absolute certainty whether or not they would accept.

The annual meeting of the Dunellen Fire Department was held last evening, and there was a large turnout of the members. H. L. Terry was the temporary chairman, and upon a suggestion the election of officers was immediately taken up. The following persons were nominated and elected, the secretary being instructed in each instance to cast the ballot: President, George W. Day; vice president, (a new office created, none heretofore existing,) W. G. Fredericks; treasurer, William Wyckoff; secretary, Charlee A. Coriell. Arthur S. Giles was unanimously elected Chief and J. F. G. Kenny Assistant Chief. Some little change was made in the general make-up of the department officers by substituting a first and second assistant foreman, whereas heretofore there have been three distinct foremen. Charles Wynhusky was elected foreman; Joseph Maier, first assistant; Frank Humpston, second assistant. Monthly dues were then paid into the treasury. Under the head of new business, the committee on alarms reported progress, and the by-laws were then taken up, read by sections, amended and adopted as a whole. The company is to hereafter be known as the "Defender Fire Company, of Dunellen, N. J." Adam Herlick was elected doorkeeper.

SCOTCH PLAINS.

John Blimm's horse "Frank" is be put in shape to go on the track early in the spring.

Mrs. Harriet Smith, of Bound Brook, is visiting her parents, Judge and Mrs. Clark, on Front street.

W. H. Turton, who has been confined to his bed for several days past by illness, was able to resume his business cares again yesterday.

A few months ago, Mr. Byron Every, of Woodstock, Mich., was badly afflicted with rheumatism. His right leg was swollen the full length, causing him great suffering. He was advised to try Chamberlain's Pain Balm. The first bottle of it helped him considerably and the seeond bottle effected a cure. The 25 and 50 cent sizes are for sale by T. S. Armstrong, Apothecary, corner Park and North avenues.

WESTFIELD.

CONTESTS ARE LIVELY.

WOMEN TAKING AN ACTIVE PART IN THE JUNIORS FAIR.

Mrs. M. Clark was Successful in the Bowling Tournament—Much Mystification as to Why the Fire Alarm Bell Rings.

Westfielders who desire to have The Daily Press left at their house or place of business every afternoon by trustworthy and gentlemanly carrier boys can be accommodated by leaving an order with either Percy Clark or Willie Foster. The Press will also be on sale every afternoon after 4 o'clock at the Union News Company's stand at the Central Railroad station, and at the news stand of C. F. W. Wittke.

The town committee meets tonight.

Miss Minnie Mac Quoid is convalescing.

The Shakespearean Society will meet at the residence of John MacCormack tonight.

Miss Georgie Bogart entertained the Sewing Society of St. Paul's church, yesterday afternoon.

A civil action, in which P. Q. Oliver and C. N. Coding are the opposing legal lights, will be tried before Judge Collins, next Wednesday at 2 p. m.

LaGrippe seems to be the prevailing rage hereabouts at present. It is getting quite common. There is scarcely a family but can report a case of it.

Judge E. R. Collins is trying a bad case—almost a criminal one—of the grip. He has had almost a week in which to take the evidence and while it is not settled, he is not a bit reserved in his decision.

W. H. Groggan, proprietor of the North avenue hotel, entertained the new fledged Westfied Gun Club at a game dinner Wednesday evening. The spacious dinning room was decorated with guns, hunting bags, shells, dead game, and looked like a real huntsman bower. The viands were of the daintest to be had.

Why does the fire gong sound twice between five and six o'clock in the evening and occassionally at an odd hour? That is what a great many Westfielders would like to know. It has always been the custom to sound one tap between the hours of 5 and 6 p. m., to test the apparatus, and was so up to a few days ago, when without any warning, as Edgar Allen Poe says of "The Devil in the Belfry," the gong tapped twice and the startled citizens' ears were pricked up and wondered where the fire was, or had been. Again last evening, just as the people had become reconciled to the new custom, at about 8 o'clock it tolled off one. No doubt it is in compliance with the orders of the new officers, but the people of Westfield would like to share their confidence.

The gold watch which is being contested for at the Junior Mechanics fair has been the cause of more or less ill feeling on the part of some of the ladies and their friends. The Ladies' Bowling Tournament yesterday, for a bottle of cologne, threatened for a time to cause another rumpus, but things finally simmered down and the contest came off, and Mrs. M. Clark carried off the perfumery. Bowling began at two o'clock and closed at 5 p. m., and the three highest scores of each contestant was taken and the average struck. Some of the ladies tied and dropped out, not bowling as many games as the others, and the score may not represent the individual's best work, but the fault lies with the committee more than the players. The contestants and their average are as follows: Mrs. M. Clark, 107; Mrs. Beaman, 73; Mrs. M. Snyder, 65; Mrs. A. S. Flagg, 53; Miss Roose, 72; Mrs. L. E. Wooley, 70. The ladies have another chance this afternoon and there are three prizes to be contested for.

Fred K. Clark, son of Judge Clark, received his appointment and commission yesterday, as postmaster to fill the unexpired term of the late James A. Baker.

The revival services in the Baptist church continue with unabated interest. Services are held both afternoon and evening, and they are being conducted by the pastor, Rev. Mr. Braker and Rev. Mr. Stout, of Philadelphia.

William H. Lee's West Side House was the scene of a merry party Tuesday evening. The guests drove over from New Brunswick, and after spending a few hours in dancing, interspersed with supper, they started for home.

John R. Marsh's well has gone dry, and where for a quarter of a century or more there has been a pure and wholesome supply of water, none now exists. But Mr. Marsh is determined to have water, even if the Plainfield Water Supply company has dried up the subterranean flow, so he is now drilling through the bed rock down to second strata.

Charles F. Underhill, of New York, who rendered "The Rivals" last evening at the Crescent Avenue chapel, was entertained by Mr. and Mrs. Wm. D. Murray, of West Ninth street.

Rheumatism Cured in 24 Hours.

T. J. Blackmore, of Haller & Blackmore, Pittsburg, Pa., says: "A short time since I procured a bottle of 'Mystic Cure.' It got me out of the house in twenty-four hours. I took to my bed with Rheumatism nine months ago and the 'Mystic Cure' is the only medicine that did me any good. I had five of the best physicians in the city, but I received very little relief from them. I know the 'Mystic Cure' to be what it is represented and take pleasure in recommending it to other poor sufferers." Sold by T. S. Armstrong, druggist, corner Park and North avenues, Plainfield.

THEATRICAL.

The simple announcement of the engagement of Tompkins' "Black Crook" at Music Hall Monday night will be received with pleasure by the theatre going public who appreciate the beauties of high class spectacular dramas. All other specialties, with their embellishments of ballets, armors, transformation scene, gorgeous tinsel, and the inevitable red fire, have had their momentary successes, but the "Black Crook," like Tennyson's brook, "goes on forever." In this gorgeous spectacular drama a small army of premiers and coryphees are employed, together with a host of dramatic artists, and the mechanical and electrical departments are in the hands of able and experienced workmen. All in all, the coming production promises to be one of the greatest attractions ever offered to the theatre-goers of this city, and a red letter era in the history of stage splendor in America.

Last evening the first performance of "Monbars," Mr. Mantell's great play was given, and the Leland was crowded. The scenic effects have been much improved since the play's last production here. Robert Mantell, as "Monbars," more than held his audience, and was repeatedly called before the curtain. He has an attracive presence, and combines strength and grace to an unusual extent.—Albany (N. Y.) Express. Mr. Mantell will appear in Music Hall, March 3d.

From everywhere come words of praise for Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. "Allow me to congratulate you on the merits of your Remedy. It cured me of chronic bronchitis when the doctor could do nothing for me." —Chas. F. Hemel, Toledo, O. For sale by T. S. Armstrong, Apothecary, corner Park and North avenues.

OPPRESSED CRETE.

SOME POINTS ABOUT THE NOW CELEBRATED ISLAND.

Her People, Cities and Something About Her Long Struggle for Freedom from the Turkish Yoke—Her Beauty is Her Curse.

A Greek mail steamer plies weekly between Piraeus, the seaport of Athens, and the island of Crete, and travelers who miss it, and who do not care to wait a week longer, usually take passage on one of the many small Greek freighters. These freighters touch first at the island of Syra, the ancient Hermopolis and the residence of the Governor of Cyclades Islands. After a day in port there they proceed to Crete, touching at the islands of Naxos, Paros, and Siphnos, the whole trip lasting three and one-half days.

The harbor of Canea, the destination of the vessels, is protected by a well-preserved fortress, one side of which extends down to the edge of the water. The eastern side of the fort is about 1,500 feet long, the southern side 2,400, and the western side 1,800. These walls are protected by four ramparts, two of which face the valley and the other two the sea, and the whole is surrounded by a deep and wide ditch.

COSTA VELOUDAKES.

The city of Canea, being the seat of the Governor-General, has clean streets, fine houses, and some public buildings of considerable pretensions, such as the Governor's headquarters and the Court House, both of which are of modern construction. The military hospital, two armories and the health office also are fine structures. The population of the city is estimated at 14,610, of whom 4,750 are Greeks and 9,500 Turks, 160 Israelites, and 200 Roman Catholics. Nearly every European Government is represented by either a Cnsul or a consular agent. Most of these representatives live in the small towns of Halepa, about half an hour's walk from Canea.

The Turkish quarters of Canea are around the Spanish square. It was under the plane tree shown in the picture that the members of the Turkish Committee usually met to discuss matters with the Turkish authorities during the last revolution. It was impossible for a Christian to pass through the square without being attacked by the Mussulmans. It was here also that the Mohammedan families gather in the evening for recreation; they sit on wooden benches and listen to the music of the Arab musicians of Canea.

Like Cuba, Crete has always found her curse in the beauties with which nature has endowed her. Since the island was left by the Venetians to the Turks in 1715 no fewer than nine revolutions have taken place among its people. Each time the revolt was precipitated by Turkish tyranny. The most remarkable feature of all these revolutions is that in no instance have the Cretans been forced by defeat to lay down their arms. Their disarming has been due always to the intervention of some "friendly power" which wished to give an opportunity to the Turkish Government to introduce reforms.

At present there is no man more trusted by the Cretans than the Grand Old Man of Crete, old Costa Veloudakes, the permanent President of the Revolutionary Assembly, and a scion of one of the oldest families of the island. He has just celebrated his ninety-fifth birthday. He has taken part in every revolution on the island during his time. In the eight-year revolution of 1821 he was at the head of a strong Cretan force, having distinguished himself by liberating sixty-eight Cretan women held in bondage in a Turkish fortress. He is a man of few words, but whenever he speaks his utterances carry great weight. His courage is proverbial. At the battle of the Fountains in 1866 he was fighting beside his two sons when a bullet killed one of them. Without flinching he gave orders to carry the dead from the battle-field; he continued fighting until the enemy were repulsed. In 1873 he was proclaimed Commander-in-Chief of all the revolutionary forces on the island, and was subsequently selected with two other Cretans to proceed to the German capital, during the drawing of the Berlin treaty, to lay before the representatives of the powers the claims of the Cretans.

A Prize Epitaph.

On an East Tennessee lady:

She lived a life of virtue, and died of cholera morbus, caused by eating green fruit, in hope of a blessed immortality, at the early age of 21 years 7 months and 16 days. Reader, "Go thou and do likewise."

What is that from which, when the whole is taken, some will remain?—The word "wholesome."

A NEW HORSE.

A Great Oddity in Horseflesh at Buffalo, New York.

A horse belonging to a family in Rochester has a coat of tight, curling hair and no mane or tail worth mentioning in a horse sale advertisement, unless the buyer was to be a showman of oddities. The mare is well built and sound in every particular, kind, docile and easy to handle by woman or child, stands fifteen hands high and weighs about ten hundred, and behaves like any other being of her race. But her bay-colored coat is for all the world like a buffalo robe, in the curly kinkiness of its hair, and where the hair has become worn off on the head by the bridle or halters and on the shoulder, where burrs have been pulled out, it becomes very much in appearance like an old moth-eaten buffalo robe that has just been pulled out of some neglected, dusty closet for use in the first sleighride of the season. The mare can boast no mane or forelock and her stump of a tail is only sparsely covered with short hairs. When she sheds her coat according to the regular horsey custom the tail is as bare as a rat's.

This oddity in horseflesh come of good stock, having been sired by St. Arnard, her mother being a bay mare of good Hambletonian lineage.

Some time ago she was clipped by a former owner and travelled a mile in 2:35 on the ice, driven by a boy. In trotting she curls her tail up like a pug dog, so would hardly be an addition to any stable of stylish cobs or coach horses.—The Rochester Union.

Saved by a Sausage.

It is possible to overestimate the courage of a robber, as may be seen by this story of Judge Seymour D. Thompson's, given in the St. Louis Republic:

McNab was the hero of a hairbreadth escape. It was in Canada, where McNab was a fellow-colporter with my father, Reverend Seymour Thompson. The two became separated on the night of McNab's adventure. The Scotchman, unarmed, was riding through a forest. He had a package of Bibles on one side of his saddle, and on the other a string of frozen sausages, to be thawed and cooked for his breakfast. A highwayman stopped McNab's reflections and his progress at the same time.

The Scotchman was frightened—he never denied that. He had a little money in his boot, and he leaned over to get it and satisfy the demand of the robber. His hand struck against the frozen sausages. He bethought himself of these. Perhaps they would be accepted instead of money. He broke one of them in two and was about to offer half of it to the highwayman, when suddenly he found himself alone, and heard the clatter of a horse's rapidly retreating hoofs. Badly frightened as he was, McNab laughed. The robber had mistaken the cracking of the sausages for the cocking of a pistol, and had fled.

Ian Maclaren Named the Class.

John Watson (Ian Maclaren) was asked to give a name to a reading circle of a hundred young women at Knox College, Illinois. He chose the title—The Circle of the White Rose—and gave the following explanation of the name which he chose for his first book:

"The white rose was the symbol of the Jacobites. It was the lines from their song, 'There grows a bonnie brier bush in our kail yard, and white are the blossoms out in our kail yard,' that suggested the title to me. In Scotland the kail yard of any peasant can grow the white brier rose. There is a significance in this for you and me—with any surroundings, purity, goodness and truth, all of which are beautifully represented by the white rose, can flourish if desired and cared for."

Superfluous Hair Removed by X Rays.

At a recent meeting of a medical society in Germany a physician reported a curious experiment made by him with the X rays. He had heard of another man who had become bald in consequence of exposing his head to their influence. Not long afterward the doctor had a patient, a child, who was bothered by an excessive growth of hair on its back. Thereupon he employed the X rays for depilatory purposes and secured gratifying results. Photographs were exhibited to the society showing the condition of the patient "before and after taking" this novel treatment.—New York Tribune.

Helping Somewhere.

A writer tells how a little child once preached a wonderful sermon to him. "Is your father at home?" I asked of a small child on our village doctor's doorstep.

"No," he said; "he's away."

"Where do you think I could find him?"

"Well," he replied, with a considering air, "you've got to look for some place where people are sick or hurt or something like that. I don't know where he is, but he's helping somewhere."

Something of a Puzzler.

Little Margery has just begun to go to the kindergarten, and is filled with a due sense of the importance of her studies there and the solemn value of the attainments that have thus been put within her reach. The other afternoon, after coming home from school, she remained in a brown study for a time and then she said: "Mamma, do I know as much now as I don't know?"—Boston Transcript.

Wife: "What do you think of Bridget's cooking?"

Husband: "I think if she tried to boil water she'd burn it."

THE SUNDAY LESSON.

INTERNATIONAL SERIES, WITH COMMENTARY BY DR. STEARNS.

Subject for Feb. 28—The Disciples Dispersed. Acts viii., 1-17. Golden Text: "They That Were Scattered Abroad Went Everywhere Preaching the Word." Acts viii, 4.

1. Satan was very angry and stirred up the religious Pharisees, who thought that Jesus Christ was a blasphemer and an imposter and therefore justly put to death, to do all they could to stamp out this sect of apostles from Judaism, but this was overruled by God to scatter the truth of His great redemption. The command had been given, "Go ye into all the world," and the assurance also that they should be His witnesses unto the ends of the earth (Mark xvi, 15; Acts i, 8); but, being slow to obey, they had to be scattered by persecution.

2. With great sorrow they laid away the poor broken body of Stephen till the resurrection. While they knew that he was certainly with the Lord in glory, they would greatly miss him, and for the body, and for the bereaved friends and relatives, the work of the great enemy, death, is always sorrowful work. Even Jesus wept at the grave of Lazarus, though He knew that He would in a few moments give him back to his sisters.

3. Saul seems to have been the leader in the persecution of the Christians. His own testimony in after years was "Beyond measure I persecuted the church of God and wasted it," A blasphemer and a persecutor and injurious" (Gal. i, 13; I Tim. i, 13).

4. Those who were scattered abroad went everywhere preaching the word. Men, women and children could tell of Him who was crucified, who rose from the dead, who appeared to hundreds of His followers and afterward visibly ascended to heaven, and who was surely coming back from heaven in due time to restore all things of which the prophets had spoken (Acts i. 3, 11; iii, 20, 21), and that all who would receive Him now by faith would have in Him the forgiveness of all their sins (Luke xxiv, 47; Acts xiii, 38, 39), and come with Him in glory (I Thess. iv, 14).

5. This is Philip of the committee of seven of chapter vi, 5, not Philip of John xiv, 8, one of the apostles. Stephen, the leader of the seven, being promoted, Philip, the next named in order, seems called to special service by the Holy Spirit. He preached Christ in His humiliation and exaltation, in His life and death and resurrection, His ascension, intercession and return, and that through Him all who accept Him have redemption in Him, even the forgiveness of sins.

6. The word which Philip spake was followed by miracles which God did by him, God thus working with him by the Holy Spirit (Mark xvi, 20). Philip sought only honor and glory of God through Christ, and the power of the Lord was manifested in the people giving heed with one accord to what was spoken.

7, 8. There was great joy in that city as they saw the lame and the palsied healed and evil spirits cast out, and receiving Christ as Israel's Messiah, and their own personal Savior had the assurance of eternal life as a present possession. It is the will of God that His people be full of joy (John xv, 11; vxi, 24; xvii, 13). But there is no way to be full of joy except by believing (Rom. xv, 13).

9. One who had beforetime deceived the people by wonderful works which he wrought in the power of the evil one—for the devil has in the past wrought miracles and will again before the Lord comes in His glory (Ex. vii, 11, 12; Rev. xiii, 11-15)—is now introduced to us as being among the believers. He had exalted himself before the people as being some great one, but he saw in Philip the work of a greater than he had ever heard of.

10, 11. Before Philip came all gave heed to Simon, looking upon him as the great power of God. He was a sample, like many others who have been and are now, and especially of one who is to come (Rev. xiii, 3, 4), of a satan filled man glorifying himself and doing his will that he himself may prosper. See Dan. xi, 36.

12. The words and works of God through Philip, the name of Jesus Christ and the things concerning the kingdom of God took such hold of the people in the power of the Spirit that many believed in the Lord, both men and women, and publicly confessed their faith by baptism. Philip did not seek, like Simon, to draw people to himself; but, hiding himself, he exalted Christ that people might be drawn to Him. If Christ is magnified, He will to this day draw people unto Him.

13. It must have been a wonder to all people when the great sorcerer himself believed and was baptized. He continued with Philip, wondering at the signs and great miracles (margin) which he saw. Whatever of sleight of hand or of the real power of the devil there had been in the sorceries with which he had bewitched the people—and doubtless there is much of each in the spiritisms of to-day—here were works such as Simon had never seen, much less done.

14. The apostles continued at Jerusalem. They heard that the word was being preached and received in Samaria and sent Peter and John to see. These men who had been appointed to serve tables were being mightily used of God. One had been honored to be the first martyr in the early church, and one was being honored to win souls in Samaria, while from Jerusalem nothing special is heard about this time, though doubtless many were still being added to the Lord (chapter v, 14). Let us be willing to serve the Lord in any capacity, and He will lead us into all He has for us (II Sam. xv, 15).

15, 16. When any one truly receives Christ, such a one is truly saved (John i, 12; iii, 16, 36; v, 24; vii, 37, 47, etc). Baptism is the public confession that Christ has been accepted, although neither baptism nor the Lord's supper nor joining the church adds a whit to our safety, but are acts of obedience, bringing increased fellowship with God to the obedient believer. Every truly penitent and believing soul receives the Holy Spirit upon believing.

AN AWKWARD PREDICAMENT.

His Curiosity More Than Satisfied After Testing the Yoke.

Some years ago an inquisitive medical student, while examining the guillotine in a big waxwork exhibition took it into his head that the sort of yoke which fits down on the shouders of the criminal to hold him in place would not be sufficient to confine a person who struggled.

His curiosity on that point led him to watch till the place was empty, when he actually put himself in, letting down the yoke. He soon found, however, that he was quite unable to lift it, and it at once flashed into his mind that the sharp axe suspended over his neck might not be very firmly fixed, or it would fall—as it should—with a touch.

He was afraid to struggle, lest the shaking should bring it down, and at once deposit his head in the basket of sawdust below him, into which his eyes were of necessity steadily looking.

Having stayed some time in this plight, he was overjoyed to hear the approach of a visitor, whom he implored to release him. It was in vain.

"I'm thinking," said the gentleman—a Scottish visitor to the metropolis—to his wife, "that he must be hired to show how the thing acts, and I think we'd better not interfere."

So the luckless student was left till one of the attendants came in and made fast the axe before releasing him from his predicament. The axe was afterward removed and laid by the side of the structure, to prevent future accidents.

Frightened a Grizzly.

While I believe that a grizzly bear will in a majority of cases wait for a fight with a man and take pains to get in the way of one, there are times when it will seem to think better of it, and back out. A remarkable instance of this I heard of once, where a famous guide courageously advanced upon three grizzlies, an old she bear and two half grown cubs, and by a series of ridiculous monkey-shines and acrobatic manoevres on the ground within a rod or two of the bears, filled them with such astonishment and apparent fear that the three hastily retreated into the woods. The guide's gun had snapped in both barrels, he having drawn on the old bear before the young ones appeared.

He afterward said that it was in a fit of desperation that he tried the turning of a handspring and jumping up and down flopping his hands and resorting to other unhunterlike measures. He had been told once that a hunter had frightened a mountain lion away by similar absurd movements, and he found that it worked to perfection in the case of the bears, although he did not encourage any one to go hunting grizzlies armed with nothing more than a capacity to turn somersaults.

Tapioca is a Deadly Poison.

Tapioca is procured from a curious South American plant, which either poisons us or nourishes us, according to the way we use it.

The tapioca plant is a shrub which gowns to the height of six or eight feet. The root, as well as the rest of the plant, contains an acid, milky juice, which is so poisonous that it will cause death in a few minutes; but as this poisonous acid may be destroyed by heat, the juice, thickened by boiling forms an excellent sauce called cassa-reep.

The root, after it has been grated or pounded into pulp, is placed under a heavy pressure. The poisonous juice is thus squeezed out. It is then heated and stirred on metal plates, when it forms the well-known tapioca, which is sold in all our shops and served up in hotels, restaurants, and on our family tables as tapioca pudding.

Thus tapioca, in its natural state one of the most deadly poisons in the vegetable world, becomes, when it is heated and pressed, a harmless food that everyone has tasted.—From Answers.

A Long-Delayed Shave.

The celebrated French poet, Saint-Foix, who, in spite of his large income, was always in debt, sat one day in a barber's shop waiting to be shaved. He was lathered when the door opened and a tradesman entered who happened to be one of the poet's largest creditors. No sooner did this man see Saint-Foix than he angrily demanded his money.

The poet composedly begged him not to make a scene. "Won't you wait for the money until I am shaved?"

"Certainly," said the other, pleased at the prospect.

Saint-Foix then made the barber a witness of the agreement, and immediately took a towel, wiped the lather from his face, and left the shop.

He wore a beard to the end of his days.—Tid-Bits.

A Ready Tongue.

As a quick-witted young author was walking with a friend, a man came up behind him and gave him a resounding slap on the shoulder. The writer turned a surprised face towards the new comer, who said: "Look here, you must remember me, now don't you?" "I can't say I remember your face," returned the young author, gravely, "but your manner is certainly familiar."—From Answers.

Deserving of a Pension.

Some one within earshot of an Irishman happened to say that Shakespeare died on the day of his birth. "By the mother of Ireland," said he, "Shakespeare was the man for a good day's work, thin! A janis that could turn out Hamlet and all the rest of it, complayte, in an ephemeral of twenty-four hours deserved to live afterwards at his aise for iver and iver!"

SANGUILLY IS FREE.

Queen Regent of Spain Signs His Pardon—Message Official.

Washington, Feb, 26.—Senor De Lome, the Spanish minister, has just received a telegram from the Duke of Tetuan that the queen has signed the pardon of Julio Sanguilly. It is said at the legation that this action was agreed upon several days ago at a cabinet meeting, but the announcement was, according to diplomatic usage, withheld until the queen had formally signed it.

DECLARATION OF WAR.

Text of the Measure Introduced in Congress by Mr. Sulzer.

Washington, Feb. 26.—Mr. Sulzer, dem., N. Y., offerred in the house yesterday a bill "declaring war between the kingdom of Spain and her colonies and the United States of America and her territories." The measure reads as follows: "That war be declared to exist between the kingdom of Spain and her colonies and the United States of America and her territories; and that the president is authorized to use the whole land and naval force of the United States to carry the same into effect, and to issue to private armed vessels of the United States commissions or letters of mark and general reprisal, in such form as he may think proper, under the seal of the United States, against the vessels goods and effects of the government of the said kingdom of Spain and the subjects thereof." The measure was referred to the committee on foreign affairs.

SUICIDE OF G. A. KRAFT.

A Brooklyn, N. Y., Man Takes Laudanum in Baltimore.

Baltimore, Feb. 26.—George A. Kraft of Brooklyn, N. Y., committed suicide here yesterday. His dead body was found at the corner of Charles and Twenty-sixth streets. In the pockets of his clothing were found a number of books and papers indicating that he was engaged in the insurance business. The following letter was also found: "To whom it may concern—It seems pretty hard to kill me. I took two bottles of laudanum last night, but it only made me sick. If this dose don't do it then I will give it up, and it must be God's will that I shall not die yet. Possibly He has more misery and despair in store for me ere I depart from this earth. May God and everybody forgive me, as I repent of my sins." A pawn ticket showed that Kraft had pawned his overcoat yesterday. No money nor jewelry except sleeve buttons were found on the dead man's person. Coroner Buddenbohn decided that it was a clear case of suicide and no inquest was held. The body was sent to the morgue.

CUBA DISTURBS IT

Senate Unable To Stick to Work on Appropriation Bills.

NUMEROUS AND HEATED SPEECHES

Spain Severely Scored by Advocates of the Cubans' Cause—War Talk Greeted with Cheers from the Galleries.

Washington, Feb. 26.—The Indian appropriation bill is the unfinished business before the senate to-day, but the friends of the Cuban cause seem again determined to discuss the Sanguilly affair no matter what becomes of the appropriation bills, as was the case yesterday, when by a vote of 40 to 27 the Indian bill was laid aside and the Sanguilly resolution was taken up. It came up in the first instance as part of the regular business, the vice-president deciding that, under the rule, a motion to take up the Indian bill was not in order until after the morning business was disposed of, and when at 1 p. m. the morning hour expired, a motion to proceed with the Sanguily joint resolution was made by Mr. Allen, pop., Neb., and, although it was resisted by the chairman of the committee on appropriations, Mr. Allison, and was voted against by the chairman of the committee on foreign relations, Mr. Sherman, it prevailed, by the vote above mentioned. The debate, from the first, was of a rather exciting character. Mr. Allen spoke of Spain as "a decaying monarch, a blot on the map of the world and a disgrace to civilization." Mr. Daniel, dem., Va., said that Sanguilly had been treated "rigorously, harshly, cruelly and brutally," in a manner that was a disgrace to this century and to civilization. He spoke of an insult having been offered by a Spanish officer high in authority to the American republic and flag, and said that if a fleet had been sent to Havana to demand an apology every American citizen would have rejoiced at it.

Galleries Applaud War Talk.

When Mr. Hale, rep., Me., read a telegram from Havana stating that Sanguilly's appeal to Madrid had been withdrawn so as to facilitate his release, his colleague, Mr. Frye, denounced that withdrawal as a wicked and unjust act on the part of Sanguilly's counsel, and declared (with an accompaniment of applause from the galleries) that if he had his way a ship of war would start forthwith for Havana. Mr. Hale regarded that outburst as telling the whole story. What his colleague and other senators wanted was war. But the country would not be drawn into war during the next seven days if he (Mr. Hale) could prevent it. Mr. Hoar, rep., Mass., showed from the committee's own report that Sanguilly had been only two months, instead of five years, in the United States when he got his naturalization papers; had then left the country and had never returned since, having lived in Cuba for the last eighteen years; that the naturalization papers were fraudulent, and that Sanguilly was no more an American citizen than Mr. Daniel was a subject of Turkey. Senators Daniel and Lodge, rep., Mass., denied the right of the senate to go behind the record of the superior court of New York, from which the papers had been issued.

Sherman Defends His Action.

Mr. Teller, silverite, Col., characterized the conduct of the state department as "pusillanimous," and said that he expected nothing better from the next administration. He declared that he would make every power in the world respect American citizenship if it should take all the money, all the ships and all the men that the country had. Allusions by Senators Hill, dem., N. Y., and White, dem., Cal., to the inconsistency of Mr. Sherman, rep., O., in having the joint resolution reported and expressing the hope that the senate would pass it, and then later voting against taking it up, brought Mr. Sherman to his feet. He defended his vote on the ground of necessity of passing the appropriation bills; but still he expressed the hope that, after the senate had gone on for some time longer, the vote should be taken on the joint resolution. At 6 p. m. a recess was taken until 8 p. m.

Night Session.

The expected continuation of the Cuban storm did not appear when the senate met after the short recess. By common consent bills were passed to allow the bottling of distilled spirits in bond and to prevent the importation of impure and unwholesome tea, and consideration of the Indian appropriation bill was resumed. Senator White of California had the floor on the Cuban question when the senate took its recess and would have continued last night had it not appeared to the friends of the Sanguilly resolution that if the debate on that subject was renewed Mr. White would talk until a quorum disappeared. For this reason the regular business was proceeded with. At 11:30 p. m. the senate adjourned until to-day.

House of Representatives.

By a vote 144 to 46 the house, after two hours' debate, passed the bill authorizing national banks to take out circulation to the par value of the bonds deposited to secure it, an increase of 10 per cent. over the limit now allowed. Conference reports upon the agricultural appropriation bill and upon the bill for the relief of certain settlers upon the Sioux reservation in South Dakota, were presented and agreed to. The resolution agreed upon by the committee on foreign affairs calling upon the president for the correspondence relating to the arrest and punishment of American citizens by the Spanish authorities in Cuba, was presented and agreed to.

At Elizabethport connection is to be made with the Newark branch of the Central.

PASSING COMMENT.

There are good roads in this neighborhood, there is no doubt of that, but those who want to see a specimen of the real Jersey road in the city limits, want to stroll down West Second street, just beyond Central avenue, and notice the condition of that street. Soft, sticky mud and ruts a foot in depth. During the recent muddy spell the road was almost impassable.

* * * *

One of the first signs of the approaching spring is the appearance of the "pussy willow," the leaf buds that are to be found on the branches of a certain kind of willow. Every child knows it by sight and as soon as it appears the children bring home big bunches of it. It is taken to school for the teacher to give her first lesson in practical botany. The "pussy willow" has now appeared and the children may be seen every morning with a bunch of the fuzzy little leaf buds in their hands.

The fountain and watering trough which was recently placed on West Second street has been greatly appreciated by man and beast, especially during the summer months. The water is always running and is clear and pure. A drain pipe at the side of the fountain is supposed to carry off the water which overflows from the basin, but it has become partially blocked of late and the water has overflowed the curb and gone into the street, and kept the street in that neighborhood muddy.

For the last two weeks The News has been publishing "exclusive" startling news about the organization of a company of young men to go to Cuba to fight with the insurgents. The articles were replete with details as to equipment, purposes, etc., etc, but sad to say for The News' reputation for veracity, the stories were fakes all the way through. Yesterday another of the foolish ebullitions was published, in which it was stated that Frank Vermeule was one of the party who had gone to Cuba. As a matter of fact, Mr. Vermeule is a good many miles from Cuba. He is employed in the State of Georgia. He never had any idea of going to Cuba.

The building trade in Plainfield this spring is unusually dull. Comparatively few new houses are contracted for and the architects are at a loss for something to do. A prominent architect said the other day that he could not remember when business had been so dull with him. He predicted a change after the inauguration, however, and said that the time for the spring boom had not quite arrived. Local builders say that they will not start on any new buildings until they have gotten clear of all their present stock or the financial situation of the country makes a sudden change. The real estate dealers are beginning to have a lively time of it. Many of the residents are moving about and a number of new families are coming here to take up their residence. The trolley has opened up new sections of the city and many of the old residents are moving from a central location to one along the trolley. Netherwood has been built up wonderfully during the last few years and most of the houses are occupied.

A GOOD LETTER.

From the Clerk of the Circuit Court.

Fernandina, Fla., Feb. 28, 1896.

Mr. J. George Suhrer, Druggist, City.

Dear George:—Please send a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. I would not feel easy if I knew there was none of this valuable Remedy in the house. I have given it a fair test and consider it one of the very best remedies for croup that I have ever found. One dose has always been sufficient, although I use it freely. Any cold my children contract yields very readily to this medicine. I can conscientiously recommend it for croup and colds in children. Yours respectfully, Geo. E. Wolff. Sold by T. S. Armstrong, apothecary, Park & North avenues.

Anxious For Another Term.

M. B. Gardiner, whose term in the Westfield Township Committee expires in the spring, has announced that he is a candidate for re election Mr. Gardiner is a Republican and has already served six years on the committee.

YOUR PALATE IS YOUR STOMACH'S CONSCIENCE.

YOUR STOMACH KNOWS WHAT IS GOOD FOR YOU.

Thin people are thin because the food they eat is not absorbed. Reasons, either wrong food or right food undigested.

Fat, oils and grease will not make any one fat. This is because they are indigestable. Thin people find it hard to digest their food. Fatty foods make it still harder.

Have you ever noticed that almost without exception, thin, pale, dyspeptic, anæmic people have an aversion to fat? This is of itself proof enough that such foods are bad for them.

Let your palate tell you what to eat. Nature makes very few mistakes and we should listen to what she says.

Thin people may become fatter, and dyspeptics more comfortable by taking the Shaker Digestive Cordial. It agrees with the weakest stomach. It helps the weak stomach digest other food. It is fattening and invigorating in itself, for it contains artificially digested food.

The Mount Lebanon Shakers have made a great many interesting discoveries within the past hundred years, but none more important than this ingenious cure for all diseases which are traceable to faulty digestion. A single 10 cent bottle will tell whether it is adapted to your case, and can be had through any druggist.

STRUCK ON THE HEAD WITH A PICK.

Narrow Escape From Death by a Little Girl Yesterday Afternoon.

Miriam Hall, four-year-old daughter of Mrs. Hall, of Central avenue, met with an accident yesterday afternoon which nearly resulted in her death. She with some other girls were walking along the above avenue near Front street, when a man who was using a pick accidentally struck the girl in the forehead near the temple.

Her cries attracted a large crowd of people who carried her to Barker's drug store, where proper treatment was given. The great loss of blood was almost dangerous. An attempt was made to secure a doctor, but the search was unsuccessful at the time, Mr. Barker rendered valuable assistance in the saving of the life of the little one.

There is a horse which has been trained to perform diving feats at Seattle, Washington, U. S. From a platform which has been constructed on the edge of the wharf the horse leaps into the waters of Lake Washington, 30 feet below, and is apparently proud of his accomplishment. MR. PLACE FOR MAYOR.

JOHN VALIANT DEFEATED FOR BOROUGH REPUBLICAN NOMINATION.

The Nominee's Name Had Not Been Prominently Mentioned and it Came as a Surprise—The Other Nominations.

The hitherto quiet spell, which has pervaded the borough for sometime past, was broken last evening at the Republican primary held in the basement of the Public High School, and those who have been on the anxious seat have learned that there are uncertainties in politics as well as in everything else.

Never before in the history of the borough has there been such a large attendance at a primary meeting and it really surprised the leaders themselves. The name of John Valiant was principally before the people for consideration for the office of Mayor, and it was felt that he would secure the nomination. There seemed to be a difference of opinion, however, and the name of ex-Mayor Charles Place appeared prominently before the voters as a second nomination. Mr. Place secured the nomination with a majority of 17 votes. Mr. Valiant received 59 votes and the latter 76.

H. N. Spencer, secretary of the executive committee, called the meeting to order, after which W. W. Howland was made chairman and Mr. Spencer secretary. The latter then read the call for the meeting.

A. V. D. Honeyman asked that the voters take up the question of appropriations first and gave as his reason that usually after the nominations were made the people left. He made a motion that the above course be adopted and it was lost.

P. A. Emmons then nominated John Valiant for Mayor, and W. C. Smith nominated Charles Place. The nominations were then closed by a motion and L. B. Woolston and S. B. Joseph were appointed tellers. When the votes were counted the above result was announced. There were 137 votes cast which is the largest number of any previous meeting. Mr. Howland then stated that Mr. Place was the nominee of the borough for the office of Mayor.

For the office of councilmen there was not such a fight and the contest was slight. T. J. Carey and Murray Burtis were the only nominees and the secretary cast the ballot for them. J. H. Cooley was nominated in the same way for the office of Justice of the Peace for the term of four years. This is to fill a vacancy.

For surveyors of highway, W. Lunger and J. W. VanHorn secured the nomination. Their term is for one year. The next office to fill was that of pound-keeper, and the following persons were named: John Goodwin, Charles Sminck, Andrew Lutkins, H. DeMott, W. C. Smith. All of the above declined to take the office and Senator Reed finally stated he would suggest that the office be left vacant for the Democrats and then the latter would be sure of electing a man. This suggestion was accepted and those present enjoyed the joking exceedingly, for it was evident that not very much was conceded to the Democrats.

For commissioner of appeal, Alex. Thorn received the nomination. This term is for three years, as is also that of the office of constable for which James Lines received the nomination.

This concluded the nominations and the question of appropriations was taken up. The first on the list was for borough purposes which last year was $3,000. By a motion it was left the same for this year, although Mr. Woolston thought it should be a little higher so that the borough would not have to borrow money to pay discounts. He said that last year there was $360 paid out for discounts.

For repair of roads $1,500 was voted, which is an increase of $1,500 over last year. Mr. Reed stated that the appropriation should be larger on account of the expense in opening Watchung avenue. He said that it would be six months before the assessments would be received from this source and there would be $1,600 interest to pay this year on the bonds for the work.

At this time Mr. MacLaughlin asked that of the above amount $1,000 be appropriated for the work on Somerset street this year. Of the latter amount he said that one-third would be received from the street railway as their share for work on the street. Mr. MacLaughlin offered a motion that the above amount be appropriated as stated and his motion was lost. Immediately afterward Mr. Joseph made a motion that $1,600 be reserved for the payment of the interest on the above-named bonds and the motion prevailed.

For the support of the poor the sum of $1,500 was appropriated. Overseer of the Poor D. R. Weaver was present

ROLLED HER IN THE MUD

SUCH WAS REBECCA M'CREE'S TREATMENT OF HER NEIGHBOR.

Mary Willis' Mother Objected and Arrest Ensued—City Judge DeMeza Was Called to Settle Affairs and Reprimanded Both

Two angry colored matrons made things lively in the dingy little court room of the city jail this morning as they aired their quarrel before City Judge DeMeza. Mrs. Rebecca McCree was arraigned before the Judge on the complaint of Mrs. Lucy Willis, charged with being disorderly, breaking the lock on Lucy Willis' house and rolling Mary Willis in the mud of West Second street.

Both of these women live on West Second street, next door to each other, in Samuel Drier's houses. According to the story of Lucy Willis, her dusky neighbor was a bad case. Lucy told how Rebecca McCree used to come home at night and after listening to the stories of her children, would come over to Lucy's house and "fuss" with her.

"She said," continued Lucy, "that she was going to bust my brains out and she used to empty her ashes out in front of my door."

She then said that she had a witness who would come if she wanted him. The Judge sarcastically suggested that she might go after the witness and bring him down but the complainant did not see the point of the remark.

Then the plaintiff was sworn and told her story. It was rather contradictory to the statement of the other woman. Rebecca described her neighbor and the latter's child as being anything but angels. She said that the daughter, Mary, used to come over when she was away and swear at her little daughter. At last Rebecca declared that she could not stand it any longer and that she had chased Mary into her home.

"I caught her and brought her out and wallered her in the mud and that's the truth," she explained.

Mary Clark testified that she had heard Mary Willis swear at the McCrees.

The Judge severely reprimanded both plaintiff and complainant and then suspended sentence.

MAKING BETTER STREETS

NEW COMMISSIONER PROSECUTING HIS WORK AS FAST AS POSSIBLE.

The Roads Throughout the City to be Put Into Good Condition as Soon as Possible—The Clearing Away of Mud.

The street department is one of the busiest parts of the municipal machinery of the city of Plainfield at this season and, at present, it is of more than the usual activity. The cause of that is the usual amount of mud that is to be found on the city streets at present. The close of the winter always sees plenty of mud but the numerous thaws and snow storms have played havoc with Plainfield's fine thoroughfares.

During the last week, the streets have just begun to dry and some of the macadamized streets have been in good condition. The side streets and some of the main thoroughfares are still handsome exhibitions of mud. Since the appointment of the new street commissioner, he has been busy trying to put the crosswalks in condition and repair some of the worst places in the roads. The entire gang of men in that department has been steadily at work and much has been done.

As soon as the streets have dried sufficiently, it is the intention of the street committee, which has general supervision over the entire street system of the city, to start a general cleaning of the city streets and remove the layer of mud that has made travel in carriages, on wheels or on foot so unpleasant. The streets will be scraped and the mud carried away. Holes in the macadam will be repaired and the streets prepared for such necessary improvements as the committee may decide to make.

Of the streets supposed to be in good condition at the present time, East Fifth street is probably the worst. That street was at one time in excellect condition and was the resort of many bicyclists. After the trolley was put through, the street was put in good condition, but today it is a veritable mud hole. This is especially so between Watchung avenue and Richmond street. Great ruts have been cut in the road-bed.

This street was one of the first to receive attention from the street department and the employes of that department are still working there. The ruts have been filled up with crushed stone and one of the cross-walks re laid. The cross-walk at the corner of Franklin place, which was taken up when the trolley road was built and never re-laid, has been put back to the great satisfaction of the residents in the neighborhood.

THRIFT TOLD IN RHYME.

THE ART OF EARNING A DOLLAR FOR A GOOD PURPOSE.

The Ways in Which the Coin was Secured were Many and Novel, and Evidenced the Sincerity of the Earnest Workers.

Sixteen hard earned dollars have been added to the treasury of the Ladies' Aid Society of the Monroe Avenue M. E. church. The history of those same dollars and how they were earned was told at the sociable of the Ladies' Aid Society of that church, held in the church last evening.

For some time the members of the society have been trying to earn a dollar in some way, the dollar to go to the treasury of the society for the furtherance of its work. The women have been trying in all conceivable ways to earn the money and most of them were successful. Each one was then required to write a poem on her experiences and these poems were read at the sociable and entertainment last evening.

To say that the audience enjoyed it would be putting it mildly. Some of the experiences were so humorous that many of the audience wept, but not for sorrow but because they laughed so hard.

Poems were read by the following members of the society who had earned the requisite dollar: Mrs. Israel P. La Rue, Miss Mary Brouwer, Mrs. Nicholas Brouard, Miss Annie Stafford, Miss Minnie Whitley, Mrs. Frederick Wenzel, Miss Lizzie Smith, Mrs. Hubble Hayes, Mrs. Theodore Van Pelt, Mrs. William Eakins, Mrs. Stephen Haff, Miss A. Foster, Mrs. Grannett, Mrs. H. Pugh, Mrs. Arthur D. Pearson, and Mrs. Ed. E. Brown.

The ways in which the dollars were earned were remarkable. Some of the members made pies and crullers and sold them. Others met with good success at selling pickles and eggs. Sewing was taken in. One member earned her dollar by doing the washing for one week. One young woman carried coal by the bucket, another cleaned the garret. The poem of one of the participants stated that she had earned hers by giving up lectures and staying home from the Bradley-Martin ball. The attempts of another to raise the required sum were sad indeed, and one of her friends had finally given the money to her claiming that she had more than earned it with her sighs and efforts to find something to do.

Besides the poems, the entertainment consisted of several piano solos by Miss Kinsey, and recitations by Miss Mary A. Luckey. Solos were given by Mrs. W. A. Westphal and John Thompson. An introductory speech telling something of what the society has done was read by Mrs. Stephen Haff at the start. Remarks by Rev. W. C. O'Donnell concluded the programme.

The entertainment committee consisted of Mrs. Ed. E. Brown, chairman; Mrs. H. P. Pugh, Mrs. H. Hayes and Miss Mary Brouwer. The ice-cream committee consisted of Mrs. Stephen Haff Mrs. A. D. Pearson and Mrs. William Eakins. The cake committee was made up of one member, Mrs. Fred Wenzel. A photograph gallery consisting of the old pictures of the members of the congregation was under the charge of Miss Smith and Miss Stafford. Mrs. Grannett looked after the apron table which was established in one of the corners.

RAT TRAP CAUGHT RAT CATCHER.

Set For the Rodents and Captured Poor Pussy by the Leg.

J. W. VanSickle, the North avenue butcher, has been troubled with rats in the area way in the rear of his store. He set a steel trap in the place frequented by the pests and caught quite a number. Several days ago the trap disappeared. Next day it was found in the next yard where one of the rats had dragged it. The rodent had been caught by the two front legs and had deliberately knawed off those two important members to release himself from his unpleasant predicament. He left the ends of the legs lying near the trap.

Last evening, Mr. VanSickle tried again and fastened his trap with a staple. When he returned this morning, he heard a terrible racket in the rear of his store and went to see what was the matter. There in the trap, instead of a rat, was a large black pussy who was protesting very emphatically against such treatment. VanSickle soon released the cat and the poor creature departed with a final howl.

WHILE FAGGOTS BURNED

MISS YATES AND MISS BUTLER GAVE A CHARMING TEA.

The Invited Guests Took Turns in Entertaining While Their Faggots Burned—Quaint Souvenirs of the Faggot Tea.

Another of the unique "Faggot teas" was held at the home of Miss Yates, East Seventh street, yesterday. Miss Isabelle Butler, of East Front street, entertained with the hostess and each of the twelve invited guests had a part in the novel programme of the afternoon. Each lady had a small decorated hatchet given her, on which was tied a bunch of tiny faggots, the number of which designated the number of the faggot which she was to throw on the open fire. While this burned she was to entertain the others with "Something original, something new, or something old, or something true." Miss Ella Martine gave a free-hand drawing interspersed with witty descriptive suggestions, though the talent displayed needed no assistance in recognizing the picturesque groups in crayon. Even Nast himself might not do better.

Mrs. Dennis recited very beautifully a story of the sea. Mrs. Will Murray entertained by a fine selection of "Characteristics of Authors," from which the names were gussed, a bunch of violets being given the winner.

Miss Mary Martine conducted in her own bright way, a spelling match, and many watched eagerly for the last bit of her faggot, hoping it would be gone before their turn came around again. Miss Kirkner and Miss Hardenberg both rendered vocal solos and Mrs. Charles Lewis gave an instrumental piece, each of which would have been encored, but for the fire burning so readily their faggots. Mrs. George Clay gave a choice selection of floral conundrums, and Miss Jobs, a game of authors and their works. Miss Fritts presented hand-painted cards on which a sort of "village" game was played, the most successful contestant, Miss Jobs, receiving a silver souvenir. Mrs. Ira W. Travell had twenty or more illustrations of well-known books to be guessed.

During the beginning of Miss Yates' faggot, a souvenir tied to a bunch of faggots, and previously hidden, was found by Mrs. Travell. Miss Butler had arranged a group of photographs of famous men, each numbered, and the ten minutes the fire gave was none to much for recognition. Miss Hardenberg, knowing the greatest number, received a beautiful bunch of red carnations.

After this dainty refreshments were served at small tables in one of the adjoining rooms which presented a most charming and fairy-like appearance. The decorations were in red. Souvenir hatchets were at each plate and a bunch of eatable faggots on each table. Each guest found her seat at the table by watching the half card cut irregularly given her before and on which were written quotations relating to the foreign spoon to be used by her. The number of guests and faggots had to be limited and even then old Father Time, like the fire with the faggots, hurried the minutes away regardless of the good time, and all departed with the thoughts of a charming entertainment.

AN EARLY MORNING BLAZE.

D. W. Littell's Barn Destroyed by Fire—Fully Insured.

Another supposed incendiary fire broke out this morning at 1:45 in the barn owned by D. W. Littell, No. 715 West Seventh street. Just a few minutes before Patrolman Totten had passed the place and everything seemed to be all right. He had walked but a short distance when he heard a cracking sound and, turning around, he saw that the barn was in a blaze. He then ran to the corner of Seventh street and Spooner avenue and pulled box 37. Only a few minutes elapsed before the department was on the spot, and the firemen performed valuable service, although they were unable to save the building. As quickly as possible Mr. Littell and his sons came out of the house and rescued the two horses and wagons. Everything else including hay, grain, three sets of harness and several other things was destroyed. The barn and contents was fully insured and the loss is reported to be about $700. Mr. Littell desires to thank the firemen and all who assisted at the fire.

Cotillon Club Entertained.

The members of the Cotillon Club were entertained at the Casino, last evening, by Miss Elizabeth Ginna. The room was decorated in pink and green. Miss Ginna was assisted in receiving by Mrs. Talmage and Mrs. Chapman. The cotillon was led by Thomas Van Boskerck. There were a number of out-of-town guests present besides the members of the club.

A TRIO OF SURPRISES.

A HOST OF BOROUGH YOUNG PEOPLE SPEND AN EVENING OF PLEASURE.

Two Popular Misses and One Boy Pleasantly Surprised by Their Many Friends—Young People Enjoyed Their Hospitality.

Last evening the young people of the borough had a jolly good time at the several social gatherings which were held, and all of them were surprises. Among those who were surprised were Miss Nettie L. Bauersachs, of Grandview avenue. She was wholly unaware of the invasion and was completely taken by surprise. Pleasing games were the feature, interspersed with music. The guests included the Misses Florence McDonald, Belle Williams, Lucetta Clark, Mabel Stevens, Minnie Nischwitz, and Raymond Stevens, William Emmons and Theodore Merklinger, of Newark, cousin of the hostess.

Another surprise was tendered to Robin S. Hamilton, of Verdon street, and it was a surprise for the young host who was asleep in bed when his young friends arrived. It was the anniversary of his twelfth birthday. Music and games helped to pass the hours with pleasure, after which a bountiful supper was partaken of. Those who took part in the celebration were Mabel Hamilton, Hazel Martin, Clara Martin, Bertha Neely, May Neely; Irving Mills, Edward Perrine, William Perrine, Arthur Perrine, Christopher Utzinger, John VanHorn, Lester Hamilton, Walter Hamilton and Frank Codwise.

The last of the surprises was given to Miss Ada Woolston, of Fairview avenue. It was arranged by Miss Grace Emmons and was complete in every particular. Dancing and games furnished the young people with a good time, and during the evening supper was served.

The guests were the Misses Maggie Fritz, Carrie Fritz, Grace Emmons, May Bennett, Clara Buckle, Julia Williams, Clara VanFleet and Mildred Everitt; Charles Woolston, Mortimer Slater, Raymond Poole, Willard Martin, Horace Martin, Harry Vetterlein and Walter Emmons.

The zest with which the young people entered into the festive occasion was marked and all enjoyed themselves fully.

LYNCH LAW THREATENED

CITIZENS OF SOMERVILLE AROUSED OVER MURDERS COMMITTED.

The Expense of the Trials Will Be a Heavy One to the Taxpayers and Summary Methods Suggested by Citizens.

Somerville is excited. Her jail now contains four murderers, two of whom are Italians. It is some time since the residents of that town have been so worked up over anything as this wholesale storage of murderers. In each case the evidence is so strong that it is almost a certainty that the men are guilty. Two of them have been tried and found guilty by the courts.

The spirit shown is not a peaceful one. The expense of these trials will be a burden to the taxpayers and there is a sentiment among some of the people there not to await the slow process of law. Hints have been made since the day of the last murder in Bound Brook, that some night the citizens of Somerville would take the law in their own hands and dispose of the four criminals without expense to the county. Of course, the county officials have done their best to keep the matter quiet, but the story is the principal topic of conversation there.

It has also been learned that one of the prominent county officials, living in Somerville, has received a letter in which he was notified to have all the other prisoners, except the four murderers, removed from the jail, as it was the intention of the writer and his friends to blow that building up, and let the county devote the money to a new court house that would have otherwise gone to pay the expenses of the trial of the prisoners.

While there may be no truth in this threat, for such it is, it is very evident that there is a strong feeling in that direction, and that some attempt at the life of the four would not be improbable.

X-RAYS TOLD SECRETS.

OLD AND YOUNG PEOPLE SUBJECTED TO THE PROBING LIGHT.

And as a Consequence There Was Many a Laugh On Those Who Permitted the X-Rays to Fall On Their Body

The mysteries of the X-rays were fully explained and an exhibition of its workings given for the benefit of those who attended the Sunday-school sociable held in the parlors of the Congregational church, last evening. The workings of this wonderful machine might have considerably astonished the discoverer had he happened in at the time. The results were of rather a startling character and some wonderful pictures were secured. Some unbelieving spectator suggested that it was merely a bull's eye lantern which was turned on the subject and that the supposed pictures had been prepared beforehand, but his ideas were laughed to scorn by the rest.

One of the parlors was separated from the rest by a curtain. The audience seated themselves in the other rooms. The programme opened with a piano solo by Miss Adeline B. Parsons, which was followed by a recitation of one of Mark Twain's selections by Miss Katheryn Dwight. Another piano solo was given by Miss Nellie Winckler. This part of the programme closed with a recitation by Miss Aimee Emmons.

The rest of the entertainment consisted of the wonderful exhibition of the X-rays. The machine was managed by F. Bristol and Jos. A. Robinson, Mr. Bristol acting as lecturer. The curtain was drawn to one side and the machine exposed. It was partially hidden by a screen. A number of the members of the congregation were called, one by one, and placed in front of the machine. There was a strange clicking noise and a ray of light was thrown on the face or hand of the subject. After a short exposure, the picture was declared to be taken.

The pictures were then exhibited one by one and they had very much the appearance of being the work of crayon and water color. There were some great pictures shown. Some young women's heads were shown to be full of musical notes while others contained type-writers. The youthful part of the audience was not forgotten and their heads were shown to be full of skates, candy, tops and kites. Harold Tomlinson, the electrician, was shown to have a battery in his head. Mrs. C. L. Goodrich's heart contained an image of her husband, while Rev. Mr. Goodrich's heart was shown to contain a picture of the little church of which he is pastor. A bicycle was discovered in the photograph of Miss Katie Reed but Mr. Bristol explained that it did not signify that she had wheels in her head. A moonlight scene with a horse and buggy prominently in the foreground was revealed by the negative of the head of Miss Nellie Rockfellow. Deacon L. B. Morgan was found to have a poem in his head and the poem afterwards came to light and was read by Mr. Morgan after the pictures had been examined.

The committee which arranged this novel affair consisted of Rev. C. L. Goodrich, Mrs. C. L. Goodrich, J. A. Robinson and Miss Addie P. Jackson. The pictures were the work of Miss Ellis and Miss Elfleda Whiting.

The committee in charge of the decorations consisted of Miss Eda Beekman, chairman, Miss F. F. Clark, Miss M. G. Morse, and Wickham Beekman.

INSURANCE PAPERS FOUND.

Taken the Night W. H. Coles' Safe Was Blown Open at Dunellen.

When W. H. Cole's safe was blown open and robbed at Dunellen several weeks ago, there disappeared among other things, the fire insurance policy on the Presbyterian chapel, which does not expire until November, 1897. The document was given up as lost, but yesterday a lad named Mohan and a companion were wandering along the railroad tracks near the round house when they espied a package of papers neatly tied up, but with no outward appearance of any value. The boys took the papers into Mr. Coles' office where they were at once recognized as the missing church policies.

Missionary Society Entertained.

The Young Ladies' Missionary Society of the First Baptist church was entertained yesterday afternoon by Mrs. Dewitt C. Brokaw, of No. 38 Sycamore avenue. The amount of money received from the envelopes which were given by the members, was $85.75, and there are yet forty members to be heard from. Dainty refreshments were served. Mrs. L. H. Bigelow, Jr., poured tea, and Miss Anna Boice poured chocolate. The waitresses were Miss Florence Serrell, Miss Elsie Brokaw and the Misses Milne.

SITUATION SERIOUS

Lives of Christians in Crete Now in Great Danger.

BAD EFFECT OF ACTION OF POWERS

Armed Moslems and Turkish Troops, Believing That Europe Is Back of Them, Now Demanding the Blood of the Christians.

Canea, Feb. 27.—Most of the foreign warships that were lying in the harbor have left and gone to Suda bay, where there is a better anchorage than here. It is likely, however, that there presence here will again be required, as the situation has become more critical than ever before, and it would not be surprising if a conflict should occur. In one respect the interposition of the powers has had a bad effect, in that it has led the Moslems to believe that Europe is back of them in their combat with the Christians. As a result, there are at present 8,000 Moslem fighting men, besides the Turkish soldiers, all heavily armed, parading the streets of the city and demanding the blood of the Christian "dogs," who have dared to question the right of the Turk to rule them. The combined forces that have been landed by the several powers number only 800 men, and it is believed that without the aid of the warships they would prove of no avail in preserving order in the city. The popular passion has been added to by Ismail Pasha, the acting governor, who has circulated false stories to the effect that the Greek troops are mutilating Moslem children. The governor knows these stories to be untrue, and apparently his only object is to create among the Moslems deeper hatred of the Cristians and to further excite the desire for revenge. He is carrying matters with a high hand, and it is likely that the powers will have to intervene to check his ardor in behalf of the Turks. Accompanied by an armed body of Turks he left Candia and occupied strategetic positions in the vicinity of the city, from which he attacked the Christians, causing serious losses to them.

Greece Will Not Withdraw from Crete.

London, Feb. 27.—The Athens correspondent of the Times telegraphs that Prime Minister Delyannis has informed him that Greece's decision to maintain her army in Crete is irrevocable, but that the troops will abstain from the offensive. They will only protect the Christians. Greece will not declare war against Turkey unless absolutely necessary.

Crispi Favors Crete's Freedom.

Rome, Feb. 27.—A mass meeting was held at Palermo last night for the purpose of expressing sympathy with the Cretan Christians in their efforts to rid themselves of Turkish rule. Among the messages received was one from ex-Prime Minister Crispi, who, after expressing his approval of the object of the meeting, said: "It was due to Great Britain that Garibaldi in 1860 was not hindered in landing in Sicily. To-day the case is identical. If the powers intervene it ought to be for the liberation of oppressed nations and never to maintain a state of barbarism living on incendiarism and assassination."

To Bar Prizefight Reports.

Washington. Feb. 27.—The question of newspaper publications of accounts of prizefights was discussed yesterday by the house committee on commerce, and the committee directed Representative Aldrich of Illinois to report to the house a bill prohibiting the transportation of pictures or descriptions of prizefights by mail or interstate commerce and fixing a maximum penalty of five years' imprisonment for violation of the law. This bill applies to transmission of reports from one state to another by telegraph, but is not intended to interfere with the announcements of the occurrence and result of fights.

Naval News.

Washington. Feb. 27.—The Detroit has arrived at Bangkok to receive the short term men of the Machias, when she will resume her cruise home via Suez. The Maine is at New Orleans, the Dolphin at Washington, and the Montgomery has left Key West for Mobile, being relieved by the Marblehead. Torpedo boat No. 6 reached Washington last evening, and will be exhibited to members of congress down the Potomac this afternoon.

Three Years for Assault.

Newark, N. J., Feb. 27.—Wallace Casimer, a special deputy sheriff, was found guilty yesterday afternoon in the court of quarter sessions of assaulting Mrs. Francisca Yulkofsky in the office of justice of the peace Paul Curcio on Jan. 20 last, and Judge Fort sentenced him to three years in state prison.

Death of Father Hudon.

Montreal, Feb. 27.—Father Hudon, ex-superior general of the Jesuits of Canada, died at the convent of the Immaculate Conception yesterday. He was born in this province in 1823.

SLOW BUT LASTING

The Improvement in Business Conditions Continues.

OUTLOOK NOW VERY ENCOURAGING

Many Thousands of Men Set To Work. Enormous Increase in Orders, and All Baanches of Trade Must Soon Be Benefitted.

New York, Feb. 27.—Dun's weekly review of the state of trade for the week just closing will, to-day, say: Genuine improvement in business does not come with a rush, like the breaking of a great dam. The growth for some weeks past has been more encouraging because in nearly all lines it has been gradual and moderate. The rupture of the steel rail and other combinations in the iron business has brought out a vast quantity of trade which had been held back, and has set many thousand men at work, while the slow but steady gain in other great industries has given employment to many thousand more, but the full effects will not appear until the increased purchases by all these swell the distribution of goods. This comes more slowly and later, but is already apparent. Certainty regarding the future will help it mightily and is by multitudes expected with strong hope. Meanwhile it is substantial ground for confidence that months which were regarded by many in the money market with serious apprehension have passed without disturbance and with steady gain in the position of the country and of the treasury. It was not to be expected that the excess of exports over imports would continue as large in January as it had been in previous months, and yet it was surprisingly large. The February returns have naturally been less favorable, as cotton exports fall off at this season, and yet the decrease, compared with last year, is trifling, while the increase in imports to be expected at this season has amounted during the past three weeks to only $629,040 compared with last year, or about 2 per cent.

Enormous Increase in Orders.

The breaking of bonds which have restricted many branches of the iron industry has been followed by an enormous increase in demand and in orders booked and by the starting of many works. Nothing yet is settled about the price of Lake ore for the coming season, but some expect for Mesabi the price of 1895, while others expect a lower price, either being at least 20 per cent. lower than the prices of last year. The rapid increase in coke output in the Connelsville region, which is now over 100,000 tons, gives prospect of moderate cost for fuel, and the addition of important furnaces to the producing capacity prevents a large rise in Bessemer pig, which has nevertheless advanced 10 cents at Pittsburg with increasing demand. Purchases of rails, estimated at 1,000,000 tons within two weeks, ensure employment for the works far ahead, and eastern works are taking desirable contracts at $18 per ton. Bars are unchanged, but orders for 900 cars by one railway, with numerous others, increase the demand, and plates are required for two great elevators at Chicago.

Other Industries Gaining.

With less rapidity, but yet steadily, other industries are gaining. Although brown four yard sheetings are an eighth lower, and print cloths a sixteenth lower, it is found that several cotton mills have started, not covered by the restriction as to print cloth works, which is carried out. Increasing demand has also started quite a number of woolen mills, including many making dress goods and hosiery. The demand for men's woolens is also somewhat better, especially for heavy weights, and there are improving sales of better qualities. Sales of wool were 38,317,200 pounds in the four weeks against 22,366,800 in the largest previous year, 1892, and the great establishments are believed to have supplied their possible wants for some moths ahead, a single purchase of 1,600,000 pounds, South American cross-bred being the most important noted this week.

Bryan Speaks in New York.

New York, Feb. 27.—William Jennings Bryan, ex-presidential candidate, did not have a large audience at Carnegie hall last night to hear his lecture on "Money." But the audience was very enthusiastic. After paying a feeling eulogy to the memory of the late Wm P. St. John, Mr. Bryan talked upon the money question in his accustomed fashion. The cause of the small audience is attributed to the excessive admission fee charged.

Valuable Residence Burned.

Yonkers, N. Y., Feb. 27.—The handsome country residence of Frank Morrill, owner of the steam yacht Vamoose, at Alpine, N. J., opposite Yonkers, was totally destroyed by fire yesterday afternoon. The fire was caused by an overheated flue. The house was worth $50,000 and contained valuable furniture and handsome paintings.

Heel and Toe Race Challenge.

Auburn, N. Y., Feb. 27.—Willard A. Hoagland of this city is anxious to arrange a four or six day heel and toe walking match with any man in American, Frank H. Hart of Chicago preferred, for a sum of $500 a side. Race must take place in New York state.

The High Waters at Cincinnati.

Cincinnati, Feb. 27.—The Ohio river is slowly receding after having reached 61 feet 2 inches. This is the fifth time in the history of the city that the river has exceeded the 60-foot limit. A cold wave has added to the misery of the flood sufferers.

A DOG'S INTELLIGENCE.

Being Lost, He the Same as Asks a Cab Driver to Take Him Home.

A story, illustrating the reason of a dog, is quoted as having been told by William Robson, of Penshaw, the owner of the animal. The dog was in the habit of going about in hansom cabs with is master. One day after being lost he went home by himself in a hansom:

"The cabman rang for his fare, and, thinking he had somehow captured the runaway, I inquired how and where he found him. 'Oh, sir!' said cabby, 'I didn't hail him at all—he hailed me. I was standing close by St. James' Church looking out for a fare, when in jumps the dog. I shouts through the winder, he wouldn't stir; so I gets down and tries to pull him out, and shows him my whip; but he sits still, and barks as much as to say, "Go on, old man." As I seizes him by the collar I reads his name and address. My fine gentleman settles himself with his head just a-looking out, and I drives on till I stops at this gate. Then out jumps my passenger, a-clearing the doors, and walks in as though he's been a regular fare."

The driving-in-cabs dog is by no means a rare variety. It is told of Lady Ashburnham's collie that, after jumping into a hansom, he so plainly intimates that he wants his collar read that, as one cabman said, "blowed if he didn't ask me to!"—Westminster Budget.

Humors of the White House.

The humors of the White House, it is the testimony of every one who has resided there, would fill many volumes. Many of them are found in the daily mailbag. At a dinner the other day Mrs. McKee told of a letter Mrs. Harrison received while first lady of the land. It ran:

"Dear Madam: I would like a present from Washington City, so I will locate on you for it. Please send me a dress pattern and (here followed a list of several other things), and please pay the express, as I have made a vow never to pay anything on an express package as I never know what is in it until I have opened it."

Mrs. Harrison, according to the relator, was much amused at this missive, and "I'll locate on you for that" became a standing phrase in the family ever after when some object was coveted.

Another letter received by Mrs. Harrison ran:

"Dear Madam: Please send me a piano and some sheet music, as I have a daughter that has some talents."

Oriental Rugs Made in This Country.

So many Oriental rugs are made in this country that representatives of the industry recently had a hearing before Congress to call attention to the prevalent practice of undervaluing imported rugs at the custom houses and to ask for a higher duty.

Several Chicago concerns are not only making Oriental rugs right along, but they are also wiping out time as well as space.

"Do you make antique rugs here, too?" I inquired the other day of a grinning Armenian, who had arisen from a half-finished piece of work.

"Oh, yes," he said, showing his ivories still further, "dees rug, when he finished, is two hundret year olt."—Chicago Times.

WIT AND HUMOR.

"Of course, you throw me over for another man," said the rejectee lover, impertinently.

"No," she replied cuttingly; "just for a man."—North American.

"Can he recover, doctor?" asked the woman whose husband had been hurt in a railway accident.

"I fear not, madam," replied the doctor, "but you can. You should get at least $20,000 from the company."

Mother—Tommy, what on earth is baby crying for?

Tommy—He's angry with me, mamma, because I was trying to make him smile with your glove stretcher.—London Punch.

Mrs. Dogood—Why do you ask?

Dusty Rhodes—Me an' me pard is a campin' out near here, an' we t'ought as how we might borry a few sticks as was dry."

Junir Partner: "Our traveller ought to be discharged. He told one of our customers that I am an ignorant fool."

Senior Partner: "I shall speak to him, and insist that no more office secrets be divulged."—Twinkles.

"Toothache?"

"Nope."

"Neuralgia?"

"Nope. Got a new neighbor, a Pole, and like a fool I tried to pronounce his name all at once. Doctor says my jaw isn't broken, but badly wrenched."—Danville Gazette.

Wandering Willy—I like ter read 'bout the invention of labor savin' machinery. Dis will be a fine world ter live in when dere's no more work done by hand."—Comic Cuts.

"But, papa," replied the daughter, "you can have no idea how he loves me. He is willing to die for me this minute."

"Well!" said the old man as he scratched his head thoughtfully, "I don't know as I have any objection to that. I was afraid he wanted to marry you."

Flossie is six years old. "Mamma," she asked, "if I get married, will I have to have a husband like pa?"

"Yes," replied the mother, with an amused smile.

"And if I don't get married, will I have to be an old maid like Aunt Kate?"

"Yes."

"Mamma" (after a pause), "it's a tough world for us women, ain't it?"—Tid-Bits.

The Longest Train on a Dress.

Faithful Trial Brings Reward

Hood's Sarsaparilla Triumphant in a Severe Test —A Distressing Sore Completely Cured

The testimonials in behalf of Hood's Sarsaparilla are worth reading because they tell things worth telling. Just spare a few moments to read this statement below:

No man is more favorably known in and about Epping, N. H., than Mr. Joseph Stokes, the husband of the lady referred to. His word is as good as a U. S. bond, and every statement from him or his family may be most implicitly relied upon. Read this:

"C. I. Hood & Co., Lowell, Mass.:

"Gentlemen:—For fully twenty years my mother has been seriously troubled by a sore on her nose. For some time we thought it of a cancerous nature, and it was removed three times. A physician in Boston said the sore was not a cancer, but

"A Catarrhal Sore."

It discharged and was, of course, very annoying as well as painful. Sometimes it was as large as a half dollar, and it was necessary to keep it bandaged and protected most of the time. About two years ago the sore seemed to be spreading over her face, and was larger than when the Boston physician removed it. There is no question but that its origin was in

The Scrofulous Humor

with which my mother has always been troubled. Two years ago she decided to give Hood's Sarsaparilla a faithful trial, also using, as an outward application, Hood's Olive Ointment. It was soon noticed, to the joy of the family, that the sore was diminishing in size and was becoming less troublesome. This encouraged her to continue the use of Hood's Sarsaparilla. She took 11 bottles, and now

Her Face is Well.

The sore has entirely disappeared, leaving not a scar, but only a slight mark, which we think may in time totally disappear. It is such a comfort to her and such a joy to the rest of the family that we feel indebted more than we can express, to Hood's Sarsaparilla, that she has been cured after twenty years of suffering." MISS E. A. STOKES, Epping, N. H.

From Mr. Stokes.

"I am glad to say that the cure of my wife is exactly as stated in my daughter's letter above. JOSEPH STOKES.

Col. Bennett,

Who writes the following, is a leading contractor and builder, has been on the Governor's staff, and held other official positions of confidence and trust:

"I know the parties referred to in the letters above, and endorse them as thoroughly reliable. I have known about this case for some time, and am glad this testimonial has been sent to C. I. Hood & Co." J. W. BENNETT, Lowell, Mass.

You Can't Do It

It isn't possible to boil any oatmeal long enough to break the starch-cells, and so render it digestible. Starch is not converted into digestible material until 250 degrees is reached, and 212 degrees is the maximum boiling temperature. Oatmeal can only be made digestible by dry heat, and is the only oatmeal in which the starch is rendered soluble by bursting the starch granules. This makes it the only safe oatmeal for infants, children, and those of weak digestion.

Be sure and get the package with the big H-O on the end.

A MAN WITH A VISIBLE HEART.

The Manner in Which the Insensibility of the Heart Became Known.

One of the most remarkable of all human phenomena of which we find records in the history of physical science was a young man whose heart and lungs were not only visible, but could be handled by a second person. This young man was the son of the family of Montgomery, and lived in the reign of Charles I. While traveling abroad he met with a very serious accident, falling upon some instrument which pierced his side and left a large open wound. Even when the wound had healed, the cavity remained.

The great Harvey, who discovered this remarkable youth, relates in one of his journals the strange story.

"When I paid my respects to this noble youth, and conveyed to him the Kink's request that I should be allowed to examine him," wrote Harvey, "he made no concealment, but exposed the left side of his breast; when I saw a cavity into which I could introduce my finger and thumb. Astonished with the novelty, again and again I explored the wound; the first marvelling at the extraordinary nature of the cure, set about the examination of the heart. Taking it in the fingers of one hand, and placing the fingers of the other upon the pulse of the wrist, I satisfied myself that it was indeed the heart which I grasped. I then brought him before the King that he might behold and touch so extraordinary a thing; and that he might perceive, as I did, that unless we touched the outer skin, or when he saw our fingers in the cavity, this young nobleman knew not that we had touched his heart."

It was in this way that Harvey proved his theory of the insensibility of the heart to be correct.—Tid-Bits.

Resentful.

"I have a good father," said the young man, "one who, I am sure, always tried to do his duty. I have only one thing with which to reproach him."

"What is that?"

"Human nature is human nature, and I must take it for granted that he is no exception to a universal rule. I don't think I can ever forgive him for the manner in which he used to go around and bore his friends with the smart things I said when I was a baby."—Washington Star.

Delicate Dress Goods.

Some gowns are so dainty in the weave, so delicate in tint, that they seem to soil by being looked at—one or two wearings making them unpresentable, NOT USELESS. We make a specialty of cleaning fine fabrics, the more delicate the material, the better the results. Sometimes an accident will ruin a gown, without injuring the texture. We dye them then, sometimes we get a prettier effect than the original color. Fine goods stand redyeing. The finer the material the better the new color. We charge so little for cleaning or dyeing, that even if you are in doubt as to the result, it's worth while to experiment. Want a new evening gown for a dollar or two? MUST ACT WITH CAUTION.

Olney's Instructions to Gen. Lee To Avert Trouble with Spain.

Havana, Feb. 27.—It is understood here that Secretary Olney, as further evidence of his and President Cleveland's friendship for Spain, has instructed Consul-General Lee to act with caution in his dealings with the Spanish authorities and to spare no effort to avert further friction with them. By Spaniards here this is taken to mean that Gen. Lee, to meet the approbation of his superiors in office, must not be as persistent as he has been heretofore in pressing for a recognition of the rights of American citizens. It is rumored here that the reason why Gen. Lee still holds his post is that he has been induced to do so by private intimation from a high repnblican that he will be supported by the incoming republican administration in upholding American rights and honor. Julio Sanguilly, the American citizen who was twice sentenced to imprisonment for life on the charge of being a rebel, which charge was never proven against him, and who was released yesterday, left the Cabanas fortress and started at once for his home. He was so anxious to get to his family that he did not have time to talk about his experience. It is reported that he has promised never to return to Cuba.

Spain and the United States.

Madrid, Feb. 27 —A note just issued states that the relations between Spain and the United States are undisturbed by the present disputes, which are like those that have already occurred regarding the taking part in the rebellion in Cuba by Americans. The terms of Minister Taylor's recent note to the government were not abnormal.

THE DEATH OF DR. RUIZ.

Spain, It Is Alleged, Will Make a Rigid Investigation into Lee's Charges.

Washington, Feb. 27.—Official cablegrams from Madrid received at the Spanish legation regarding the death of Ruiz show that the government is aroused to most energetic action, and that orders have gone forward to Cuba to have a most thorough investigation into the affair. This is regardless of the question of Ruiz's nationality, for whether he is an American or not, the government has determined that if a crime has been committed those guilty shall be punished. In the meantime no efforts are being spared to determine whether Ruiz was an American citizen or not, and under both the state department and the legation authorities the records are being searched. So far it can only be found that Ruiz, then a dental student, took out his first papers, declaring intention in Philadelphia, December 19, 1877. This was near the close of the last rebellion. He soon graduated as a dentist, and returned to Guanabacoa in 1880, where he practised ever since. It cannot be learned that he ever returned to the United States, nor does it appear that he lived here long enough to acquire naturalization. However, the Madrid government will rush the investigation of his death just as forcibly as possible, and if Consul General Lee's charges are correct, that the doctor was killed or driven to suicide by his jailers, the severest punishment of military law will be executed on those responsible.

Sanguilly Sails for New York.

For Extra Work on Cruisers.

Washington, Feb. 27.—A bill has been offered by Senater Gear to pay the Columbia Iron Works and Drydock company of Baltimore $215,306 for damages sustained and extra work done by change of plans in the cruisers Detroit and Montgomery, built by them.

Bribery in Idaho.

Boise, Idaho, Feb. 27.—Representative H. G. Joines has made an affidavit setting forth that he was bribed to vote for Henry Heitfeldt for United States senator. It is said affidavits of a similar character have been made by two other members.

Scott Jackson Will Not Confess.

Louisville, Ky., Feb. 27.—The attorney for Walling, Scott Jackson's accomplice in the murder of Pearl Bryan, is authority for the statement that Jackson will go to the scaffold without confessing, trusting that something may occur to save his life.

PREPARING TO MOVE

Work at the McKinley Residence Rapidly Pushed Forward.

THE SPECIAL CAR ARRIVES AT CANTON

Whitelaw Reid's Ill-Health Prevents Him from Receiving an Important Appointment---Cabinet Gossip Practically at an End.

Canton, O., Feb. 27.—Cabinet speculation seems to have come to a halt. It is assumed that Col. J. J. McCook has been given an opportunity to accept a portfolio, but no assurance that he will be a member of the cabinet has been received here. In the talk about New York appointments that have appeared in the newspapers it seems to have escaped general notice that Hon. Whitelaw Reid of New York has always been a great favorite of the president-elect for some suitable and conspicuous recognition. Mr. Reid's selection for a place in the cabinet, or a foreign embassy has been until recently under Major McKinley's careful and most cordial consideration. The relations between the two gentlemen have long been kind and intimate, and no one regrets Mr. Reid's ill health more than the president-elect. But both Mr. Reid and his friends think it would be imprudent for him to risk the confinement of official work until his health is absolutely restored, and hence have advised against that course. Major McKinley within the last fortnight finally and reluctantly gave up the idea of appointing Mr. Reid and thereupon wrote him a letter expressive both of his regard and appreciation, and of the deep regret that for the present, at least, he could not have the advantage of his association and co-operation in the administration. Major McKinley is improving rapidly in health. Preparations for his departure for Washington on Monday evening are being rapidly arranged at the McKinley household. The residence will be left in charge of a friend of the family until Mrs. McKinley returns in a week or two after the inauguration to pack for shipment such articles as she may need during their residence in the White House. The special car in which the president-elect and family will journey to the capital arrived here to-day from the shops in Columbus, where it was reburnished. It is said to be the finest private car in the world. It was sidetracked near the depot and is being viewed by the residents here with interest and admiration.

HANNA'S STAY IN WASHINGTON.

The National Chairman Says He May Not Return to Cleveland for Several Months.

Cleveland, Feb. 27.—Chairman M. A. Hanna, before leaving for Washington yesterday afternoon was a busy man. He was deeply engrossed up to noon settling up the affairs of the headquarters. He was in a joyous mood, and the jovial smile which became evident after Bushnell's declaration to appoint him as Sherman's successor, still played about his features. Shortly after 12 o'clock Mr. Hanna bade goodbye to the corps of political clerks in his office. Then he stepped into the office of M. A. Hanna & Co., which adjoins the political sanctum, and said "good-bye" to "the boys," Returning to his private room he locked his desk and hurried to the Union club, where he took luncheon. His carriage containing his wife, two daughters, Ruth and Mabel, with a maid, drew up at the club and Mr. Hanna stepped inside and the outfit was whirled away to the Union depot, where the entire party, traveling like ordinary people, departed for Washington over the the Pennsylvania railroad. Before leaving Mr, Hanna said: "I do not know how long I will remain in Washington. It all depends upon future developments. I may not be back for several months." It is probable that Gov. Bushnell will forward the papers appointing Mr. Hanna to fill Senator Sherman's term, and that the national chairman will be inducted into office on March 4, when President McKinley's appointees are confirmed.

To Welcome Stevenson to Bloomington.

Bloomington, Ill., Feb. 27.—When Vice-President Stevenson returns to Bloomington after his four years' service at Washington he is to be given an enthusiastic welcome. The arrangements are already under way to tender to him a reception and banquet on the evening of March 9. It is to be participated in by his friends and neighbors, regardless of politics. It is understood that Mr. Stevenson and family will at once reoccupy the family residence.

Sudden Death of a County Clerk.

Jamestown, N. Y., Feb. 27.—Victor A. Albro, county clerk of Chautauqua county, who died suddenly in his office at Maysville yesterday morning, was a prominent republican in politics in this district. He had been in the county clerk's office for about twenty-five years, and was serving his second term as clerk. He was a veteran of the war.

New York State Mortality.

Albany, Feb. 27.—According to the January bulletin of the state board of health there were 9,597 deaths in the state during last month. Compared with the preceding month there were 500 more deaths and a death rate of 17.25 against 16.50.

Idle Convicts Go Insane.

A NEW INFLUENCE.

There seems to be no such thing as political unanimity in any political party in Plainfield or North Plainfield any more, as was again evidenced in the Republican primary in the borough last night. The name of ex-Mayor Charles Place for the chief executive of the municipalty had not been prominently mentioned in connection with the nomination, and while the politicians, or at least some of them, were aware of the fact, the nomination came as a great surprise to the rank and file of the party.

It is said that one of the causes that contributed to the defeat of Mr. Valiant is the knowledge that he is an ardent advocate of city and borough consolidation, as he was one of the gentlemen whose names was attached to the paper for the organization of a society to promote the consolidation. Though Mr. Place has not openly declared himself either one way or the other, it is generelly understood that he is in favor of the borough government remaining in tact as it is. As the opponents of consolidation are desirous of having the Mayor in sympathy with them in this matter they naturally supported Mr. Place's name in the convention, and were able to carry their cause. As a preliminary skirmish of what portends to be a contest of strong forces on both sides in the future, the nomination of Mr. Place has a very interesting phase. Now, to make the matter more interesting the Democrats should nominate an out-and-out consolidation advocate, and thus bring the matter to a direct issue. It would make a municipal campaign of more than passing interest.

JOINED THE NATIONAL LEAGUE.

Local Y. M. C. A. Proposes to Take an Active Part.

The Plainfield Y. M. C. A. proposes to take an active part in athletics during the coming year. Already considerable in the line of indoor athletics and athletic contests has been done. The local association has joined the National Athletic League of Y. M. C. A.'s, which is to take general control of athletics among the members of the associations in this country.

At present the Athletic League is arranging the records of that organization. The records made in the Pentathlon contests, which have been held for the last three years, were registered with the international committee and will form the basis for the League's American records. The Pentathlon contests consisted of contests in five events—100 yards dash, running high jump, throwing the 12-pound hammer, pole vault and mile run. So far New Jersey has not been represented, but with the formation of the new league it is hoped that not only New Jersey but Plainfield will be represented in the list of records.

A GOOD LETTER.

From the Clerk of the Circuit Court.

Fernandina, Fla., Feb. 28, 1896.

Mr. J. George Suhrer, Druggist, City.

Dear George:—Please send a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. I would not feel easy if I knew there was none of this valuable Remedy in the house. I have given it a fair test and consider it one of the very best remedies for croup that I have ever foumd. One dose has always been sufficient, although I use it freely. Any cold my children contract yields very readily to this medicine. I can conscientiously recommend it for croup and colds in children. Yours respectfully, Geo. E. Wolff. Sold by T. S. Armstrong, apothecary, Park & North avenues.

THEATRICAL.

Of all the gorgeous spectacular dramas, of the present age, none surpass Tompkins' "Black Crook" in magnitude and splendor. This drama, which enlists the services of one hundred people in a special train of cars, enjoyed the unparalleled success of a run of one year at the Academy of Music, New York, and six months in New England's metropolis at the Boston Theatre, and during the World's Fair at McVicker's Theatre, Chicago. The scenic pictures of the gorgeous ballets, the weird effects and the dazzling display of armor, costumes and electrical effects have been, as yet unparalleled in the history of the drama. Music Hall, Monday, March 1st.

The ever popular favorite, Robert Mantell, filled the Olympic Theatre last evening with a distinguished audience on the second presentation in this city of his powerful drama, "Monbars," in which Mr. Mantell made so decided a hit in this city last season. He is an actor of unusual magnetism and sympathy, and carries his audiences wholly with him to every climax in the play, and rarely has the Olympic rung with more enthusiastic and hearty applause than greeted Mr. Mantell's efforts last evening.—St. Louis Dispatch. At Music Hall next Wednesday night.

Mr. Ward L. Smith, of Fredericks-town, Mo., was troubled with chronic diarrhœa for over thirty years. He had become fully satisfied that it was only a question of a short time until he would have to give up. He had been treated by some of the best physicians in Europe and America but got no permanent relief. One day he picked up a newspaper and chanced to read an advertisement of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhœa Remedy. He got a bottle of it, the first dose helped him and its continued use cured him. For sale by T. S. Armstrong, Apothecary, corner Park and North avenues.

A Somerville Host.

I. D. TenEyck, who has been steward at the Hotel Grenada for the last four years, has leased the County House at Somerville and will assume the management of it next Monday morning. Mr. TenEyck will aim to make the hotel one of the best in Somerset county. No doubt his many friends in this city will pay him a visit when in Somerville.

TWO STATES JOIN HANDS.

NEW JERSEY AND PENNSYLVANIA LIBRARIANS TO CONFER TOGETHER.

Meeting to be Held at Atlantic City in April When Numerous Papers Will be Read and Discussed on the Work

On Monday, April 5th the first joint convention of the State Library Associations will be held at Atlantic City. It already promises to be a highly significant meeting. An important discussion on "What the State could do for Free Public Libraries" will be opened by Librarian Thompson of the Philadelphia Public Library, Thomas L. Montgomery of Wagner Institute for Pennsylvania, and Librarian Hill of Newark and Wm. R. Weeks for New Jersey. This discussion will be the most interesting feature of the convention as it as to do with the improvement of the Library laws of both states. The movement last year to establish a State Library commission in New Jersey was a failure. It had been hoped to secure the passage of a bill that would permit the expenditure of small sums in towns without libraries, the people of those towns having raised a certain sum themselves. The commission was also to be a sort of bureau of information to which all could apply for advice, etc., as to the best way to establish libraries, and library methods. New Jersey is far behind other states in its libraries, and such a commission would go far towards increasing the number of libraries as well as raising the standard of those already established.

Papers will also be read by Prof. Richardson, of Princeton, on the new University Library, by Librarian Hill, of Newark, and Miss Winser also of the Newark Library. Miss Adams of the Plainfield Library will read a paper on "The Public Library and the Child."

A local reception committee headed by Mayor Stoy and H. S. Seme will do all in their power to make the stay of the librarians as pleasant as possible. One interesting feature of the convention will be the question box. Queries of all sorts pertaining to libraries and their management can be submitted at any time during the day, and they will later be taken up and answered or discussed.

It is hoped that reduced rates may be procured, but at present the entire trip can be covered with $7.50.

All who are interested in libraries, whether members of the Association or not, are very cordially invited to be present. Miss Adams of the Public Library will give to any who are interested particulars of this convention.

NEWS OF THE SUBURBS.

THINGS THAT INTEREST SCOTCH PLAINS AND DUNELLEN.

Brief and Terse Observations Gathered by Alert Press Reporters to be Perused at the Supper Table at Your Leisure

DUNELLEN AND NEW MARKET.

Mr. and Mrs. Grover, of New York, are guests at the Park Hotel.

George Kerch, of Springdale, is visiting his cousin, R. Badum.

Miss Lizzie Strouble, of High Bridge, is visiting her cousin, Miss Della Fritts, here.

Borough Collector and Editor George Day, is confined to the house, suffering from the grip.

George Scbenck, one of Adam Dealaman's trustworthy clerks is about to branch out in business for himself, and he will soon open a store in the rooms formerly occupied by the W. C. T. U.

The Dunellen School library fund has become nearly exhausted, and in order to replenish the treasury Col. Grovers has been secured to give his illustrated lecture on the late war in Lincoln School hall, this evening.

John Milligan, of Washington avenue, has purchased an entire new outfit, consisting of horse, wagon and harness. The rig came from Washington, and the animal can trot well under the present administration.

The many friends of Rev. S. F. Custard are asking daily concerning his condition. So, for their benefit, it may be stated that the patient is doing nicely and yesterday he seemed to be remarkably bright and cheerful.

Some of the old residents here say on Monday night next there will "be more fun than you can shake a stick at." Then the legal voters are requested to meet at the Town Hall and place in nomination a mayor whose term of office shall run for two years, two councilmen for one year each, two for two years, two for three years, an assessor and collector for a three year term each, a justice of the peace, a freeholder, commissioners of appeal, surveyors of highways, constable and pound keepers. From present indications there will be much cutting and slashing of the slate as made up in private caucus. The election takes place on March 9th.

There seems to be no doubt that ere a few months more shall have elapsed "the trolley in all its glory" will be running directly through the town. At first when the proposition was made to equip and maintain a road through Dunellen, the merchants, or several of them, disapproved of the scheme, and now since the new line seems to be a reality, some of them are favoring the trolley. Representatives of the New Brunswick Traction Company were in town yesterday and looked over the ground tending to laying tracks over the old Bound Brook road, through Dunellen and to meet the tracks of the Plainfield Street Railway Company on West Front street. The New Brunswick representatives could find no fault with the exactions from the Plainfield Company as the representatives so stated.

SCOTCH PLAINS.

W. H. Turton is refitting his store for the spring and summer trade.

Mrs. Peter Smith, of Bound Brook, is visiting Mrs. Joseph Clark, of Front street.

W. H. Turton received yesterday from Northport, L. I., a beautiful Scotch Collie, three-months-old dog. The animal is a beauty and is prized very highly by Mr. Turton.

It has been suggested and perhaps reasonably, too, that as soon as the frost comes out of the ground, a roller should be put on the roads and get them in passable condition again.

The Sunday evening services at the M. E. church will be a special service in the interest of the Epworth League. The subject discussed by the pastor will be "A Statement and a Question."

The many friends of Mrs. McNair, who was so seriously burned about the face, arms and chest, that it was found necessary to remove her to the hospital, will rejoice to know that she is rapidly recovering.

There seems to be no reasonable doubt now but that the trolley will be in operation here soon. The right of way has been obtained, the surveys made, and all that now remains to bring the Plains into a more densely populated community is the advent of the trolley. So let the trolley come by all means

Twilight Council, No. 7, J. O. U. A. M., of Scotch Plains, held their regular meeting last evening and added another to their number by initiating Chas. Fields in to their Council. It was unanimously adopted that all members of the council present themselves at the council rooms on Sunday morning at 10 a. m. sharp to attend divine service at the Methodist church when Mr. Angleman will preach an appropriate sermon for the benefit of the order.

It had been supposed that after the holidays most chickens that were permitted to live through that period, might be considered safe for a time, at least. But on Thursday night what is known as the old Brown place, near Lambert's Mills, was raided and ninety fine fowls, many of them laying hens, were confiscated and carried away. The fowls were mostly of the Plymouth Rock and Wyandotte variety. The robbers had to go through the cow-yard in order to get to the hencoop, but they took every precaution to cover up their tracks.

WILLOW GROVE.

Mrs. Thomas Lee has been quite ill for several days past.

Mr. and Mrs. Varian, of New York, have been the guests of Miss Goodman this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Ambrose Smalley, of Plainfield, have been the guests of Simeon Lambert.

Miss Susan Lee, of Newark, has returned home after spending a few days with her uncle, Thomas Lee.

Mrs. Bert McAdams, of New York, has been the guest of her mother, Mrs. Lippincott, during the past week.

Mr. Swezey led the meeting at the chapel last Thursday evening. It was one of the best meetings held in some time.

The semi-annual business meeting of the Christian Endeavor Society was held recently, at which time the following officers were elected: President, George Guest; vice president, Mr. Lee; treasurer, Miss Lee; secretary, Mr. Goodman.

Some person or persons entered the chapel recently and took three gallons of kerosene. In connection with this there has been considerable thieving in this vicinity of late. On Monday night last Mr. Mager had 100 chickens stolen from his place. Only five were left. This sort of thing is becoming too prevalent and the citizens are up in arms over the invasion.

A farewell reception was tendered to Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Clark at their residence last Tuesday evening, previous to their removal from town. The playing of games was the principal feature of the evening, and prizes were presented to those who secured the greatest number of points. Altogether the event was pleasant and those present will long remember it.

A friend advised me to try Ely's Cream Balm and after using it six weeks I believe myself cured of catarrh. It is a most valuable remedy.—Joseph Stewart, 624 Grand Avenue, Brooklyn, N. Y.

A few months ago, Mr. Byron Every, of Woodstock, Mich., was badly afflicted with rheumatism. His right leg was swollen the full length, causing him great suffering. He was advised to try Chamberlain's Pain Balm. The first bottle of it helped him considerably and the second bottle effected a cure. The 25 and 50 cent sizes are for sale by T. S. WESTFIELD.

WAR IN THE G.O.P. CAMP.

WESTFIELD REPUBLICANS SPLIT UP OVER A NOMINATION.

N. B. Gardner Wanted to Succeed Himself, but John Glick is After the Office—Democrats Ready to Step in the Breach.

Westfielders who desire to have The Daily Press left at their house or place of business every afternoon by trustworthy and gentlemanly carrier boys can be accommodated by leaving an order with either Percy Clark or Willie Foster. The Press will also be on sale every afternoon after 4 o'clock at the Union News Company's stand at the Central Railroad station, and at the news stand of C. F. W. Wittke.

Miss Beck is visiting in Elizabeth.

Mrs. Woodward went to Elizabeth yesterday.

Mrs. Robinson visited in Brooklyn yesterday.

Mrs. Morrell visited friends in Plainfield yesterday.

Mrs. Joseph Sherman and daughter spent yesterday with Mrs. Westervelt, of Bayonne.

The town committee held its last meeting of the year last evening and renewed some notes.

Chief J. Austin Dennis and Second Assistant Chief William H. Chamberlain were given their credentials by the Town Committee last evening.

Miss Emma Bridges, president of the Woman's Club, Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Apgar, Mr. and Mrs. Arnold, Mr. Green, Miss Green and Mr. Sherman participated in a cantata, at Bound Brook, last evening.

Willie Rafael, a colored boy about sixteen years old and said to be "batty," broke into Dr. Schofield's house last Saturday night and stole about $20 worth of clothing. The goods were found in his possession yesterday and returned to Dr. Schofield, but the boy was not arrested.

The interest in the coming primaries and election in Westfield is more in evidence now than at any previous local election for years. The Republicans are divided over the question as to whether they shall nominate N. B. Gardner, to succeed himself, or to put up John Glick for town committeeman. The fight is already on and is assuming large proportions. A split in the ranks is not only possible but probable. Glick and Gardner are both members of the Empire fire company, called the "Kid Glove Empires," and it is said that each candidate for the nomination has been pulling wires in the company, with the result that neither man is sure of the support of their comrades. Glick claims it. Friends of Gardner claim that the other companies will back him up. On the other hand, Glick is a member of the Westfield Athletic Club and is backed by the "silk-stockings." It is a public fact, that Republican leaders—mostly friends of Mr. Glick—have been for sometime working tooth and nail to turn Gardner down. They are scouring the town for stray Republicans and like warm Democrats urging them to come to the primaries next Tuesday evening for the avowed purpose of defeating Gardner for the nomination. Mr. Gardner, on the other hand, smiles at these frantic efforts and says that on his merits alone he is sure of the nomination and election. All this time the Democrats are not idle. Hitherto, it is claimed that the bosses of both parties have gotten together and made a "deal" whereby both would agree to support the same candidate and thus divide the offices, the Democrats taking one and the Republicans the other. Now it is different. The Democrats will hold their primary the night following the Republicans. They are prepared to take advantage of the factional strife in the latest party, and the popular dissatisfaction with the present regime. The Democrats say that if Mr. Gardner is renominated they are confident of defeating him and are inclined to believe that they have a walk over.

PAYN AS MARSHAL.

HOW GRANT APPOINTED HIM U. S MARSHAL IN 1876.

Selected by President Grant as a Man to be Depended Upon in Perilous Times—How for Many Days He Watched Every Movement of Samuel J. Tilden.

This is a story about Lou F. Payn, the new Superintendent of Insurance for New York State. The events occurred just twenty years ago, but had never been printed until they appeared recently in the New York Sun.

Reference was made to the obituary notices of Mr. Reid, who died recently, to his connection with the determination of the Republican National Committee of 1876 to claim the election of Hayes at sunrise the morning after election day. Mr. Payn's part in that historic time began when President Grant, in the closing days of his administration, nominated him as United States Marshal for the Southern District of New York. But to tell the story in Mr. Payn's own words:

"I received a note from President Grant asking me to call on him at the White House. I obeyed the summons, and ascertained, for the first time, that he contemplated sending my name to the Senate as United States Marshal. He eyed me closely as he began the conversation, and I soon learned that it was proposed to make me United States Marshal. President Grant began:

"'Mr. Payn, do you understand the duties of a United States Marshal?' I told him that I did. 'Do you know, Mr. Payn, that these are troublous times and that there is danger of an outbreak all over the country?' I told the President I was fully aware of the situation. Then he went on to say that the Democrats were in a highly inflammable frame of mind, believing that Mr. Tilden had been cheated out of the election for President, and that there was a likelihood of trouble. He asked me if I would obey the oath of office which I would have to take if I was made United States Marshal. I told him that I certainly would.

"Not once during the conversation did President Grant give me any definite idea of just where the outbreak was likely to come, but he intimated very strongly that if there was one it would be in New York city. President Grant all through the conversation seemed to want to test me as a man of nerve, and finally he was satisfied, apparently, for he said: 'Mr. Payn, I will send your name to the Senate this afternoon.'

"I took possession of my office, and several days later Senator Conkling called on me. 'Mr. Payn,' said he, 'I want to congratulate you on your appointment as United States Marshal, I want to talk to you about the duties of the place. First, let me ask you if you know where Samuel J. Tilden is at this moment.' I told Senator Conkling that I did not. 'Do you know where Mr. Tilden lives?' Senator Conkling next asked, and I told him that Mr. Tilden lived somewhere in Gramercy Park. 'Marshal Payn,' replied Senator Conkling, 'you should know where he is this instant; you should know where he is every instant in the day. You should know when he leaves his bed in the morning and when he gets into it at night. You evidently are not aware of why you were made United States Marshal.'

"It didn't take me long after that to understand the real meaning of Senator Conkling's visit and the conversation he addressed to me. Within twenty minutes I had twenty assistant deputy marshals in Gramercy Park. They knew every step Mr. Tilden took. I had determined that, on the first and slightest indication, either on his part or that of his friends, to move on Washington, I would land him inside of Fort Lafayette so quick that it would make his head swim. Nobody at the time knew that these deputy marshals were in Gramercy Park or that I was watching Mr. Tilden."

Not Safe to be Too Positive.

A cantankerous old farmer who hardly ever agreed with anything his wife said to him, came home one wet day, and placing his back to the fire, stood up to dry.

After some little time his wife turned to him and said:

"John, you'll better watch yourself, or you'll burn your flannels."

To which John replied:

"I think I'll need to burn my trousers first."

"Indeed, John, you'll need to do naething of the kind—they're burned already."

BEATING FATHER TIME.

The Mormon Bishop Was Frightened at the Rate of Speed.

Speed was once demonstrated on a Western road in a fashion to curl the hair of at least one old Mormon Bishop. The churchman considered it a phenomenon, and got off the train as quickly as he could. He had bull-whacked across the plains in the early days, and, strange to say, had never ridden on a railroad train until the time when he entered upon his trip from Green River to San Francisco. The speed was, therefore, a revelation to him. He had never before seen anything so swift, and he was scared. About twelve miles from Ogden he asked the conductor for the time of day, and was told that it was 7:35. He impressed this time forcibly on his mind.

Now, for a wonder, the western connection at Ogden was quickly made, and after the lapse of but a few minutes the San Francisco-bound travellers were on their way Californiaward. Ogden had been left behind only a few miles, and the train was whooping along at a behind-time rate of speed, when the old Bishop, frightened and trembling, dared to ask the conductor what was the time of day.

If you have travelled westward you know that at Ogden the time changes, and San Francisco time, one hour earlier, is adopted. The conductor had San Francisco time and he said:

"It is 7:10—ten minutes after seven."

The old Bishop, previously haunted by a dread of impending destruction because of the horrible rate of speed at which he was being whirled through space, rose with a wild cry and made for the door.

"Lemme off!" he cried. "It was 35 minutes after 7 an hour ago, and we're goin' so fast we are goin' faster than time can count itself. Lemme off!"

Had he really been going as fast as the old man had believed, he would surely have been beaten to bits as he jumped from the train. As it was, he was only rolled something like a half-mile, and was carried back to Ogden on a handcar.—Chicago Record.

People Do Read the Papers.

Some persons wonder why engaged people generally prefer to keep their engagements as quiet as possible until the day of the wedding. Perhaps the reason lies in the results of a newspaper announcement.

The other day an engagement was mentioned in one of the afternoon papers. It was in the last edition of the paper, but early the next morning several awning makers were at the home of the future bride's parents, soliciting the contract for supplying an awning when the event came off. On the same morning and in the first mail no less than half a dozen printers and engravers sent samples of their work, and quoted prices for which they would be willing to prepare the wedding cards, according to the latest dictates of fashion. During the remainder of the week milliners, caterers, dressmakers, liverymen, furniture dealers, hardware men, and dry goods merchants made known their desire to supply the future bride and groom with all the outfit that they might need or imagine they needed. The young folks are now waiting for bids from ministers who are willing to tie the knot at bargain prices.—Buffalo Courier.

He Wanted His Discharge.

In a regiment in India a private wanted to get home, and saw no other way than shamming deafness. He reported himself sick, and was sent to the hospital. The doctors tried all sorts of ways to find him out, but he was too sharp for them. One day the doctor determined to try him by firing a pistol off just behind him, but he got to hear of the experiment and, of course, was prepared for it.

As he and his chum were sitting on their cots opposite each other smoking, the doctor stole into the room, unawares as he thought, and fired the pistol close to his ear. He, however, took no notice of the report, but on seeing the smoke he turned to his chum, and said:

"Put your pipe out, you fool, the doctor will be round directly."

His ruse worked.—Tid-Bits.

His Beautiful Devotion.

A beautiful anecdote is told of Wendell Phillips, the famous American orator, illustrating his lover-like devotion to his invalid wife. At the close of a lecture engagement in a neighboring town, his friends entreated him not to return to Boston.

"The last train has left," they said, "and you will be obliged to take a carriage into the city. It is a sleety November night, cold and raw; and you will have twelve miles of rough riding before you get home."

To which he replied: "But at the other end of them I shall find Anne Phillips."—Tid-Bits.

It Ought to Work Both Ways.

A minister once submitted an account of tithes to a blacksmith, whose exclamation, "But I don't go to your church!" was met by the rejoinder: "No, but the door of my church is always open!"

Next day the blacksmith submitted an account of shoeing to the minister.

"But my horses are not shod at your smithy!" exclaimed the minister, with some heat.

"No," was the quiet reply, "but the door of my smithy is always open."—Boston Budget.

A Bargain in Jewelry.

"Why do you regard Fisher as such a lucky man?"

"Well, you see, his wife was engaged six times before he married her, and he figures that it will not be necessary to buy a bit of jewelry for at least ten years."—Cleveland Leader.

A MUMMIFIED WIFE.

A DUCHESS CARRIED AROUND IN A CASKET FIFTEEN YEARS.

Queen Victoria's Mother-in-Law Not at First Interred, but Her Remains Were Dragged Over Europe Encased in a Box Shaped Like a Grand Piano.

Queen Victoria's mother-in-law is the only princess of the blood in modern times whose corpse may be said to have constituted a piece of drawing-room furniture for ten or fifteen years after her death. Preserved in the form of a mummy, her dead body was dragged about over Europe. The casket in which the embalmed remains were contained was fashioned like a grand piano. It was always kept locked, although it occupied the most prominent place in the drawing-room of the sorrowing widower. The remains of the unfortunate lady were not finally laid to rest in the ducal vault at Gotha, beside her ancestors, until the house in which her husband resided had been broken into at night by men disguised as burglars, who, after chloroforming the owner, his wife and the members of his household burst open the piano case and carried off its contents, the corpse of the once exquisitely beautiful reigning Duchess of Saxe-Coburg and Gotha.

In order to understand how the mother-in-law of Queen Victoria came to be subjected to treatment of this kind, it is necessary to explain that the Duchess, who had brought the Duchy of Gotha, to which she was the sole heiress, as a dowry to her husband, the Duke of Saxe-Coburg, was shamefully used by the latter. The Duke, a notorious drunkard and profligate, and renowned for the brutality of his manners, practically deserted her about three years after the birth of her son Albert (afterwards Prince Consort of Great Britain), and established in her place in his palace a Polish favorite named Schimbowska, with whom he lived.

Indeed, she was Duchess in all but name. The Imperial Bundestag or Federation of Sovereign Princes of the German Empire, felt impelled to interfere. But it was of no avail, and finally the situation became so intolerable that the young Duchess fled, being assisted in her escape by a young officer, Baron von Hanstein. The Duke at once brought suit for divorce against the Duchess, naming the young officer as corespondent. At the same time he dismissed the young man from the army and exiled him.

Realizing how much the Baron had sacrificed for her the Duchess married him a year or two after recovering her freedom, and obtained for him the title of Count of Poelzig. As she had, assisted by the Bundestag, recovered possession of the revenue of the Duchy of Gotha, she was able to live in affluence, and spent the remainder of her life at St. Wendel on the Rhine and in Switzerland.

When she died at Paris she left to her husband, Count Poelzig, a large income. Being jealous and passionately devoted to the Count, she dreaded his marrying again. So she made her request to him conditional on his never parting from her corpse, not even for a night. She stipulated further that if he spent twenty-four hours away from her embalmed remains he would forfeit his inheritance. So the unfortunate Count was obliged to carry the mummy of the Duchess around with him for nearly fifteen years, even after his marriage to another woman, to whom he would never reveal the secret of the piano containing the corpse, and who consequently regarded the uncanny instrument as a sort of Bluebeard chamber.

Three days after the burglary of his mansion at Paris, the Count received a communication saying that the remains of his wife had been laid to rest in the family vault at Gotha, and that if he made no attempt to recover them or to discover the identity of the burglars the annuity which he had been drawing until then under the terms of his wife's will would be continued for the remainder of his life.

Delighted to be rid of the mummied Duchess on such terms, the Count cheerfully acquiesced. He survived his step-son, the Prince Consort of Great Britain, a number of years. It is generally believed that the seizure of the corpse at Paris was at the instance of the Prince Consort and the Queen (the Prince's elder brother being too much of a cynic to care much whether his mother's body was above or under the ground). It is probably the only occasion upon which Queen Victoria has ever been suspected of being concerned in either body snatching or burglary.—New York World.

Paderewski's Lack of Conceit.

When Paderewski was dining at a hotel in Richmond, Va., a fine nickel-plated banjo was sent in by a local banjo player, with the request that the great pianist should write a short musical sentiment on the sheepskin head. Paderewski complied with the request, and this is the sentiment to which he attached his signature: "I have not the pleasure of being a performer on this beautiful instrument; am only a piano-player."

Entirely Willing.

A story is told of the late Archdeacon Denison, which illustrates the old cleric's sense of humor and his staunch adherence to the principles which he had ever held. Some perplexed parishioner came to his vicar's study one day and blurted out, "Why, I hear, Mr. Archdeacon, as how you refuses to bury Dissenters!" "No," replied the archdeacon—"you have been wrongly informed, my man. I should like to bury them all!"

An Ærostatic Railway.

The official stamp of approval has just been put on the most novel railroad that has ever been built. A balloon is to be the propelling power used in carrying passengers to and from the top of the Hochstauffen Mountain, at Bad Reichenhall, a beautiful place in the Austrian Alps.

The scheme is known as the aerostatic railway.

The power by which visitors are to climb this mountain is furnished by a captive balloon. This runs along a track built at the side of the roadbed. A trailer, furnished with many wheels, clasps this wooden rail, and to this trailer the passenger car is fastened.

The operator has a seat in the car, and a cord swings between his place and the balloon, by which the gas supply is regulated. He has also several brakes and safety devices at hand in case of an accident.—New York Herald.

Spicy Correspondence.

Alexandre Dumas once received the following note signed by a French Count: "Monsieur,—I have the honor to propose to you to associate yourself with me in the composition of a drama. Your name will figure by the side of mine; you alone composing the drama, and I alone defraying all the expenses of the first representation. You shall have all the profits, for I work only for glory." Dumas replied: "Monsieur—I have never been in the habit of harnessing together in my carriage a horse and an ass. I regret, then, not to be able to accept your very kind proposition." The Count responded: "Monsieur Dumas—I received your note of refusal to unite our literary labors. You are at liberty not to understand your own interest, but do not allow yourself in the future to call me a horse."

Royalty Obliged to Succumb.

When the Empress of Austria first married, it was thought highly improper for royalty to carry an umbrella. Consequently, whenever it threatened to rain, she was unable to have her accustomed walk. She moped so much that her husband declared that thenceforth umbrellas should not be contrary to etiquette.

The Biggest Pension.

The biggest annual pension that is paid in any part of the world is £19,000. The Duke of Richmond is the recipient of this vast annuity, which is perpetual, passing from son to son. The pension was granted 300 years ago by Charles II.—Tid Bits.

OLGA NETHERSOLE

Says Dr. Greene's Nervura Is Far Above All Other Remedies.

She Found Dr. Greene's Nervura the Sure Restorer of Health, Energy and Strength. The Remedy All Should Use in the Spring.

OLGA NETHERSOLE.

Olga Nethersole is beyond question the greatest English speaking, emotional actress of the present day. Everyone who witnesses the tremendous expenditure of nervous energy incident to her wonderful performances, realizes the excessive nervous strain and tension incurred and the consequent loss of nerve force and physical strength. No one, therefore, is more capable of knowing what most quickly restores and recuperates loss of nervous energy and power than she, and no one is more competent to advise those whose nerves are weak, who are ill, out of order or run down in nerve or physical strength, just how to be restored to health and vigor. She tells everybody to use Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy, for she knows that this grand medicine is the best thing in the world to make people well and strong.

Miss Nethersole says:—"I have used Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy and have found it a most strengthening and invigorating tonic and restorative. When weak, tired, nervous or run down, or when I cannot eat or sleep well, I have found it a sure restorer of energy and strength to the body." If you feel weak, tired, nervous, irritable and nerveless, if you do not eat or sleep well, if you wake tired mornings, with dull feeling head, no appetite, tired and without energy or ambition to work, if you have headache, neuralgia, rheumatism, female complaints or liver and kidney disease, get at once this great restorative, Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy. It will surely make you well. Dr. Greene's Cathartic Pills are the most perfect pills for biliousness and constipation. Dr. Greene, 35 West 14th St., New York City, the successful physician in curing nervous and chronic diseases, can be consulted free, personally or by letter.

M'COOK IS OUT.

Declined Any Cabinet Appointment Except Attorney General.

New York, Feb. 27.—A dispatch received here from Canton, O., says: There is no longer any question that Col. J. J. McCook of New York has absolutely declined to accept any position in the cabinet except attorney general, and that he has been informed that no other place is open to him. It was the impression this morning that New York would not be represented in the cabinet, but influential republicans have been telegraphing last night recommending A. B. Hepburn for secretary of the interior. Mr. Hepburn was formerly comptroller of the currency and is now president of the Third National bank of New York.

ALABAMA CLAIMS AWARD.

An English M. P. Wants To Know If We Will Repay the Surplus.

London, Feb. 27.—In the house of commons last night Thomas G. Bowles, conservative member for Lynn Regis, asked whether it was true that the sum of $8,000,000 of the Alabama claims award still remained in the hands of the government of the United States, and what prospect there was that any part of it would be repaid to Great Britain after the claims for compensation had been satisfied. Rt. Hon. George N. Curzon, under foreign secretary, said it was his belief, from accounts published in the United States, that a certain portion of the award still remained with the American government. It would be contrary to the undertakings of Great Britain in the treaty of Washington made in 1871 to request the return of any sum left over after the claims against the award had been satisfied. Mr. Bowles—Is there any prospects of the United States government offering to repay surplus? Mr. Curzon—I am afraid that I cannot speak for the United States government. (Laughter.)

OLIVIERI WINS HIS SUIT.

Bay State Supreme Court Awards Him $12,162 Against C. F. Atkinson.

Boston, Feb. 27.—The full bench of the supreme court has overruled the exceptions of the defendant in the action brought by Gedsone Olivieri, the world-wide teacher of vocal music, against C. F. Atkinson of this city. The plaintiff is therefore held entitled to a judgment of $12,162, recovered against the defendant in an action for breach of a contract made in 1892 to teach the defendant's wife, the late Lillian Durell. Defendant Atkinson went into insolvency Nov. 21, 1894, and obtained his discharge Jan. 23, 1895. The plaintiff brought his action Jan. 30, 1893, and obtained a finding April 21, 1894. Afterwards, in February, 1896, the plaintiff made a motion in the superior court for judgment upon his finding. Objection to this motion was made by the defendant, on the ground that he having obtained his discharge in insolvency and the plaintiff being domiciled in Boston, within this commonwealth, at the time of the beginning of his insolvency, this claim was barred by his discharge. The superior court found for the plaintiff and the defendant excepted.

The Philippine Islands Revolt.

Madrid, Feb. 27.—Advices received here from Manila say that an insurrection broke out there yesterday. Bands of Tagales and natives attacked the barracks of the revenue officers and gendarmes and murdered a military officer and four Spaniards in the streets. The troops restored order, killing 200 of the insurgents and arresting many others. The object of the rising was to prevent the troops from attacking Cavite.

Cornell Declines Yale's Challenge.

New Haven, Conn., Feb. 27.—The Yale freshman debating union has received word from Cornell declining a challenge to meet Yale, 1900, in a forensic contest, either here or in New York later in the season. The Yale freshmen will now try to arrange a debate with Columbia, leaving the date and place to that university. A conference will be held to select the subject if Columbia accepts the challenge.

INDIAN BILL PASSED

Senate After Another Session of Turbulence Gets Down to Work.

MORE TROUBLE OVER CUBAN MATTER

Senators Indulge in Angry Talk and Cutting Personalities — Crowded Galleries Enjoy the Fun— Witty Passages.

Washington, Feb. 27.—Notwithstanding the fact that the Morgan resolution asking for information about Aguirre has been adopted, the Cuban subject still arouses the senate. Nevertheless, some progress is being made with the appropriation bills. The senators watch the newspaper dispatches from Cuba and Spain closely, and any new development starts the ball rolling in the senate, as was the case yesterday, when, at the very opening, Mr. Frye, rep., Me., referred to the dispatch announcing Sanguilly's release and deprecated further discussion of the matter, saying that, for his part, he did not believe in wasting powder simply for the purpose of making a noise. The Sanguilly resolution having been sent to the calendar, two other resolutions as to victims of Spanish cruelty were offered—one by Mr. Morgan, dem., Ala., in the case of George Washington Aguirre, and one by Mr. Call in relation to the suicide or murder of Dr. Ricardo Ruiz. As to Aguirre, there were some comments upon his baptismal name—Mr. Morgan assuming that it gave to Aguirre an additional claim upon American sympathy, and Mr. Lindsay, dem., Ky., instructing that his surrender, under a proclamation of amnesty, was an un-George Washington act. A letter from Ethan Allen of New York vouching for the young man was read, and Mr. Hoar was led, in a jocose mood, to inquire, with an air of gravity, whether that was the Ethan Allen of the revolution. Mr. Morgan said that he was the grandson of the revolutionary hero and another senator added the information that he was the president of the Cuban junta of New York.

Bitter Personalities.

The storm broke out over the Sanguilly matter; and Senators White, dem., Cal., and Lodge, rep., Mass., had some delicate sparring, in which Mr. White spoke ironically of Mr. Lodge as one of the great men of the world, and as knowing more about Spanish pronunciation than all other Spanish scholars known. This was provoked by Mr. Lodge's laughing at Mr. White for pronuncing "Julio" as "Holio." Mr. Lodge retaliated by imputing envy to the California senator because his long speech of the day before had not enthused the galleries. When Mr. Hale, rep., Me., appealed to senators to lay aside all extraneous discussions and confine themselves to the business of appropriation bills for the six remaining days of the session, saying that he expected the senate to sit on Sunday, he was cruelly ridiculed by Mr. Morgan, and told that he ought to start out on a regular tour of lecturing, if he could find a lot of school children for his audience. The Alabama senator was in a very unconciliatory mood. He refused angrily to permit either Senator Hoar or Senator Hale to interject a remark into his speech; but he reserved his bitterest words for President Cleveland, whom he described contemptuously, as having been "down on his hunkers" praying to Spain to release Sanguilly; also as a "sluggard sleeping and snoring while Americans suffered." Mr. Morgan was on the floor over an hour.

Witty Passages.

After he resumed his seat, the bitterness faded out of the debate. Instead of it there was a witty passage between Senators Daniel, dem., Va., and Grey, dem., Del. When the former used the Spanish word incomunicado, Mr. Gray assumed ignorance of its meaning and said he did not talk Spanish. With a pleasant and gracious smile, Mr. Daniel excused himself, and said that he thought that the senator from Delaware had just been talking very good Spanish. This polite retort, with its unexpressed, but well understood meaning, provoked an outburst of laughter on the floor and in the galleries, which were crowded. In the pleasanter turn which the discussion had thus taken the Cuban question was permitted to subside; and the actual consideration of the Indian appropriation bill was resumed. The bill had not been passed when at 6 p. m., a recess was taken until 7:30 p. m.

Night Session.

The first twenty minutes of the evening session were devoted to private pension bills, thirty-four being disposed of—one of these granting a pension of $50 per month to Maj.-Gen. Cassius M. Clay. House bill defining the jurisdiction of the police court of the District of Columbia was also passed. A resolution was adopted requesting the house to return the senate bill donating to the Daughters of the American Revolution a site in the Washington monument grounds for the erection of a memorial museum. Consideration of the Indian appropriation bill was then resumed. The bill was finally passed and the postoffice appropriation bill taken up, but was soon sidetracked, and a few minutes before midnight the senate adjourned until to-day.

Cold Weather in the Northwest.

St. Paul, Minn., Feb. 27.—The mercury last evening registered 28 degrees below zero in St. Paul. This is the coldest weather of the winter and the coldest so late in February in the history of the local weather station. The cold wave covers the Missouri valley and the northwest, where the fall last night ranged from 14 to 30 below.

HIGH SCHOOL ANNUAL.

STUDENTS TO INDULGE IN THE PUBLICATION OF A PERIODICAL.

Short Sketches on Interesting Topics, Pictures of School Buildings and Other Interesting Matter to Be Printed.

There have been several attempts at the Plainfield High School to issue a periodical, but all the efforts that have been made so far have only ended in failure. The Board of Education is now behind a project to issue an annual. The book will not be devoted to the High School alone, but to all the public schools of the city.

A rough draft of the book has been drawn up and the work of preparing the material for it begun. It will contain pictures of all the present school buildings and a plan of the projected High School building. There will also be short descriptions of each of the schools. Short sketches of a number of the prominent graduates of the High School will be given. The different societies in the High School, including the Kappa Delta Phi, the cadet company and a picture of the members of the company, the athletic association and all its records, will be included in the book. Other matters of interest to the pupils in the schools and their friends will be remembered and the book will be made something well worth keeping. The covers will be handsomely embossed and gotten up in a charming manner.

While the Board and the Faculty of the High School will assist in the preparation of this annual, a committee of the young men of the High School has been appointed to take charge of their part of the work. The committee will also have control of the advertising department. The chairman of the committee is Sydney R. Titsworth, president of the Senior class, and he will be assisted by Chas. Noble, '97, George Proctor Smith, '98, and Wm. A. Fisher, '99.

Interest in athletics is dead, or rather dormant, at the present time, although the prospects are that the coming season will be an active one in that direction. The entertainment for the benefit of the treasury of the athletic association was to be held on the evening of March 6th, but it will probably be postponed a week as the committee are somewhat doubtful as to the desirability of holding it so soon.

The bugle was used for the first time in the drill of the High School cadet company on Thursday afternoon. Lindley H. Hillman was elected bugler some time ago and he has been practicing on] the bugle until he is now able to give the different calls with ease. The company was instructed in some of the simplest calls and went through a little practice drill.

Captain George Proctor Smith and Second Lieutenant Henry W. Brower have organized a company of the boys in the two highest classes in the Bryant School building and drill them every Tuesday afternoon in the basement.

There is steady progress in the work of the Kappa Delta Phi. The members are learning the principles of parliamentary law and their debates are becoming very interesting. A meeting of the society was held yesterday afternoon. The programme was to have been a debate but both the principles were detained away by illness and the debate was postponed for two weeks. John C. Whiting, one of the charter members of the society, was present and made a few remarks. The president for the next month was elected. Henry W. Brower was unanimously chosen to fill that office. One new member was elected.

The bowling team will accom the other team and will meet the Rahway bowlers in two games. The party going from Plainfield will leave the association building at 6:30 o'clock sharp.

STRIKES AND SPARES.

The bowling match between the team from the Plainfield High School and the regular Y. M. C. A. team will be rolled on the association alleys on Wednesday evening instead of Tuesday evening as announced.

and stated that he was just able to get through with that amount last year and he felt as though the amount shoud be raised a little. It was left as it was notwithstanding the objection.

The appropriation for the Board of Health was made $550, which is $50 more than last year. Mr. Reed stated that Mr. Honeyman had informed him that the board should have a little more money, and he thought that the amount should be raised $50. There was some objection to this, but the request was granted.

On a motion offered by P. A. Emmons, a committe of three was appointed to fill vacancies should any occur. Mr. Howland appointed the following: P. A. Emmons, Charles Smineck and William L. Smalley. This finished the business of the primary, and the meeting adjourned.

Laid to Rest.

The funeral of the late Michael McCarthy was held from his late residence, No. 645 South Second street, yesterday afternoon at 3 o'clock. The services were conducted privately by the Rev. Father Murphy, and only the immediate members of the family were present. The floral tributes were grand and impressive and evidenced the personal esteem of a large number of friends.

The pall-bearers were J. E. Mosher, James Whalen, Hugh McDonald, Joseph Newman, James McCarthy and Patrick Muldoon. Interment was in St. Mary's cemetery.

Excitement at Peapack.

Great excitement prevails in the village of Peapack. James Pickle, while digging in his garden, turned up a clod in which he saw a glittering substance. Investigation showed that it was native gold. Mining will begin as soon as the frost is out of the ground.

Denominational Work.

A missionary meeting was held in the Seventh-Day Baptist church last evening. The subject was special denominational work. Papers were read by Clarence Rogers, Henry M. Maxson and Rev. Dr. A. H. Lewis.

A Tale With a Moral.

A pair of spectacles was lost. They were advertised for in the Press. T. Snyder, of Manning avenue, found the spectacles and saw the ad. He returned them. The moral is plain.

TALKED ON HIGHWAY IMPROVEMENT.

F. A. Dunham the Guest of the Connecticut Valley Highway Association.

F. A. Dunham, the well-known civil engineer of this city, has just returned from Springfield, Mass., where he attended the first annual banquet of the Connecticut Valley Highway Association. He reports that the people of Massachusetts and Connecticut are very much interested in the subject of improved highways. By special invitation Mr. Dunham made an address on the subject, which was well received by the members present. About 175 attended the banquet, among which may be mentioned ex Governor Hale, of Massachusetts; Mayor Stevenson, of Springfield; W. E. McClintock, one of the Massachusetts State Highway Commission; Hy Manley, of Boston, engineer in charge of street improvements, and the Mayors and city officials of several small cities. On Mr. Dunham's return he stopped at Hartford and visited the Capitol, where he was pleasantly entertained by the chairman of the Connecticut Highway Commission.

LEHIGH VALLEY SHOPS LOCATED.

They Will Probably Be Erected Near the Coal Plant at South Plainfield.

South Plainfield has already been used by the Lehigh Valley Railroad as a point at which to store their winter supply of coal and now the company is planning to locate their shops at that place also. The erection of the railroad shops means much to the people of that vicinity as it would bring with it the several hundred men that are employed there.

It is stated on good authority that the company has been silently at work among the property owners of the neighborhood and purchased a tract of land, ten acres in extent.

A New Cycle Concern.

George Gould and Charles Randolph have taken a lease of the store, 326 Park avenue, Clifton Building, and will do business under the name of Gould & Randolph Cycle Company. They will have a salesroom, storage department and repair shop. They are the agents for the Kimball, Empire, Patee, three of the best wheels on the market, and will keep a full line of bicycle supplies. They will have second-hand wheels on sale at a low figure. Their repair shop will be a model of its kind. Both members of the firm are experienced machinists. Messrs Gould and Randolph have until recently been employed at the Potter Press Works. See their advertisement in another column.

An Interesting Story.

What is the Christian Alliance? That question will be answered by Rev. F. W. Farr, dean of the New York Missionary Training Institution, who will address the meeting of the Plainfield Branch of the Christian Alliance on Thursday evening in the parlors of the W. C. T. U. He will speak on the Fourfold Gospel as taught by the Christian Alliance and will be glad to answer all questions of those who attend the meeting. Mr. Farr is one of ablest Bible teachers in this part of the country ranking with Dr. Stearns.

In the second division there will be Walter Frey, Edward Mackey, Victor Christofferson, William Boyd and Edward Tomlinson. In the third division, Walter B. Rittenhouse will attend.

Evening of Music.

Mrs. Most, of Willow avenue, entertained a few friends at her home last evening and the time was passed principally in dancing. There were several piano solos given by the Misses Carroll, Valiant, Steiner and Schuck. At a late hour refreshments were served.

FACING AN AUDIENCE.

Some of the Resources of Very Successful Orators.

Victor Hugo in his lectures used to address himself always to the most stolid countenance among his hearers feeling that if he could make an impression on him the rest would follow. Dion Boucicault, the actor, assured me he always addressed himself to the occupants of the galleries, who, being drawn from the poor and consequently less conventional elements of society were quicker to respond, and consequently to encourage him. A popular lecturer whom I know regards his audience as one huge, conglomerate pink face—that smiles, that frowns, that weeps, that quivers—as a specie of living composite photograph of the whole.

A clever stump speaker, in explaining his success, attributed it to the fact that he always regarded his hearers as children, and couched his remarks in language that the juvenile mind would grasp.

"An audience is a woman," a great French orator, now deceased, once observed to me, "subject to the same general rules that apply to the fickle sex. At one time it must be persuaded, at another caressed, at another bullied. It is full of moods." There is certainly something feminine in the quickness of a crowd's emotions. The intonation of a word may cause your audience to fawn upon you, or, on the other hand, to turn around and rend you. Perhaps it is half woman, half tiger.—Mail and Express.

He Didn't Take the Wink.

It was on the Metropolitan Railway that the following little episode occurred. Two ladies entered a third-class compartment which already held its exact complement of passengers; but, alas! for the lack of chivalry among nineteenth century travellers, not a man present stirred from his seat to accommodate the fair fresh comers.

As the train steamed slowly out of the station, an abnormally stout individual in one of the corners, addressing a schoolboy seated opposite, remarked, with a wink intended to be facetious:

"Why don't you get up and make room for one of the ladies?"

The wink was quite thrown away upon the lad, who, after surveying the other's massive proportions for a moment with a critical eye, responded coolly:

"Why don't you get up and make room for both of 'em!"

An Obliging Landlord.

An old lady who was on a train in Aroostook County, Me., recently, left the train when a stop was made for dinner, and asked for a cup of tea and a light luncheon. After finishing she saw the proprietor and inquired if he was clerk. "Yes," said he. "I act in any capacity here." "Well, how much is my bill?" "Twenty-five cents, marm," replied the smiling landlord. "Twenty-five cents! Why, if I had known it would have cost so much I would have eaten more." "Go right back, marm; eat all you want. I'll hold the train for you," was the rejoinder.—New York Tribune.

What's in a Name?

Mr. Sissons stammered outrageously. Especially difficult to him was the pronunciation of his own name. He had the misfortune to stay out late and uproariously one night and to account for it before the magistrate at the police court next morning.

"What is your name?" asked Justice McGowan.

Sissons began his reply: "Sss—ss—sss—ss—siss—"

"Stop that noise and tell me what is your name," said the judge, impatiently.

"Siss—sss—sss—sissss—"

"That will do," said his Honor, severely. "Officer, what is that man charged with?"

"I think, your Honor, he's charged wid sody-water."

Not Anxious for Relationship.

"So you want to be my son-in-law, do you?" asked the old man, with as much fierceness as he could assume.

"Well," said the young man, "I don't want to, but I suppose I'll have to be if I marry your daughter.—Tid-Bits.

"Why doesn't the clock strike thirteen, pa?" "Because, Bobby, it hasn't the face to do it."
